LIBERTY IN VEST IN BONDS

If the free peoples of the earth are not to become toiling millions for the Prussian Junkers and the Prussian Krupps, if they are not to be terror-ridden slaves at the mercy of a German Kaiser's will, Prussianism must be driven back within its own borders and kept there.

That is why the war must be fought on European soil. We are fighting in Europe now that we may not have to fight in America, on the very thresholds of our own homes, later.

Americans, you are called upon to back our armies in France, to furnish them the guns and shells and ships and airplanes, the enormous quantities of every sort of supplies that they must have to defeat the Prussian armies and drive them back across the Rhine.

The War Is Being Fought in Europe. But It Must Be WON Right Here at Home

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Prices Slump on Receipt of Unfavorable War News and Little Support.

Yesterday's stock market broke away from its moorings in the final hour when a fair volume of selling orders descended upon the Stock Exchange as a direct reflection of fresh fears awakened by the receipt of news of further withdrawals by the British forces in the region of Armentières. Prices gave way rather more easily than might have been expected from the indifference hitherto shown toward war news, and most issues closed at their lowest prices for the day. The selling brought about sharp recessions in the rails as well as in the industrials.

A dispatch from a war correspondent gave the Street its first inkling of new German successes, which resulted in the capture of several unimportant villages held by the British, and the news was substantially confirmed by the official war report, which reached the street shortly before the closing. The news itself was not considered particularly alarming, but in conjunction with the facts made public by Lloyd George it gave sufficient grounds for discouragement, which was evident in the tone of discussions heard throughout the financial district. So long as the Germans are willing to risk heavy losses and can concentrate troops for surprise attacks at various points in the extended battlefront they should be able to make further local gains, but they are still far from realizing the objectives for which so much strength has been expended.

A theory which found many supporters on the floor of the Exchange was that the selling which developed in the last hour yesterday would not have brought about such general recessions but for the elimination of short accounts by Stock Exchange supervision and the imposition of new Federal taxes on borrowed certificates. In a normal market the existence of a reasonably large short interest has always been regarded as protection against severe shocks, since it becomes profitable for the bears to cover commitments as prices recede. Many issues yielded two points and more before buying orders capable of absorbing the liquidation came into sight. Steel common fell 1⅛. Wilson 4½, Mexican Petroleum 2¼, General Electric 2¼, Chandler 3⅛, American Sumatra 2⅝ at the close; among the active rails, Reading lost 2⅛, Union Pacific 1⅜, Louisville & Nashville 1⅜.

For a time the Liberty 4s clung near their final price on Wednesday, which was 96.02, but they touched 95.82 on scattered selling and closed little above that figure on smaller offerings. Money loaned for the most part at 5 per cent.

The Directors of International Mercantile Marine met the expectations of the more conservative element among the preferred stockholders by declaring another payment of $5, whereas gossip had turned about a probable distribution of from two to three times that amount. The issue closed nearly three points under its best price on Wednesday. Until the last hour transactions were small; the activity induced by the late war news brought the total up by more than 50 per cent. of the business done up to 2 o'clock.

BETTER TONE IN LONDON.

Money Is Plentiful and Discount Rates Are Easy.

LONDON, April 11.—The stock market was rather better during the forenoon, though business did not increase materially. Tin shares and Argentine rails developed a firmer tone and numerous transactions were recorded in British and allied funds, but the market finished easier on the latest war news.

Money was plentiful and discount rates were easier. The banks are buying Treasury bills freely.

Trading Quiet on Bourse.

PARIS, April 11.—Trading was quiet on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes 50 francs 85 centimes for cash. Exchange on London 27 francs 16¼ centimes. Five per cent. loan 88 francs 45 centimes.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Sinclair Oil's Future Plans.

The decline of Sinclair Oil and Refining shares yesterday was in keeping with the trend in other parts of the list, and it could not be said, for the reason that the market was generally weak, that the passing of the dividend brought all of the recession of 1⅝ points. The downward movement from around 40 to 27 preceding the Directors' action presumably discounted the elimination of the dividend, as the Street had rumors for several weeks that the management was planning to conserve cash. The question was heard in commission houses, Is the stock market appraisal of $26,000,000 for the company low enough to make the stock a "purchase?" The course of dealings indicated that an affirmative answer was not followed up, although persons acquainted with some of the plans of the management held that the program in mind called for the upbuilding of the business over a period of years in a way which should find continued reflection in the assets and earnings.

Sumatra Dividend Progress.

The placing of American Sumatra Tobacco common stock on an 8 per cent. annual dividend basis draws attention to the rapid increase of the rate since payments were begun. The first was 1 per cent. on Aug. 1 last year, the next disbursement was 1½ per cent. on Nov. 1, and on Feb. 1 this year the quarterly distribution was 1½ per cent. The advance to 2 per cent. will occur on May 1, thus doubling the rate in nine months.

Cars for the Government.

The Government's railroad car building program is being altered somewhat, according to reports in steel trade circles, in order to conserve material for the pressing needs of the shipyards. With the demand for steel growing larger every day, it is understood the specifications for the use of more wood in making box cars than had been planned originally are being prepared for submission to the Government authorities. The order when distributed among the car builders is expected to call for 100,000 cars with a possibility of the number being increased as manufacturing progresses.

Silver Moves Up.

The advance of 2 cents an ounce for commercial bar silver in the local market yesterday to a quotation of 93⅝ cents and a gain of 1½ cents for Mexican dollars were the first upward movement recorded since the bill to fix a price of $1 an ounce for the metal was reported at Washington on Tuesday. The substantial advance did not establish a new high record for the last few months, however, and left a considerable margin to be covered if the market is to draw abreast of the proposed price by statute.

Selling Cotton Down.

There was something almost suggesting a flavor of personal vindictiveness in the zeal with which the bear group on the floor of the Cotton Exchange jumped in, late yesterday afternoon, when they felt the market weakening, and sold the market down in big jumps. It was quite evident on the faces of the professional element that they thought their time had come, after a season-long battering and ineffectual "feeling for the top." They could scarcely believe it on Monday, and very little cotton was sold short on the break that day, but yesterday all the old hands were convinced the market was with them. The question now is, whether the Southern grower, who has had things all his own way so long, will see it that way.

Price Fixing?

"It is my humble opinion," one experienced cotton man said yesterday, "that the cotton market will come through the war in a far healthier condition than the wheat market, and that in the long run prices of cotton goods will be cheaper than food prices to the ultimate consumer, just because the Government has not interfered to fix cotton prices. It is not, and never was, the speculator here, or on the Chicago Board of Trade, or anywhere else, who boosted the price of cotton or of corn. It was the farmer, once the farmer was able to hold his crop and make us come to him. Now the farmer has shown that he can make his wishes effective just as well through Congress, in minimum prices, as through the ordinary course of trade. In fact, Congress will go further for the farmer's vote than the law of supply and demand would go for him. It has looked bad sometimes around here when cotton prices went skyrocketing, but I think people have cause to be glad they are letting the market find its own equilibrium, without monkeying with it."

Nothing Can Be Overlooked.

Some shipping men were anxiously discussing yesterday a neglected feature of the grand rush of the United States to maritime supremacy through fabricated ships and wooden ships and concrete ships, and so on. It was tugs. In the nature of things, the more ships in and out of the Port of New York, the more tugs are going to be needed to handle them around the piers. But with the supply of ships going up, the supply of tugs is going down, and they are not being replaced. The navy has taken more than most people realize, and the yards where tugs used to be built have been turned into shipbuilding yards. Some of the big shipping companies are trying hard to beg, borrow, steal, or build some tugs of their own, to provide for their needs, both now and after the war, but they are not to be had. But it is the humble tug that helps to pay the dividends just the same.

LIBERTY IN VEST IN BONDS

Thrift Will Win The War

AT the close of the Franco-Prussian war, nearly 50 years ago, the whole world was amazed by the ease and promptness with which the French people met the enormous indemnity imposed upon them by the Prussians.

France again, in the present war, shows the same marvelous capacity for raising vast war loans. The reason is the same now as then—the habit of thrift among all classes of the French people.

Thrift, in the present national crisis, is the weapon with which we shall defeat our enemy.

Money and materials—materials and money—these are the real sinews of war and guarantors of VICTORY.

Thrift will win the war now—and will form the basis for our prosperity as individuals and for our power as a nation.

MERCANTILE MARINE TO PAY 5 PER CENT.

Directors Vote to Disburse $2,586,000 Cash on Account of Back Dividends.

67% DUE ON PREFERRED

Directors of the International Mercantile Marine Company yesterday declared a cash dividend of 5 per cent. on the preferred stock of the company on account of the back dividends on this stock, payable May 8 to stock of record April 20. This reduces the amount of back dividends due and unpaid on the preferred stock to 67 per cent. The amount of cash to be paid out is approximately $2,586,275 on the $51,725,500 of preferred stock outstanding.

Since the reorganization of the International Mercantile Marine Company in the Fall of 1916 the regular 6 per cent. preferred dividends have been paid, but until last Fall no action was taken on the accrued and unpaid dividends on the preferred stock, which then amounted to 82 per cent. At the same time it was known that the company since the war had been exceedingly prosperous, earning in 1916 a net income of about $21,000,000. At this time there was considerable discussion of a plan for funding the back dividends.

At a meeting held Dec. 3 last the Directors rejected the funding plan, but voted to pay 10 per cent. on the back dividend out of the surplus, thus reducing the unpaid dividend to 72 per cent.

The company's earnings in the year 1917 are known to have been good, but not approaching the 1916 total, and, owing to war conditions, the uncertainty of mail communications and the fact that practically its entire fleet is under requisition by either the British or the United States Government it has been impossible to ascertain the amount definitely. President Franklin, after the March Directors' meeting, estimated it roughly at $11,000,000. The company's annual report, which should have been issued before now, has been held up because of this impossibility of obtaining the necessary data, particularly from the British subsidiaries of the corporation.

President Franklin in announcing yesterday the dividend payment took pains to point out that this did not commit the Directors to any further action regarding the back dividends. There had been some talk of a scheme to pay off the full amount at the rate of $10 a year in addition to the regular 6 per cent. payments, but the uncertainties of wartime steamship operation were considered too great to permit of engagements for the future.

The dividend action was no surprise to the stock market, which had already discounted it in a rise of nearly 3 points in the preferred stock on Wednesday, and yesterday the stock sold off a fraction of a point.

OTHER REPORTS DELAYED.

War Tax and Federal Control of Railways Among Causes.

The details necessitated in corporation accounting by the Federal income and excess profit taxes and the delay in the announcement of full terms of Government management of the railroads are holding back the annual statements of numerous industrial and railroad corporations. The Union Pacific Railroad Company's annual meeting, as an instance, was held last Tuesday, although the pamphlet report had not been put into the hands of stockowners in advance. The Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies Steamship Company's annual meeting is scheduled for April 23, and the report is not yet ready, the delay being caused by the absence of full terms of charter arrangements with the Government for ships taken into the Federal service.

The Stock Exchange requires corporations whose securities are on the trading list to issue their annual statements fifteen days in advance of the annual meetings. It is a requirement usually held to rigidly, but this year considerable latitude has been allowed the companies which have exceptional conditions to meet. The corporations which have found themselves unable to meet the rule have informed the Exchange's Committee on Stock List of the situation, and have then proceeded to make as rapid progress in getting their figures together as is possible.

The Erie Railroad held its meeting a few days ago without the report on earnings for 1917 extant. The International Paper Company is to hold its meeting on April 24 and the 1917 statement has not yet appeared. Among other concerns due to hold meetings within the next week are several of the important copper companies. Their statements are not yet issued. The American Smelting and Refining Company had to delay its report for some days, but it appeared before the meeting day last week.

BANK MERGER APPROVED.

Stockholders of Central and Union Trust Companies Take Action.

Stockholders of the Central Trust Company and the Union Trust Company at meetings held yesterday ratified the agreement recently proposed to merge the two concerns under the name of the Central Union Trust Company. The necessary steps will be taken immediately to complete the details of the stock issues authorized in connection with the combination. The actual consolidation will be deferred, however, for the present, while the building of the Union Trust Company on Broadway is being altered to accommodate the joint business.

The offices on the ground floor will be used for some of the departments of the company, and certain offices on the upper floors will be occupied by the clerical force. The adjoining building, 74 Broadway, has been bought on behalf of the two companies in order to provide additional space. The banking floor of this building has been used by the Union Trust Company for some years. The purchase gives the Central Union a plot with a frontage of about 118 feet on Broadway and about 121 feet on New Street, opposite the Stock Exchange, with a total area of more than 13,000 square feet.

SEE GOVERNMENT LOSS IN RAILWAY EARNINGS

A sufficient number of the monthly earnings statements of the principal railroads of the country for February, 1918, have been published to permit some deductions as to how the United States Government is coming out on its bargain, whereby it receives the actual earnings of the roads, and pays them a rental based roughly on the roads' earnings for the last three years. During January practically every important road east of the Mississippi and north of the Mason and Dixon line, and some outside those limits, reported a deficit which the Government will have to stand, but January, by common consent, is left out of the reckoning, because conditions in that month were so bad as to afford no basis of comparison.

Taking twenty of the principal railroads of the United States which have so far reported their February earnings, the gross revenues for February totaled $110,416,260, an increase as compared with February, 1917, of $11,044,498. But the total net earnings for the month of these twenty roads were only $3,326,326, a decrease as compared with February, 1917, of $1,856,562—that is, eliminating the far worse showing for January, during the month of February the Government received from the roads roughly only about 70 per cent. of the amount it will probably be called on to pay out in rental.

The showing would have been much better for February except for a single railroad, the Pennsylvania, which, with larger gross earnings than any other road in the list, totaling $31,587,644 out of $110,416,260, reported an operating deficit for the month of $4,820,104, thereby wiping out half the earnings of all the other roads put together. The New York Central, the only other system with a gross revenue approaching the Pennsylvania's—$28,445,514—reported earnings of $1,449,355 for the month.

SWIFTS INCREASE CAPITAL.

Packing Directors Vote $50,000,000 Dividend to Buy New Stock.

CHICAGO, April 11.—The Board of Directors of Swift & Co., packers, decided today to declare a stock dividend of $50,000,000, half at par and the rest free, increasing the capital stock from $100,000,000 to $150,000,000. The dividend, it was said, was not from earnings, but was to cover increased property values and obtain money for carrying on business under high costs. The plan will be submitted for approval at the annual meeting on May 13. President Louis F. Swift said the plan had been approved by the Capital Issues Committee of the Federal Reserve Board, and added:

"Increased business requires increased capital. The extremely high prices of live stock, for which we pay cash, and the continuous increase in cost of operation have made large demands on us. The $25,000,000 cash proceeds of this issue will greatly strengthen the financial position of the company and will enable it to discharge its functions with a full degree of efficiency.

"In order not to interfere with Government financing, we have thought it opportune to issue free of cost a dividend of $25,000,000 in stock, which will facilitate the purchase of the new stock at par by our shareholders.

"This dividend is not being paid out of earnings, but is issued against surplus resulting from an adjustment of values of the fixed assets of the company to values current on Jan. 1, 1914, based on an appraisal. Such stock is not taxable until sold."

TO FORM DISCOUNT BANK.

Organization Committee Announced —Doors Will Open Monday.

An organization committee for the proposed new discount bank was announced yesterday, consisting of John McHugh, Vice President of the Mechanics and Metals National Bank; E. W. Stetson, Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company; A. M. Anderson, of J. P. Morgan & Co., and John E. Rovensky, Vice President of the National Bank of Commerce.

The committee will submit an organization report at a meeting next week of representatives of nine financial institutions interested in the establishment of the discount bank. Other banks and bankers will be invited to become stockholders. This is the second discount bank to be founded in the last few weeks, the Foreign Trade Banking Corporation being the first, with Max May, formerly Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company, as Managing Director. The corporation is scheduled to open its doors next Monday for the first time.

INCOME TAXES MAY NET $4,000,000,000

Reports from Collectors Indicate Huge Increase Over $2,500,000,000 at First Expected.

PAYMENTS MAY BE SPLIT

McAdoo Has Under Advisement Plan Urged by Business Interests—Would Stimulate War Loan.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Recent reports from revenue collectors indicate that the Government may receive from income and excess profits taxes in June much more than the $2,500,000,000 estimated. Some estimates, based on preliminary examination of returns filed ten days ago, run as high as $4,000,000,000.

If these calculations of big collections are borne out by further examination of returns within the next two weeks, the Treasury may recommend legislation to provide for instalment payments of taxes, probably on June 15, Aug. 15, and Oct. 15. The Treasury's decision on this question also depends largely on the success of the Liberty loan in the next week or ten days.

A delegation of the National Conference of State Manufacturers' Associations, accompanied by members of Congress, today appealed to Internal Revenue Commissioner Roper for the establishment of a system of instalment payments to ease the financial burden on business in June. The callers came away with Mr. Roper's promise that the Treasury would study the situation carefully and grant their request if the condition of Government finances made it possible and advisable. Heretofore both Secretary McAdoo and Mr. Roper have expressed themselves as opposed to the plan.

The Liberty Loan would be stimulated by making it possible for business concerns to pay their taxes in instalments, the manufacturers declared. Under the present rule many feel that they are financially unable to buy Liberty bonds for resale to employes and at the same time make arrangements for big tax outlays in June.

The delegation was headed by R. H. Rice of Lynn, Mass., President of the National Conference. The Senatore and Representatives present are supporting legislation now pending in Congress providing for instalment payments.

THE COTTON MARKET.

Break Carries Prices Down About $4 a Bale.

The local cotton market broke badly again yesterday, particularly in the late trading. The opening was rather weak, and the general tendency downward all day, but it was not until the last hour, after the one brief rally of the day, that a great volume of selling orders made the slump pronounced. The close was barely steady, with prices at practically the low point of the day, off from 73 to 83 points, or about $4 a bale.

A number of underlying causes appeared to contribute in varying degree to the weakness of the market. Foremost was uncertainty regarding the outcome of the conferences in Washington between cotton goods manufacturers and the War Industries Board, which found its corollary in a simultaneous greater willingness of Southern holders to sell and a less willingness of spinners to buy. There was also a continuance of good reports and highly optimistic views regarding the coming crop.

Combined with these factors was a growing feeling that the absence of trade buying might not be altogether due to "watchful waiting" until the Washington situation clarified, but might to a considerable degree mean that trade requirements were already more nearly supplied for the season than had been believed—and that Southern holders might consequently find that they had held on too long. Heavy Liverpool selling appeared to reflect disappointment of hopes for transatlantic cargo space and the consequent return into domestic stocks of considerable cotton marked for export. At the same time the market itself was technically still in a rather topheavy condition and in no shape to withstand aggressive selling. Finally, and least important, there was some blueness over the war situation.

The talk around the ring was that no price fixing might be attempted by the War Industries Board—certainly none in raw cotton—but that it might not be attempted, even in goods, for the reason that it might be revealed that such action was unnecessary; that the market had already reached something like equilibrium. No exports were reported. Southern spot markets were unchanged to 50 points lower.

$50,000,000 TO AID MINING.

Lane Asks Congress for Act to Develop New Branches.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Legislation to encourage the mining in the United States of minerals necessary in the manufacture of war materials, but now largely imported from South America and Europe, was recommended to Congress today by Secretary Lane. He sent to Senator Henderson of Nevada, Chairman of the Mines Committee, a draft of a bill carrying an appropriation of $50,000,000, from which financial assistance would be given to prospectors in developing the mining of these minerals.

Minerals the quantity production of which the Administration hopes to see developed are manganese, pyrite, antimony, platinum, mercury, tungsten, sulphur, tin, and graphite. All are found in this country, especially in the West. Development of such mines would release thousands of tons of shipping now used in importing the minerals and would tend to keep down the rapidly increasing prices of the commodities.

Senator Henderson called a meeting of his committee for next Saturday to begin consideration of the bill, with the view to an early report to the Senate.

TO LOOK FOR TAX SLACKERS

Government Suspects Movie Houses Have Not Paid Up.

On Monday representatives of the Internal Revenue Bureau will begin an investigation to determine whether moving picture houses have deprived the Government of the special admittance tax. It was said the Government suspects that some film concerns, after collecting the tax from their patrons, failed to make accounting to the Revenue Collectors. Mark Eisner, Collector of the Third, or Upper Manhattan District, said yesterday:

"My district will be divided into comparatively small zones, including in a general way the territory on Manhattan Island from Fourteenth Street north to the end of Manhattan Island. Revenue men will be sent into these zones to make an intensive canvass for moving picture violators of the law, as well as those dodging the ordinary or regular taxes. If slackers are found they will be punished."

Collector Eisner added that the search for those attempting to circumvent the law, in the classes mentioned above, would cover a period of two months, or until June 15, the final date of payment of all annual taxes. Beginning with June 15, squads will be sent out into the sixty zones comprising the Third District, to look for income and excess profit slackers. The quest for income tax evaders will start at the same time in the other revenue districts in New York City.

COMMODITIES MARKETS.

Crop Outlook Continues Favorable—New Corn Contracts.

Underlying conditions in the wheat position were unchanged and without special feature. Receipts at primary points were light, and apparently farmers were not marketing their holdings with any degree of freedom. The Food Administration continues to call for more stringent economies in order to provide larger quantities of wheat for export. The new crop outlook continues highly favorable and reports from other countries, especially from Argentina and Australia, indicate liberal supplies. The tonnage situation shows improvement and the movement from Argentina to Europe is increasing.

RYE.—The local rye market was dull and featureless, with prices nominal. In the West the markets were easy, with Minneapolis showing a further decline of 4 cents per bushel, with No. 2 Western quoted at $2.61. This represents a decline of 25 cents in three days, while just two weeks ago the Minneapolis market was quoted at $3.03.

CORN.

Trading operations in the new corn contract in Chicago were inaugurated yesterday with prices about 30 cents higher than the level recently prevailing for May. June sold up to $1.57, closing at the top, while July sold at $1.57¼. This is the highest level reached in the market since the close of last July when operations in the September positions were suspended after prices had touched $1.64½. The prices prevailing were about in line with the cash market for similar grades, No. 4 mixed corn in Chicago being quoted at $1.40 to $1.58. Operations were not as large as might have been expected and it was evident that traders were inclined to be cautious while, moreover, the market was of necessity a narrow one. In the local cash market No. 3 yellow corn was quoted at $1.90½; No. 4 yellow $1.83½; No. 3 white, $2.20½, cost and freight, New York.

OATS.

Those who had expected the oats market to advance in sympathy with the higher level of values experienced in the new corn contract met with disappointment. Prices were heavy at the start and when longs found that conditions were not working out as expected they sold quite heavily, resulting in a decline at one time of ¾@1¼c from the previous close. There was a partial rally late, but final prices were ⅝@⅞c net lower. The technical position of the market was apparently weak as a result of recent evening-up operations, while, furthermore, the cash position was easier, with premiums lower. In the local cash market prices were easier; natural quoted at $1.03½@$1.04½; clipped white, $1.04½@$1.07, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

A lower level of values prevailed in the market for hog products, although the volume of business was light. Hog prices were higher, but aside from giving the market a fairly steady opening, these had little or no influence. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 32,000; estimated for Friday, 34,000; Kansas City received 8,000, and Omaha 16,000 hogs.

COTTONSEED OIL.

Aside from a sale of 200 barrels of cottonseed oil for May delivery at 20 cents early, the market was devoid of feature and prices were entirely nominal.

COFFEE.

There was further scattering liquidation or trade selling in the coffee market yesterday. Prices opened at a decline of 3 to 4 points and sold off to 8.38 for July and 8.52 for December, with the close showing a net loss of 8 to 11 points. Rio reported a clearance of 5,000 bags and Santos of 52,000 bags for New Orleans, both of them by sailing vessel.

The local spot market was quiet and nominally unchanged on the basis of 9¼ for Rio 7s and 11¼ for Santos 4s. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

There were no changes in sugar prices, which remain at the fixed level of 4.985c for Cubas, cost and freight, equal to 6.005c for centrifugal and 7.45c for fine granulated. No additional purchases were reported by the committee, although business for shipment this month has been quite heavy, and if it all arrives here there will be enough sugar on hand shortly to take care of the early Summer demand. Receipts during the last week have increased over those of the previous week, and all refiners are now reported to be making fair deliveries, although the demand in some quarters is not quite so active. On the whole, therefore, the situation is improving and should be around normal in the very near future.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 7,250 packages. Some shortage of fine fresh table grades of butter and prices were advanced another ½c with scarcely enough stock to meet urgent needs. The secondary grades are ruling quiet, though held with a little more confidence. Renovated, ladles, and packing stock unimproved. EGGS.—37,803 cases. Arrivals continue liberal but are running below those of last week, and advices indicate decreasing supplies in transit. Trading is rather less active and more critical as to qualities being passed for the finer goods. The tone of the market, however, is steady to firm under a continued disposition to store a large part of the higher qualities of eggs arriving. Dirties and checks of high quality in pretty good demand and firm; undergrades irregular. Nearby white eggs meeting only a very limited demand in consumptive trade channels; much of the supply is still going to storage houses, and values are supported about as lately quoted. At the Government's Service

IN his Baltimore address President Wilson once more defined the principles for which we are at war and the only basis upon which a just and righteous peace can be formulated, and reiterated our unalterable purpose to meet the German challenge with "force without stint or limit" until such a peace is attained.

The New York Stock Exchange as a body enthusiastically endorses this expression of our National purpose, and places its influence and its resources unreservedly at the disposal of the Government.

The first great duty which presents itself is to make the Third Liberty Loan the most notable success in financial history.

The Exchange therefore officially urges the patrons of its members and the public in general to invest every available dollar in Liberty Bonds. Any New York Stock Exchange house will co-operate with the investor in all possible ways; will see that his subscription is properly entered and cared for, and render, without charge, any service within the scope of its facilities.

A large majority of the members of the Exchange have also adopted a partial payment plan which will be of great aid to many investors, and the details of which will be explained upon application. Apply to any member of the N. Y. Stock Exchange for authoritative information as to Liberty Bonds and the terms of the Third Loan.

Secretary McAdoo says: "The wealthy classes should be encouraged to take subscriptions of $5,000, $10,000, $25,000, and to pay for them out of their incomes."

DISAGREE ON WHEAT PRICE.

Conferees Adjourn and House Soon to Vote on $2.50 Minimum.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The last step toward a vote in the House on the Senate amendment to the Agricultural Appropriation bill proposing an increase from $2 to $2.50 a bushel in the Government minimum guaranteed price for wheat, was taken today. Senate and House conferees ended their work, deciding to report a disagreement on the wheat clause and also on Senate amendments providing $250,000 respectively for dehydration of agricultural products and prizes to stimulate production. The House conferees refused to accept these amendments.

Chairman Lever of the House managers plans to arrange for an early vote in the House on the three disputed provisions. The House has not yet considered the wheat price increase provision.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

New low price levels were established in an active close yesterday in the trading on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. The final hour, under a tremendous volume of selling orders, forced prices rapidly downward, the net losses ranging from a fraction to 2¼ points throughout the list. The main reason for the market's weakness was the unfavorable war news from the battlefront. Stocks were freely supplied throughout the session, although shortly after midday there were fractional rallies with a lessening of activity.

GERMAN ALLIANCE VOTES TO DISBAND

Executive Committee Agrees Upon Dissolution at Philadelphia Meeting.

$30,000 FOR THE RED CROSS

President von Bosse Disavows Disloyal Acts Traced to State Organizations.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 11. — The National German American Alliance, now under investigation by the United States Senate as a centre of insidious propaganda in this country, voted to quit under fire today, after its President, the Rev. S. G. von Bosse, in a speech, had specifically disavowed all disloyal acts traced to State organizations and individual members of the alliance.

While the vote to dissolve the organization was taken by the Executive Committee at the Philadelphia Turngemeinde, the actual end will come to-morrow when the financial affairs are to be settled. A fund of $30,000 will be turned over to the American Red Cross. It was created by life membership subscriptions of $50 each.

"Under all the conditions," President von Bosse said, "the best thing at hand is to dissolve the organization. No acts of disloyalty have been proved against the alliance, such as Senator Wolcott of Delaware, a member of the Senate Judiciary Committee, has stated before that body."

He also said that the acts of State organizations affiliated with the National Alliance and the work of individuals should not be held against the national body.

"I think it best under the circumstances," he said, "to dissolve the organization as the best manner of removing all such causes that lead to misunderstanding and in the interest of the large mass of Americans of German birth who are loyal American citizens."

The proposal of Mr. von Bosse was seconded by Karl A. M. Schlotz, attorney of the alliance.

The meeting was attended by representatives from New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, North Dakota, Illinois, Wisconsin, Rhode Island, and Minnesota, while proxies from Texas, Nebraska, and West Virginia were also recognized.

A temporary Treasurer was needed to succeed Gottlieb Hammer of this city, who resigned some time ago. Mr. Hammer is a member of an old German family, for years established in business here, and he quit when the affairs of the alliance began to interest the authorities. His successor named today is Adolph Timm, also of Philadelphia.

Joseph Keller, First Vice President of the alliance, resigned in a letter from his home in Indianapolis. Other communications, the nature of which was not disclosed, were received from Theodore Sutro of New York, George Siebel of Pittsburgh, Dr. Weinaberg of St. Louis, Fidelis Riester of Wheeling, W. Va., Jacob Froswork of Kansas City, Valentine J. Peter, of Omaha, and Hans Demuth of Sioux City.

Chicagoan Promises Arrest of Any One Making Seditious Remarks.

CHICAGO, April 11.—Mayor William Hale Thompson, whose war attitude has subjected him to much criticism, gave a written pledge today that he would cause the arrest of any person making seditious or treasonable statements. The pledge was given as the result of protests against a meeting of the Baeker Singing Society, which was scheduled to give a program in German.

Mayor Thompson has taken $2,500 worth of Liberty bonds, third issue.

Bail was fixed at $10,000. Bentall was charged with obstructing enlistments through an address he delivered last July in Hutchinson, Minn.

UTICA, N. Y., April 11.—The striking employes of the Savage Arms plant in this city, which is making Lewis machine guns, voted today to return to work. The night force will begin work this evening, and the day force tomorrow morning. Four thousand men were involved.

South Dakota Editor Convicted.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., April 11.—Conrad Kornemann, President of the South Dakota branch of the German-American Alliance and editor of a German newspaper here, was convicted last night by a jury in the United States District Court of violation of the Espionage act. After having denounced the Liberty Loan, Kornemann bought some of the bonds.

MINISTERS SAY MEXICO WILL STAY NEUTRAL

Border Incidents Declared Not to Have Disturbed Friendly Relations with United States.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CITY OF MEXICO, April 11.—Secretary of Foreign Relations Aguilar, in a statement this afternoon, said that, in spite of efforts made to change the attitude of Mexico, the Government would conserve its policy of neutrality, as this policy was the only salvation of the republic.

"The small difficulties which have arisen on the frontier have not changed in the least the friendly relations now existing between Mexico and the United States," he continued. "The attitude of Mexicans favoring either side in the world struggle, while it causes embarrassment to the Government, will not be permitted to influence its policy of strict neutrality. The propaganda made in local papers by both sides, which until now ignored by the Government, has exceeded the limits, and owners will be warned to use more moderate language."

Señor Berlanga, Secretary of the Interior, when this statement was shown to him, said the entire Cabinet was in full accord with the President to enforce the policy of strict neutrality. He denied having German leanings.

"I am one of the few men in the republic who have no opinion regarding the world war. My only labor has been, and will continue, to favor the reconstruction of Mexico. I repeat, I am not a pro-German, nor a pro-Ally, but am proud to be a pro-Mexican. In spite of the rumors of my friendship for the German Minister, I have only seen him at a presentation at the palace. I enjoy much closer friendship with the allied Ministers, as I have come in contact with them more often. I am pleased to have the personal friendship of the American Ambassador, Mr. Fletcher, as I had the pleasure of meeting him at Guadalajara before entering the Cabinet."

Señor Berlanga added that under no circumstances would the Government allow the intrigue of enemies to alter the friendly relations now existing between the United States and Mexico.

FIXES HOG ISLAND BLAME.

Bowles Says It Rested with D. P. Robinson, Former Head.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Responsibility for delays in construction at the Government shipyard at Hog Island, Penn., was laid to Dwight P. Robinson, formerly President of the American International Corporation's Shipbuilding Company, in a special report made to the Senate Commerce Committee today by Rear Admiral Bowles, assistant to the General Manager of the Emergency Fleet Corporation. Mr. Robinson was removed on Feb. 24 and Frederick Holbrook was put in his place.

Besides displacing Mr. Robinson, Admiral Bowles's report said that he also had caused discharge of the works manager and fourteen other high-salaried principals and had effected economies in management which enabled the yard to accept contracts for sixty ships in addition to the 120 originally assigned.

In reference to the removal of Robinson, Rear Admiral Bowles said:

"I became satisfied that the responsibility for the difficulties of organization of the shipyard was largely, if not wholly, upon the then President of the Shipbuilding Corporation. I informed the President of the American International Corporation that the work required his personal attention, which he arranged to give. On Feb. 24 I wrote him that the President of the Shipbuilding Corporation was unequal to his task and requested his removal. He was replaced by Frederick Holbrook."

ASSAIL INSURANCE BILL.

Defense Society Says Measure Would Aid German Capital.

The American Defense Society yesterday telegraphed Governor Whitman and the members of the Legislature protesting against the bill introduced by Senator Towner and Assemblyman Gardner which would authorize the Alien Property Custodian to invest the assets of enemy alien insurance companies up to the amount of their surplus in capital stock of any domestic insurance corporations. The society in its telegram to Governor Whitman said:

"Secretary McAdoo's refusal of licenses to enemy insurance companies required their liquidation under the law. This proposed act is an attempt to continue the business of the German insurance companies under the cover of American insurance companies owned by German insurance companies. This bill would thus operate to continue the interest of German capital in the American insurance field. No bill of such vast importance should be rushed through in the closing days of the Legislature without a public hearing. The American Defense Society earnestly requests such a hearing."

A telegram also was sent to Secretary McAdoo advising him of the society's action.

Post Exchange Seats for Transfer.

The Stock Exchange membership owned by Anthony J. Drexel, Jr., was posted for transfer yesterday to his partner, John E. Liggett, the consideration being $55,000, unchanged from the last preceding sale. Mr. Drexel is in the national service, and has not been able to pay attention to business for some months. The membership of the late Samuel Schaefer was posted to go to Julian A. Acosta at the same price. Richard G. Wagner, Clarence C. Friend, and F. Edgerton Webb were elected members of the Exchange.

CITY BREVITIES.

Under the auspices of the Serbian Relief Committee of America, an illustrated lecture on Serbia will be given by Miss Helen Losanitch of Belgrade at the home of Adolph Lewisohn, 881 Fifth Avenue, next Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The Actors and Authors' Theatre will hold a meeting at the Hotel Plaza this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Sailor day, which usually is celebrated in the churches on the second Sunday after Easter, and which this year would have been observed on April 14, will take place the second Sunday in November in the future. The Rev. Dr. Archibald R. Mansfield, Superintendent of the Seamen's Church Institute, said the change had been made so as to make the observance of the annual sailor day uniform throughout the United States.

Demand for Silk Underwear.

The rise in the cotton market has given silk underwear of various sorts an added value in the eyes of a great many buyers, according to reports from the local trade. Consequently, orders for these garments are being placed in very liberal quantities. Union suits and camisoles in very fine silks are particularly popular, it seems, not only in pink and pure white, but in light blue as well. In many of the most attractive models, lavender baby ribbon is being used very effectively for trimming, and garments of this sort are in good demand in many sections.

American Dolls Improved.

American doll manufacturers are said to be making considerable progress in perfecting the quality and durability of their product, and it is reported that buyers are visibly impressed with the newest offerings. Very substantial orders have been placed for them, and it is said that many of the manufacturers now have about all the business which they can take care of for the rest of the year. The market for toys of all sorts has been particularly active for the last few months, and the year 1918 bids fair to be one of the best on record for the industry in this country.

Fall Shoe Business.

Shoe retailers everywhere are said to be placing very liberal orders for Fall merchandise. It is said, furthermore, that they are planning to take delivery of the shoes they are ordering as soon as they are made up. "Merchants generally have come to realize," said the New York representative of a large New England manufacturer, "that delays in transportation and in manufacturing are quite likely to develop later on, and they are taking no chances of a repetition next Fall of their experiences of last Spring, when many of them were unable to obtain their Easter supplies when they were most needed."

Inquiries for Fall.

There are said to be a great many retailers who have already come to the local market looking around for Fall coats and suits for women, which it has been their custom in the past not to buy until August, or July at the earliest. It is said to have become very evident that these merchants fear that the labor scarcity and the shortage of materials may result in there being very little merchandise left for late comers to choose from. Some few manufacturers and manufacturing jobbers, who have already gotten out some early lines for Fall, are said to have taken quite a little business of this sort.

Leather Portfolios Popular.

Leather portfolios are said to be in greater demand by business men generally than they have ever been before. A local wholesaler dealing in leather goods of this sort points out that a great many men of large affairs are spending considerable time on trains between their home towns and Washington, and that they consequently have much use for these bags in which to carry papers and plans needing their attention. Portfolios of various sorts are also being used more generally around town, it is said, and retailers are placing liberal orders.

Sales of Men's Oxfords.

Reports from local sellers of shoes for men say that a nice business in Spring Oxfords is being done. The so-called English walking last and the Blucher last appear to be the most popular, quite a little activity in the latter being due to increased sales of glazed kid Oxfords. The most popular leathers in the low shoes made on the English last appear to be gunmetal calf, dark tan calf, and brown cordovan. Most of the models seen have cap toes, though some are made plain. Medium and heavy edges and medium heels prevail largely.

High Cotton Helps Refugees.

The relation of the high price of cotton to the refugees of Belgium usually is remote, but in at least one instance lately it has been very close. This is the way it came about: There is a wealthy woman in this city who was born in Georgia. She was not wealthy before she married and came North, and some of her Southern relatives still have to struggle to make ends meet. This is particularly the case with one of her male relatives, who has several children. For several years the woman in question has been sending to this man, for use by some of his progeny, clothing that her own children have finished with. The man in the case is a cotton planter in a small way, and the high price of the staple has made him financially independent for the time being at least. As a result, the last shipment of discarded clothes headed toward Belgium instead of Georgia.

Gray Goods Prices Still Rising.

Prices continued to rise in the local gray goods market yesterday. April-May deliveries of 39-inch 72-76s were sold at 23 cents, and May business was put through on 68-72s in the same width at 20. For shipment this month 19 cents was paid for 38½-inch 64-60s and 18 cents was given for 38½-inch 64-56s for September-October shipment. For spots and nearbys of this construction 18¼ cents is now asked. May-June deliveries of 38½-inch 60-48s brought 16½ cents. There was not much feature to coarse yarn goods save for the selling of 48-square four-yard sheetings, 37-inch, for May delivery at 22½ cents. Printcloth prices closed this way:

Raw Silk Prices Steady.

Late cables from Yokohama report the raw silk market very firm there on the basis of 1,400 to 1,420 yen, ($700 to $710,) per picul of about 133 pounds for No. 1 Sinshiu. Visible stocks are estimated at 9,000 to 10,000 bales, with many of the better grades almost entirely missing and some of the silk available unfit for export. The Canton market is firmer as a result of the renewed demand for European account. Tsatlees seem to be the most active silks at Shanghai, where prices for the most part are unchanged and firm. Little silk is to be had at Milan, and what can be is being taken by the European manufacturers at "top" prices. Locally, there is a fair demand for spot silks at unchanged prices, but business is not as active as it was just before the last sharp rise.

Large Georgette Hats Liked Here.

Among the newest types of hat worn by well-dressed women in this city are large models of Georgette in transparent effects, some of which have straw crowns or edgings. In some cases, large beads are placed around the crowns in the same or contrasting color. In large mushrooms, some of which have short backs, large sailors, large shapes with wide sides and short backs and fronts, these hats are very attractive with trimmings of draped sashes in Georgette or wide faille silk ribbon, with fringings hanging over the side or back. A few field flowers are used as trimmings, and large flat flowers in vivid colorings are also employed. Navy blue lends in the color demand, with brown and sand also showing up well.

BEAVER PELTS SELL WELL.

They Were the Feature at the Fur Auction Yesterday.

Beaver headed the list of actively sought skins yesterday at the fur auction here. Not only was bidding for it more active than for any of the other varieties put up, but there were more buyers present when it was sold than at any other time during the day. The attendance, which averaged about 350 through most of the day, went well over 450 when beaver came up. The best skin went to George Schlums for $30. Yesterday was the first day of the sale on which the full selling schedule was completed, and this was due largely to the "speeding up" efforts of Auctioneer Noakes. Total sales for the four days were placed last night at about $2,600,000.

The sale opened with the offering of badger that had been held over from Wednesday, and this was followed by ermine. Next came an offering of more than 16,000 house cats. These skins are used for making a number of things, ranging from "fur" sets for children to chest protectors for persons with weak lungs, and they brought good prices throughout. The royal furs, Russian sable and ermine, both came in for active bidding, and good prices were realized on them. Opossum also was much in demand, the ringtail variety taking the palm for the day when it came to showing the biggest percentage increase over the prices obtained at the January sale. This was said to be due to the fact that, when dyed, these skins show considerable similarity to kolinsky. As the best kolinsky brought $2.10 and the best ringtail opossum brought 85 cents, the reason for the big advance in the latter, 60 per cent., is more or less obvious. The following list gives the highest prices paid during the day and the name of the buyers of the best skins:

Badger, $2.75, M. Cohen; ermine, $3.02, Paul Kurtze; house cat, 90 cents, Gottlieb Brothers; kolinsky, $2.10, I. Ariowitsch & Co.; marmot, 88 cents, B. Rutchik and H. Cohn; American opossum, $1.86, Albert Jaulus; Australian opossum, $2.65, Joseph Steiner & Bros. and Gluck & Welgold; ringtail opossum, 85 cents, Hochstim & Bossack; marten, $62, the Ganss Fur Company; Russian sable, $136, C. G. Gunther's Sons; beaver, $30, George Schlums. The best squirrel went to Fred R. Hill & Co. for 98 cents.

Liberty loan subscriptions had grown to a total of $1,986,250 at 3 P. M., when the last figures for the day were announced. The largest subscribers were Jacob Weinshenker, who increased a previous purchase of $5,000 worth of bonds to $25,000 worth, and Otto Wagner and Holt, Butler & Co., each of whom took $10,000 in bonds. Before the beaver was put under the hammer a short address was made by Samuel Ullmann, Chairman of the Liberty Loan Committee of the fur industry, in which he exhorted the members of the trade financially to exert "force to the utmost." He called attention to the fact that the fur trade's quota is $5,000,000, and said also: "Statements are made and legislation suggested that the fur trade be classed as nonessential; let us not only prove our patriotism and claim to worthy citizenship, but likewise our claim as to being an invaluable essential industry."

At the close of the afternoon session it was announced that these percentage advances had been shown during the day over the prices obtained at the January sale: Badger, 10; ermine, 10; house cats, 20; kolinsky, 10; marmot, 40; American opossum, 15; Australian opossum, 15; Tasmanian opossum, 25; ringtail opossum, 60; marten, 10; Russian sable, 30, and beaver, 20.

Today's offerings will be the largest of the sale. A total of more than 665,500 skins will be sold, of which about 405,000 will be muskrat. This variety is expected to prove one of the most interesting offerings of the sale. More than 25,000 black muskrats will also be included in the day's selling, as well as over 125,000 nutria. About 65,000 skunk skins will also be sold in addition to the other furs scheduled.

WOMEN JOIN ROYAL NAVY.

Recruits Will Be Assigned to Various Duties Ashore.

"Wrens," is the name given in England to the woman who are joining the Women's Royal Naval Service. The members of the organization will not go to sea, but serve in the naval establishments as cooks, waitresses, stenographers and typewriters, motor drivers, and clerks. They are expected to uphold the traditions of the navy and are enrolled for the duration of the war.

The "wrens" are expected when they enlist to have a serious desire to help their country win the war. The work is strenuous, but not too hard for their physical well being. Women officers are being trained to look after them.

Under somewhat similar conditions, English women soon are to join the air force. They are to be called "Penguins."

WARN OF NEW PERIL OF A COAL FAMINE

State Fuel Administrators Urge That More Cars Be Sent to the Mines.

PRODUCTION BELOW 1917

Proposal for Curtailment of Other Transportation Is Presented to Garfield.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Fuel Administrators from all States east of the Mississippi River, in session here today, adopted resolutions recommending that transportation of commodities not essential to the war program be curtailed, temporarily at least, where such shipments interfere with the movement of other materials and the rapid distribution of cars to the coal mines.

Emphasis was laid on the assertion that the car shortage at many mines continued to be a menace, and that unless drastic steps were taken the nation would find itself confronted with another coal famine next Winter. Under present conditions, it was held, maximum production of coal was impossible.

The resolutions were adopted after a long debate, in which several of the Fuel Administrators expressed the conviction that delay might result in the development of a serious situation. The action taken by the State Administrators was submitted to Dr. H. A. Garfield. The resolutions follow:

"That, due to the present overburdened condition of our railroads, unless effective measures of relief are at once taken the supply of coal for the coal year beginning April 1, 1918, will fall seriously short of the needs of the country.

"That in the crisis confronting the world the fuel needed for the vigorous and unimpeded prosecution of the war must at all costs be provided to run at maximum capacity the great war machine America is now fast building.

"That we call upon all individuals, industries, and communities unselfishly to indorse and support such acts of the Government as may be needed to clear the railway tracks of the United States of any unimportant or unnecessary traffic congesting our railways and interfering with the prosecution of the war."

There has been no decision yet in connection with the price which the railroads, under Government control, shall pay for their fuel, but it is believed that a compromise will be reached. The Fuel Administration, it is understood, will not withdraw from its position that an equitable distribution of cars, to assure adequate production, is more essential than a situation where the railroads will obtain cheap coal because of their control of the car supply.

The National Coal Association, representing the principal operators, issued a statement tonight backing up the contention of the State Fuel Administrators that steps to increase production were vital to the war program. In part the statement reads:

"Bituminous coal production throughout the nation during the first three months of 1918 has failed to keep pace with the growing demands of industrial and domestic users. Complete reports to the National Coal Association from virtually every bituminous field in the United States show that during the first quarter of this year mine operations have been so restricted by the lack of railroad cars that production has fallen below the output for the same period in 1916 and 1917.

"The bituminous mines of the country have averaged only 68 per cent of full time production during the first quarter of 1918. They have produced in that time, according to the official figures of the United States Geological Survey, 132,885,666 tons. The Government's official figures show that during the same period last year the mines produced 134,769,812 tons, and that in the first quarter of 1916 the production was 135,604,213 tons. It is clearly apparent that unless a way is found to remove the restrictions now acting as a brake on production, the output for 1918 will fall below that of 1917, which was approximately 50,000,000 tons less than the amount necessary to meet the nation's war-time needs."

FINES OWNERS AND DRIVERS.

Magistrate Cobb Applies New Speeding Law in Three Cases.

Magistrate Cobb in Traffic Court yesterday fined three automobile owners as well as their chauffeurs for speeding and held that the law, in making the owner guilty if he permitted violation of the traffic ordinance did not mean that the occupant of the tonneau must necessarily be consciously aware that his chauffeur was breaking the speed law. The court, in an opinion explaining his action, said that if the owner felt himself immune, provided he could say he did not notice how fast his car was going, the law would be forced to countenance the offender's shutting his eyes to what was going on. The court said the object of the law was to protect the public and that dual responsibility, such as that of owner and driver, was not unusual in criminal law. The Magistrate fined the owner in each of the cases $25 and the chauffeur $30.

Magistrate Cobb sentenced Gustave Cheeney of 304 West 151st Street to City Prison for fifteen days for smashing fences at Columbia University while driving his car when drunk on April 9.

Express Rates Raised in City.

The Public Service Commission gave permission yesterday to the Westcott Express Company and the New York Transfer Company to increase their rates for local deliveries about 7½ per cent. This increase is to continue until six months after the war, unless the commission, after a general investigation into the affairs of the two companies, changes the order. At the hearings before the commission, the Westcott Company submitted figures showing that during 1917 it lost several thousand dollars, and that the New York Transfer Company made no profit at all, and had made no allowances for depreciation.

Sues for Salary City Holds Up.

James Flaherty, one of a number of attendants and clerks in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn, whose salaries were increased by the Board of Justices, but held back by Controller Craig, through Lawyer Meier Steinbrink, applied to Justice Van Siclen yesterday for a writ of mandamus to compel the Controller to honor the increase and to give him the amount of the accrued increase for the last three months. The hearing was postponed until Tuesday. These and other increases for city employes were recently referred to by Mayor Hylan as "salary grabs."

TO DOUBLE SHIP SEARCHERS

Collector Newton Issues Call for Recruits to Guard Vessels.

Collector of the Port Byron R. Newton announced yesterday that it had been decided to double the force of men at present engaged in searching and guarding merchant vessels here. The Collector said there was opportunity for active patriotic work for the Government in the safeguarding of ships, cargoes, passengers, and crews, this being a vitally important part of the work of winning the war. In issuing the announcement Collector Newton said recruits were being called for that they may be properly drilled and equipped for the task. Each applicant must bring with him letters of indorsement from at least two employers showing the length of service, character, and quality of work. None will be appointed to the force who is in Class 1 of the selective draft. Selections will be made by a board designated by the United States Civil Service Commission. Collector Newton added that the compensation would be at the rate of $4 per day and all details and information would be supplied at Room 135, Custom House.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

Forty-six Washington Heights Lots in Deal—$300,000 Midtown Trade.

Holdings of diversified character figured yesterday in an active market. On the upper west side Mrs. Lilly Busch sold through Joseph P. Day to clients of David Stewart a tract of forty-six lots between Riverside Drive and Northern Avenue.

The property has a frontage on Riverside Drive of 282 feet, with a return frontage on Northern Avenue of 242.10, about 178 feet north of 181st Street, and adjoins the Paterno mansion. It is one of the last large tracts left in this section overlooking the Hudson River. The tract is assessed by the city at $165,000. Blumenstiel & Blumenstiel and Stoddard & Mark acted as attorneys in the transaction.

Big Mid-Town Exchange.

Centrally located properties figured in an exchange involving about $300,000. J. C. & M. G. Mayer sold to Daniel A. Loring, as trustee of Isabella Loring, the six-story business building at 292 Fifth Avenue, on a lot 24.8 by 100, near Thirty-first Street. In exchange the sellers took the two five-story store and apartment buildings at 124 and 126 East Twenty-third Street, on a plot 50 by 100, between Fourth and Lexington Avenues. These properties were acquired free and clear, and the new owners have obtained a loan upon them of $75,000 from the Lincoln Trust Company. Julion Benedict negotiated the deal.

Another large transaction was closed yesterday affecting properties on Washington Heights, where there has been a fairly active buying movement under way, directed toward the acquisition of investment holdings.

The Henry Morgenthau Company sold to an investor two six-story elevator apartment houses covering the block front on the south side of West 181st Street, from Pinehurst to Northern Avenue.

The Pinehurst Avenue corner is known as Warrington Hall, and is on a plot 118 by 115. The Northern Avenue corner, the Fort View, is on a plot 115 by 115. This part of 181st Street is one of the high points of Manhattan Island, and commands a fine view of the Hudson River and the historic Fort Washington Park. The buildings were held at $475,000.

Block Front Garage Improvement.

Harlem is to have a large new garage as the result of a long-term lease just closed. The Healton Garage Company, of which John J. Healy, the restaurateur, is President, has leased for a term of twenty-one years, with the privilege of a renewal for a similar term, the entire vacant block front on the west side of Seventh Avenue from 150th to 151st Street, and measuring 200 by 100 feet. The property is owned by the Seybel Realty Company, which will receive a total rental for the first term of the lease of about $130,000.

On this site the lessee plans to erect a one-story fireproof modern garage, at an estimated cost of $60,000. Edmund Hurley represented the leasing company as attorney.

Prince Street Investment Purchase.

Harry K. Grigg bought for investment from the Bond and Mortgage Guarantee Company, 118 Prince Street, a five-story store and loft building covering a lot about 20 by 71 and rented at $1,890 per annum. The property was valued at $15,000, and is assessed at this figure. It is of interest to note that Mr. Grigg has heretofore been actively interested in the downtown section south of Fulton Street and particularly in the vicinity of Old Slip. The Charles F. Noyes Company was the broker.

James H. Cruikshank has purchased from Candace S. Coffin, the two five-story tenements at 208 and 210 East 127th Street, between Second and Third Avenues, size 46 by 100, and assessed by the city at $26,000. Horace S. Ely & Co. were the brokers in the transaction.

The Lawyers Mortgage Company sold, through Duff & Conger, the three-story dwelling at 1,320 Madison Avenue, to M. P. Manheim.

Kleban, as President of the Markstone Realty Company, has purchased from the Tiebout Heights Realty Company, for all cash, the five-story apartment house at 2,130 Tiebout Avenue, on a plot 85 by 164 by irregular. The property has been held at $85,000. Alexander Selkin and David Mentz were the brokers in the transaction.

Seek New Field for Liberty Loan Drive.

A large field for subscriptions to the Third Liberty Loan will be opened if the leading institutions of New York accept the suggestion advanced yesterday by Alfred E. Marling, Chairman of the Liberty Loan Committee of the Real Estate Board.

The suggestion was to the effect that lenders accept Liberty bonds as payment for the cancellation of mortgages about to come due or upon which payments in reduction of the principal are to be made. In anticipation of demands on the part of lenders for payments on mortgages many owners have considerable amounts of cash on hand which could be released into the Liberty Loan field if the bonds are so accepted by the lending institutions.

At the meeting of most of the Manhattan team captains of the Real Estate Board's committee yesterday it was announced that subscriptions aggregating $300,000 had been obtained since the real estate men began their drive. Captains from the other boroughs have not reported as yet.

All the team captains will report next Thursday at a special meeting and luncheon to be held in the rooms of the Real Estate Board, at which all subscriptions received will be announced.

Realty Notes.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Real Estate Owners' Association of the Twelfth and Nineteenth Wards this evening at the New York Turn Hall, Lexington Avenue and Eighty-fifth Street, Nathan Hirsch, Chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Taxation, and Laurence McGuire, President of the Real Estate Board of New York, will speak.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The cyclonic depression of Wednesday night off the Carolina coast has increased in intensity during the day and is moving slowly northeastward, being central tonight off Cape Hatteras.

Pressure continues high over New England, and the barometric gradient between New England and the Carolina coast is unusually steep, thus inducing moderate northeast gales from Cape Cod to the Virginia Capes.

The high winds have been attended by rain on the coast, snow and sleet in the interior of Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, and Western North Carolina. In the Rocky Mountain region scattered rains have fallen; elsewhere the weather has been fair.

Temperature is low for the season in Atlantic Coast districts and unusually high in the North Rocky Mountain region and the Missouri Valley.

The Hatteras depression will move slowly northeastward during the next twenty-four hours and cause rain in New England and snow or rain in Middle Atlantic Coast districts Friday. Elsewhere in the Washington forecast district the weather will be fair, except that rain is indicated for Saturday in the East Gulf States, Tennessee, and the lower Ohio Valley.

It will be somewhat warmer Saturday in Atlantic Coast districts.

FORECASTS—TO-DAY AND SATURDAY.

Eastern New York—Cloudy in north, rain in south portion, Friday. Saturday, fair in the interior, rain on the coast.

CITY LOSES $50,000 BY NEW PIER LEASE

BRISTOL LINE PROTESTS

Over the protest of George W. Field, counsel for the Occident Dock Company, a subsidiary of the Bristol City Steamship Line, the Sinking Fund Commission, with Mayor Hylan presiding, yesterday approved a request of Dock Commissioner Murray Hulbert to lease Pier 60, at Twenty-ninth Street and North River, to the Hudson Dock and Terminal Corporation for a term of ten years at a rental of $25,000 a year. Beyond the fact that the Hudson Dock and Terminal Corporation was incorporated last February little is known about it, but it was said that among its officers are several Tammany men.

For the last eighteen years the Bristol City Steamship Line has held a lease on the pier at a rental of $15,000 a year. Mr. Field said yesterday that his company stood ready to pay $30,000 a year rental, and had made such an offer to the city, but had been turned down in favor of the Hudson Company. The Bristol City Line maintains a transatlantic service, and has been operating ships between New York and Bristol. It is engaged exclusively in handling war goods, and three of its ships have been sunk by submarines. Without a pier the company's steamships will be unable to handle munitions and other war supplies, Mr. Field said.

At yesterday's hearing Mr. Field produced an affidavit to show that on Feb. 27 his company had asked for a renewal of its present lease. He said Dock Commissioner Hulbert told him he would have to pay $35,000 a year for the lease hereafter, and he told the Dock Commissioner that he was willing to pay $30,000. He said Mr. Hulbert fixed April 1 as the time to begin negotiations, but that when he went to see him Mr. Hulbert put him off several days, and never did confer with him. He said that on April 10 his company made a written offer to Commissioner Hulbert to pay $30,000 for the lease.

"Who are these people who want the pier?" Mr. Field demanded to know. "I've tried to look them up, but can't find out anything about them."

Say City Will Lose $100,000.

None of those present enlightened Mr. Field and he went on to say that the city stood to lose $100,000 by turning the pier over to the Hudson Dock concern. He said his company had spent about $50,000 in building sheds on the pier and the company therefore had an equity in it. He thought that this, at least, entitled his company to first consideration in the matter of lease renewal. At this point James A. Taylor of the Bureau of Municipal Research arose and protested against the lease being given to the Hudson Dock concern.

"I don't care about the details of this lease," said Mr. Taylor, "but as a taxpayer and the representative of a taxpayers' organization I do not want to see the city throw $100,000 into the gutter."

"Well, you didn't make any objection when the lease was going for only $15,000 a year," replied Mayor Hylan.

Mr. Hulbert explained that the lease conferred upon the Hudson Dock and Terminal Corporation the right to use the pier, as well as the sheds on it, for a term of ten years, from May 1, 1918, with provision for renewal for an additional period of ten years, the rental for the first term of ten years to be $25,000 and for the renewal term 10 per cent. advance. The Commissioner said that he had never mentioned to Mr. Field that the Bristol City company would have to pay $35,000 for a renewal and that he had never understood that Mr. Field's company was willing to pay even $30,000. Not having heard from the Bristol City company regarding a renewal, the Commissioner said he then wrote to the Hudson Dock Company approving their offer of $25,000. Mr. Hulbert, however, did not deny receiving the letter from Mr. Field in which the offer of $30,000 was made.

One Vote Against It.

All the members of the commission voted in favor of giving the lease to the Hudson Company with the exception of Vice Chairman Moran of the Board of Aldermen, who was present in the absence of President Alfred E. Smith. As the meeting broke up, Mayor Hylan turned to Commissioner Hulbert and said:

"Commissioner, I want you to see if you can't get the Hudson people to give $30,000 for the lease."

The members of the Sinking Fund Commission consist of the Mayor, Controller, President of the Board of Aldermen, the City Chamberlain, and the Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Board of Aldermen. Later Commissioner Hulbert said he did not know who constituted the Hudson Dock and Terminal Corporation. All the papers in the matter, he said, had been left with the Sinking Fund Commission.

"Where is its office?" he was asked.

"I don't know," was the reply, "but I believe it is in Broad Street. The granting of the lease to the Hudson Company was merely a business transaction. I tried for a month to make some arrangement with the Bristol concern, but could come to no agreement. They wanted to keep to the old figure of $15,000, and when the city got a chance to make $10,000 more, why, we took it."

"Didn't the Bristol concern offer $30,000?" the Commissioner was asked.

"Yes," he replied, "but only after they found out what the other concern was going to offer."

Mr. Field, in making his investigation concerning the Hudson Dock and Terminal Corporation, discovered, it was learned last night, that it had been incorporated last February by the Corporation Trust Company of 37 Wall Street. The Hudson Company, it was said, was capitalized at $50,000, $5,000 of which had been paid in. It was said that the Directors of the company were all clerks, with the exception of two workmen in the employ of Frank McGoey of Far Rockaway, who is known in Democratic circles there. The company's charter permits it to lease docks, but not to operate ships.

SCRIBNERS SUE FOR FILM.

Claim Copyright for Material Used in "The Americano."

Suit was begun in the Federal District Court yesterday for an injunction against the further exhibition of the film play, "The Americano," and for an accounting of the receipts so far obtained from the exhibition. The plaintiffs are Charles Scribner's Sons, and the Franklin Trust Company, as executor and trustee of the estate of Richard Harding Davis. The defendants are Douglas Fairbanks, the actor; Anita Loos, a scenario writer; John Emerson, a producer; the Triangle Film Corporation, the Triangle Distributing Corporation, and the Majestic Motion Picture Company.

The complaint, filed by Henry Staton, counsel for the plaintiffs, says that "valuable and material portions" of Mr. Davis's book, "The White Mice," had been used in the making of the film play, that the book was first published in serial form in 1909 and copyrighted, and later was published in book form by Scribner's Sons, who had the sole rights to it, and was copyrighted by them. If the plaintiffs win, the damages may be fixed at $100 for the first exhibition of the film play and $50 for every subsequent production.

Collier Wins Foxhound Suit.

Supreme Court Justice Platzek yesterday dismissed a suit against Robert J. Collier by Miss Anna Walsh to recover $10,000 because a horse she was riding at Deal Beach, N. J., on a public highway, was frightened by a pack of forty-two foxhounds owned by Mr. Collier. The plaintiff, who is a daughter of a former police official, contended that the hounds on the highway constituted a nuisance. The Court held that a cause for action for negligence had not been made out.

PARK ARCHITECT OUT UNDER HYLAN ORDER

PILAT HELD PLACE 5 YEARS

Carl F. Pilat, for five years landscape architect for the City Park Department, resigned yesterday at the request of Commissioner William F. Grell. According to Mr. Pilat, the reason the Commissioner gave for asking his resignation was Mayor Hylan's plea for economy.

"The Commissioner and I talked over the situation as to the parks of New York, a few days ago, in the course of which he told me he wanted my resignation," said Mr. Pilat last night. "The reason assigned was that Mayor Hylan had appealed to the various department heads to cut down expenses. I did not gather that anybody was being considered for my place, but assume that, in view of the financial situation, no one will be appointed. My resignation takes effect on Saturday."

Mr. Pilat's removal follows closely upon the action of Commissioner Grell in dismissing Charles F. Flitner, Curator of the Dyckman House Museum at 204th Street and Broadway, and Mrs. Martha Rush, another old employe of the museum. These two, the Commissioner replaced with Capt. Frederick Hensler and his wife, who, like the Park Commissioner, are naturalized Germans.

Although friends of the Commissioner said last night that the removal of Mr. Pilat had nothing to do with pro-German-American prejudice, it was pointed out that by the resignation a naturalized Austrian named Gattringer, who was Mr. Pilat's assistant, becomes acting landscape architect. Mr. Gattringer is a civil service employe, and Mr. Pilat was not.

Mr. Pilat was appointed in 1912 on the recommendation of Mayor Gaynor. He is a Democrat, and was carried along under high recommendations by former Park Commissioner Cabot Ward of the Mitchel administration. The charter gives the landscape architect veto power on all plans which have to do with the park system, and Mr. Pilat has been a strong defender of the inviolability of park property. He took a prominent part in blocking a scheme considered several years ago for constructing an arcade in Central Park to serve as a museum. Another proposal fought by Mr. Pilat was to cover the meadows with concrete for tennis courts. He aided with plans for several Government cantonments.

Protests against the removal of the landscape architect are being sent to Mayor Hylan which severely condemn the action of the Commissioner. It has been pointed out that the city must have a landscape architect, and that the summary removal of a competent man on such grounds as the Park Commissioner gives is unwise and unfair.

CALL MEN TO SPARTANBURG

Mayor's Committee of Women to Open Recruiting Campaign.

Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, Chairman of the Mayor's Committee of Women on National Defense, issued an appeal yesterday calling on loyal men of New York to make up 2,000 needed for the Twenty-seventh Division, formerly the New York Division of the New York National Guard, now at Spartanburg, S. C.

Men under 21 and over 31 years are invited to attend the opening of the recruiting tent, at the Maine Monument, Columbus Circle, tomorrow at noon. Recruiting officers will be present, and the Police Band will render a musical program.

Soldiers Take Course at N. Y. U.

One hundred soldiers of the national army from Iowa arrived at the campus of New York University yesterday to begin a two months' course of technical training in the school of applied science. They will take various courses to fit themselves for technical service in the army in the aviation division. The Iowa drafted men are those who volunteered in advance of the second draft to make themselves ready for skilled work in the aviation division by taking the special course provided by the War Department at New York University.

PUSH JEWISH CAMPAIGN.

Bath Beach Exceeds Its Quota for the $500,000 Fund.

Plans for the final effort in the campaign for $500,000 and 25,000 members being conducted by the Brooklyn Federation of Jewish Charities will include a parade in Brownsville and East New York tomorrow night. More than 3,000 children from the Stone Avenue Talmud Torah will take part in the parade.

The slogan, "Buy Liberty Bonds and Help Jewish Charities," has been adopted, and spectators will be urged to give their Liberty bonds of the third issue to the charity fund. The campaign officers have found that good results have been obtained in the double appeal.

Many large contributions and many new members were reported by the various organizations in the federation yesterday. The Bath Beach division reported that it would oversubscribe its quota of $25,000 by $10,000, and that forty-three new members had been enrolled. Twelve new subscribers have ben obtaind in the Eastern Parkway and Brownsville districts, totalling $1,000. Three subscriptions of $500 each also were received from J. S. Becker, Simon Gassner, and Rubel Brothers.

Mass meetings will be held in many parts of Brooklyn tomorrow night in conjunction with the parade. On Sunday Bay Ridge workers will hold a mass meeting for the Liberty Loan and the Federation. The campaign will close on Monday at midnight.

LONDON, Saturday, April 13.—The House of Commons, sitting in committee, passed the Irish conscription clause of the man-power bill last night by a majority of 165.

Commenting editorially this morning on this action the Daily Chronicle says:

"The front bench was unmoved yesterday either by the indignation of the Irish or by the grave and firm protest made by Mr. Asquith in the name of English liberalism. Conformably with Bonar Law's formula that if the House did not pass the Irish clause it must find another government, they bludgeoned their proposal through.

"A majority of the House, we believe, including many Unionists, thoroughly dislikes it but naturally no majority wants to expose the country to the perils of a political upheaval in the thick of a military crisis on these terms and under these circumstances the ministers were bound to get their way. There can never have been any real question of Mr. Asquith or any other responsible leader deliberately compassing their downfall on this issue. All that was possible was a definite, dignified and emphatic protest against a policy which most of us believe to be courting needless, and perhaps irreparable, mischief, for no compensating return. That protest is now on record and we fear that in future months the claims that those who made it were true prophets may prove only too sadly easy to justify."

Chief Secretary Duke in a wise and tactful speech declared unequivocally that the Government meant at an early date to bring in a generous measure of self-government for Ireland. He even went to the length of expressing his hope that there would be a Parliament in Dublin before any Irishman was compulsorily called to the colors, but there was no definite assurance, such as Arthur Henderson pleaded for, that conscription would be deferred until Home Rule was a reality. Mr. Duke stated that the Government proposed to begin with Ireland by first calling up the young unmarried men, as was done in England.

Mr. Devlin made it plain that the Nationalists were not prepared to strike a bargain on Home Rule and conscription. Let the Government set up an Irish Parliament, he said, and then leave it to free Ireland to decide how she would help the allied cause. Never had Devlin spoken with more sincerity or eloquence. After an account of the difficulties thrown in the way of recruiting in Ireland, he avowed his belief that England in this war was fighting for a just cause, but he warned the Government against the danger of attempting to impose conscription upon the Irish people. On the other hand, if they set up Irish Parliament and left it to Ireland's honor, he offered to head a voluntary recruiting movement in that country,

Hears Germany Plans a Great Naval Raid

GENEVA, Switzerland, April 12.—Greatest activity reigns at German naval bases, especially at Kiel. Coal and ammunition are being shipped to the fleet in large quantities, according to information received here this morning from a reliable neutral source.

German naval contingents, with heavy guns, were recently recalled from the western front to join the fleets, and were replaced by Austrian artillery manned by land forces.

$451,744,000 NOW WAR LOAN TOTAL

Oregon, First to Complete Its Quota, Heads States on Roll of Honor.

IOWA LIKELY TO BE NEXT

Youngstown Austrians Buying Heavily to Help Defeat the Kaiser, They Say.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The combined statements of subscription to the Third Liberty Loan, with all Federal Reserve Districts reporting except that of Minneapolis, show a total at the end of business yesterday, April 11, of $451,744,000, which is an increase for the day of $175,825,000. The Treasury Department announces that two States—Oregon and Iowa—have completed their quotas. The report in the case of Oregon is made officially through the San Francisco Federal Reserve Bank, and that State will have the place of first honor in the honor roll of States which will be placed beneath the Treasury Department honor flag in Washington.

Iowa seems likely to win second place. Its State Chairman telegraphed that the State had completed its quota, although the official return had not yet been made through the Chicago Federal Reserve Bank.

The Liberty Loan campaign in the Minneapolis district will not be begun until April 15, which accounts for no reports being received from that district. The campaign in the two States that have completed their quotas is proceeding with full volume of enthusiasm, and predictions are made that they will go many millions beyond their quota.

In the totals announced of subscriptions from the various Federal Reserve Bank districts the increase in the interval of one day should not be regarded as representing the result of one day's soliciting, as the Philadelphia district did not report yesterday, and the Cleveland district was represented by the small sum of $7,150.

Totals by Districts.

The totals follow:

Boston	$46,391,200
New York	203,100,900
Philadelphia	31,007,750
Cleveland	33,980,150
Richmond	6,916,150
Atlanta	3,250,750
Chicago	53,210,900
St. Louis	29,208,400
Kansas City	13,267,750
Dallas	15,547,250
San Francisco	11,426,800
Total	$451,744,000

Before noon Thursday Oregon had officially reported to the San Francisco Federal Reserve Bank subscriptions amounting to $19,044,000, whereas its quota was $18,405,000. Edward Cookingham, State Chairman for Oregon, wired the department that the city of Portland alone had subscribed $10,128,000. This gave Portland a per capita subscription of $48.90, and Oregon, outside of Portland, a per capita subscription of $19.50, based on the 1910 census.

On Thursday Iowa claimed unofficially that its State quota had been attained. C. H. McNider of Mason City, Iowa, State Chairman, reported to the Treasury Department that while it was impossible to give official returns, he was confident that Iowa had won out. It is not possible yet for the Treasury Department to give official cognizance to the claim of Iowa until it is verified by the Chicago Federal Reserve Bank.

Portland, Ore., and Toledo, Ohio, are claimants for the first honor flag for cities in the class of 100,000 to 250,000. Both have wired the Treasury Department that they have attained their quotas before the first week of the loan campaign is ended. Portland attained a total subscription of $10,120,000 in four days, exceeding its quota of $10,050,000. Toledo raised $10,700,000 in four days; its quota was $9,150,000. This total does not include the subscriptions of its banks. Out of a population of 168,000 in Toledo 46,250 residents subscribed. This is one of the highest percentages

BRITISH FACE FEARFUL ODDS

MENACED AS ON MARCH 21

Foe's Evident Aim to Crush Them Before French or Americans Can Aid.

AUSTRIAN GUNS IN ACTION

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, Friday, April 12.—The enemy is playing a great game in which he is flinging all he has into the hazard of war. He has, of course, a stupendous number of men, and, while holding his lines across the Somme after his drive down from St. Quentin and playing a defensive part against the French on the British right, he has moved up to the north with secrecy and rapidity a large concentration of troops and guns for new and tremendous blows against Haig's forces. This is continuing his now determined policy to crush England before either France or America is able to draw off his divisions by counteroffensives.

So now the British troops in the north are faced by enormous forces. Nearly thirty German divisions are against them from Wytschaete to La Bassée Canal, and with those troops are innumerable machine guns, trench mortars, and massed batteries of field guns, very quick to get forward in support of their infantry.

As Menacing as the First Offensive.

It is right and just toward those at home to say quite simply and without rhodomontade or false heroics that this northern offensive is as menacing as that which began to the southward on March 21, and that the gallant men among these little red brick villages in French Flanders and in the flat fields between Bailleul and Bethune are greatly outnumbered and can only hold back the enemy by fighting with supreme courage.

They have done wonderful things, as I shall tell. Small bodies of them—battalions of divisions heavily engaged over a wide front, with the enemy trying to pierce their line at many places with sharp spearheads of storm troops, plentifully armed with machine guns—have held on to outposts, sometimes isolated, sometimes thinly in touch with other bodies of men, and have stayed there fighting in the face of an intense fire all the time, inflicting bloody losses on the attacking forces and forbidding them to pass.

Capture an Austrian Periscope.

So it was when the King's Liverpools, the King's Own, and other Lancashire troops defended the village line between Givenchy and Festubert. After the Germans had broken through the Portuguese in the centre their left flank was exposed; but they not only kept their line intact but defended each one of its saps and outposts. It was Liverpool men who held out in the "Death and Glory" sap and in another further north, where they repulsed all attacks and, seeing a periscope suddenly appear out of the earth in front of them, made a rush around it and killed the Austrian observation officer—for they were for Austrian guns. In reporting this episode they send the following message:

"The enemy attempted to uee a binocular periscope opposite our sap. A party went out and killed an Austrian officer and two men, and the periscope has been handed over to a group to whom it will be very useful."

I saw a number of men today belonging to these Liverpool battalions, to the Durham Light Infantry, the Royal Scots, the Royal Scottish Fusiliers, and other units engaged in this fighting, and they described the fighting which ensued after the Germans captured Neuve Chapelle. Parties of the enemy broke into houses in Laventie and fixed their machine guns in the rooms, firing through the windows down the streets and flinging out bombs upon the British who tried to rout them out.

Answer "Surrender!" with Rifles.

One party of the Durhame was holding an isolated position on the Lys in front of Estaires, and in the dusk a German officer with some men stood upon the canal bank and shouted to them: "Are you English?"

"We are!" cried a young sentry of the Durhams.

"Not all of us," said the Durham boy.

"Surrender!" shouted the German officer, but this time he was answered by a rifle shot.

Forty men came out of the houses along the riverside, and a Sergeant of the Durhams thought they were Portuguese and said: "Come on down and join them." He went too far and was taken prisoner, but the Durhame poured a rifle fire into the Germans, who now came swarming up.

"We killed a good few of them," said one of the Durhams, "but there were always more to come, and our little party had to fall back a bit to escape being captured."

One party of Royal Scots Fusiliers and Gordons, sent up with two machine guns to strengthen the line in front of Estaires and Lavente, found themselves under fire of German machine guns in great numbers and at the same time were bombed by German airplanes, which flew low over their heads with a great roar of engines and rush of air.

The machine gunners of the Liverpools are wonderful fellows, and on the first day at Givenchy, when their guns were knocked out and buried by shell fire, they dug them up and served them again, and both officers and men belonging to the machine gun companies fought with revolvers and bombs, while the guns were kept going by their comrades.

Destroys His Gun and Escapes.

A Sergeant of the Third Division served his field gun until the enemy was close on him, and fired 200 rounds at between 600 and 200 yards' range into the waves of Germans. The trail of his gun was broken by a shell burst and the breach block was so injured that between each round he had to pry it open with a pickaxe. At last, when the enemy was about to rush him, he destroyed his gun and escaped.

I described yesterday how I saw 700 prisoners who had been taken by these Lancashire troops. They were trapped with great skill by officers and men familiar with every twist and turn in the ground near Givenchy. When the enemy broke in the Liverpools worked around them and cut them off, not once but several times.

Fifty Germans Surrender.

In one trip of this kind they rounded up 300 Germans, and fifty of them surrendered to a British Brigade Major and his orderly, the order to surrender being given by the German officer, who had been taken first.

A certain keep near Festubert was penetrated by the enemy yesterday with two companies, but the King's Liverpools made a counterattack in

Germans in Air Raid on England and Paris

LONDON, April 12.—A German aerial raid was made on the east coast of England this evening. One or two of the raiders succeeded in penetrating further inland. Field Marshal French, commander of the forces of the United Kingdom, issued the following report on the raid:

"Some hostile airships crossed the east coast this evening and proceeded to attack certain eastern midland districts. One or two raiders succeeded in penetrating further inland, where some bombs are reported to have fallen. Further details are not yet available.

"The raid is still in progress."

PARIS, April 12.—German airplanes attempted a raid on the Paris district tonight.

The official statement on the raid says:

"German airplanes crossed the lines going south. Only two succeeded in flying over the Paris district, dropping a few bombs. The warning was given at 10:10 o'clock, and 'all clear' was sounded at 10:40."

Eleven persons were killed and fifty injured according to the latest official information.

Repulse German Attack in Argonne and Take 22 Prisoners.

FOE DRIVEN INTO HANGARD

But French Forces by a Counterattack Regain Western Half of Town.

ASSAULTS ON HAURGES FAIL

PARIS, April 12.—German forces launched heavy attacks this morning against the French in the Hangard-en-Santerre sector, (about ten miles southeast of Amiens.) The fighting continued throughout the day. Several attacks ended in failure, but finally fresh German troops penetrated Hangard, although the western section of the village was regained by the French, according to the War Office announcement tonight.

American and French troops, fighting together, repelled a German attack in the Apremont Forest, (in the Argonne.) The Americans captured twenty-two prisoners.

The text of the night official report says:

After an intense artillery preparation the Germans this morning attacked our lines on the front of Hangard-en-Santerre-Hourges. Violent fighting ensued, which lasted all day.

In front of Hourges the enemy was not able to advance, despite his efforts. After several fruitless attacks, carried out without cessation by fresh German troops, the enemy penetrated Hangard. Counterattacks launched by us regained the western part of the village, where the fighting continues with stubbornness.

In the Noyon sector the artillery action was quite marked. The Germans bombarded Rheims, several fires breaking out, particularly around the Cathedral.

Our Troops Successful in Argonne.

In the Apremont Forest, the enemy delivered against our positions in the Brule Wood a powerful attack, gaining a foothold in our advanced elements. A spirited counterattack by the French and American troops, acting together, immediately drove them out. Twenty-two prisoners, belonging to six different units, were taken by the Americans.

On April 11 our pursuit airplanes engaged in numerous combats, in the course of which two German airplanes and a captive balloon were brought down. Twelve other German machines were seriously damaged and fell within their own lines. The same day our escadrilles dropped 1,600 kilos [3,520 pounds] of projectiles on the railway station at St. Quentin, depots and aviation grounds north of Montdidier. A violent fire destroyed hangars at Champien, and an explosion was noted in the St. Quentin station.

It is confirmed that an airplane and a captive balloon of the enemy were destroyed on March 23 and two airplanes on March 31.

The day report of the War Office says:

French patrols developed activity in the sector between Noyon and Canny-sur-Matz. The French took a number of prisoners.

Spirited bombardments were carried on in the regions of the Oise Canal and the forest of Parroy. The French successfully raided the German lines near Chernizy, north of the Ailette, and west of Butte du Mesnil, bringing back prisoners.

On the remainder of the front the night was calm.

Hold Fast and Fight It Out to the Last Man, Our Backs Are to the Wall, Haig Tells His Army

LONDON, April 12.—Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig in a special order of the day addressed to "All Ranks of the British Army in France and Flanders" says:

"Three weeks ago today the enemy began his terrific attacks against us on a fifty-mile front. His objects are to separate us from the French, to take the Channel ports, and to destroy the British Army.

"In spite of throwing already 106 divisions into the battle, and enduring the most reckless sacrifice of human life, he has yet made little progress toward his goals.

"We owe this to the determined fighting and self-sacrifice of our troops. Words fail me to express the admiration which I feel for the splendid resistance offered by all ranks of our army under the most trying circumstances.

"Many among us now are tired. To those I would say that victory will belong to the side which holds out the longest. The French Army is moving rapidly and in great force to our support. There is no other course open to us but to fight it out.

"Every position must be held to the last man. There must be no retirement. With our backs to the wall, and believing in the justice of our cause, each one of us must fight to the end. The safety of our homes and the freedom of mankind depend alike upon the conduct of each one of us at this critical moment."

Joffre's Call at the Marne

On the evening of Sept. 5, 1914, the eve of the battle of the Marne, Joffre addressed to the commandere of the French armies these words:

"The hour has come to advance at all costs, and to die where you stand rather than give way."

They did not give way.

70 DIVISIONS PUT OUT OF THE FIGHT

But, Despite the Foe's Huge Losses, French Expect Another Southern Drive.

FORCED BY PUBLIC OPINION

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, Thursday evening, April 11, (Associated Press.)—Two strong enemy attacks last night and this morning in the vicinity of Noyon, which were repulsed easily by the French, give rise to the question whether the Germans are about to make another attack on their southern flank. It is evident that the German high command is beginning to feel some disquiet over the loss of so many men and the dislocation of so many divisions when they have not given the result expected.

Already considerably more than one hundred German divisions have been thrown into the fight and more than seventy divisions have since been withdrawn to fill up the gaps in the ranks. When it is recalled that the Germans hitherto have not taken a division out of the fighting line until it has suffered a minimum of 2,500 casualties, some idea may be obtained of the enormous total of their losses.

To the casualties in the divisions which have been withdrawn must be added those of the divisions still engaged in battle. They still have sufficient effectives in depots to re-establish their strength, but many of these reserves are composed of inferior elements such as convalescents and men who were partially exempted from service at the front. These must take the place of the carefully chosen men forming the crack divisions heretofore used.

The total strength of a German division on this front is 13,570 men, of whom 8,400 are infantry, machine gunners and cyclists, and the remainder artillerymen, engineers, ambulance attendants, transport workers, and a squadron of cavalry.

It is thought certain that the Germans, in order to satisfy the public to whom absolute victory has been promised, will be compelled to make further efforts before abandoning their attempt to break through the allied lines. Otherwise they would be in a bad position to explain the loss of so many men in an abortive offensive. Whether they continue to try to obtain possession of Amiens for moral effect, endeavor to capture the Aisne Heights, or throw the rest of their available forces against the British and Belgians in the north is a secret with their own staff.

FRENCH 'ACE' GIVES OUR FLIERS ADVICE

Fonck Urges Strictest Training and Thorough Knowledge of Their Machines.

HAS CONTEMPT FOR ODDS

D'Artagnan of the Air Has Worsted Seven Foes at Once by Skillful Manoeuvring.

From a Staff Correspondent.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, April 11.—If there be any truth in the theory of rebirth, the spirit of d'Artagnan may well live again in the body of René Fonck, the star air fighter of France, who, in less than a year, (he entered a battleplane escadrille last May,) has downed thirty-three German planes, officially certified by three independent witnesses, and more than fifty in actual fact. THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent met "the Ace of Aces" in a small town in the war zone, where the work of the group of which he is the most famous member was suspended on account of the bad weather. Fonck, who has hitherto refused to talk for publication, consented to give his views on air fighting when reminded of the intense interest felt in America in what might become its important contribution to allied effort.

Like Garros, Fonck more resembles an American college athlete than the average Frenchman. At first sight one might take him to be a short, stocky, all-American quarter back, sweater and all, were it not for his uniform and double row of ribbons. He wears the War Cross and the Military Medal, and is, at 23, the youngest officer of the Legion of Honor. On his breast are a long row of fourteen gold palms for citations—he now has seventeen altogether—two English and two Belgian decorations. But his round face, with its fair complexion, budding mustache and long hair, brushed back from the forehead, has exactly the same expression of boyish confidence in proved ability as that of a hero of the track, diamond, or gridiron.

Fonck's enthusiastic praise of the American pilots he knows is hardly needed to show the opportunity which air warfare offers our men. It requires no long years of training, as the land service does, and Fonck himself is so exactly the type of thousands of young Americans that it seems impossible that they should not be equally successful, if given the same opportunities.

Although he never mentioned the word swordsmanship, the whole tenor of his conversation suggested fighting of the d'Artagnan style—not one against one,

BRITISH NOW NEAR BAILLEUL

MERVILLE TAKEN BY FOE

BERLIN RECOUNTS GAINS

20,000 Prisoners Include 3,000 Taken at Armentieres—Advance Still Continues.

LONDON, April 12.—Under continued heavy pressure of the German forces, the British troops have been forced further back today in the area west and northwest of Armentières. Late this afternoon, according to the report by Field Marshal Haig from headquarters tonight, furious battle was in progress in the neighborhood of the railway south of Bailleul, (eight miles northwest of Armentières.)

The loss of Merville, (eleven miles southwest of Armentières and more than four miles west of Estaires, previously held by Haig,) in the same fighting area, was recorded in the day report of the War Office.

Further to the eastward and north of the La Bassée Canal, on the flank of the German salient, there was sharp fighting today, and the enemy made "slight progress," Haig says, between the Lawe and Clarence Rivers.

North of Armentières the British maintained their positions during the day's conflict. Last night the Germans, thrusting westward from Ploegsteert, drove Haig's forces back to Neuve Eglise, (six miles northwest of Armentières.)

Day of Continuous Fighting.

Field Marshal Haig's report from headquarters in France tonight says:

Strong pressure has been maintained by the enemy all day south and southwest of Bailleul. Constant attacks in great force were made in this area and are continuing.

Our troops have been pushed back slowly in continuous fighting to positions in the neighborhood of the Bailleul railway, where they are heavily engaged with the enemy.

Sharp fighting occurred also on other parts of the battlefront north of La Bassée Canal, and the enemy made slight progress between the Lawe and Clarence Rivers.

At other points our positions have been maintained.

On the remainder of the British front the position is unchanged.

Over 110 German divisions so far have been engaged since the morning of March 21, and over forty of these have been thrown into the battle two or three times.

The day announcement of the War Office reads:

Severe and continuous fighting took place last night in the neighborhood of Merville and Neuf Berquin, in both of which localities the enemy is continuing his pressure and has made progress. Merville was captured by the enemy during the night.

Attacks made by the enemy yesterday in the neighborhood of Ploegsteert succeeded, after heavy fighting, in pressing our troops back to the neighborhood of Neuve Eglise to new positions.

On the remainder of the northern battlefront the situation is substantially unchanged. A part of our positions into which the enemy forced his way north of Festubert was regained by a counterattack.

On the front between Loisne and the Lawe River and to the north hostile attacks have been repulsed.

Fighting is continuing on the whole front north of La Bassée Canal as far as Hollebeke.

South of Arras strong local attacks were made by the enemy yesterday against our positions in the neighborhood of Neuville-Vitasse and were repulsed in each case.

Further north the enemy succeeded after prolonged fighting in entering one of our posts near Tilloy-lez-Mofflaines, but he was at once driven out and the post re-established.

Downed 35 German Airplanes.

The official statement on aerial activities reads:

The mist which prevailed the last few days continued until late Thursday afternoon, when there was great activity in the air along the whole front. Twenty-one hostile machines were destroyed and fourteen were driven down out of control. Four of ours are missing. Two of our machines reported missing yesterday have since returned.

During the night over eight tons of bombs were dropped on Bapaume, on villages south of the Somme, and on military objectives at Ostend and Zeebrugge. One of our machines did not return.

Today the Sabions railway station at Metz was bombed successfully. Twenty-two heavy bombs were dropped, all of which burst on the railway and sidings.

Heavy Shellfire on Somme Front.

LONDON, April 12.—The Germans are developing great artillery activity in the southern area, says a Reuter dispatch today from British Army Headquarters.

The Bray-Corbie road (close to the Somme River) is being fiercely shelled, heralding, it is believed, further infantry attacks.

German troops made a determined attack along Messines Ridge and succeeded in gaining some ground, says the correspondent, but the British again drove them out by a counter-attack early this morning.

Three attacks which the enemy launched yesterday in great waves near Vieille Chapelle (west of Neuve Chapelle) were repulsed with immense losses to the Germans. The ground was strewn with their corpses.

In brilliant sunshine the battle is continuing with a fierceness which has scarcely flagged since the beginning. The Germans are throwing in their reserves in the same prodigal manner as in the opening days of the offensive.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, April 12, (Associated Press.)—At the southern end of the battlefront the enemy at 3 o'clock this morning commenced a heavy bombardment of the zone from Bray to Corbie and also kept the valley west of Sailly-le-Sec under fire throughout the night.

Throughout last night and this morning the northern battleline has continued to seethe with attacks and counterattacks. There was desperate fighting about Veille Chapelle during the night as the result of heavy hostile attacks.

The famous 51st Division stood its ground in the face of vicious thrusts by superior numbers of the enemy and inflicted most severe casualties on the attacking forces.

QUESTION OF WHO KILLS MOST.

That and the Reserve Man Power Will Decide the Battle.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, April 11, (Associated Press.)—In order to appreciate the trend of the present fighting the offensive operations must be viewed as a whole in relation to this crucial conflict of the war. The loss of a city here or there or the abandonment of five or ten miles of territory in any sector does not mean disaster.

The battle has got beyond such considerations and has settled down to a grim race to determine whether the German man power is enough to make good the threat to wipe out the British Army. It is a cold proposition of which side can kill the most men in the next few weeks and at the same time to find more recruits to fill the depleted ranks.

Determined attacks by the Germans continued today against points of strategical value along the new battlefront north and south of Arigentières.

On the extreme right the Germans today were pounding away against the defenses at Givenchy, which has changed hands numerous times since the first German onslaught on Tuesday. North of Armentières the Germans were showing an equal desire to possess Messines Ridge and Wytschaete, which are dominating positions and changed hands several times yesterday and last night. The Germans got a footing in Messines village and were still there this morning, but the British were clinging to the west ridge and keeping the enemy from Wytschaete.

Armentières was evacuated yesterday afternoon, but was still reeking today with clouds of poisonous gas, and was a most inhospitable place for the enemy. The British withdrawal became necessary when the Germans on the north drove forward to the vicinity of Steenwerck, bottling up the city. By their operations the Germans had thrust forward lines on either side of the city toward the west until at noon yesterday Armentières lay at the bottom of a sack-shaped salient, the sides of which were 12,000 yards long, and the mouth, near Steenwerck was only 3,000 yards across.

The withdrawal does not mean as much from a military standpoint as might appear from a first glance, but the Germans undoubtedly will make much of the capture for the moral effect at home. Any distress over the abandonment of Armentières is due more to sentimental than tactical reasons.

South of Armentières there was especially bitter fighting along the Lys near Croix du Bac, where the Germans crossed by wading. As they worked in toward the river from both flanks the British held their fire and allowed the enemy to assemble. Once the Germans were in the river the defenders opened a terrific fire, and there was a huge pile of bodies in the waterway before some of the enemy succeeded in getting across.

Throughout the day German aviators did much flying at low heights, and also were active in bombing work along the battlelines.

A small force of the British Bicycle Corps did brilliant work for a short time on Tuesday, when the Portuguese were forced back, and it was necessary to reinforce the centre of the Allies' battleline below Armentières. This little body of troops were thrown in and held on gallantly until the regular infantry could be brought up.

MAURICE SEES A REAL CRISIS.

Important Centres Menaced, but Foe Has Won No Dominating Position.

LONDON, April 12.—A definite crisis has again been reached, Major Gen. F. B. Maurice, Chief Director of Military Operations at the War Office, said today.

"The situation is undoubtedly unpleasant," he added. "The enemy is within a short distance of Bailleul, which is an important railway centre for feeding our Messines-Wytschaete front. He is also advancing in the direction of Hazebrouck, which is a very important railway centre."

General Maurice said that on the other hand the Germans are advancing on a very flat and intricate country and have not yet gained any dominating position. Seventeen enemy divisions had been engaged up to the present, and the enemy had lost very heavily.

"The enemy has attacked on a front from Hollebeke to La Bassee. Beginning at the north his attacks on the Wytschaete-Messines Ridge have not met with very appreciable success. There has been very heavy fighting there, and the enemy has lost heavily. He has failed to get on the main crest of the ridge. He has got into the village of Messines, but we are holding the exit from it.

"South of the ridge there has been no material change in the situation since Wednesday beyond the evacuation of Armentières. This city had been drenched with gas by the Germans and we are now doing the same. Gas shells are continually falling and the place is virtually uninhabitable.

"South of Armentières the situation has developed. The enemy, having forced a crossing of the Lawe and Lys Rivers, has seen an opportunity of developing an attack which may be dangerous to us. He is pushing generally in a westward direction and has captured Merville, an advance of about seven miles from the starting point.

"On the left flank of that advance, between the River Lawe and La Bassée he has made no progress. We still hold Festubert and Givenchy, the outposts of Bethune, and the enemy has made no appreciable progress in that direction.

"An advance of seven miles over a flat country, devoid of any features of capital importance, would not normally be a serious matter. In the first two days of the Somme battle the enemy advanced as much as fifteen miles, but there is a difference in the two battlefields. In the north we are holding a comparatively narrow strip of territory between our front and the coast, and that strip contains a number of very important points to us in the shape of railway junctions and other communications. Therefore an advance of seven miles to the north is more serious than an advance of twice that distance in the south.

"The enemy has formed a comparatively broad flank in the direction of Bethune and the coal area of Northern France, so if he finds himself checked in the endeavor to go west, he has the opportunity of turning southwest.

"Those are the most unpleasant factors in the situation. On the other side there is the fact that the enemy is advancing on flat and intricate country and has not yet obtained a footing on any hill.

"Taking the enemy's plans generally, there is definite evidence that his original intention was to advance on Bethune.

"As I conceive the enemy's plan, it was not a rigid one, but he kept his reserves at places where he could employ them according to the development of the battle.

"The enemy, from the beginning of this battle, has never aimed at any town; his objective has been the destruction of the British Army. Towns are mere stepping stones on the way to that end, and, having found the French coming to assist us in the south and no progress possible except at great cost, he has now turned his attention to developing a probably unexpected success in the north."

Trying to Outflank Ridges.

OTTAWA, April 12.—"It is obvious that the enemy, backed by unlimited artillery, is doing what has up to this time been unprecedented in this war, namely, conducting two first-class offensives simultaneously, or, at the very least, launching a second before we had time to draw away from the first," says a Reuter dispatch from London today.

"The prospect is grim for the British, but accounts of the fighting continue to breathe confidence, that the British, however prolonged the struggle, will not yield to the enemy in what is becoming more clear is a test of endurance. The key points of the battle are the ridges of Messines and Passchendaele, which the Germans are both endeavoring to outflank and carry by direct assault."

"VICTORIOUS TROOPS" MOVE ON, SAYS BERLIN

Taking of Great Booty, with Large Gains of Ground, Is Reported.

BERLIN, April 12, (via London.)—"Our victorious troops," says the official report from headquarters this evening, "are progressing through the wide Lys plain, between Armentières and Merville."

The statement goes on:

Armentières has fallen. Encircled on the north and south by the troops of General von Berhardt and General von Stetten, and thus deprived of its roads to retreat, the English garrison of fifty officers and over 3,000 men laid down its arms after a brave resistance. With them forty-five cannon, numerous machine guns, large quantities of munitions and clothes, and other kinds of rich booty fell into our hands.

To the northeast of Armentières we gained ground, and to the west of the city, after the repulse of a strong counterattack against Steenwerck, carried out by hastily collected troops, and after a bitter fight for British position No. 61, the troops of General von Stetten and General von Carlowitz drove the enemy back in the direction of Bailleul and Merville. Merville was captured.

On the southern bank of the Lys River General von Berhardt's troops fought their way across the Lawe River and advanced as far as the heights before Merville.

On the battlefield on both sides the Somme violent artillery duels developed. French regiments, which assaulted our line on the west bank of the Avre to the west of Moreuil, were repulsed with heavy losses, and left in our hands 300 prisoners, who were subsequently killed by French artillery fire.

According to information so far received, the total booty captured in the battle of Armentières amounts to 20,000 prisoners, including one English and one Portuguese General, and more than 200 guns.

The conquest of swamped crater fields in and before our positions of departure on April 9 made the greatest demands on troops of all arms in the foremost lines. In their success the pioneers, equipment troops, and rear divisions have an outstanding share of credit.

The day statement from General Headquarters reads:

On the battlefront on both sides of the Somme and on the southern bank of the Oise the fighting activity was limited to artillery duels and minor infantry operations.

AMSTERDAM, April 12.—The etrategy of the German Supreme Army Command is still unrevealed, says the Cologne Volkszeitung, and will be recognizable only in the course of further operations.

The paper discounts the "extremely foolish idea" which, it thinks, may crop up, that the German thrust against the Anglo-Portuguese front indicates that when the offensive in Picardy could not be carried to success, the German commanders wished to try an experiment elsewhere.

The Frankfurter Zeitung regards the new thrust as a portion of a great plan of attack, and dwells on the great strain put on the enemy's nerves by the necessity of making dispositions in the greatest haste.

GERMANS FELL IN HEAPS.

British Soldiers Slew Till They Were Weary.

LONDON, April 12.—"You could have shot them down with your eyes shut," said a wounded machine gunner in describing how the Germans attacked on the western front, according to the correspondent of The Daily Mail. "We fired straight into them and they went down in heaps, yet we could not stop them. It was one down and another come on."

The correspondent quotes other remarks from wounded soldiers, indicative of the spirit of the British defenders, and the heavy toll the Germans are paying for every foot they advance. The correspondent says that wounded soldiers agreed that the Germans outnumbered the defenders at least two to one.

"Aye, were never far away," a wounded Highlander replied to the remark of the correspondent that the Highlanders seemed to get into all the battles. He told how his regiment was on a canal bank when the Germans tried to cross:

"They advanced on both flanks, coming upon either side in the attempt to get across. We were told to hold our fire until they were well in view. Then, when there were hundreds before us, we let fly. Man, it as murderous."

A Yorkshireman, who was standing near by, broke in:

"That may be, but that was no better than when we saw them along the side of a hedge. They didn't expect us to be so near. We pumped bullets into them with Lewis guns until our bodies ached."

As an illustration of the coolness of the British troops, the correspondent says that some Highlanders told him how they found food in trenches, which some other troops had been forced to evacuate before German attacks. The Highlanders said the first thing they did was to sit down and eat the food.

"We fried their eggs and frizzled their bacon. 'Never miss a chance' is our motto. We had a fine feed."

In the garden of an improvised hospital, where the daffodils toss their heads in a breeze, several men sat on a bench. They did not see the daffodils; they saw nothing. They sat hunched up as they slowly recovered power to breathe freely. They were poisoned gas casce. The correspondent adds:

"Happily, they were not likely to be much worse, the doctor thought. But they were bad enough, and it made us feel that for chemists who invented such means of warcraft and Generals who were devilish enough to introduce it, and for the nation which applauded its employment, no punishment could be too cruel, no torture too refined."

HAIG'S LOSS OF GUNS MORE THAN MADE UP

Better Tanks Going to Him—Huge Increase in British Munitions Production.

OTTAWA, April 12.—The British Army in France is as well equipped today as when the German offensive in Picardy began, England having replaced all the lost guns and increased the quantity of machine guns, according to Frederick George Kellaway, British Parliamentary Secretary of the Ministry of Munitions. A Reuter dispatch, received today from London, quotes from a speech which Mr. Kellaway made at Bedford, England, last night.

The tanks which the Germans captured were being replaced by ones of superior model, the Secretary stated, and the ammunition consumed had more than been made good, while men were being released steadily to fill the gaps occasioned by loss of man power. In the air, Britain continued as strong, if not stronger, he said.

Comparing the munitions production in January and February with the first two months of 1917, Mr. Kellaway said that light guns had increased 30 per cent., medium guns 57 per cent., heavy guns 38 per cent., machine guns 96 per cent., shells 83 per cent., tanks 39 per cent., airplanes 223 per cent., and airplane engines 245 per cent.

GERMANS APPALLED AT THE HEAVY LOSSES

Estimated at 500,000 Now—War Party Said to Have Time Limit to Win.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, April 12.—A Dutch merchant who has just arrived from Germany told THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent today that the number of Germans killed and wounded was estimated at 500,000 up to Tuesday.

He saw thirty trains, each of fifty cars, at Aachen, all filled with wounded soldiers, who wore paper bandages which had been on four or five days. There is no water or refreshment at the stations.

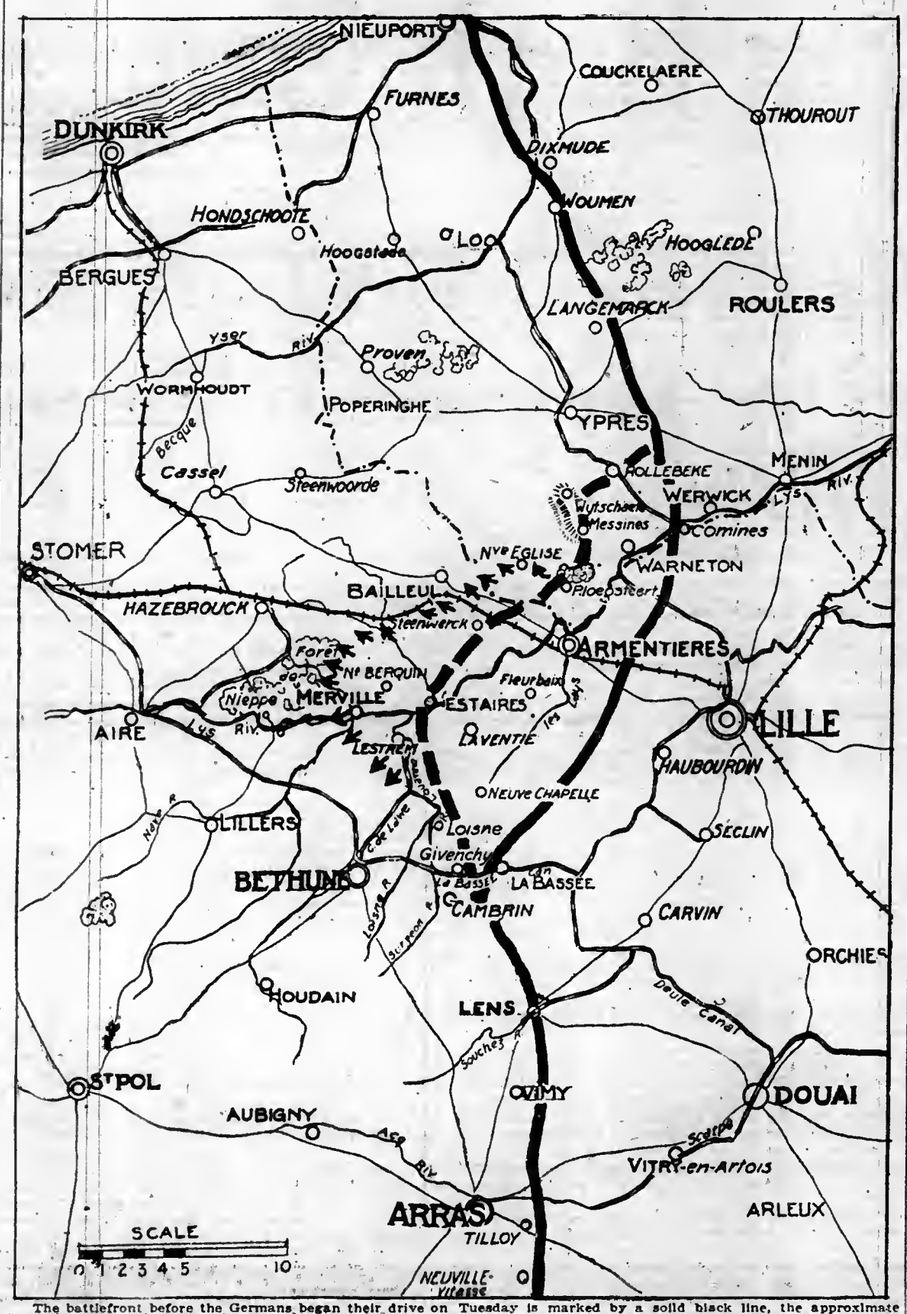
The people are appalled by the number of wounded. All the public schools have been converted into hospitals. Ten thousand were sent to Treves.

He said that the wounded men were handled like parcels, sorted out at stations, and sent to various hospitals. Where the trains stopped on sidings the blood sometimes oozed through the flooring of the cars and formed pools on the ground.

The wounded Germans told the people at the stations that the fire of the British guns was the most terrible they had ever experienced.

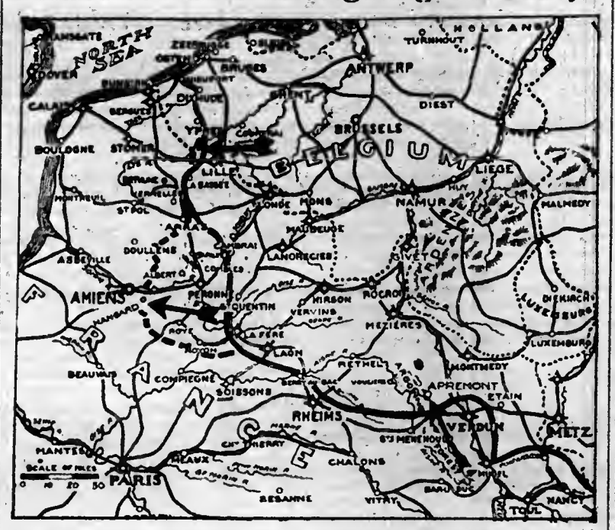
The Dutchman said that the general feeling among the German people was that the war would end this year. They believe that the war party has received a limited time in which to defeat the Allies, and, if they do not succeed, the Moderates will have an opportunity to take up peace proposals.

Where the Germans Are Pressing Their Northern Offensive



The battlefront before the Germans began their drive on Tuesday is marked by a solid black line, the approximate front as reported in Thursday's dispatches by a broken line, and the position as indicated in yesterday's dispatches by the dotted line. The German gain yesterday at some points in the region northwest of Armentières toward Hazebrouck and Bailleul exceeded four miles.

Three Areas of the Fighting Yesterday



The northernmost arrow indicates the heavy German offensive north of Arras. At the "elbow" of the battlefront near Amiens the Germans began a strong attack on the French and carried most of Hangard.

West of Verdun, in the Argonne, (indicated by the arrow,) American troops co-operated with French in a successful counterattack against the Germans, and took prisoners.

Philip Gibbs's Story of the Great Battle

the evening and destroyed them almost to a man. A division flank of their troops was exposed by a German thrust through Neuve Chapelle. A defensive flank was formed by tunneiers and small parties of Portuguese under British officers and some Seaforthe, and they have held on ever since with most resolute courage. Other men came to strengthen the line, sent up in old London omnibuses and lorries.

At dawn yesterday morning the strong post of Vielle Chapelle, held by the Gordons, was fiercely assaulted, and they fought on hour after hour, killing many of the enemy every time the storm troops made a rush. The Scots also defended the main road between Locon and Lestrem, upon which the enemy has poured his fire, but where the Highlanders would not let him pass, and where waves of Germans have fallen under rifle, machine gun and field gun fire.

These are acts of heroism which prove once again the quality of the British soldiers, their stubborn courage in defense, and their hatred of giving ground. The enemy has put already well over 100 divisions into the battle line since March 21, and about ninety of these have been sent against the British troops.

In this new battle between Wytschaete and La Bassée Canal nearly thirty divisions are engaged, and of those six divisions were on the narrow fronts north of the Lys, driving forwnrd through Nieppe to Steenwerck.

There was another group of divisions thrusting through south of Armentières which was caught in the pincers, and a new German division was suddenly flung in southwest and drove through Estaires toward Merville.

Last night they drove in a wedge between Lestrem and Merville and gained the position of Calonne-sur-le-Lys, east of St. Venant, to which they are trying to force their way today with great intensity of gunfire and big concentration of machine gunners and riflemen.

A bloody battle is now being fought out on the ground below the Forest of Nieppe. It was all over that ground day before yesterday, when the enemy waa near by at Lestrem, and it was from villages there among the woods and between Hazebrouck and St. Venant that I saw the evacuation of many families while German shrapnel was whining overhead and the tumult of the guns was louder and closer.

Today the tide of war has flowed over some places through which they trekked only a day ago, and many of their houses have already been shattered by German gunfire. The scene today along the line of this hostile invasion was most tragic, because all the cruelty of war was surrounded by beauty so intense that the contrast was horrible. The sky was of Summer blue, with sunshine glittering on the red-tiled roofs of the cottages and on their whitewashed walls and little window panes. All the hedges were clothed with green and flaked by snow-white thorn blossoms.

In a night, as it seems, all the orchards of France have flowered, and cherry and apple trees are in full splendor of bloom, fields are powdered with close-growing daisies, and the shadows of trees are long across the grass as the sun is setting. But over all this and in the midst of all this is agony and blood. On the roads are fugitives, wounded soldiers, dead horses, guns and transports.

There are fires burning on the hillsides. I saw their flames and their great, rolling clouds of smoke rise this morning from places where the day before I had seen French peasants plowing as though no war were near, and young girls scattering grain over the fields harrowed by their small brothers, and old women bending to the soil in the small farmsteads where all their life was centred, until suddenly the frightful truth touched them and they had to leave their homes.

Sometimes today I wished to God the sun would not shine like this nor nature mock at me with its thrilling beauty of life. However, the British are full of confidence. If they were forced back they are glad to know that they made the enemy pay heavy prices and that their line is still unbroken. They are full of faith that against all odds they shall hold their own in the last battle of all.

The pageant of the roads is the same—young gunners on their horses and mules riding by like knights in their steel caps, infantry marching with a whistling tune on their lips, the transport crawling by with dogs in the wagons and great bunches of daffodils tied to some of the men's saddles, and old women and children packed among troops in the dim recesses of motor lorries.

Officers and men stand about in the villages under scattered fire and every man in the army is doing whatever task falls to him without an outward sign of the strain, though in the heart of every man is the thought that these days may decide the fate of the world and all our life now and to come.

Observers on French Front Believe Artillery Will Soon Signal Another Amiens Attack.

OTHER ASSAULTS NOT VITAL

German Operations Beyond the Oise Not Thought to Be Part of the Real German Plan.

By G. H. PERRIS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, Friday, April 12.—Up to last midnight there was no important new development on the French front, but the increasing power of the cannonade on both sides is notable. How much more it may mean it is impossible yet to say, but at least it means that the clash of infantries, almost unaided, is over, and that in the next shock the artillery will play its full part.

Whatever other sector between the sea and the Alps may next spring into flame, this first field of the German offensive must in all probability remain the principal one. It extends forty miles in depth and rather more in frontal length.

One-half of all the German forces in the west have been directly engaged in it, and it has brought in the face of it allied forces which cannot be neglected, even if it were materially possible, which it is not, rapidly to transfer large masses from one field to another. The attack on the Lys, despite its partial success at the outset, is a small affair in comparison, and although the enemy continues to deliver local attacks about Noyon, there does not seem so far to be any particular significance either in these fruitless actions or in his advance from La Fere to the new and solid French front on the Aliette.

Some French authorities think that the original German plan was to march straight on Paris and that it was the successful opposition of the first French army to intervene that turned them northwest toward Amiens. This is to suppose that von Hutler is more reckless than was his predecessor von Kluck in 1914, for he would have had the unbroken British Army on one flank and the unbroken French Army on the other. However this may be, it is always safest to credit the enemy with the soundest military aim and the German Grand Staff has always professed the Napoleonic doctrine that in a decisive battle political or positional objectives are nothing, the sole proper aim being to break the main opposed forces. We may the more readily admit that in this sense the strike toward Amiens was well conceived now that it has definitely failed.

French Cavalry's Work.

The French cavalry, which, felt peculiarly the irksomeness of trench warfare, has risen finely to the opportunities offered to it in the recent crisis. As an illustration I may refer briefly to the work of the cavalry division which, having been brought up by long forced marches, was sent reconnoitring into the region of Roye at daybreak on March 26 and came up against enemy parties four miles northeast of that town.

It was here exactly at the junction of the British and French infantry at midday on March 27 that the task of the cavalry became very difficult. The French left was driven in and the cavalry had to withdraw toward Montdidier, stubbornly contesting every step. It was in no small measure due to their gallantry that it became possible that evening to hold the line of attack by Montdidier, and the survivors of the struggle took part in the following combats up to April 7, when they were relieved.

The armored cars of this division did very good service. A typical case is revealed in the record of the decoration of Captain Charles Tassin, commanding one of the groups of armored cars. It read: "A former reserve officer, who by reason of age was free from military obligations, he showed on March 30 and 31, and April 1 magnificent ardor and contempt for danger. The village having been taken by the enemy, he hurried thither with two cars and, manoeuvring skillfully, cleared the two principal streets and so opened the way for the infantry, by whom the village was retken."

BRITISH PRISONERS STARVED AND BEATEN

Official Report Says Many Have Been Put to Work Under Allied Shell Fire.

LONDON, April 12.—How British prisoners of war in Germany are enslaved, starved, and subjected to untold cruelties is related in an official report of a Government committee made public today. The detention and employment of noncommissioned officers and men captured on the western front, says the report, "have brought on these prisoners an amount of unjustifiable suffering for which it would be hard to find a parallel in history."

The report is based on an accumulation of evidence and shows that prisoners have been employed constantly under shell fire, and that many have been killed by British guns; that they have been kicked and beaten; that clothing and adequate shelter have been denied them; that they have often been shot, and that deaths from starvation and overwork have been constant.

French prisoners have been subjected to the same treatment. Some of the prisoners received neither letters nor parcels for eight or nine months after their capture. Last November there were in the Limburg station between 18,000 and 20,000 undelivered parcels for British prisoners.

DENIES NAVAL BASE REPORT

Daniels Deplores Story That America Will Use Azores.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Secretary Daniels today denied the published report that the American Navy had established a naval base in the Azores Islands.

"The story probably grew out of the fact," said Mr. Daniels, "that some ships stopped there several times on account of storms, and to get coal. We have no concession from the Portuguese Government to establish a base there.

"We have coal there, but we do not call a place where we have coal a naval base. We would not call it anything more than any place on the French coast or anywhere else where we have coal and our ships go in. It is not being armed. We have no guns there. I am very sorry anything has been published, because we have no naval base there and do not intend to have one there.

"I was very much surprised to see the story, and conferred with Admiral Benson and Mr. Roosevelt about it. They were both surprised. Mr. Roosevelt has made a statement that it was not a naval base."

GERMANS NOW SHELL PARIS AFTER SUNSET

Projectiles Fall from First of Evening Bombardments by Long-Range Gun.

MATERNITY HOSPITAL HIT

Three Persons Were Killed and Eleven Wounded—Man and Boy Killed by Second Shell.

PARIS, April 12.—For the first time since the long-distance bombardment of Paris began, German shells reached the Paris region today after sunset. A projectile struck somewhere near the city at 8:05 o'clock this evening.

In the Paris district today two persons were killed and twelve wounded by the bombardment.

A shell fired by the German cannon yesterday struck a maternity hospital in the Rue de la Crèche, in the Montrouge district, on the southern outskirts of Paris, and three persons there were killed and eleven wounded. Within the hospital were thirty women with newborn babies. One maternity nurse, one patient, and one baby were killed, while two probationers, six women patients, and three infants were injured.

The building is two stories high, and the shell entered on the ground floor and burst in the middle of a ward. Had it come a half-hour earlier it would have made many more victims, for it was visitors' day, and friends of the patients had just left.

Another shell struck an open-air bowling alley and killed a man and a boy and wounded ten other persons.

It has been remarked that the German long-range gun was not fired during the hours of darkness, probably test the flash of the discharge should reveal its location to French observers.

the battle line appears to occupy their sole attention, with the exception of last night's and today's attacks near Noyon, but any day may see a change in the direction of the German thrust. The situation is viewed with complete confidence by the French high command.

Detailed particulars concerning German liquid flame-throwing organizations show that this terrible arm is intrusted to a reserve regiment of engineers of the Prussian Guard. Three battalions, each of four companies, containing 120 men, especially trained for the purpose, are used. The men are all young, as the service calls for strength and is very hazardous. Detachments from this regiment are attached to all units along the front.

They always work with two units close together, and for each jet of flame there are four men under command of a noncommissioned officer. One man carries the apparatus, which weighs over fifty pounds, the second carries the hose which throws the flame 25 or 30 yards, and the two others are grenadiers, who are trained to replace their comrades in the event of casualties.

Two methods are adopted for advancing to attack and are used according to circumstances. In one the flame throwers go forward with the second wave of attacking infantry and destroy enemy dugouts and centres of resistance. In the second they advance with the first wave, with the object of overcoming any opposition to their progress, and then post themselves in captured positions to meet possible counterattacks.

PAN GERMANS CALL FOR HARSHER TERMS

New Demands on Poland and Rumania Are Now Openly Advocated.

WRING MONEY FROM POLAND

Proposal in Prussian Upper House That She Assume Part of Germany's War Debt.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, April 12.—At the moment when the greatec section of the German press is raging about what it terms Wilson's gospel of force, the debate on Poland in the Prussian upper house has greater significance and interest and deserves to he remembered. In the Chambec, where Prussian junkerism is clarified and condensed; in the House, which is accustomed to hear the full blown evangel of Machtpolitik, it is seldom there has been a debate so impregnated with hatred and the advocacy of force in politics. The great debate fully justifies Wilson's attitude as shown in his Baltimore speech. Count Yorck, who is leader of reection in the upper house, declared: "The state is force and again force, and it is only after that it is called upon to carry out works of culture."

That sentence, says the Berliner Tageblatt, expresses the imperial policy of forec more clearly than haa evec been done befnre, and in making that declaration, says the same journal, the Count was only the mouthpiece of that opinion which has been greatly strengthened by the western military successes.

General von Kleist demanded that Poland should take over a certain portion of Germany's war debt, perhaps the most extraordinary suggestion made in the debate.

The Frankfurter Zeitung is greatly alarmed because these junkers appear to be supported in their demands for the annexation of Polish territory by strong elements in the Prussian Government. The motion regarding Poland which the House discussed, says this journal, means the annexation of a considerable portion of Polish territory, and it asks if tha Chancellor, after what he said against annexation, supports this policy.

The demands of the upper house, it goes on, "mean the complete abandonment of the policy of friendship with the Poles and the substitution for that of a policy of suppression." It will not have it that the so-called military security only involves small frontier altecations, for in the days when cannon bombard Paris from a distance of over sixty-five miles it is absurd to say that slight rectifications would meet the demend for such security. Behind the whole demand for military security, it goes on, there really lis the demands of the industrial magnates who wish to secure Poland's mineral regions, and it proiests strongly against the belief that Germeny, with its vast coal resources, needs this comparatively small district, with only 3 per cent. of Germans among its population that would destroy the prospect of Poland's industrial future.

Pan Germans are also agitating for a greater application of force to Rumania. Theic newspapers express the hope and belief that Kuehlmann's journey to Bucharest is also for the purpose of adding to the treaty a protocol which will give Germany far greater economic advantages than it is supposed the treaty has already given her.

The Weser Zeitung will have it that Rumania has been given far too favorableterms. The Deutsche Tageszeitung and papecs of similar views talk of the great damage done to German interests by the fact that Kühlmann allowed himself to be led by Czernin, the cesnit of which was that Germany has not got all the junkers desire.

It will be interesting to see how far tbis Pan German campaign has succeeded, for some of the papers maintain that the treaty has been oc will be stiffened up much in the fatherland's favor and Rumania made to feel the full weight weight of hec subjection to Germany and the full force of those principles of force so influentially advocated in Prussia's upper house and held in Prussian Government circles.

SACKVILLE-WEST IN COUNCIL

Succeeds Rawlinson as Member of Versailles War Board.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 12.—Major General Charles J. Sackville-West has been appointed British military representative on the Supreme War Council at Versailles in place of General Sir Henry Rawlinson. This announcement was mada by Andrew Bonar Law at question time yesterday in the House of Commons.

General Sackville-West is a brother of the third Lord Sackville and is in his forty-eighth year. He was lately in command of the King's Royal Rifle Corps. In the South African war he was an Aide de Camp to General Buller and afterward was a Staff Captain at the War Office and an instructoc at the Staff College. During the present war he has been twice wounded, has been mentioned in dispatches, and has been made a C. M. G.

Colonel Faber asked the Prime Minister yesterday if he would considec the advisability of including an Admiral in the War Council, seeing that Britain was a nation that existed by sea power. Mr. Bonar Law, who replied, said that he was not pcepared to adopt the suggestion. Whenever naval affairs were, undec consideration naval advisers of the Government invariably attended the Cabinet meeting. Mr. Pringle asked whethec naval advice was not being taken with a view to helping the position of the British armies at the present time, eo as to assure that the fleet could take action to prevent bombardment of the British ecast. Mr. Bonar Law replied that these questions were undec consideration by both the War Cabinet and its naval advisers.

MAJOR UNDER ARREST.

Officer of Field Artillery Accused of Violating Espionage Law.

DEMING, N. M., April 12.—Major John M. Birkner, 127th Field Actillery, was arrested at Camp Cody today charged with violating the espionage law.

Major Birkner, who is a native of Germany, has been in the United States military forces for more than thirty years.

The technical charge against the officer was violation of Section 3, Title 1 of the Espionage act. He was arrested by Deputy United States Marshal George Ramsey, on instructions from United States Marshal Andrew Audspeth. He will be taken to Santa Fe Sunday to appear before United States District Judge Colin Neblett.

HINT THAT BEERFELDE IS ACCUSED OF TREASON

German Officer Arrested in Connection with Lichnowsky Papers Defended by Vorwaerts.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, April 12.—The Vorwärts commenting nn the Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung's statement regarding the arrest of Captain Beerfeldc, who was concerned in the distribution of the memorandum of Prince Lichnowsky, the former German Ambassador to London, says it gives the impression that there is a tcaitor in the General Staff.

Beerfelde, it says, returned disabled and joined the General Staff, where he apparently was considered morally responsibls and capable, "but it was fatal for him, foc it brought him to the bordecland where the military cpases and politics begin, and the Captain stepped into the world full of frightful secrets."

The paper speaks of monerchical and conservative institutions and says thnt Beerfelde learned many things which mede him begin to doubt and want to proclaim the truth.

"Germany's fate during and after the war," he wrote to Hindenburg, "will entirely depend on whethec we represent a true cause; otherwise we will outwardly win, but be ripe for downfall and never fulfill our world mission. Only with truth can we withstand the inner and outer enemy, of which the most dangerous is the infamous lie."

The Vorwärts thinks his words explain the man, who has a burning love of the German people. The paper admits that Beerfelde may have had wrong ideas, but asks if it is clever or necessary to take a General Staff Cnptain, decurated with Iron Cross of the first cless, and expose him to the world as a traitoc and as n martyr of the peace movement.

Il declares that the accusations against Beerfelde are adventurous, advocates that the trial shsll not be secret, and quoles Merx as follows: "The people see the punishment but not the crime, and because it sees punishment where no crime is it will see no crime where punishment is."

The Lokal-Anzeiger reports that evidence against Beerfelde is increasing, but that it is nnly indirectly connected with Llehnowsky.

The Kölnische Volkzeitung says Lichnowsky was responsible for 120,000 Germans being interned in England, because he refused passports in the first days of the war and not until Aug. 3 could the German Forcign Office arrange for 600 Germans to leave by a Dutch steamer.

Thcee were shot down in ouc lines by infantry, four were brought down hy our airplanes, and one was driven down out of control. Seven of oure are missing.

At midday today we raided the Luxembucg station and ovar a ton of bomba were dropped. Several bursts wero seen on and around the etation. All our machines returned.

EX-GERMAN ATTACHE ASSAILS PRESIDENT

Lieut. von Herwarth Asserts England O. K.'d Baltimore Speech Before He Made It.

ALWAYS INTENDED TO FIGHT

His Election Remarks About Keeping the Country Out of War Called a Manoeuvre.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, April 12.—Lieutenant von Herwarth, the former Military Attaché at Washington, writing in tho Voesische Zeitung, argues that when President Wilson's speech was delivered in Baltimors on April 6 it was 2 o'clock in the morning in Berlin, and yet the Berlin morning pnpers of the 7th published a résumé of the speech. The paper says this is a technical impossibility, that a réeumé must have been in London on the 6th of April, and thnt this is proof that Wilson must first have submitted his utterances to London.

"Is it an intellectual document?" it goes on. "One might suppose that the responsiblo leader of a State would speak from the depth of his convictions when he speaks to the whole world, at least if he wishes to be taken seriously. . . . It would appear that the American people highly overrated this man when they chose him as leader. Those who have lived long enough in America to know the peopls and country know that there are plenty of serious people, honest men who fight for their convictions and patriots whose country is sacred—men who besides these qualities have the necessary ability and force and, above all, the will to serve their country. Wilson does not belong to them."

The paper charges that the President is insincere and even sinks to the level of a political condottiere when he speaks of the English. It refers to the time when the President was first elected, and declares that tariff reform showed its effect seven months later by 200,000 men being out of work in Chicago, although everything changed when the war broke out.

"Like a dry sponge the Union soaked up Entente contracts," it continues, "and began to make munitions."

The writer even alleges that England, which, he says, was thsn preparing for war, strove to influence the election in favor of Wilson.

"Those who assisted at the election campaign could not doubt it," he says. "Especially those who heard Ambassador Bryce's sigh of relief when Wilson was elected were convinced."

The paper says that in spite of the pretended animosity of the Entente press against Wilson in the 1917 campaign England had played her hand, and Wilson's words about keeping the country out of war were a manoeuvre, as he never intended to do this. Elihu Root said in 1914 that America would help England out should she get in a corner. The President's election words were spoken to decids the country and succeeded. "Now Wilson shows himself an accomplice of England. Ths red thread of hypocrisy runs through all his speeches and his last speech is no exception."

This paper again accuses Reutec of only sending a résumé of tho President's spesch and of leaving out passages.

"Even if the unknown parts of his speech are milder in tone, this does not change his preaching forcs," it continues. "It changes nothing that the Mister Professor feels chagrined becnuse a peace-loving, honost psople of 70,000,000 with their loyal allies are bathed in blood and tears, or that he feels personally insulted because Germany and the Central nations who are fighting for the freedom of the world will not become England's vassals."

The writer declares that Wilson is an Anglomaniac and that thia suited Englnnd's aims, and that the President is an English, not an American, President at the head of the Union. He goes on:

"He does not stand comparison with George Washington, as the latter spoke the truth. Wilson changes with the wind. Washington had ideas. Wilson borrows them where he finds them, from England or from Emperor Dom Pedro. Washington was the founder of a great western democracy and the creator of a high idealistic Constitution. Wilson tramples on the right of individuals, the right of publication, and of freedom, and stands on a heap of English lies.

"Most of the papers follow in his wake, and are quite poisoned with his ideas. This shameless despot in his own house accuses us of trying to acquire supremacy of power nnd commercialism."

The writer concludes that Abraham Lincoln's words about not fooling all the people all the time could well be applied to the President.

It was announced in Washington, when the President's Baltimore speech had been delivered, that it had been sent in advance to all the capitals of Europe, so that all should receive it simultaneously.

GERMANS DISTORTED PRESIDENT'S SPEECH

ZURICH, Switzerland, April 12.—According to the Mannheim Volksstimme, the Wolf Bureau, the semi-official news agency in Germany, omitted two long passages from President Wilson's speech, entirely changing its character and placing it much in another light.

The passages omitted were those commencing "We ourselves have proposed no injustice," &c., and ending with the words, "The German leaders were seeking" nnd "her statesmen have said," &c., and closing, "to be free under their domination."

The passages referred to are as follows:

"We have ourselves proposed no injustice, no aggression. We are ready, whenever the final reckoning is made, to be just to the German people, deal fairly with the Germen power, as with all others. There can be no difference betwcen peoples in the final judgment if it is indeed to be a righetous judgment. To propose anything but justice, even-handed and dispassionate justice, to Germany at any time, whatever the outcome of the war, would be to renounce and dishonor our own causo, for we ask nothing that we are not willing to accord.

"It has been with this thought that I have sought to learn from those who spoke for Germany whether it was justice or dominion and execution of their own will upon the other nations of the world that the German leaders were seeking.

"Her statesmen have said that they wished peace, and were ready to discuss its terms whenever their opponents were ready to sit down at the conference table with them. Her present Chancelloc has said—in indefinite and uncertain terms, indeed, and in phrases that often seem to deny their own meaning, but with as much plainness as he thought prudent—that he believed that peace should be bnsed upon the principles which we had declared our own in the final settlement.

"At Brest-Litovsk her civilian delegates spoko in similar terms; professed their desire to conclude a fair peace and accord to the peoples with whose fortunes they were dealing the right to choose their own allegiances. But action accompanied and followed the profession. Their military masters, the men who act for Germany and exhibit her purpose in execution, proclaimed a very different conclusion. We cannot mistake what they have done—in Russia, in Finland, in the Ukraine, in Rumania. The ceal test of their justice and fair play has come. From this we may judge the rest.

"They are enjoying in Russia a cheap triumph in which no brave or gallant nation can long take pcide. A great people, helpless by theic own act, lies for the time at their mercy. Their fair professions are forgotten. They nowhere set up justice, but everywhere impose their power and exploit everything for their own use and nggrandizement, and the peoples of conquered provinces are invited to he free under their dominion."

VENICE GREETS AMERICANS.

Mr. Davison, in replying to an address by the Mayor, referred to the disinterested attitude of Italy, which "had put aside the ties of thirty-three years and joined the Allies in the cause of justice and liberty."

The party later visited the Cathedral of St. Mark and other principal points, and inspected the extensive relief work that is going on. B. Harvey Carroll, Jr., American Consul in Venice, is conducting the work with Red Cross support.

CHARLES'S LETTER ALARMS GERMANY

Revelations of Austria's Attitude on Alsace Question Cause Agitation in Empire.

MILITARISTS CRY 'TREASON!'

Washington Hears Junker Organs Demand That Austria Bs Placed Under German Tutelage.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Germany is agitated over the letter of Emperor Charles of Austria-Hungary expressing sympathy with the aspiration of Franco to regain Alsace-Lorraine, according to nn official dispatch from Zurich today.

"The German press," says the dispatch, "is very much excited over the revelations which the French Government has mede concernsng the attitude of the Emperor of Austria toward the Alsace-Lorraine question. The Neue Badische Landes Zeitung, announcing that the Chancellor of the Empire left suddenly on Tuesday to join the Emperor at Great Hendquarters, affirms that these conferences which are to take place will revolve exclusively nhout the situation created by the revclations of M. Clemenceau.

"Although the Vienna cnrrespondent of the Frankfurter Zeitung, in a note of extreme timidity, wrote Tuesday evening that the high personage mentioned by the French Premier in his reply to Count Czernin could not belong to the ruling house, every one is convinced, especinlly after the details furnished by Clemenceau, that the facts as imputed to the Emperor of Austria are exact.

"The organs of the military party are crying treason, and demand that Austria be placed under the tutelage of the German Empire. The Neue Badische Landes Zeitung adds that the German Ambassador at Vienna called Tuesday at Ballplatz to present a communication from his Government."

A dispatch from Paris, treating of the letter of Emperor Chnrles, says:

"The Petit Journal announces that other revelations may follow which would bring full light to hear upon the perfidious policy of the Central Empires, adding: 'As was expected, this importnnt proof is not ennugh to silence the adversary. One may be sure that M. Clemenceau will not allow himself to be overtaken. He still has at his disposal other arguments equally decisive and likely to convince the most skeptical and the most prejudiced of the odious duplicity of the Government circles of Vienna and Berlin.'

An official dispatch received herc today from Berno says:

"The Münchner Neueste Nachrichten announces that a large meeting is to be held Saturday at Prague to protest against Count Czernin's speech.

"All the members of the uppor house and of the Landtag are expected to take part in the meetings, as well as all the committees of the scientific and art associeties and delegates from numerous corporations.

"Deputy Korosec promised that the South Slav Party will give its entire support to the Czech association. M. Turku, Minister of Public Works, has decided to join the protesting party."

SAYS AUSTRIA FIGHTS AS KAISER'S TRUE ALLY

Emperor Charles, Denying Statement Concerning Alsace, Affirms Faith in Victory.

VIENNA, April 12, (via Amsterdam.)—Complete solidcrity exists between Austria and Germany and "we shall jointly enforco an honorsbie peace," says Emperor Charles in n tclegram (the substance of which was printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES of Friday) to Emperor Willinm denying the truth of the declaration mndo early in the week by Premier Clemenceau of France that the Austrian Emperor recognized France's claim to Alsace-Lorraine. Tho message declares that the French Premier's assertions arc "from beginning to end inventions."

It is added that the fact that Austro-Hungnrian troops are fighting foc Alsace-Lorreine on the western front demonstrates the Emperor's faithfulness to his ally, while the senselesness of attributing to Count Czernin the idea that France had a just claim to Alsace-Lorraine is proved by all of the Foreign Minister's public utterances. The message to Emperor William reads:

"The French Premier, driven into a corner, is endeavoring to escape from the net in which he has entangled himself by piling up mnre and more untruth, and he does not hesitate to make the completely falso statement that I recognized that France had a just claim to the reacquisition to Alsace-Lorraine. I disavow this assertion with indignation.

"At the moment when Austro-Hungarian cannon are thundering jointly with German cannon on the western front it hardly needs proof that I am fighting for these provinces, and I am ready to continue fighting exactly as if it were a question of defending my own land.

"Although, in face of this eloquent proof and the full community of aims for which almost four years we have been waging war, I consider it superfluous to waste even a word on Premier Clemenceau's false nssertion, I desire, nevertheless, to take this opportunity of again assuring you of the complete solidarity which exists between you and me nnd your empire and mine.

"No intrigues, no attempts, from whomsoever they may proceed, will imperil our loyal comradeship of arms, and we shall jointly enforcc an honorable peace."

Czernin Repeats Denial.

LONDON, April 13.—Count Czernin, the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, on Friday issued a circular stating that he had interviewed Emperor Charles and that he was convinced that the statement of the Fcench Government regarding the letter written by the Emperor was untrue, according to a dispatch to the Berliner Tageblatt forwarded by the Copenhagen correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Company.

It was in response to this letter that the French Government published Emperor Charles's letter of March 31, 1917, upholding France's "just claims regarding Alsace-Lorraine."

SIXTUS IN BELGIAN ARMY.

He is the Brother-in-law to Whom the Emperor Wrote of Peace.

The brother-in-law whom Emperor Charles of Austria addressed in his famous letter of March 31, 1917, as "My Dear Sixtus," is an officer in the Belgian Army. Prince Sixtus of Bourbon-Parma, born in 1886, and consequently six years older than his sister, Empress Zita.

Another brother of the Empress, Prince Xavier, born in 1889, is serving in the same army, and for a time was attached to the staff of King Albert. A half-brother, Prince Elias, born in 1880, is attached to the General Staff of the Austrian Army. Two sisters of the Empress, Adelaide and Frances, are English war nurses.

Their father, the late Duke Robert of Bourbon-Parma, took as his first wife the Princess of Bourbon-Sicilies in 1869. By her he had three sons, including Prince Henry, the head of the house, nnd five daughters, one of whom, Princess Marie, is dead. Duke Robert's first wife died in 1882. Two years later he married the Princess de Brageuca, Infante of Portugal, by whom he had six sons and six daughters, and died in 1907.

At the beginning of the war Sixtus and Xavier, whose sister had married the then Archduke Charles, in 1911, tried to enlist in the French Army, but could not be accepted on account of the law excluding from that army all members of the former French royal family; both were descended from the Bourbon Kings.

So they joined the Belgian Army, carried wounded at Namur and on the Yser, and then were lost sight of in Flanders. Xavier is said to have performed work, on account of his German appearance and knowledge of the German language, the nature of which is known only to King Albert. On Jan. 15, 1917, the brothers were thus spoken of in the Fcench Army Orders:

"They spontaneously offered their services in the cause of right, and, attached to the stretcher bearers in the first line, have on all occasions given proof of devotion and complete contempt of dsnger."

TAKE SHIP LINES TONIGHT.

Government Will Then Control All Vessels Plying to Southern Ports.

With the taking over of the steamships of the Clyde, Mallory, Merchants and Miners and the Southern lines by the Railroad Administration at midnight tonight, the Government will have control of every steamship line operating to southern ports out of New York. The four remaining lines are in the South American and West Indian trade. They are the New York and Cubnn Mail, better known as the Ward Line, which operates to Cuba and Mexico; the United Fruit Company, to South American ports; the Munson Line, to Cuba, and the New York and Porto Rico line, whose steamships ply between here and Porto Rico.

The Government controls, through the Railroad Administration, the Mallory, the Clyde, the Merchants and Miners, the Savannah, the Old Dominion, the Southern Pacific, and the Southern lines.

At present the task that confronts the Government is to find men for the ships and offices of the lines. Already many in the employ of the steamship companies have entered the service of the army and navy.

URUGUAY ASKS BERLIN IF GERMANY IS A FOE

Query as to State of War Discloses That U-Boat Captured South American Mission.

MONTEVIDEO, April 12.—The Government of Uruguay has asked Berlin, through Switzerland, if Germany considers that a stats of war exists with Uruguay, as stated by the commandec of a submarine who captured a Uruguayan military commission bound for France.

If the reply is in the affirmative Uruguay will declare a state of war. If a negative reply is received Uruguay will demand that the Commissioners be liberated on parole.

The above dispatch indicates that a German submarine captured a Uruguayan mission to France. This is the first intimation that sueh an incident had occurred.

but one against all comers, simply because that one knew he was skillful enough to break off the combat at will and return to the attack with an irresistible thrust when he had manoeuvred his opponente into a dangeroue position.

Four Requisites of Air Fighting.

For Fonck four things count as an air fighter's assets: Flying ability, accuracy of shooting, automatic swiftness of decision and coolness. Unlike many great fliers—Lufbery and Guynemec, foc example—he does not put shooting first.

"Manoeuvring youc opponent is the chief thing," he said. "Directly I engags an enemy I can judge what line to take. You can tell from the outeet just what quality of pilot is opposed to you, and muet act accordingly. I have never fought Richthofen, but I am certain I should know in ten seconds that I was at grips with him if we met, and he would know, too. The way a pilot handles his machine is an unfailing indication of his calibre."

The remark might have come from the mouth of d'Artagnan himself, talking about his battlee. Fonck continued:

"Don't believe the etories about the most succesaful airmen diving from a great height and abandoning the struggle if the enemy is missed. That may have been true once, but at present such tactics are impossible. You muet fight and fight close. The victorious aviator is the man who knows best how to handle his machine so as to meet changing situations most adequately, and who has the quickness of decision to translate that ability at once into action."

"But against heavy odds," I said. "Surely you are at a disadvantage when several attack you at once."

"Nut in the leest," he replied. "You just give ground and mnnoeuvre them"—he emphasized the word—"and then go for the one who is in the woret position."

Fought and Won, 1 to 7.

Again it was d'Artagnan speaking. Fonck continued:

"The greatest number I ever fought nlone was seven, at Verdun. I dodged around until I got my opportunity, and then went for one and downed him. A moment or two later I got anothec and gave a third more than he liked, so that he made off. That left four. I dived at one, and, although I missed him, came so close"—Fonck begins ficing at 150 yards and continues until he is five yards distant, when he swerves for an instant to avoid a collision—"that he decided to quit also. When I wheeled to tackle the cest they were streaks on the horizon."

Fonck reckons that his best performance; but in tho present battle he downed two out of three of Richthofen's "Tango Circus" in a five-minute combat above Montdidier. The "Circue" follows the "storks," as the membera of the crack French Flying Corps are called, whenevec they go along the fcont. Last Summer they met in Flanders, last August at Verdun, and a week ago near Montdidier.

I asked Fonck about his aensations while fighting.

Fonck a Total Abstainer.

"It's very intsresting," he said coolly, in a tons that might have been borrowed from the ewocdeman of Dumas. "One is so keen on the game that he nevsr thinks about danger. Sometimes, after it is ovec, I find myself sweating, but I suppose that is puce excitement plus physical exertion. It is hard work handling a fighting plane. You've got to bn in tiptop condition. I know thers ars good pilots who play the fool on leave, but they lose their nerve or get killed. You must bo absolutely fit to stand the racket."

Fonck drinks no alcohal and is a moderate smoker. Unlike most aviators, he is absolutely devoid of superstition and laughingly accepted a third light from a single match. He carried no mascot, and his plane is unadocned save for a painted atork in a horizontal position, of which he wears a silver modcl abovs his decorations. Guynemer, whose death Fonck avenged by downing the German novice Wissemans, who killed the French aco in his first battle, had the same attitude, which the rest of the "atorks" make a point of imitating. The motto of the whole group is: "Trainsd to the top notch is better than trusting to luck," and thcy all look fit to fight for their lives tomorrow.

Never Injured in Battle.

I asked him which hnd been his "tightest corner." He replied:

"Since I have been flying a battleplane I have not known one; but once in 1916, when doing scouting foc infantry on the Somme, I was shot down by enemy infantcy while flying at a height of fifty yards. One bullet eplintered the fuselage a half-inch from my left hand, my engine was injured, and I landed between the lines and abandoned my machine. That was the only time I was foceed to land, and although I have been in aviation since the beginning of the war, I have never been scratched oc had an accident."

Until last May Fonck, who received his pilot's certificate in 1913, after two months' study undec Pégoud, was employed as a scouting, photographic and artillery obaervation pilot. At this work he nevertheless downed two Germans, and eight days after his appointment to a battleplane escadrille was mentioned in a communiqué as having destroyed his fifth enemy.

Advice for American Aviators.

I asked him if he had any advice to give to the American airmen, and he replied:

"Avoid all excess and train as for a prizefight. From the practical point of view the best thing is get attached to a first-class French group. We know the game, and a young pilot cannot do better than fly with a group in which thers is at least one crack. The latter not only gives the confidence which is essential to novices, but shows them how, and is there to disengage them fcom awkward situations.

"Secondly, tell them to learn their machine and engine thoroughly. Ninety per cent. of aviatore are forced to trust their livee to mechanice for tuning up. That is nut good enough for me. Without boasting, I may say I can take any machine of ouc group, and in a week it will bo the best of ths lot—not because I am specially clevec, but because I know the whole outfit thoroughly. And it le wocth learning, because my life depends on it."

Fonck has a professional advantage in this respect. Before getting his pilot's certificate he studied for five years to be a mechanical engineer and had driven racing automobiles. In his opinion a succeseful air fighter is born, not made; but mechanical knowledge counts enormously.

As his name suggests, Fonck is of Alsation origin. His grandfathec owned property nsar Schrameck, which he abandoned after fighting in the war of 1870 rathec than live under German rule. Fonck himself was born in the Vosges. What he thinks of the Germans may be judged from the following:

I asked whether he felt very triumphant when he downed an additional German plane, and he answered:

"Oh, no. I just say to myself: 'One less of the awine in France today,' and let it go at that."

'LIBERTY LAND' OPEN TODAY

Cardinal Farley Will Officiate at War Exhibit at 69th Regiment Armory and Daniels Will Speak.

Reports of subscriptions to the third Liberty Loan received yesterday by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York totaled $26,321,100, an increase of more than $3,000,000 compared with the previous day's figures. This brougbt up the total for the first five days of the campaign to $206,560,100, as against $181,312,000 for a similar period in the second Liberty Loan campaign.

That the drive for the Third Liberty Loan is being conducted far more successfully than was the campaign for the second loan is indicated by the fact that daily subscriptions have averaged more than $41,000,000, compared with $26,000,000, the average for the corresponding time in the previous effort. On the basis of the $900,000,000 quota for the district, the daily average should be $36,000,000, but figuring on total subscriptions of $1,500,000,000, the aim of the committee, the daily average is $60,000,000, the length of the campaign measuring twenty-five business days. Although the bankers are pleased with the results obtained thus far, they are hopeful that still better totals will be rolled up as the drive progresses. More and more energy is being injected into the campaign daily.

An indication that individuals are taking a greater interest in the Third Liberty Loan than they did in the Second is furnished by the report of the Metropolitan Canvass Committee which shows that in the first four days of the current campaign 5,638 subscriptions, amounting to $1,268,350, were obtained. During the same period in the Second Loan campaign, the canvassers collected only 312 subscriptions totaling $39,000. At present there are 20,000 volunteer workers engaged in canvassing and the committee is endeavoring to get five times that number. Those who desire to enlist in the work are requested to apply to the committee or to the nearest recruiting station.

All Liberty Loan subscriptions filed at booths operated by the Women's Committee or other organizations will count in the quotas of the banks through which they are placed, according to a statement made yesterday by Benjamin Strong, Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank and Chairman of the Liberty Loan Committee. Many people, it appears, have refrained from filing their applications at Liberty Loan booths because of their desire to favor their own banks. Whatever bank or trust company is designated as the one through which a subscription should be cleared, or where final payments are to be made, will get the credit for that subscription against its quota.

Announcement was also made yesterday of a ruling by the Treasury Department setting May 9 as the earliest date on which outstanding Liberty Loan bonds may be converted into bond bearing interest at 4½ per cent. The campaign for the Third Liberty Loan bonds, which will be dated May 9, closes on May 4.

Many Celebrations Today.

A number of parades and celebrations are scheduled for today, chief among them being the formal opening this evening of "Liberty Land," a war exhibit in the 69th Regiment Armory, the Italian Day exercises in Washington Square and a mass meeting at Carnegie Hall, the latter having been arranged by a committee representing interior decorators, art dealers, and allied trades.

The "Liberty Land" exhibit will be opened by Cardinal Farley, who will be escorted to the armory by a detachment of soldiers. Later in the evening Secretary of the Navy Daniels, who is coming to New York to attend the Jefferson Day dinner at the National Democratic Club, will appear at the armory and make an address. Governor Whitman is also expected. Admission to the war exhibit is free.

The Italian Day celebration will take place in Washington Square from 5 to 10 o'clock, the program having been arranged by Mrs. La Re Lutkins. The principal speaker will be General Guglielmetti, Military Attaché of the Italian Embassy. Enrico Caruso will sell bonds in a booth at 6 o'clock. Captain Francisco M. Guardabassi of the Italian Grenadier Guards, and Signor Ferrari-Fontana, the singer, will also take part in the bond selling. Among the speakers will be Miss Amy Bernardi, who investigated the devasted areas of Italy; Judge Freschi, Martin Vogel, and Internal Revenue Collector Edwards.

Italian Day will likewise be observed at Liberty Bell, Liberty Theatre, and the Liberty Bank. One hundred Italian school children will sing at the City Hall celebration, and Romolo Predonj, the Italian Consul, will deliver an address. Will Irwin, the writer, who has just returned from the Italian battlefront, will speak at the Liberty Bank in Madison Square, and Major Ian Hay Beith and Commander Maud Ballington Booth will be among the speakers at the Liberty Theatre on the terrace of the Public Library.

New York Guard to Parade Today.

If the weather permits units of the New York Guard will parade in different parts of the city today, the guardsmen leaving their armories at 4 o'clock.

So great has been the success attending the campaign for subscriptions to the Third Liberty Loan in Long Island City that at a meeting held at the Queens Chamber of Commerce yesterday afternoon the committee for the district decided to set a goal of $7,500,000 for total subscriptions for the campaign, although the quota for the district has been fixed at $1,300,320. John H. Pencheon, manager of the Long Island City Branch of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, is Chairman of the general committee, and Miss Margaret Moore is Chairman of the women's committee. Acting upon the recommendations of the Mother Church in Boston, Christian Scientists are pressing their Liberty Loan campaign vigorously. The work in this city is under the direction of a committee, headed by Nathan H. Well, which consists of representatives of the nineteen local churches and societies. Mr. Well has sent a letter to the organizations, urging that the members and attendants of the churches be asked to make their subscriptions through Christian Science channels.

Samuel Gompers Issues Appeal.

"Buy Liberty bonds. They are the sinews of war our Republic is making for labor, freedom, justice, democracy. In addition they are the safest investment in the world."

It was announced that Franklin Union No. 23 of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union had bought $10,000 of Liberty bonds. In addition to a purchase of $1,000 worth of War Savings Stamps, the Joint Board of Cloak and Suit Makers, an organization made up of unions affiliated with the International Ladies' Garment Workers, has subscribed $5,000 of bonds.

Three hundred cadets of the United States Junior Naval Reserve are selling bonds. They expect to raise $60,000. Ensign William Burns, who is 17, has already obtained subscriptions amounting to $8,000.

Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright is co-operating with the Liberty Loan Committee, and according to the plans, the patrolmen will not only buy bonds, but assist the campaign by aiding in the distribution of posters.

A sub-committee on distribution, covering the savings banks of the city has been organized. John J. Pulleyn, President of the Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank, is Chairman, and the other members are:

Offer Partial Payment Plan.

A. B. Westervelt of Harvey Fisk & Sons, a member of the Distribution Committee of the Liberty Loan Committee, who is in touch with the savings banks, says that some of these institutions have already entered their subscriptions for the Third Loan and that all of them are offering the partial payment plan in one form or another to depositors and others who may wish to subscribe. Some of the banks, he said, may adopt the coupon books in place of the card system, and all the banks have agreed to accept payments made in connection with the coupons.

PROSECUTE BOND SCALPERS

District Attorney Hears of Frauds Upon Loan Subscribers.

A Grand Jury will be asked to investigate the operations of alleged Liberty bond "scalpers," based on complaints made to the District Attorney. Thirteen persons were summoned by Assistant District Attorney E. S. Brogan yesterday and questioned concerning reports from purchasers of bonds that they had lost their investments after getting loans and putting up the bonds for security.

"The method of the scalpers as reported to me by several of the complainants," said Mr. Brogan, "was to make a pretended loan, taking the bond as security, but when the borrower attempted to redeem the bond he found that he had signed a bill of sale. As the loan was smaller than the amount paid for the bond the customer in some cases had substantial loss. In at least one case, it appears that forgery was resorted to in depriving a man of his investment. I expect to present the entire matter to the Grand Jury."

UNITY PLEA BY ALLIANCE.

German-Americans Disband with Expression of Loyalty.

PHILADELPHIA, April 12.—The German-American Alliance was finally dissolved here today, when, at an adjourned meeting of the Executive Committee, a resolution for disbandment was unanimously adopted.

The resolution stated that the members considered it the supreme duty of every American citizen to give his unqualified support to the Government in the successful prosecution of the war. It set forth that the alliance could do the nation no better service in the preservation of that unity and cohesion which are so necessary at this time than by voluntarily disbanding the organization, although emphatically denying that it had ever done anything that would justify the charge of disloyalty against it.

"The National German-American Alliance of the United States of America," the resolution said, "hereby accepts the resignation of its President and all its officials, closes its doors, and adjourns sine die, leaving it to the Congress of the United States, under a power reserved in the act granting its charter, to revoke the same.

"As American citizens of German blood, whole-heartedly and without reservation, we and our fellow-citizens that together with them we shall ever stand ready to defend this Government and this country against all foes, internal and external, to the end that the liberty and freedom guaranteed by the Constitution shall forever prevail."

The organization's educational fund of $30,000 will be given to the Red Cross chapter at Wilmington, Del.

FIND BERLIN BANKER HERE WITH SPY DATA

Ran Little Shop Till Men Were Called to Cantonments, Then Opened Near Four of Them.

PARTNER NOW IN FRANCE

Information Seized Upon Arrest the Sort German Military Authorities Might Want.

Nine days before the world war started in 1914 Johann Mayer arrived in New York and passed the Immigration Inspectors as an ordinary German. He had money, how much is not stated, and within a week or two he started a little shop where he sold talking machines and records. In Berlin he was a banker, but that fact Meyer carefully kept from those with whom he became acquainted. Four weeks ago agents of the Department of Justice arrested Mayer, and since then he has been in the Essex County (N. J.) Jail pending action by the Federal authorities.

The investigation, so far as Mayer is personally concerned, is said to have been completed, and yesterday a report on the case was sent to Attorney General Gregory in Washington.

For three years after landing in New York, according to officials, Mayer apparently devoted all of his time to managing the little talking machine store. He was quiet and apparently harmless, paid his bills promptly, and always seemed to have plenty of money, although his business was not large.

For a little more than four months after Congress declared war Mayer continued his talking machine shop; but in August the phonograph business went out of existence, and when next heard of Herr Mayer had organized the Emm and Ese Trading Company, soon to be followed by another company, of which he was also a head, known as the Military Sales Corporation. Mayer was now selling military equipment to officers and enlisted men.

The draft men were called to the colors and began to mobilize. Mayer decided to establish branches near some of the cantonments, and picked out Camp Jackson at Columbia, S. C.; Camp Sevier at Greenville, S. C.; Camp Greene at Charlotte, N. C., and Camp Wheeler, near Augusta, Ga. On the outskirts of each of these big soldier cities the German opened a store, in each he placed stock valued at about $12,000.

Partners May be Twins.

For more than five months the business flourished, nobody dreaming that the man who directed it was a loyal subject of the Kaiser. Sol Savery, another man concerned in the business, is said now to be in France and to have organized a branch near one of the big American overseas camps.

Savery says he was born in the East Indies, and that he is a loyal friend of the Allies. But he bears a striking resemblance to Mayor, according to the Federal authorities—a resemblance so close that he might easily be taken for a twin brother of the German head of the Emm and Ese concern. All information concerning Savery is withheld by the Federal authorities. It was not admitted that he was under arrest or surveillance in France.

On March 16 agents of the Department of Justice went to a house in Remsen Street, Brooklyn, and arrested Mayer. At the same time agents of the Government entered the various stores near the cantonments and seized all the data found, including information relating to military transportation in the United States, facts concerning the camps, the number of men in them, and the nature of their equipment.

"What explanation did Mayer give for having this material in his possession?" a high Federal official was asked last night.

"He cannot offer a satisfactory explanation," was the answer.

"Did he have a way to communicate with Germany?" was asked.

"He probably had such opportunities," was the reply.

An investigation of certain men in the employ of Mayor & Savery is now being made. One of these, named Kleins, was arrested with Meyer, but subsequently was released for lack of evidence, it was said.

Arrest Brooklyn German.

Late yesterday afternoon the Brooklyn police turned over to Chief De Woody of the Department of Justice Bureau of Investigation Georg Rudolph Benno Franck, who gave his address as 501 Second Street, Brooklyn. Franck is said to be the head of a slot machine manufacturing company in addition to being a partner in a commission house.

Franck entered a cigar store at 281 Fifth Avenue, Brooklyn, and asked for a cigar. The cigar had gone up a cent, and when so informed he blurted out this protest: "That's an outrage. The only way we will ever get rid of these high prices will be when the Kaiser gets over here," adding that he was coming and would "rule this country as it should be."

A policeman happened to enter the store, and, hearing part of the boast, took Franck to the station. There the German was questioned at length and then turned over to the Alien Enemy Bureau.

When questioned by Captain Roger Hull, U. S. A., in the Federal Building, Franck admitted that he was a German subject and that he was born in Konigsberg, Prussia. He was locked up in the Tombs pending further investigation.

BARRAGE TEST FOR SEVENTH

Col. Fisk Will Lead His Men in Attack on "Enemy" Sector.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP WADSWORTH, SPARTANBURG, S. C., April 12.—The 107th Infantry, including the old Seventh, will go under a real barrage tomorrow morning. Way up in the Blue Ridge, where the only spectators will be the umpires, and the everpresent buzzards, wheeling high overhead, the infantrymen will leap from their trenches at 10:15, and sixty-five yards back of a curtain of three-inch shells run an "enemy" sector.

Major Gen. O'Ryan, Major Daly and several other staff officers will be on hand to watch the work. The 107th will go into action with Colonel Fisk at its head for the first time in three months.

German-Alliance Bill in Abeyance.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Dissolution of the National German-American Alliance, decided on yesterday at Philadelphia, if followed by an application for a revocation of its charter, will check legislation seeking to put an end to the organization, Senator King of Utah, author of the bill, said today. If the alliance does not seek to have its charter revoked the bill probably will be pushed, Senator King said.

$451,744,000 NOW SUBSCRIBED TO LOAN

yet reached. Toledo's per capita subscription, counting men, women, and children, was $65. Portland will hold a jubilee celebration tomorrow night over its success in winning first honors.

The Cities Winning First Honors.

As all of these reports from cities claiming the honor flag are verified by the official returns, all of the first honors have been won for cities in the class below 250,000. Forty-five small towns tied for first honors in their classes. For cities under 25,000 the race seems to be between Burlington, Vt., and Joliet, Ill. For cities between 45,000 and 50,000, Sioux City, Iowa, got first honors. For cities between 50,000 and 100,000, Lynn, Mass., has been declared the winner. Toledo and Portland both claim the honors in the next class. It remains to be seen which of the larger cities will attain first honors for the classes between 250,000 and 500,000 and above 500,000.

Youngstown, Ohio, reported that Austrian employes of steel and iron works were buying heavily, saying, "We can't fight the Kaiser, so we buy bonds."

Columbus, Ohio, reported a total of $1,000,000, and that city expects to complete its quota this week.

Kansas City reported that the drive in that section had not actually begun in many communities, the battle for subscriptions in the rural districts beginning with a series of Thursday night meetings in rural schoolhouses. The loyalty displayed in that district is more marked than ever before, and County and State Chairmen are very optimistic, it is said.

The Fifteenth Ward of the City of Reading, Penn., to which $280,876 had been allotted, officially reports having received subscriptions of $315,750. The population of the ward is 9,100, and the number of subscribers was 931. The honor flag has been awarded to this community.

Scattering reports today on the total number of cities which have won honor flags in the different districts show the following results: San Francisco District, 112, including 95 towns and 17 counties, divided as follows: California, 35; Washington, 10; Utah, 14; Oregon, 47; Nevada, 5, and Alaska, 1. Boston District, 79; Chicago District, 114, and Cleveland District, 97.

Liberty Loan rallies were held by farmers and their wives tonight in more than 100,000 schoolhouses throughout the United States. Arrangements for the meetings began more than six weeks ago by approximately 225,000 rural school directors in response to an invitation from Secretary McAdoo. The purpose of the meetings was to explain the details of the Liberty bond and carry home to rural residents its real meaning. Patriotic songs were sung and addresses were made.

In many communities the meetings took the form of patriotic demonstrations for the men from different communities who have enlisted in the military service. One community out in the Far West distributed posters carrying the names of home boys who now are soldiers and the pertinent question, "What are you going to do to bring these boys back?"

Message from McAdoo.

The following message from Secretary McAdoo was read in all of the meetings:

"It is a matter of supreme national importance that the Treasury of the United States shall be supplied at all times with the amount of money needed to furnish the food, the clothing, the guns, the ammunition required by our soldiers to fight successfully for the safety and liberty of America, to pay the allowances made by the Government to the dependent wives and children of these soldiers, and to pay the life insurance which the Government permits every soldier to buy from it. The Treasury must also have the necessary money to extend credit to the valiant Britons, Belgians, French, and Italians who are fighting alongside American soldiers on the bloody battlefields of France, Belgium, and Italy. If the American people fail to lend their money to their Government for these noble purposes, how can we gain a victory in this glorious cause? Every one can help by lending his money to the Government. They do not make a gift of their money, they merely lend it on impregnable security and are paid interest on the loan at the same time.

"The farmers of the nation can render genuinely patriotic service by lending all the money they can to their Government and encouraging everybody else to do the same. It makes no difference how small the loan, it will be helpful. Those who can buy only thrift stamps should buy thrift stamps. Those who can only buy War Savings Stamps should buy War Savings Stamps. Those who can buy Liberty bonds should buy Liberty bonds. Always they should buy as many stamps and as many bonds as they can instead of as few. The Government has now put these loans in such convenient form that there is no citizen in the land who cannot help to some extent if he is patriotic enough to do so.

"I rely upon the farmers, than whom there are no more vitally interested in protecting America's future and the liberties of the world, to do their utmost to help in this great Liberty Loan work. The farmers are already performing patriotic service of the highest value in raising the foodstuffs needed by our own military forces and citizens at home and by the soldiers and civilian populations of the great nations associated with us, but they have a further duty to perform. They should invest all of their available money in the obligations of their Government. In doing so they will not only benefit themselves, by saving this money, but will be helping to defend their liberties, their rights, and their farms against the threatened aggression of the most powerful autocratic and military Government ever created.

"The farmers of the nation traditionally are freedom-loving people. One hundred and forty-three years ago on the 19th of this month the farmers at Lexington and Concord fired the first shot for liberty, and it was heard around the world. I know that the American farmers of today are just as liberty loving as their heroic ancestors. I know that they will join with other Americans of every business and profession in providing the money which will enable their Government to fight to a victorious conclusion this great war for liberty, justice, and America's sacred rights.

Railroad employes of the country are responding generously to the call for subscriptions. One of the most striking reports of their endeavors came from R. H. Aishton, Regional Director in Chicago, who said that the employes on twenty lines in the Middle West had subscribed $2,704,350."

Cleveland Germans Big Subscribers.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 12.—Third Liberty Loan subscriptions in Cleveland totaled $16,895,350 up to last night. It was officially announced today. Cleveland Germans are leading all foreign nationalities in the number of individual subscribers and the amount of subscriptions in the bond-selling race being conducted by the various nationality divisions.

DETROIT, April 12.—Oversubscription of the Third Liberty Loan was reported for Detroit today when official figures announced shortly after noon showed a total of $38,577,650 for four days' actual campaigning. Detroit's quota is $36,846,900.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 12.—A $3,000,000 Liberty Loan subscription by the United States Rubber Company, $500,000 of which was taken by employes, was announced today. Colonel Samuel P. Colt, President of the company, said the subscription would be credited to various subsidiaries.

TRIED TO PENETRATE PERSHING THIRD LINE

800 Shock Troops Rehearsed Wednesday's Raid for Two or Three Weeks.

BALKED BY WITHERING FIRE

Only Two of Enemy Reached First Line, and Both of Them Were Taken Prisoner.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, April 12, (Associated Press.) In the raid carried out by the Germans on Wednesday against the Americans northwest of Toul, the enemy intended to penetrate to the third line positions, according to information obtained from a prisoner. This is corroborated by material found on dead Germans. The enemy carried wire, dynamite, intrenching tools, and other implements for organizing the positions.

The Americans knew in advance of the proposed attack through information obtained a day or two previously from prisoners captured by the French on an adjacent sector.

The attack was made by a special battalion of 800 shock troops, who had rehearsed the operation for two or three weeks behind the lines. As soon as the German barrage began, the American batteries, without waiting for a rocket signal, laid down a counterbarrage, with the result that fewer than 200 of the enemy succeeded in climbing out of their trenches and advancing toward the American line.

The German officers sent the men right through the barrage, but only two succeeded in reaching the front line. Both of these were taken prisoners, one of them dying a short time afterward from wounds.

When the German barrage started, the American outposts moved in to the first line, where with other infantrymen and machine gunners they waited for the advancing enemy. The Americans poured a deadly fire into the raiders, then climbed out of the trenches and engaged with grenades and in hand-to-hand fighting the few Germans who were able to cross No Man's Land. The American infantrymen drove the enemy back to his own lines, and, protected by machine gun and automatic fire, dragged the German dead back to the American trenches for identification.

The German losses were extremely heavy, as No Man's Land was strewn with dead, and numbers of the enemy were killed by the artillery without being able to leave the German trenches.

The French officers commanding units in a neighboring sector complimented the American officers on the courage and gallantry displayed in the operation and the splendid work of the artillery. Some of the battery men worked in gas masks for several hours.

AMERICANS STILL WAITING.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 12.—The Morning Post's correspondent on the French front, telegraphing yesterday, says:

"No information is yet available as to the probable date when American troops will take an active part in the fighting, but the good impression created by them among those who have seen them in training and in the trenches is becoming general among the French troops.

"French officers are enthusiastic in praising the anxiety shown by Americans of all ranks to take every possible chance of improving their military education. Their patrols show conspicious bravery and are keen to attack enemy patrols however superior in number, and the lesson taught them of hatred for the enemy appears to have been thoroughly learned.

"I was told yesterday of the occasion recently when French troops attacked in a sector near part of the line occupied by the Americans, and when American officers asked leave to join in the attack as privates, with a view to extending their experience."

PERSHING SENDS MEN TO WAR DEPARTMENT

Expert Advisers from France to Facilitate Work—Goethals to Control Purchases.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Further plans for the improvement of the machinery of the War Department, so as to enable it to deal more effectively with the war emergencies confronting it, are being developed, and some of these were disclosed late this afternoon by Major Gen. March, Acting Chief of Staff.

General March stated that General Pershing was sending home to Washington certain officers who are familiar with staff work at the front for staff duty here, and that he also was sending back to this country some practical aviation experts whose presence in the War Department, it is hoped, will bring about improvement in the military aircraft situation. Other officers being sent here by General Pershing are connected with the important work of the Quartermaster Corps, and still others have had practical experience in other forms of military activity under modern war conditions in France.

The object of these changes is more effectively to co-ordinate the work of the War Department with the work and needs of the American forces in France.

General March has issued an order consolidating the Division of Storage and Traffic with the Division of Purchases and Supplies, the one division to be known as the Division of Purchase, Storage and Traffic. This division will be under Major Gen. Goethals, who will serve as Assistant Chief of Staff and retain his post as Acting Quartermaster General. Brig. Gen. Palmer E. Pierce, who has been a member of the War Industries Board and of the War Council recently created by Secretary Baker, was made Director of Purchases in January.

It was announced today that General Pierce would continue on duty with the War Industries Board, and that he would give up his post as Director of Purchases and Supplies. His successor, who will be under Major Gen. Goethals, will be Colonel Hugh S. Johnston, who has been General Crowder's right-hand man in the office of the Provost Marshal General. Edward R. Stettinius was the Surveyor General of Supplies, but he has been appointed and qualified as a new Assistant Secretary of War, and his office of Surveyor General of Supplies has been abolished in the new consolidation plan.

Only 51 Names on Pershing's Casualty List; Six Officers Wounded or Missing in Action

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The casualty list cabled by General Pershing to the War Department today was somewhat smaller than those received in the last week, and contained the names of only fifty-one officers and men, which was relatively small. It brought to 3,362 the total casualties to date, including those lost on the Tuscania.

Today's list contained the names of six commissioned officers. They were Captain Marvin Cappel, Captain Woodrow Woodbridge, and Lieutenant William J. Miehe, all of whom were wounded slightly, and three Lieutenants—Robert H. Jeffery, Samuel Miller, and Abraham Strauss—missing in action. This makes a total of two Captains and five Lieutenants missing in action reported in three days. In today's list were the names of 5 killed in action, 3 died of wounds, 6 died of disease, 2 died of accident, 4 severely wounded, 28 wounded slightly, and 3 missing in action.

The War Department does not announce the addresses of officers and soldiers appearing in its casualty lists. But to relieve apprehension of relatives and friends of soldiers named, it is explained at the War Department that telegraphic notice is immediately sent to the next of kin, and if persons most directly concerned regarding soldiers of like names fail to receive such notice it is "final evidence that they are not the soldiers whose names appear in the casualty lists."

RAINBOW MEN STILL IN ACTION IN FRANCE

Brooklyn Private Is Among the Wounded—Other New Yorkers on Casualty List.

The casualty list made public last night by the War Department shows that units of the Rainbow Division are still in action in France. The 165th Infantry, formerly the 69th Regiment of this city, is still on the firing line. This is indicated by the fact that Private Alfred Schneider of Company M is among those reported wounded in the list published this morning. Schneider's home is at 2,816 Fort Hamilton Parkway, Brooklyn.

The Wisconsin machine gunners, who suffered such severe losses a few days ago when fifty-six of sixty-eight severely wounded were identified as members of that command, has one man among the four reported as severely wounded in General Pershing's latest list. He is Sergeant Leo F. Mouquin o fthe 2d Company of the 150th Machine Gun Battalion.

Captain Woodrow Woodbridge, reported wounded, is from Denver, Col., and is said to be a cousin of President Wilson. His name does not appear in the Rainbow Division directory.

Joseph Brady of Maspeth, L. I., is reported to have been killed in France. He was 22 years old, and was employed at the Brooklyn Navy Yard when he enlisted in the army, shortly after the declaration of war.

Word has been received at Corona, L. I., that J. J. Haughton, Jr., of that place, who is in the 11th United States Engineers, has been wounded in action. This is one of the regular army units, and it is probable that Haughton was wounded in the battle of Picardy, although there is nothing to indicate this in the formation received at Corona. Haughton was employed by the New York Edison Company when he enlisted for service, nearly a year ago.

Robert Emmet Mitchell of Hempstead was wounded on Feb. 14, when he was caught in a shrapnel burst. His family have received word that he is rapidly recovering and hopes to be back at the front with his comrades of the 165th Infantry.

Mrs. Henry A. Davis of 384 Seventy-ninth Street, Brooklyn, was notified by the War Department yesterday that her son, Thomas L. Davis of the 165th Infantry, has been seriously wounded in action. Davis enlisted the day Congress declared war on Germany.

Private Charles K. Flood, reported wounded, is also a Long Island boy. His parents live at 61 Hobson Street, Long Island City. The War Department notified them yesterday that their son had been wounded in the first-line trenches.

Frank D. Penfox of 14 Highland Avenue, Yonkers, received word last night that his son, Private Charles Adrian Lex, had been wounded in action. He was a member of Company L, 165th Infantry. He enlisted in the 69th Regiment in 1916 and saw service on the Mexican border.

DUTCH FOOD RIOTERS CHARGED BY TROOPS

AMSTERDAM, April 12.—Military forces called out to protect bakers' shops in Haarlem fired on a crowd which attacked them with stones, killing one woman and wounding several others. The troops also charged with drawn swords on crowds in different parts of the town, and many people were injured.

Food riots have also occurred in Rotterdam, where bread carts were pillaged. Reinforcements were sent to the troops there.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, April 12, (via London.)—The Dutch people are beginning to feel the first real pangs of hunger and are getting rebellious. The Hague this evening was strongly policed, and all bakers, butchers, and grocers have emptied their windows and shut up shop for fear of pillage, as a big public demonstration was called today by circulars distributed throughout the town by a Socialist committee.

The committee demands, among other things, the seizure of all stores and distribution of enormous army stores among the people, a strict export prohibition against all foodstuffs needed for home consumption, publicity and a change of foreign policy. It also urges the people to go on general strike, including those on railways and trams.

A large public meeting was held in Amsterdam yesterday under the auspices of the same committee. One of the first resolutions passed asked that the Government fetch grain from America and that a general strike be called.

Throughout the week riots have occurred in various towns in Holland. The fact that the soldiers' ration of 400 grammes is maintained while the people receive only 200 grammes creates discontent.

Windows of several bread shops were broken this afternoon and all the bread was seized. Many streets are barred by the police. Rioters went through the streets shouting against officials and holding them responsible for the lack of bread, meat, and other foodstuffs.

LACK MATERIALS FOR SHIPS.

Forty-two Yards So Reply to Hurley's Query on Slowness.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Shortage of material is blamed by forty-two shipyards which have made reply to Chairman Hurley's inquiry as to why they did not turn out as many ships in March as were promised. Thirty-eight said they had to wait for material while the four others declared the material needed last came in first.

The shipping board already has taken steps to remedy conditions complained of and has received assurance from the War Industries Board and the Railroad Administration that shipyard supplies will be forthcoming.

ALL BROTHERS BUT GERMANS

J. D. Rockefeller, Jr., Won't Recognize Them Till They're Beaten.

MONTREAL, April 12.—Development of the spirit of brotherhood was the remedy advanced for the industrial, social, and international ills of the world by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., in an address he delivered before the Canadian Club today.

Mr. Rockefeller made it clear, however, that it was impossible to embrace the Central Powers in the brotherhood of nations until after the forces of right had won a conclusive victory over those of might.

He said that modern industrial organization was such as to remove employer and employes so far from each other that the understanding formerly born of intimate intercourse was no longer possible. Therefore it was necessary to devise a new means whereby owner and workmen, who might be separated by long distances, should come into contact. This result, he believed, would be accomplished by the establishment of committees of representatives in equal numbers of masters and men, which should frankly discuss the problems that arose between them and reach an amicable conclusion. He said he had seen such a scheme in successful operation.

The best illustration of the possibility of a brotherhood of nations was afforded by Canada and the United States, Mr. Rockefeller said.

LANSING EXPLAINS DUTCH SHIP ISSUE

POINTS TO GERMAN DURESS

Quotes Netherlands Government's Admission of Inability to Meet Its Agreements.

ACTED ON LEGAL RIGHTS

Prepared to Aid Holland in Obtaining Commodities Needful to Her Welfare.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Secretary Lansing late this afternoon issued a statement today in reply to the statement of the Netherlands Government on March 30 in regard to the taking over of Dutch ships.

A copy of the statement has been sent to the Netherlands Legation, but it has not been communicated to the Holland Government in the form of a note because the Netherlands Government, in setting forth its position, merely issued a statement and sent no formal note of protest to Washington.

After pointing out that the Netherlands Government does not argue the question of the legality of the action taken by the United States, Secretary Lansing, dealing with the declaration by the Netherlands Government that the very presence of these Dutch ships in American ports resulted from our detention of them with an unfriendly hand, points out that the statement of the Netherlands Government explicitly recognizes the traditional friendship between the two countries, and asserts that it should not "hastily be presumed that we have now abruptly repudiated that friendship" or been false to American ideals of right and justice.

"The Netherlands Government have issued a statement relative to the recent action of the Government of the United States in putting into its service for the period of the present war emergency certain privately owned vessels of Netherlands registry lying within the territorial jurisdiction of the United States. While this action is referred to as being indefensible from the standpoint of international law, the statement of the Netherlands Government does not argue the question of legality. Nor is this Government disposed to do so. The practice of nations and the opinions of jurists on the right of a belligerent to utilize all vessels which come voluntarily and unconditionally within its jurisdiction are sufficiently well known to render citation of precedent and of authority unnecessary. But, as the Netherlands Government themselves suggest, our action must be subjected to a finer test than that of mere legality. It matters very little that our act be legal if, as alleged, it violates traditional friendship and is inconsistent with ideals of right and justice.

Sought Special Privileges.

"The Netherlands Government first declare that the very presence of Dutch ships in our ports resulted from our detention of them with an unfriendly hand. While our right to refuse bunkers and cargo license is conceded, friendship, it is said, should have led to the granting of special privileges in favor of the subjects of a friendly State. Our own supply of bunker coal at seaboard has been inadequate for our pressing national needs. The cargoes which were demanded were largely of grain, of which our own reserves are all too low. The bunkers, if granted, would have served to carry this grain to the Netherlands where, as events have demonstrated, it was not then needed, and where it would only have served to release equivalent foodstuffs for the enemy. Such action on our part, whatever its intention, would in fact have been an act beneficial to the enemy and having no relation to our friendship to the Netherlands. The owners of Dutch ships were, however, unwilling that their ships should perform any other services than those which, it was clearly impossible for us to facilitate, and the ships of this maritime nation accordingly lay idle for many months and until the conclusion on January 25, 1918, of the temporary shipping agreement which was proposed by the Netherlands Commissioners at London and accepted by the United States as a measure to restore to immediate activity that portion of the Netherlands mercantile fleet lying within our waters.

Balked by Germany.

"The statement of the Netherlands Government seems to imply that this agreement was in fact lived up to by the Netherlands Government, yet evidence to the contrary is found in the statement itself which refers to German objections as having prevented performance by that Government of what is erroneously referred to as America's demand, but what was in reality a Netherlands undertaking, that when a Dutch ship left the United States for the Netherlands a corresponding Dutch vessel should simultaneously leave the Netherlands for the United States. Had not the Netherlands Government, under German threats of violence, which were a matter of common knowledge, felt unable to carry out the temporary shipping agreement, it is inexplicable that the S. S. Samarinda and Adonis would not have sailed for a Dutch port with their cargoes of foodstuffs, which under the agreement the Netherlands was to receive, and of which it was asserted her people were in direst need. Indeed, the statement of the Netherlands Minister for Foreign Affairs made to Parliament on March 12, 1918, if it is correctly reported to us, sets out in considerable detail Germany's objections, which prevented performance of this shipping agreement. As recently as March 14, 1918, after the Netherlands Government had been informed that the situation had reached a point where the associated Governments could see no alternative but requisitioning, a note was presented on behalf of the Netherlands Government, expressing the hope that Germany's objections might still be overcome, so as to permit at some future date complete performance of this agreement, which was to have been put into operation immediately and completely upon its conclusion, nearly two months before.

"One year ago, the United States abandoned its neutrality and pledged its entire resources of life and treasure to insure the triumph of democracy over autocracy and to assist to save the world from the blight of militarism. As a result of a species of naval warfare directed against belligerents and neutrals alike, which the Netherlands Government have themselves declared to be illegal, there has during this period existed a shortage of shipping which threatened to postpone at frightful cost the ultimate victory. This has created an emergency which in magnitude and significance has seldom if ever before been equalled. During this period there have been lying in ports of the United States and subject to its jurisdiction and control approximately 500,000 tons of ships of Netherlands registry.

At any time within a year the United States might have exercised its right to put these ships into a service useful to it. Yet it forebore and for many months patiently negotiated, first in Washington and then in London, until finally the temporary agreement of Jan. 25 was entered into. No sooner was this agreement concluded than it broke down under German threats of violence which overruled the will of the Netherlands Government expressed thereto. Then and then only did the United States take steps to accomplish through the exercise of its own right that which it was hoped could have been accomplished by agreement, and which the Netherlands Government had been willing in part so to accomplish.

Full Return for the Ships.

"The action taken leaves available to the Netherlands Government by far the greater part of their merchant marine and tonnage, which, according to estimates of their own officials, is ample for the domestic and colonial needs of the Netherlands. Shipping required for these needs will be free from detention on our part and will be facilitated by the supplying of bunkers. The balance is being put into a highly lucrative service, the owners receiving the remuneration, and the associated Governments assuming the risks involved. In order to insure to the Netherlands the future enjoyment of her merchant marine intact, not only will ships be returned at the termination of the existing war emergency, but the associated Governments have offered to replace in kind rather than in money any vessels which may be lost whether by war or marine risk; 100,000 tons of bread cereal which the German Government when appealed to refused to supply has been offered to the Netherlands by the associated Governments out of their own inadequate supplies, and arrangements are being perfected to tender to the Netherlands Government other commodities which they desire to promote their national welfare, and for which they may freely send their ships.

"The statement of the Netherlands Government explicitly recognizes the traditional friendship of the United States toward their country. It recognizes that we have heretofore sought to act in accordance with the dictates of right and justice and to champion the interests of smaller nations. It should not therefore hastily be presumed that we have now abruptly repudiated that friendship and been false to those ideals. It is, in fact, difficult to believe that such a conclusion could be drawn from this exercise of our rights in a manner which scrupulously safeguards and indeed promotes the national interests of the Netherlands."

DUTCH SHIP OWNERS WORRY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, April 12.—Dutch ship owners in Rotterdam are complaining because three weeks have elapsed since the seizure of their ships and no details are given by the American and British Governments as to how the value is to be adjusted in case of loss. Promises to return the ships at the end of the war signify good intentions, they say, but the ships might all be sunk.

I learned today unofficially that plans for dealing with the owners of the Dutch ships have been drawn up in Washington and London and are expected to be made known here immediately. The owners will be paid on gross or dead weight tonnage a sum nearly three times the amount the British Government pays for its ships. Insurance will be included, and the only deductions are for the cost of repairs making ready for the first voyage. Owners are to be paid in cash for all losses or have their ships replaced as soon as possible after the war.

America has sixty-nine ships, out of which only thirty over 2,500 tons are to be used in the Atlantic trade. The loss under the convoy system is less than 1 per cent., so that there would be no difficulty in replacing these vessels at the end of the emergency or the war.

The question as to whether the Dutch Government is to send ships to America to fetch 100,000 tons of grain which the associated Governments put at her disposal is still in abeyance. Interpellations are expected in States General this week on this question. Van Hamel's pertinent questions, put to the House on April 2, as to why the Government had not sent for the grain so badly needed by the Dutch people have not been answered. Neither the ship owners nor the people in the best-informed Dutch circles believe that they have received a sufficient guarantee from the associated Governments that the ships would be allowed to return with the grain.

About sixty-five ships are lying idle at Rotterdam and thousands of workers on the piers are idle.

Meantime the food situation is becoming really serious. The half-pound meat ration is to be discontinued soon. Everybody in Holland has to eat sausages. Cats cost seven guilders each.

A party of 45 British officers and 150 men arrived here last night from Germany to join the 5,000 already interned in Holland. They arrived at Aix-le-Chappelle when the offensive started and were sent back to Holzminden for fourteen days, and lived on the German ration of bread, water, potatoes, and soup.

PLAN TO MAKE SAFER ALL OUR CARGO SHIPS

Number of Compartments to be Doubled as Protection Against U-Boats.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Plans to double the number of compartments in all cargo ships of American registry which are now engaged in transatlantic service and in vessels under construction have been approved by Rear Admiral D. W. Taylor, Chief Naval Constructor, and will be put into effect at once by the United States Shipping Board.

Exclusive of neutral tonnage and ships of private registry, the Government now has 322 ships in the overseas service. It is believed that the new plan will reduce by approximately 50 per cent. the danger of these vessels sinking, if struck by a torpedo. It is got probable that the neutral shipping in transatlantic trade under control of this Government will be so equipped, at least until the experiment has been made on the American-owned fleet.

James C. Stewart of New York has been selected by Chairman Hurley of the Shipping Board as head of the division which will have charge of the work.

It is believed that the changes can be made without seriously delaying the ships, and it is estimated that less than 5,000 tons of cargo space will be lost to the entire fleet of 322 vessels.

The ordinary 5,000-ton ship now has four compartments, and the plan is to double the number by the use of steel and wood construction, which can be put in while the vessels are afloat.

Bergee equipped with all machinery and materials will be obtained and trained mechanics will get to work as soon as the ships begin to unload their cargoes. It is believed that the unloading of cargo and the construction work necessary to double the number of compartments can be carried on simultaneously, thus avoiding long delay.

EXPLAINS SWISS ATTITUDE.

Minister Sulzer Tells Why German Safe Conducts Are Sought.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The situation which the Swiss Government feels made it necessary for it to enter into negotiations with the German Government for safe conduct for ships flying the American flag when bound for the French port of Cette, with overseas grain supplies, is dealt with in a statement issued tonight by Hans Sulzer, Minister from Switzerland to the United States.

"As there appear to be many misconceptions of the present grain situation to Switzerland," says Minister Sulzer's statement, "the Legation of Switzerland deems it advisable to publish the following statement:

"The port of Cette has been placed at the disposal of Switzerland by France as a port of entry for her overseas grain supplies. Since the beginning of its submarine activities Germany has left a free zone open to provide safe and unmolested passage for Swiss grain steamers to that port on condition that shipments are made on neutral ships. Until the unfortunate sinking of the Spanish steamer Sardinero there had been an uninterrupted series of 472 safe trips made to Cette since the outbreak of the war. Investigation has shown that the sinking of that vessel was due to an inconceivable misconstruction of orders on the part of the commander of the submarine. Since that accident several Spanish ships have reached Cette without mishap.

"The existing difficulties are attributable to the fact that at the present time there are not enough neutral ships available to carry necessary grains to Switzerland, the urgent need of which is becoming alarmingly acute. It is well known that the proposed American-Dutch agreement provided the placing of a number of Dutch ships at the disposal of Switzerland for this service. The discontinuance of negotiations with Holland, which resulted in the seizure of the Dutch tonnage, has, however, necessitated the transfer of those ships to the American flag.

"This turn in the situation has made it necessary for the Swiss Government to enter into negotiations with the German Government with a view to obtaining safe conduct for ships flying the American flag. These negotiations have lasted longer than anticipated and are still pending. Prospects for a satisfactory settlement, however, are very promising. In the meantime the United States and allied Governments have considerately provided other ways for caring for Switzerland's most urgent needs. The resumption of regular grain shipments to Cette on a larger scale can be expected in the near future, however. The rumor that Germany is threatening Switzerland with the sinking of further grain shipments unless Switzerland consents to send part of such grain to Germany is wholly unfounded."

CUMMINS RESENTS WILSON'S CRITICISM

Says It Is as Disloyal for President to Denounce Senators as for Them to Assail Him.

CALLS FOR UNITY OF ACTION

Attacks Provisions of Overman Bill —Reed to Demand Roll Calls on Five Amendments.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Senator Cummins of Iowa in a speech on the Overman bill today asserted that it was "just as disloyal for the President or any one else connected with the Government to denounce members of Congress for the manner in which they discharge their duties as it was for members of Congress to denounce the President."

The Iowa Senator asserted that unless greater unity of purpose and harmony of action were attained defeat must be the nation's portion in the war. He invited the President to come to an understanding with Congress, so that the two branches of the Government might pull together for victory, instead of at cross purposes.

"A word with regard to my attitude towards the President, for I have already mentioned some phases of that subject, but I recur to it because I do not want it to be misunderstood," said Senator Cummins. "In the literature of the war I concede and gladly concede to the President a commanding place. I think that he has with unusual and extraordinary ability sensed the meaning of the war, the relation of the nations to one another, and has expressed that relation, not always consistently, but always impressively, and I do not want to be the last man in any procession formed for the purpose of carrying a wreath of recognition in that respect to his shrine.

"I concede that he has infinite, consummate ability in commanding, coordinating, consolidating Congress, conventions, and other assemblies of that character. I only wish I could say as much in praise of his ability in coordinating the industries, resources, and strength of the people of this country for war. I know that he wants to do all that a man can do. I know that he has no other thought, or at least that that is his supreme thought, but to successfully conduct the United States through the perils which now confront it and surround it. But it is no disparagement of the President, it is no lack of loyalty to the President, to say that there are very, very few men in any generation that can command a country like ours in all its resources and all its strength so as to carry them forward to the highest point of physical success.

Sees Lack of Co-ordination.

"I do not intend to utter my opinions in detail, but you can gather, I hope, that while his subordinates have performed miracles in their separate and segregated way in the preparation for this war, it has semed to me that the one co-ordinating point, even under the laws we passed, has not been occupied with all the vigor and effectiveness that it should have been.

"I do not believe a President can override a law of Congress and transfer from one bureau to another, or from one department to another, duties which have been reposed in the particular bureau or particular department. But practically speaking, it is in the power of the President to co-ordinate all the energies of the departments presided over by men whom we ordinarily know as Cabinet Ministers. It is practically true that there could have been complete harmony between the Navy Department and the War Department in all their purchases, in all their construction, in everything which they have done in order to prepare for the war. If there had been a guiding hand to bring the heads of the departments together and insure that the final determination of one was the consensus of opinion in all, it could have been done, but it has not been done, and I leave the fault where it belongs. Every Senator can impute it to whatever officer of the Government he thinks ought to bear it.

"That, however, does not mean to me that we should not give the President power to consolidate the bureaus of purchases and of construction in the War and Navy Departments. I am perfectly willing to do it. It would delight me beyond measure to do it. Nothing could be more helpful to this country now than to give the President power to elect in the department either of war or the navy, or both, a body of men whose word would be final, whose action would be harmonious, and which would completely consolidate all the energy that we are making toward the preparation of our army and our navy for the danger and the peril which they must meet.

Intends to Uphold President.

"I intend to support the President of the United States as Commander in Chief in the exercise of his vast power and the hearing of his infinite responsibilities as Commander in Chief. The Constitution gives him the power which he can exercise as Commander in Chief and we can neither dwarf nor can we withdraw from him. It is given to him, and I want to make him just as strong as it is possible for man to be in the exercise of his powers and duties as Commander in Chief, and there is no resource of the United States in men or money which I am not willing to exhaust in order that he may mobilize both for the successful, energetic prosecution of the war.

"No word of disparagement shall ever fall from my lips so far as his duties as Commander in Chief are concerned. I would no more think of criticising him as Commander in Chief than a soldier would think of denouncing his General in the face of the enemy. When, however, he asks for legislative power in civil establishments, when he asks for powers which do not concern him as Commander in Chief, when he asks Congress to do something to exercise some of his war powers, then he must grant to me what I so willingly grant to him, the privilege of freedom and deliberately of exercising judgment according to my own conscience."

It was then that he spoke of the President's having no right to denounce members of Congress.

"We are all a part of the Government," he continued. "We must not fall under any mistake with regard to this. There is no one man in the Government of the United States. If it is disloyal to cripple, to hamper, to disparage, to denounce the Government, then those who impugn the good faith of members of Congress, those who assail the representatives of the people in the discharge of their sworn duty, are just as culpable, just as censurable, as those who would denounce the President of the United States in the discharge of his high office.

"Let us have a fair and reasonable understanding about the Government, so that we can all go forward with one mind, with one purpose, and accomplish the only great thing which the American people have at this time in mind. It ought to occupy, it must occupy, the public attention to the exclusion of every other concern of the citizen, and we will not do it, nor will unity prevail, if we are to hear from day to day these condemnations of those who have public duties to perform, because they will not perform them as commanded by some other officer or function of the Government."

Reed Offers Amendments.

Senator Reed of Missouri, another active opponent of the bill in its present form, introduced five amendments. About them will centre the contest which will decide whether the measure will limit the President's power of reorganization to Government agencies directly connected with the prosecution of the war or will give it full scope in civil as well as military and naval departments.

Senator Reed's first amendment provides that "nothing in this act shall be taken to include the Interstate Commerce Commission." The other four are identical with the first except that they name the Federal Reserve Board, the Tariff Commission, the Federal Trade Commission, and the Civil Service Commission.

Senator Reed will ask for a record roll call on each amendment.

SENATE HONORS JOHNSON.

Californian to be on Military Committee—Two Places for Lenroot.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The Republican Senatorial Steering Committee has informally determined to give Irvine L. Lenroot, Senator-elect from Wisconsin, the Republican vacancy on the Public Lands Committee occasioned by the death of Senator Brady of Idaho. At the same time the committee decided to give Senator Johnson of California the vacancy on the Military Affairs Committee.

There has been great rivalry for this assignment, as the Military Affairs Committee is one of the most important and most influential committees. Selection of Senator Johnson is unusual, new members seldom being selected for such important posts.

The Democratic majority has granted the minority another seat on the Commerce Committee, owing to the decrease in the majority's margin of control. This place also is likely to be given to Mr. Lenroot, who therefore will at once assume an important place in the Senate.

"Come What May They Will Not Break Through"

The present struggle on the Western front is known to the German people as "The Kaiser's Battle," according to the Washington Herald; and for this reason the higher powers realize that "it would hardly do to allow the Kaiser's name to be associated with a colossal military failure—as it would be if the present struggle were allowed to rest where it now stands." And so German legions fight desperately on in the hope of winning a decision. That their hopes are futile is the firm conviction of the Allied armies as evidenced by Premier Clemenceau's assertion that "come what may they will not break through," and the assurance of General Foch that "most glorious hopes are permissible." To these assurances is added the statement of Lloyd George that "the French and British are buoyed with the knowledge that the great Republic of the West will neglect no effort which can hasten its troops and its ships to Europe."

Read in THE LITERARY DIGEST this week—April 13th issue—a sweeping review of the great struggle raging on the Western front, showing it from every angle.

LEND HIM A HAND

Five Hundred Thousand American Soldiers in France

WE dare not delay the VICTORY now. American lives are at stake, our own safety, the safety of the whole world. If we are not to prolong the slaughter and the suffering, if we are not to risk defeat, or an inconclusive peace, we must act quickly; we must put forth our every effort now.

The army is doing its part. Five hundred thousand American soldiers are in France to-day. There will be more to-morrow. And more the day after. We are going to send an army large enough so that when we strike, with our Allies, we can drive the German hordes back across the Rhine—so that we can win the decisive VICTORY that will make American freedom safe, and establish a just and lasting peace.

But the whole nation must take part. Our armies in France are looking to us to furnish them, in ever greater abundance, the ordnance, the munitions, the supplies that will make their VICTORY possible. We must not fail them.

LEND HIM A HAND!

The Third Liberty Loan is our share in the winning of this war. Upon it depends the safety and success of five hundred thousand American soldiers in France.

Irish Convention Announces Plan of Home Rule for Ireland

to enlist himself as a private and to fight. "A man cannot offer more than his life" were the closing words of his eloquent and moving speech.

As Asquith's speech indicated, he will not head a vote against the Government's proposals, because the Government is the government of the country, and the time is too serious for political upheaval.

Mr. Asquith, in grave and measured words, repeated his appeal to the Government to withdraw the clause of the Military Service bill applying conscription to Ireland until Home Rule was the law of the land. Arthur Henderson had spoken before him with almost equal emphasis.

The Liberals generally view the situation with misgiving deeper than is reflected in the published press comment, although that has been in some cases very plain-spoken. American press comment printed here has been all in favor of the Government's proposals.

Action Against Delay.

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, April 12.—When the House of Commons, in committee of the whole, this afternoon, reached the clause in the Man-Power bill extending conscription to Ireland, James C. R. Lardner, Nationalist member for North Monaghan, moved that the bill should not be enforced with regard to Ireland, until the passage of a resolution by an Irish Parliament approving it.

"Today," he said, "County Clare is an armed camp, and what Clare is today the rest of Ireland would be tomorrow if the Government went on with this proposal."

Mr. Lardner's motion was rejected 280 to 108.

Arthur Henderson, leader of the Labor Party, warned the Government that it was displaying more reckless ocurage than wisdom in staking its existence on the clause applying conscription to Ireland. Unless the Government was prepared to modify its proposal, he said, it was creating a situation which contained all the elements of the greatest disaster which had befallen the country in the last four years.

The Government's present proposals, Mr. Henderson asserted, would place Sinn Feinism in the ascendency in Ireland, as they had placed Bolshevism in the ascendency in Russia. The minimum the Government could do, he contended, was to say frankly that it would not make the clause operative until home rule absolutely was the law in Ireland.

Asquith Deprecates Program.

Ex-Premier Asquith suggested that inasmuch as it would take some weeks after the bill was passed to undertake the preliminary work connected with conscription in Ireland, the interval should be occupied in passing through both houses a bill based on the report of the Irish Convention. By that course the prolongation of the unhappy controversy would be prevented.

Mr. Asquith again appealed to the Government to omit the clause on conscription. If these were normal times, he said, he would not hesitate to take appropriate Parliamentary action to give effect to his opposition to the clause, but it would be criminal to blind one's eyes to the extent of the peril at this moment.

"I could not be a party to any proceeding in the House," he added, "legitimate in normal conditions, which, if it succeeded, must have the effect of prevention on those who for the time being are responsible to the nation and to the Allies for extricating the greatest of causes from the greatest of perils.

"When every moment of their time, every faculty of their mind, and every fibre of their being needs to be devoted to saving from disaster the Allies' cause, I cannot take that responsibility."

Duke Hopes to Satisfy Irish.

Henry Edward Duke, member from Exeter and Chief Secretary for Ireland, described it as one of the bitterest of ironies that the Government was forced to make this conscription proposal at the moment the Irish Convention reported and there was a situation of unprecedented promise for Ireland's future. He said it was not merely that the convention had arrived at conclusions, but that the main characteristic of the incident was agreement and not disagreement.

"There was a provisional agreement," he said, "concerning the constitution of a Parliament for Ireland with fairness for all classes. Never before has there been such a promising situation for the introduction of self-government in Ireland. Then came this tremendous responsibility on the Government in connection with the war. They have taken the decision, not light-heartedly nor in any spirit of antagonism to Ireland, but because it was their inexorable duty to decide that Ireland should contribute her share to the fighting force.

"A Government's first duty is the defense of the State. Ireland is an integral part of the United Kingdom and the Government is the only authority which can decide what Ireland must do.

"At the same time it would be the worst disservice to the State to call into the ranks men suffering under a historic sense of grievance. The Government wished to remove this sense of grievance and sought to help the House and the country in believing there would be an overwhelming force of opinion in favor of self-government. Nothing could please them better than that a Parliament should be erected in Dublin before any Irishmen went to the colors."

Mr. Duke said that he was not without hope that when the men of Ireland saw that the Government was resolved to settle the Irish question, and that it opened to them a way honorable as citizens to take their part in the defense of the empire, they would again rally to the sacred cause as in 1914.

CONVENTION REPORTS FRAME OF HOME RULE

Plunkett Sees Basis for Action, But Announces Split on Ulster and Customs.

LONDON, April 12.—The Irish Convention failed to agree upon a scheme of self-government for Ireland, but laid a foundation for an agreement, "unprecedented in history," Sir Horace Plunkett, Chairman of the convention, says in a letter to the Prime Minister, transmitting his report of the proceedings of that body. "A larger measure of agreement has been reached upon the principle and details of Irish self-government," he asserts, "than has ever yet been attained."

It was not found possible, Sir Horace explains, to overcome the objections of the Ulsterites. The majority of the Nationalists, all the Southern Unionists, and five out of seven labor representatives agreed that the schems set out in the report should be immediately enacted into law.

The difficulties of the convention, says the Chairman, may be summed up in two words, "Ulster" and "customs," the latter referring to the demand of the Nationalists for unrestricted fiscal powers. To this demand the Southern Unionists as well as the Ulster Unionists would not agree, but the Southern Unionists and the Nationalists were willing in order that an Irish Parliament might be established to postpone legislative decision on the question.

The plan calls for an Irish Parliament modeled after that of the empire, the authority of which would not be diminished. An executive responsible to it with full powers over internal legislation, administration, and direct taxation is also provided.

To meet objections from Unionists it was agreed that a 40 per cent. representation in the proposed Parliament should be guaranteed to them by the dominant Nationalists. Provision was also made for extra representation from Ulster.

Minority reports were submitted by the Ulster Unionists and the minority faction of the Nationalists.

Text of Plunkett Report.

"I have tho honor to transmit herewith a report of the proceedings of tha Irish Convention. For the immediate object of the Government the report tells all that need be told. It shows that in the Convention, while it was not found possible to overcome the objections of the Ulster Unionists, tha majority of the Nationalists, all tha Southern Unionists and five out of seven Labor Representatives were agreed that the schemes for Irish self-government set out in Paragraph 42 of the report should be immediately passed into law.

"The minority of Nationalists propose a scheme which differs in only one important particular from that of the majority.

"The convention has, therefore, laid a foundation of an Irish agreement unprecedented in history. I recognize that action in Parliament upon the result of our deliberations must largely depend upon public opinion. Without knowledge of the circumstances which at the termination of our proceedings compelled us to adopt an unusual method of presenting tha results of our deliberations, the public might be misled as to what has actually been achieved. It is therefore necessary to explain our procedure.

"We had every reason to believe that the Government contemplated immediate legislation upon the results of our labors. The work of an Irish settlement, which was suspended at the outbreak of the war, is now felt to admit of no further postponement. In the dominions and the United States, as well as in the other allied countries, the unsettled Irish question is a disturbing factor, both in regard to war effort and peace almn.

"Nevertheless, urgent as our task was, we could not complete it until every possibility of agreement had been explored. The moment this point was reached—and you will not be surprised that it took us eight months to reach it—we decided to issue our report with the least possible delay. To do this we had to avoid further controversy and protracted debate.

"I was, therefore, on March 22, instructed to draft a report which should be a mere narrative of the convention's proceedings, with a statement for the information of the Government of the conclusions adopted whether unanimously or by majorities. It was hoped that this report might be unanimously signed, and it was understood that any groups or individuals would be free to append to it such statements as they deemed necessary to give expression to their views.

"The draft report was circulated on March 30, discussed and amended on April 4 and 5. The accuracy of the narrative was not challenged, though there was considerable difference of opinion as to the relative prominence which should be given to some parts of the proceedings. As time pressed, it was decided not to have any discussion upon the majority report, nor upon any minority reports or other statements which might be submitted. The draft report was adopted by a majority, and the Chairman and Secretary were ordered to sign it and forward it to the Government.

"The limit of twenty-four hours was by agreement put upon the reception of any other reports or statements, and to the afternoon of April 5 the convention adjourned sine die.

Two Minority Reports.

"The public is thus provided with no majority report in the sense of a reasoned statement in favor of the conclusions upon which the majority agreed, but it is left to gather from the narrative of the proceedings what the contents of such a report would have been. On the other hand, both the Ulster Unionists and the minority of the Nationalists have presented minority reports covering the whole field of the convention's inquiry.

"The result of this procedure is to minimize the agreement reached and emphasize disagreement. In these circumstances I conceive it my duty as Chairman to submit such explanatory observations as are required to enable the reader of the report and accompanying documents to gain a clear idea of the real effect and significance of the convention's achievement.

"I may assume a knowledge of the broad facts of the Irish question. It will be agreed that in recent years the greatest obstacle to its settlement has been the Ulster difficulty. There seemed to be two possible issues to our deliberations. If a scheme of Irish self-government could be framed to which Ulster Unionists would give their adherence, then the convention might produce a unanimous report. Failing such a consummation, we might secure an agreement, either complete or substantial, between Nationalist, Southern Unionist, and Labor representatives. Many entertained the hope that the effect of such striking and wholly new development would be to induce Ulster to reconsider its position.

"Perhaps unanimity was too much to expect. But this as it may, neither time nor effort was spared in striving for that goal, and there were moments when its attainment seemed possible.

"There was, however, a portion of Ulster where a majority claimed that if Ireland had the right to separate herself from the rest of the United Kingdom, they had the same right to a separation from the rest of Ireland. But the time had gone by when any other section of the Irish people would accept partition of their country even as a temporary expedient. Hence the Ulster Unionist members in the convention remained there only in the hope that some form of home rule would be proposed which might modify the determination of those they represented to have neither part nor lot in an Irish Parliament.

Wanted Ulster Excluded.

"The Nationalists strove to win them by concessions, but they found themselves unable to accept any of the schemes discussed, and the only scheme of Irish Government they presented to the convention was confined to the exclusion of their entire province.

"Long before the hope of complete unanimity had passed the majority of the convention were considering the possibilities of an agreement between Nationalists and Southern Unionists. Lord Middleton was the first to make a concrete proposal to this end.

"The report shows that in November he outlined to the Grand Committee and in December brought before the convention what looked like a workable compromise. It accepted self-government for Ireland. In return for special minority representation in the Irish Parliament, already conceded by the Irish Nationalists, it offered to that Parliament complete power over internal legislation and administration, and in matters of finance over direct taxation and excise.

"But although they agreed that customs revenue should be paid into the Irish Exchequer, the Southern Unionists insisted upon a permanent reservation to the Imperial Parliament of power to fix rates of customs duties. By far the greater part of our time and attention was occupied by this one question: Whether imposition of customs duties should or should not be under control of the Irish Parliament.

Two Great Obstacles.

"The difficulties of the Irish Convention may be summed up in two words, 'Ulster' and 'Customs.' The Ulster difficulty the whole world knows, but how the customs question came to be one of vital principle upon the decision whereof depended the amount of agreement that could be reached in convention needs to be told. The tendency of recent political thought among Constitutional Nationalists has been toward a form of Government resembling as closely as possible that of the Dominions, and, since the geographical position of Ireland imposes obvious restrictions in respect of naval and military affairs, the claim for dominion home rule was concentrated upon a demand for unrestricted fiscal powers.

"Without separate customs and excise Ireland would, according to this view, fail to attain national status like that enjoyed by the Dominions. Upon this issue the Nationalists made a strong case and were able to prove that a considerable number of leading commercial men had come to favor fiscal autonomy as part of an Irish settlement.

"In the present state of public opinion in Ireland it was feared that, without customs, no scheme the convention recommended would receive a sufficient measure of popular support to secure legislation. To obviate any serious disturbance of the trade of the United Kingdom they were prepared to agree to a free trade arrangement between the two countries.

"But this did not overcome the difficulties of the southern Unionists, who on this point agreed with the Ulster Unionists. They were apprehensive that a separate system of customs control, however guarded, might impair the authority of the United Kingdom over its external trade policy. Neither could they consent to any settlement which was, in their judgment, incompatible with Ireland's full participation in a scheme of the United Kingdom's Federation, should that come to pass.

Plan to Delay Customs Change.

"It was clear that, by means of mutual concessions, an agreement between Nationalists and Southern Unionists could be reached on all the other points. On this important point, however, a section of the Nationalists, who have empodied their views in a separate report, held that no compromise was possible.

"On the other hand, the majority of the Nationalists and the whole body of Southern Unionists felt that nothing effective could result from their work in the convention unless some understanding was reached upon the customs which would render agreement on the complete scheme attainable. Neither side was willing to surrender principle, but both sides were willing, in order that a Parliament should be at once established, to postpone legislative decision upon the ultimate control of customs and excise. At the same time each party has put on record in separate notes, subjoined to the report, its claim respecting the final settlement of this question.

"Decision having been reached upon the cardinal issue, the majority of the convention carried the series of resolutions which together form a complete scheme of self-government.

"This scheme provides for the establishment of a parliament for the whole of Ireland, with an executive responsible to it and with full powers over all internal legislation, administration, and direct taxation. Pending decision of the fiscal question, it is provided that imposition of duties of customs and excise shall remain with the Imperial Parliament, but that the whole of the proceeds of these taxes shall be paid into the Irish Exchequer. A joint exchequer board is to be set up to determine Ireland's true revenue, and Ireland is to be represented upon the Board of Customs and Excise of the United Kingdom.

"The principle of representation in the Imperial Parliament was insisted upon from the first day by the Southern Unionists, and the Nationalists conceded it. It was felt, however, that there were strong reasons for providing that Irish representatives at Westminster should be elected by the Irish Parliament, rather than directly by constituencies, and this was the arrangement adopted.

"It was accepted in principle that there should be an Irish contribution to the cost of imperial services, but, owing to lack of data, it was not found possible in the convention to fix any definite sum.

"It was agreed that the Irish Parliament should consist of two houses, a Senate of sixty-four members, and a House of Commons of 200. The principle underlying the composition of the Senate is representation of interests. This is effected by giving representation to commerce, industry, and labor, County Councils, churches, learned institutions, and the peerage.

Differed on Parliament's Makeup.

"In constituting the House of Commons, the Nationalists offered to guarantee 40 per cent. of its membership to the Unionists. It was agreed that in the South ndequate representation for the Unionists could only be secured by nomination, but as the Ulster representatives had informed the convention that those for whom they spoke could not accept the principle of nomination, provision was made in the scheme for extra representation of Ulster by direct election.

"The majority of the Labor representatives associated themselves with the Nationalists and Southern Unionists in building up a constitution with provisions of which they found themselves in general agreement. They frankly objected, however, to the principle of nomination and to what they regarded as inadequate representation of Labor in the upper house.

"Throughout our proceedings they helped in every way toward the attainment of an agreement. Nor did they press their own special claims in such a manner as to make more difficult the work, already difficult enough, of agreeing upon a constitution.

"I trust I have said enough to enable the reader of this report and accompanying documents to form an accurate judgment upon the nature of the difficulties of the task before the convention and upon its actual achievement. While technically it was our function to draft a constitution for our country, it would be more correct to say we had to find a way out of the most complex, anomalous political situation to be found in history—I might almost say in fiction.

"We are living under a system of government which survives only because the act abolishing it cannot, consistently with Ministerial pledges, be put into operation without further legislation no less difficult and controversial than that which it has to mend.

Responsibility on the Cabinet.

"While the responsibility for solution of our problem rests primarily with the Government, the convention found itself in full accord with your insistence that the most hopeful path to settlement was to be found in an Irish agreement. In seeking this and in attempting to find a compromise which Ireland might accept and Parliament pass into law it has been recognized that the full program of no party could be adopted. The convention was also bound to give due weight to your opinion that to press for a settlement at Westminster during the war of questions which, as I have shown, had been a formidable obstacle to agreement would be to imperil the prospects of early establishment of self-government of Ireland.

"Notwithstanding the difficulties wherewith we were surrounded, a larger measure of agreement has been reached upon the principle and details of Irish self-government than has ever yet been attained. Is it too much to hope that the scheme embodying the agreement will forthwith be brought to fruition by those to whose call the Irish Convention has now responded?"

Program Favored by Majority.

The scheme mentioned by Sir Horace Plunkett as meeting the approval of a majority of the delegates is set forth in Paragraph 42 of the report, under the title: "Statement of Conclusions," summed up as follows:

"Section 1. The Irish Parliament to consist of the King, Senate and House of Commons. Notwithstanding the establishment of an Irish Parliament, the supreme power and authority of the Parliament of the United Kingdom shall remain unaffected and undiminished over all persons, matters and things in Ireland and every part thereof. (Section carried by 51 to 18.)

"Section 2. The Irish Parliament to have general powers to make laws for the peace, order, and the good government of Ireland. (Section carried 51 to 19.)

"Section 3. The Irish Parliament to have no power to make laws on the following: Crown and succession, the making of peace and war, army and navy, treaties and foreign relations, dignities and titles of honor, necessary control of harbors for naval and military purposes, coinage, weights and measures, copyrights and patents. The Imperial and Irish Governments shall jointly arrange, subject to imperial exigencies, for the unified control of the Irish police and postal services during the war, provided that as soon as possible after the cessation of hostilities the administration of these two services shall become subject to the Irish Parliament. (Section carried 49 to 16.)

Safeguards on Religion.

"Section 4. Restriction of the power of the Irish Parliament; prohibition of laws interfering with religious equality; a special provision protecting the position of Free Masons; a safeguard for Trinity College and Queens University; money bills to be founded only on a viceregal message; privileges and qualifications of the members of the Irish Parliament to be limited as in the act of 1914; rights of existing Irish officers to be safeguarded. (Section carried 46 to 15.)

"Section 5. Constitutional amendments as in the act of 1914. (Section carried 46 to 15.)

"Section 6. The executive power in Ireland to continue to be vested in the King, exercisable through the Lord Lieutenant on the advice of an Irish Executive Committee, as in the act of 1914. (Carried, 45 to 15.)

"Section 7. Dissolution of the Irish Parliament, as in the act of 1914. (Carried, 45 to 15.)

"Section 8. Royal assent to bills, as in the act of 1914. (Carried, 45 to 15.)

"Section 9. Constitution of the Senate as follows: One Lord Chancellor, four Bishops of the Roman Catholic Church, two Bishops of the Church of Ireland, one representative of the General Assembly, three Lord Mayors, of Dublin, Belfast, and Cork; fifteen peers resident in Ireland, elected by peers resident in Ireland; eleven persons nominated by the Lord Lieutenant, fifteen representatives of commerce and industry, four representatives of labor, one for each province; eight representatives of County Councils, two for each province. Total, 64. (Carried, 48 to 19.)

"Section 10. Constitution of the House of Commons. The ordinary elected members shall number 160. The University of Dublin, the University of Belfast, and the National University shall each have two members, elected by graduates. Special representation shall be given to urban and industrial areas by grouping the smaller towns and applying to them a lower electoral quota than the rest of the country. The principle of proportional representation shall be observed wherever a constituency returns two or three members. "Forty per cent. of the membership in the House of Commons shall be guaranteed to the Unionists, and, in pursuance of this, twenty members shall be nominated by the Lord Lieutenant, with a view to due representation of interests not otherwise adequately represented in the provinces of Leinster, Munster and Connaught, and twenty additional members shall be elected by Ulster to represent commercial, industrial and agricultural interests; the nominated members to disappear in whole or in part after fifteen years. Extra Ulster representation is not to cease except on the decision of a three-fourths majority of both houses sitting together. The House of Commons shall continue for five years unless previously dissolved. (Carried, 45 to 20.)

"Section 11. Money bills to originate only in the House of Commons, and not amendable by the Senate. (Carried 45 to 22.)

"Section 12. Disagreement between the houses to be solved by a joint sitting. (Carried 45 to 22.)

"Section 13. Representation in the British Parliament to continue, Irish representatives to have the right to deliberate and vote on all matters. Forty-two Irish representatives shall be elected to the British House of Commons. Irish representation in the British House of Lords to continue as at present until that chamber is remodsied; when that matter shall be reconsidered. (Carried 44 to 22.)

Separate Irish Exchequer.

"Section 14. Finance—Irish exchequer and consolidated fund to be established; an Irish Controller and Auditor General to be appointed as in the act of 1914. If necessary, it should be declared that all taxes at present leviable in Ireland should continue to be levied and collected until the Irish Parliament otherwise decides. Necessary adjustments of revenue between Ireland and Great Britain during the transition should be made. (Carried 51 to 18.)

"Section 15.—Control of customs and excise by the Irish Parliament to be postponed for further consideration until after the war, provided that the question shall be considered and decided by the United Kingdom Parliament within seven years after the conclusion of peace. Until the question of the ultimate control of Irish customs and excise shall be decided, the United Kingdom's Board of Customs and Excise shall include persons nominated by the Irish Treasury. A joint Exchequer Board, consisting of two members nominated by the Imperial Treasury and two nominated by the Irish Treasury, with a Chairman appointed by the King, shall be set up to determine the true income of Ireland. Until the question of the ultimate control of the Irish customs and excise shall be decided, the revenue due to Ireland, as determined by the joint Exchequer Board, shall be paid into the Irish exchequer. All branches of taxation other than customs and excise shall be under the control of the Irish Parliament. (Carried 38 to 30.)

Agreed on Imperial Contributions.

"Section 16. The principle of imperial contributions is approved. (Carried unanimously.)

"Section 17. Accepts the report of the sub-Committee on Land Purchases. (Carried unanimously.)

"Section 18. Deals with the judicial power similarly to the act of 1914. (Carried, 43 to 17.)

"Section 19. The Lord Lieutenant shall not be a political officer. He shall hold office six years. Neither he nor the Lords nor Justices shall be subjected to any religious disqualification. His salary shall be sufficient to throw the post open to men of moderate means. (Carried, 43 to 17.)

"Section 20. A Civil Service Commission consisting of representatives of the Irish universities shall formulate a scheme of competitive examinations for admission to the public service, and nobody shall be admitted to such service unless he holds a Civil Service Commission certificate. A scheme of appointments and salaries shall be prepared by a special commission, and no appointments shall be made until the scheme of this commission has been approved. (Carried 42 to 18.)

"Section 21. The Irish Government, if desired, may defer taking over the departments of Old Age Pensions, National Insurance, Labor Exchanges, Postal Savings Banks, and friendly societies. (Carried 43 to 18.)

The concluding paragraph, submitting the report to the Imperial Government, was carried by 42 to 25. The whole report was carried by 44 to 20.

Ulster Unionists' Report.

The report of the Ulster Unionist delegates to the Irish Convention is signed by nineteen members, including the Marquis of Londonderry, the Duke of Abercorn, Colonel Robert Gordon Sharman-Crawford, and James Johnston, Lord Mayor of Belfast. The delegation finds itself unable to concur in the Chairman's draft report, and protests against his implication that a measure of agreement regarding Irish self-Government was attained. It states that on the fundamental issues no agreement was at any time visible, and that on many important questions the Nationalists were sharply divided.

After reviewing the reasons for the calling of the convention, the report says:

"We expected that the real work of the convention would have been directed toward a sincere and patriotic endeavor to find common ground somewhere between the act of 1914, on the one hand, and the views of Ulster on the other. From the first week we urged this course, and repeatedly expressed our disappointment that almost every nationalist's speech outlined a form of home rule far in advance of any previous claim. The scheme finally brought forward by the Bishop of Raphoe in behalf of the Nationalists included the following demands:

"First—A sovereign independent Parliament for Ireland, co-equal in power and authority with the Imperial Parliament.

"Second—Complete fiscal autonomy for Ireland, including the power of imposing tariffs and control of the excise, involving, as it would, the risk of hostile tariffs against Great Britain, the right of making commercial treaties with foreign countries, and full powers of direct taxation.

"Third—The right to raise and maintain a military territorial force in Ireland.

"Fourth—Repudiation of any liability for national debt, on the plea of overtaxation in Ireland in the past, but admitting the principle of a small annual contribution to the imperial expenditure.

"Fifth—Denial of the right of the Imperial Parliament to impose military service in Ireland, unless with the consent of the Irish Parliament.

Sharp Split on Fiscal Question.

"Over the fiscal question," the report continues, "no approach to an agreement was possible, and the real object of the proposal was clearly apparent in the official reply to questions by the Chairman, signed by Mr. Redmond, the Bishop of Raphoe, Mr. Devlin, and George Russell, in which they emphatically insisted upon their demand for fiscal independence and crystallized their arguments in the following terms:

"'We regard Ireland as a nation in economic unity. Self-government does not exist where those nominally intrusted with the affairs of Government have not control of the fiscal and economic policy.'"

The report declares in opposition to this demand for fiscal independence, saying:

"Ulster takes a firm stand on the basis of the people's common prosperity, and maintains that the fiscal unity of the United Kingdom must be preserved intact, carrying with it, as it does, the sovereignty of the Imperial Parliament and due representation therein."

It is set forth in the report that while Ireland's contribution to imperial taxation for the current year was about £13,000,000, an important section of the Nationalists opposed any contribution; but the majority favored a contribution ranging from £2,500,000 to £4,500,000 yearly. The Bishop of Raphoe's fifth proposal was supported by a majority vote of the convention.

The report continues:

"We regard as excessively dangerous the Nationalist claim that the Irish constabulary shall come under the control of the Irish Parliament at the end of the war, instead of remaining under imperial control for six years, as provided in the 1914 act.

Fear of Sinn Fein Control.

"Failing any evidence of an approach to the narrowing of our differences, and in view of the new demands of the Nationalists, we were finally forced to declare that Ulster is unable to participate in any scheme of self-government for Ireland. We cannot overlook the strong probability that the controlling force of such would today be the Republican, or Sinn Fein, party, which is openly and aggressively hostile to Great Britain and the empire.

IRISH CONVENTIONS PLAN FOR HOME RULE

"A proposal was brought forward under which in the Irish Parliament the Unionists should have temporary representation largely in excess of what they were entitled to on a population basis. While appreciating the spirit of the offer it was decided, after full consideration, that the undemocratic character of the proposal rendered it wholly unacceptable."

The report shows that the Unionists, with the object of meeting the Nationalists, presented an alternative scheme for the exclusion of Ulster, based on lines agreed to by the official Nationalist Party in 1916, and continues:

"The discussions proved beyond doubt that the aim of the Nationalists is to establish a Parliament in Ireland which would be practically free from effective control by the Imperial Parliament. It is only necessary to draw attention to modern political movements to realize the unwisdom of establishing within the United Kingdom two Parliaments having co-equal powers. All other countries have fought against this disintegration policy."

Saw Menace to the Empire.

Asserting that the Nationalist policy would be a constant menace to the empire, the report continues:

"Had we thought that a majority of the convention intended to demand not the subordinate powers of previous Home Rule bills, but what is tantamount to full national independence, we would not have agreed to entsr the convention."

The report cites, among other examples, that of the United States, which "established at the cost of much blood and treasure national unity, when the Confederacy claimed, like the Irish Nationalists, the right to set up an independent Government," and adds:

"With these and other examples before us, we cannot help feeling that the demands put forward, if conceded, would create turmoil at home and weakness abroad. One of the many objections to the scheme presented is that it would have made the future application of federalism to the United Kingdom impossible. For the reasons stated, we could not accept the Nationalist proposals.

"We desire to record our appreciation of the uniform courtesy and good feeling which characterized the proceedings of the convention throughout."

Nationalist members of the Convention, including Archbishop Harty and Bishops O'Donnell (Diocese of Raphoe) and Macrory and Joseph Devlin, signed a minority report dissenting from certain recommendations of the majority. They say:

"Except for some important political and labor absentions, the convention worthily reflected almost every phase and interest and class in the varied life of Ireland. But there have been no sure means of knowing how far it exhibited the mind and will of Ireland at the present time, nor any guarantee that its decisions, independently of the suggestions made by the Government, would take effect in law. The Sinn Fein organization stood aloof altogether.

They believed that if a measure giving to the Irish full control of their affairs was agreed to and given effect by the Government the vast majority of Nationalists would bend their minds to making it a success.

"It looked as if the gravity of the times, the principles of freedom for which the allied nations claimed to stand, the widespread desire for a settlement throughout the Dominions and among our American kindred, and the disastrous consequences of further conflict and disunion," the report continues, "might bring about a spontaneous resolve among all the delegates to establish our country as a free and contented nation within the Empire."

Those who signed this report express satisfaction at the abandonment of opposition to home rule by the Southern Unionists, and regret that the Ulster Unionists did not give much co-operation in constructive work. They advocate a Dominion system which would put all Irish affairs, including taxation, under the Irish Parliament, while leaving foreign relations, the army and navy and the making of war and peace under the Imperial Parliament.

These Nationalists hold reconciliation difficult; unless, as the report puts it, "the British people sincerely believe in liberty for its own sake and are willing to apply in Ireland the principle that the supposed interests of great States shall not override the rights of small nationalities."

They give a detailed argument for Irish control of taxation, suggest a joint British-Irish commission for commercial and postal matters, propose an arrangement for imperial contribution by joint negotiations, and also that Ireland shall have the same powers as the Dominions of providing for local defence. This report adds:

"Any attempt to impose conscription upon a nation without its sanction is utterly impolitic and unjust and bound to end in disaster."

The report opposes membership in the British Parliament as upsetting the balance of the British parties. It prefers a joint council, but waives objections and agrees to a delegation of forty-two members at Westminster. Agreement is expressed to a Unionist representation of 40 per cent. in the lower house, and to the majority scheme for representation of the Southern Unionists. Postponement of vital questions until after the war is opposed.

DEFEND OUSTING OF PILAT.

Mayor's Office Asserts Subordinate Can Do His Work.

A statement regarding the removal of Carl F. Pilat, for five years landscape architect attached to the Park Board, was issued yesterday at the Mayor's office. It was signed by Park Commissioner John N. Harman of Brooklyn, and declared that the resignation of Mr. Pilat had been brought about by the Park Board and not by Commissioner Grell. Commissioner Harman in denying that the parks would suffer from the absence of the architect pointed out that from June 15 to Sept. 15 last Mr. Pilat was absent from the department, working for the Government in the laying out of military cantonments. Commissioner Harman said:

"Even Mr. Pilat himself admitted at the meeting of the Park Board yesterday that the work he was doing could be properly carried on without his presence, and at the saving of one salary to the city. We have only seen Mr. Pilat occasionally since the first of the year. It was understood that Mr. Pilat was giving his services to the Government, and receiving compensation only from the city. Later on, when it was discovered that Mr. Pilat was being paid $1,000 a month by the Government, he was requested to pay back to the city the salary which he had drawn while doing work in the West."

Mr. Harman said that Mr. Pilat had returned $922.21.

WAR IN SECRET ON HEALTH BUREAUS

Hylan Attack Arouses Protests from Physicians and Social Workers.

MASS MEETING ARRANGED

Movement to be Organized to Check Plan for Obliterating Department Agencies.

CALLS IT "PRIVATE INQUIRY"

Head of Civil Service Commission Defends Exclusion of the Public

A secret investigation which will lay the foundation for an entire re-organization of the Health Department, from which representatives of civic organizations and newspaper reporters were excluded yesterday on the ground that it was a "private inquiry," and that only those may attend who have been "invited" by James A. MacBride, Chairman of the Civil Service Commission, is being held daily, except Saturday and Sunday, at 2:30 P. M. in Room 1443 of the Municipal Building. The consequences of the investigation now under way, and which is being conducted jointly by the Civil Service Commission and Commissioner of Accounts David Hirschfield, it was said by physicians and social workers yesterday would be far reaching and would affect every man, woman and child in New York City.

The investigation has already attracted the attention of scores of civic and philanthropic organizations, and officers in these organizations as well as leading physicians yesterday protested against the contemplated plans of Mayor Hylan. A mass meeting, at which practically every public health organization and social service agency of the city will be represented, will be held in the rooms of the Bar Association at 1 o'clock this afternoon. Reports from the committees which were assigned to investigate the matter will be read, and a movement of public spirited citizens and of many well known organizations will be organized. It will be urged that all the facts concerning the contemplated changes should receive full publicity.

Calls It a "Private Inquiry."

When representatives of several civic organizations, ignorant of Chairman MacBride's ruling, entered the investigation chamber before the meeting began yesterday, they were told that they would not be permitted to remain. "Invitations are being extended," it was said, "only to witnesses." These include the heads of the seven bureaus of the Health Department, which it is reported that Mayor Hylan is anxious to eliminate on the grounds of economy.

Reporters excluded from the investigation were told yesterday that Chairman MacBride would give out the details of the meeting at 5 o'clock. At that time Mr. MacBride, when asked for details of the meeting, said: "There is nothing to give out except that Dr. Robert J. Wilson, head of the Hospital Bureau, was examined this afternoon."

Asked on what grounds representatives of civic organizations and of the press were excluded from a meeting at which one of the most important city departments was being investigated, Mr. MacBride replied: "This is just a private inquiry. I don't invite the press and public to see everything that goes on in my office. I don't hold a public hearing when I send a clerk out with a payroll, so why should I invite outsiders to the meeting?"

Mr. MacBride insisted that the investigation was not a public matter, but that it was a "private inquiry."

"This public will be entirely informed when the proper time comes," he added, but he did not indicate when that time would come. He said, however, that the investigation might last another month or six weeks. There will be no session today, and on Monday afternoon Dr. Wilson may be recalled. At the conclusion of the meeting on Thursday Chairman MacBride informed a news association which supplies a service to all the city newspapers that "nothing of a startling nature" had been reached.

The heads of the bureaus examined are impressed with the fact that the investigators hold everything that passes at the meetings as "confidential," and they are expected to treat the proceedings in the same manner. Dr. Wilson, when asked yesterday as to the nature of the questions he was asked, said, "My lips are sealed." He referred the inquirer to Health Commissioner Amster, who was present at the session yesterday. Dr. Amster said he had no information to give, and referred all matters pertaining to the investigation to Chairman MacBride.

Mr. MacBride, according to a report sent out by a news association, said that yesterday's meeting "contained nothing of general interest."

Plans for a Mass Meeting.

Arrangements for the mass meeting this afternoon were completed yesterday afternoon at a meeting held at the Bureau of Municipal Research, 261 Broadway, at which the following organizations were represented:

The Committee on City Government of the Woman's Suffrage Party of New York City.
People's Institute.
The State Charities Aid Association.
The New York City Federation of Women's Clubs.
The National Child Welfare Association.
The Association for Labor Legislation.
The Civic Club.
Women's City Club.
New York Milk Committee.
Women's Trade Union League.
The Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor.
Henry Street Settlement.
Council of Women's Organizations.
Women's Municipal League.
Bureau of Municipal Research.
Charities Organization Society.
Committee for the Care of the Jewish Tuberculous.
The United Hebrew Charities.
Association of Tuberculosis Clinics.
The New York Child Labor Committee.
Consumers' League.
Citizens Union.

Purpose of the Investigation.

The investigation now being conducted is for the purpose of determining whether seven of the nine bureaus of the Health Department exist legally under the city charter. In reply to those who say that the charter does not provide for the seven bureaus, it was asserted yesterday that according to Section 1,181 of the charter the Board of Health is empowered to establish any additional offices it deems necessary. This modifies Section 1,179, which established only two bureaus, one in charge of a Sanitary Superintendent and the other in charge of a Registrar of Records. It is maintained by those who oppose the plan for abolishing the bureaus that it would be illegal and that the distribution of the multifarious powers of the present bureaus among the Assistant Sanitary Superintendents of the five boroughs would put the work of the Health Department back twenty years, into the hands of men who are not medical experts.

Section 1,181 of the charter says:

"• • • the Board of Health may likewise establish such additional offices as it shall deem necessary for the proper discharge of the duties and powers of the Health Department in the several boroughs, with such force as may be essential thereto, throughout the city, as constituted by this act, but shall always maintain its chief office in the borough of Manhattan.

It was charged yesterday that the abolishing of the seven bureaus and the dismissal of their respective heads would work an injustice in the matter of pensions. Having served the department more than twenty years, Dr. William H. Park, head of the Bureau of Laboratories; Dr. Robert J. Wilson, head of the Bureau of Hospitals, and Dr. William H. Guilfoy, head of the Bureau of Records, are entitled to retire on half pay. Dr. B. F. Knause, head of the Sanitary Bureau, will reach the pension age this Fall. The heads of the bureaus are not permitted to practice medicine and must give their full time to the department. In some cases, it was said, they gave up lucrative practices and threw in their whole career into the work of public health service.

Oppose Reorganization Scheme.

Among those who protested yesterday against the plan to reorganize the Health Department were Dr. L. Emmet Holt, the well-known child specialist; Agnes de Lima, Secretary of the Women's Municipal League, and Miss Sally L. Jean, Director of Health Work for the People's Institute. Miss de Lima said that she had been barred by Commissioner of Accounts Hirschfield when she tried to obtain permission to be present at the investigation.

"The attempt to wipe out the bureaus is one of the most reactionary and disreputable things attempted so far by the Hylan administration," she said. "I imagine that the motive behind the move is political, the Mayor having declared himself as pledged to abolish so-called 'experts.' To wipe out the experts in our Health Department, however, is carrying a grandstand play too far. To put these highly technical bureaus under the jurisdiction of a Sanitary Superintendent, who knows nothing at all of the peculiarly specialized nature of their work, is fraught with the gravest menace to the health of the people of the city. The New York City death rate is now the lowest of any city in the world, and that it is so is due largely to the efficiency which has been created by these very bureaus. To disband them now certainly would mean to increase our death rate by putting the department back at the same level it was years ago.

"If Mayor Hylan is proceeding against the bureaus on the theory that they are creations of the Mitchel administration, he is mistaken. As a matter of fact they were partly founded by Mayor McClellan and completely organized under Mayor Gaynor by Health Commissioner Lederle. The Bureau of Child Hygiene, which has done wonderful work in caring for the health of the children of the city, was founded in 1908 by Health Commissioner Darlington, and Dr. Baker was put in charge at that time."

Views of Dr. Holt.

"The Health Department of New York City is one of the most efficient municipal health departments in the world," said Dr. Holt, who organized the Babies' Hospital. "Anything done at the present time to impair its efficiency or to curtail its efforts would be a public menace. Perhaps there are economies which could be practiced. Economies ran be effected in almost every department. Let them be made, however, without tearing down the effective structure of the department itself."

Miss Jean said: "We feel that it is a very serious matter to attempt to wipe out these bureaus, because in a city of such enormous size as New York we are convinced that the work can be handled only by such control. The Bureau of Child Hygiene, in particular, is one of the best in the world, and to attempt to do away with it is to gamble with the life and death of the children of the city. If we could only make the mothers throughout the city realize what it means to them they would make such a protest that the politicians would never think of making such an attempt again."

The pediatric section of the New York Academy of Medicine at its last meeting passed a resolution, introduced by Dr. G. E. Pisek, protesting against the Mayor's plan of abolishing the Bureau of Child Hygiene. The resolution declared that the Academy of Medicine would "take the most strenuous measures" to prevent the abolishment of the bureau, and asserted that it was one of the city bureaus of whose achievements the citizens might well be proud.

In discussing the resolution Dr. Pisek said: "This is another flagrant example of the way in which the City Government is being Tammanyized. I can think of no reason for abolishing the bureau of which Dr. Baker is head, except that she is not an appointee of the present administration, which is fast filling all offices with its own adherents."

"The proposed abolishment of these bureaus," said Dr. Herbert B. Wilcox, Chairman of the section, "is a long step backward in our City Government, but the Academy of Medicine will fight to the last ditch to prevent such a blow at the interests of the children of New York as is involved in the plan to abolish the Bureau of Child Hygiene.

"Abolition of these bureaus will mean a loss to the city of trained administrators like Dr. Baker, Dr. Harris, and Mr. Brown. The method of city health administration to which we are invited to return has been discarded by every progressive city in the country. The health administration of New York City is generally believed to be one of the best in the country, and its infant mortality rate is remarkably low. Under war conditions and high food prices the need of caring for the children of the city was never so imperative, and we should not permit a cheap, political manoeuvre to jeopardize the welfare of the future citizens of New York."

Bureaus Now Under Attack.

The proposed reorganization of the Health Department would affect these bureaus:

The Bureau of Child Hygiene, headed by Dr. S. Josephine Baker, whose service dates back to 1901; the bureau has charge of the medical school inspection, the infant milk stations throughout the city, supervision of midwives, day nurseries and boarded-out infants, and also the issuance of employment certificates.

The Bursau of Public Health Education, headed by Dr. Charles Bolduan, who entered the department in 1904; all modern health work is primarily educational, and it is said by medical experts that this bureau is potentially the most important activity of the department. It is looked up to by Health Departments all over the country as an authority in this field.

The Bureau of Preventable Diseases, of which Dr. Louis Harris is director; Dr. Harris entered the department in 1907. His bureau has supervision of the treatment of all infectious diseases, quarantine, vaccination, disinfection, Pasteur treatment, tuberculosis clinics, day camps, and also industrial hygiene.

The Bureau of General Investigation, headed by Dr. Frank Monaghan, who came in with the present administration. The bureau attends to all the correspondence, proceedings of the Board of Health, payrolls, audit of accounts, and transportation.

The Bureau of Records, in charge of Dr. William H. Guilfoy, who entered the service in 1885. This bureau has charge of the registration of vital statistics, issuance of burial permits, transcripts of records, and statistical research.

The Sanitary Bureau, of which the head is Dr. B. F. Krause, in the department since 1898. Duties include sanitary inspection, abatement of nuisances, offensive trades, mosquito work, and removal of dead animals.

Bureau of Laboratories, in charge of Dr. William H. Park, formerly dean of the Medical School of Bellevue University. A highly specialized department which has charge of the production of antitoxins and vaccines, bacteriological examinations of water and milk, examinations of specimens for diagnosis, and research work in bacteriology. Dr. Park has been in the service since 1893.

The Bureau of Food and Drugs, directed by Lucius P. Brown, who began work for the Health Department in 1915. This department has supervision of the inspection and supervision of the production, manufacture, and sale of foods of all kinds, including milk and beverages. The bureau also makes chemical examinations of milk, water, food, and drugs.

The Bureau of Hospitals, in charge of Dr. Robert J. Wilson, who entered the employ of the Health Department in 1896, has charge of the hospital care of all patients in the city's institutions, including patients ill with contagious diseases and tuberculosis.

The heads of all the bureaus, with the exception of Dr. Knause and Dr. Park, receive $5,000 each annually, and the two mentioned receive $6,000 a year.

APRIL SHOWERS PUT BASEBALL TO ROUT

HUGGINS LAUDS YANKEES

New Manager Handicapped by Loss of Shawkey, but Plans to Bolster Pitching Staff.

All traditions connected with the opening of the baseball season at Ebbets Field were observed yesterday and the Yankees and the Dodgers were unable to gambol on the Flatbush greensward for various reasons. Four of the best reasons were rain, hail, snow, and mud. Nothing less than a flood of warm sunlight will dry out Ebbets Field enough to permit the clubs to play today, but if it should clear off and the park is dried out the Dodgers and Yanks will cavort for the fans' edification at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The weather was behaving well enough until the baseball clubs aproached New York and then came the blizzard which so often greets these early baseball openings. The baseball men may be so deeply impressed with the weather which was at large yesterday that they will remember it next year when they are making up the schedules and delay the return from the South until well along toward May 1. But the probabilities are that they will again do everything they can to encourage April blizzards by starting the season early.

Both Managers Huggins and Robinson were keenly disappointed over yesterday's storm, because they wanted to get their players out to become acclimated to the northern atmosphere before the opening of the season next week.

Manager Huggins has come to the conclusion after watching his players in the South for a month that he has a pretty fair ball club. He realizes that his pitching staff is not as strong as it might be, but he hopes to strengthen this department of his club as soon as possible. Huggins said yesterday in discussing the club:

"I was pretty well pleased with the showing of the players in the South and the club will be able to hold its own as far as batting and fielding is concerned. Much, of course, depends on the pitching, and it was a hard blow to the pitching department to lose Shawkey. I plan to strengthen our pitching by getting another pitcher in the near future.

"Bodie was a surprise to me. I had been told that he was slow in the field and on the bases, but while he is not a speed marvel he moves around pretty fast and is a good fielder. His batting should be a big help to the Yankees. It is too early, of course, to pass judgment on the pitching, but I think our boxmen will round out in good shape.

"Marsans has sent us word that he will report next week, and he should be a big help to the outfield. We will know definitely about Plank in a day or two, but I have strong hopes that the veteran will play through the season with us."

MANAGERS ARE APPOINTED.

New International League Proceeds with Its Organization.

Although the club owners of the new International League received the news that the Sunday baseball measure at Albany had been defeated during their meeting at the Biltmore yesterday afternoon, they decided to start the season anyway, and showed that they mean business by appointing several new managers for the coming season.

George Wiltse, the old Giants' southpaw, was named manager of the Buffalo club by Owner Joseph J. Lannin, the former owner of the Boston Red Sox. As soon as Wiltse was appointed he immediately got busy and started to sign players for the coming season. Dan Howley, who has been manager of Montreal for several seasons, was appointed by Owner Jim McCaffery to manage the Toronto Club.

Pat Donovan, who for years was a major league manager and last season managed the Buffalo club, will run the Syracuse club this year, while Arthur Irwin will be at the head of the Rochester club.

The club owners are now arranging the schedule for the season, and plan to start on May 8 and finish on Sept. 15. The schedule will call for 140 games. Newark is pretty sure to be represented in the circuit, and dates are being allotted to that city, although no announcement has been made about who will back the club. It was stated that the owners would not be Newark men, as President John H. Farrell has interested outside capital in the venture. The club owners will meet again today and complete the schedule.

ALEXANDER NOT DRAFTED.

Howard County Board Says Star Pitcher Is Not Yet Called.

LINCOLN, Neb., April 12.—A statement tonight from K. D. Bahensky, Clerk of the Howard County Exemption Board, says that Grover Cleveland Alexander, star Cub pitcher, has not been notified he must enter the service of the Government for war under the second draft.

"The Howard County Exemption Board does not itself yet know whether Alexander will be called, or for that matter, who will be called," he said.

GIANTS TAKE TWO GAMES.

Regulars Down Cleveland, While Recruits Beat Chattanooga.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 12.—The Giants first and second teams played a doubleheader here today, the regulars defeating the Cleveland Indians in the first game by a score of 5 to 1, with Tesreau and Jess Barnes doing the pitching. They were both effective and held Egan's batsmen to two hits. The New York team had no trouble in finding the pitching of Wilkinson and Enzman, the Indiana flingers.

In the other game the Giants second team, including all the recruits, had an easy time defeating the Chattanooga Club of the Southern Association by a score of 6 to 1. This game gave Ferdie Schupp a chance to exercise his valuable arm, and after a time he was relieved by George Smith. Jack Enright, a former Yankee pitcher, was on the mound for Chattanooga.

The tour of the Giants and the Cleveland Clubs will end tomorrow in Lexington, after which McGraw's club will return to New York.

GENERAL TO DO HONORS.

William A. Mann Will Throw Out First Ball at Polo Grounds.

General William A. Mann will throw out the first ball at the opening game of the National League season at the Polo Grounds next Tuesday. The game will begin at 3 o'clock. A large number of soldiers have been invited to attend, and they will parade across the field accompanied by Conway's Band before the game.

Lieutenant Marty McHale of the Twenty-second Engineers, will be in charge of the parade to boost Liberty bonds, and he will be assisted by all the Giants and Brooklyn players, who will carry banners in a patriotic demonstration. The Giants will return from their Southern training trip on Sunday night and on Monday they will play an exhibition double-header at the Polo Grounds, the opposing teams being the Interborough and the in-er-seals.

COLD WELCOME FOR RED SOX

Barrow Team's Homecoming Greeted with Driving Storm.

BOSTON, Mass., April 12.—The Boston American League team arrived here today in the midst of a driving snowstorm after a training trip of two months in the South. Manager Barrow was disappointed to see snow on the diamond at Fenway Park, as unfavorable weather for the last week has retarded the team's development, but he has ordered the players to report at the grounds tomorrow.

When the train stopped yesterday at Columbus, Ohio, the home of "Hank" Gowdy, former catcher of the Boston Nationals and now somewhere in France with the National Guard, the players, headed by Johnny Evers, Gowdy's old team mate, stood up and gave the world's series hero a silent toast.

ALBANY, April 12.—Without taking a formal vote the Assembly Rules Committee today decided not to report the Lawson bill, which would permit professional baseball games on Sunday afternoons.

COCHRAN MAINTAINS LEAD AT BILLIARDS

Schaefer Goes to Fore in Afternoon, but Falls Behind Again at Night.

Continuing a display of balkline billiards such as has not been seen in New York since Willie Hoppe won his last handicap tournament, Welker Cochran and Young Jake Schaefer completed the second night's play of their 1,800-point match at Daly's Seventh Avenue Academy last night, with Cochran leading 1,200 to 1,146. As was the case in the first night of the match, Schaefer got away to a flying start in the afternoon session by consistent billiards which brought him 384 points in eleven innings.

In the afternoon game Schaefer displayed a close line nurse which was marveled at by the large crowd. In his third inning he garnered a cluster of 51 points, keeping the ivories together, for almost every point. Starting with his fifth inning he got 78, 43, 39, 9, and 88 in successive runs which smacked of brilliance. Cochran was overshadowed in the afternoon, being outpointed 384 to 196.

It was different in the night contest. This time Cochran ascended to brilliant heights, recorded an average of 40 4-10, and got back the advantage he held after the first day's play. Twice during the evening game Cochran made runs of better than 100, and he had one cluster of 70 besides. When the evening session began Schaefer opened up with a run of 108, which made it appear as if Cochran had at last met his master, but when Schaefer missed on a difficult masse Cochran began, and in just ten innings he had caught and passed his rival. The brand of billiards exhibited by the two young experts kept the crowd deeply interested.

The last 600 points of the match will be played in two sessions today.

INJUNCTION IS DENIED.

Judge Garesche Refuses Order Restraining Jack Dempsey.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 12.—Holding that the contract existing between John Reisler of New York, a manager of fighters, and Jack Dempsey, heavyweight boxer, is not enforceable because it is against the laws of the State of Missouri to indulge in prizefighting, Judge Y. W. Garesche of the Circuit Court today denied an injunction to Reisler by which the latter sought to prevent Dempsey from boxing under the management of any man other than himself.

Judge Garesche also dissolved the restraining order he previously had issued and which prevented Dempsey from completing his engagement at a local theatre here this week.

McCloskey Wins Bout on Foul.

CAMP DIX, WRIGHTSTOWN, N. J., April 12.—In the bitterest ring fight that boxing enthusiasts have witnessed here, At McCloskey of Company H, 34th Engineers, formerly of Elizabeth, won the Camp Dix heavyweight championship on a foul by his opponent, Sam Nolan of Battery C, 309th Field Artillery, when the latter sent in a terrific blow below the belt. The foul was committed in the third round when both fighters were striving for a knockout.

Weiner Wins at Balkline.

David Weiner won his second game in the metropolitan balkline billiard championship tournament of the American Amateur Billiard Association last night when he defeated John E. Lewis, at Thum's Academy, by 200 to 178. Weiner had a high run of 28 and an avorage of 5 10-38, as against a high run of 17 for Lewis and an average of 4.

Coleman Wins Billiard Match.

Hal B. Coleman, representing the Jefferson Billiard Academy, defeated William Gershel of Daly's Academy last night in the metropolitan 18.2 balkline billiard championship tournament, by the score of 200 to 98. The match was played in the Jefferson Academy. Coleman made high runs of 34 and 28 and averaged 7 4-28. Gershel's best run showed 17 and 14 and he had an average of 3 9-28.

NEW MARK IN TANK FOR MISS GALLIGAN

Titleholder Swims to Victory in 220-Yard Title Event in 3:03 4-5.

Miss Claire Galligan, women's national middle-distance swimming champion and 500-yard record holder, last night added the national 220-yard championship title to her collection in the pool of the Central Y. M. C. A., Brooklyn, when she defeated a field of three rivals for the honor. Miss Galligan swam one of her best races of recent years, and, despite the comparatively slow pool, was timed in 3:03 4-5 for the distance. Inasmuch as this is the first time that an event over this distance has been contested in a seventy-five-foot pool, Miss Galligan gets credit for an American record.

With Miss Galligan in the race for the title were Miss Charlotte Boyle, another local swimmer and champion of the local district at the shortar distances; Miss Elizabeth Ryan of the First Regiment pool, Philadelphia, and Miss Gertrude Artelt of the Philadelphia Turngemeinde. Miss Olga Dorfner, also of Philadelphia, did not enter to defend her title.

Getting away with the crack of the gun, Miss Ryan went to the front, and for the first two lengths of the pool held the lead. In the third stretch of the race the Misses Boyle and Galligan drew up on even terms with the diminutive Philadelphia mermaid, and starting on the fourth lap Miss Boyle went to the front with a long, powerful stroke.

Thereafter the race resolved itself into a test between the Misses Boyle and Galligan. The Philadelphia mermaids, as the local swimmers increased their pace, gradually fell behind, until they were practically eliminated in a battle for third laurels. Miss Boyle showed the way to the sixth lap, but there her pace fell off and Miss Galligan went to the front and held the lead to the end. The champion won by a margin of about one yard.

In the junior national 100-yard swim for men Clark Leach of the Hamilton Club, Chicago, furnished a surprise, with his victory over Loo Giebel and Leeming Jelliffe, the two local schoolboy champions. Leach won by a touch from Giebel, while Jolliffe had to be content with third place. The Chicagoan's time was 1:09 2-5.

The plunge for distance for the senior Metropolitan Association A. A. U. championship went to Cyril Carroll, unattached, with an effort of 75 feet, the length of the pool, in 57 seconds. The summaries:

200-Yard Relay Swim, (Metropolitan Y. M. C. A. championship.)—Won by Central Y. M. C. A., (C. Ross, A. Steen, K. Sutherland, J. Burrill); West Side Y. M. C. A., (A. M. Polk, F. C. Burrows, H. Iowa Athlete Victor.

With eighteen points the Fourth Class of the U. S. Navy Electrical School won the school's annual athletic meet in the Fourteenth Regiment Armory, Brooklyn, last night. Classes Six and Eight tied for second, with sixteen points each. Marion M. Kenneally, the former all-around champion of Iowa University, furnished the stellar individual performance by winning the 70-yard dash and the 220-yard dash. In the 70-yard event Kenneally was clocked in 0:08, and his time for the furlong sprint was 0:26.

Soccer Semi-Final Is Postponed.

FALL RIVER, Mass., April 12.—The semi-final soccer football match for the National Challenge Cup between the Fall River Rovers and the West Hudson team of Harrison, N. J., scheduled for tomorrow, was postponed today until April 20 on account of the weather.

GOLF TO AID RED CROSS.

Play for Championship Medal to Overshadow Other Tourneys.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—American golfers will compete this season for a Red Cross championship medal in a series of exhibition matchos for the benefit of the American Red Cross to be played over the leading courses of the country and participated in by the best-known golfers. Arrangements for the series were announced here tonight, with the statement that the champion golf players had agreed to play only in Red Cross benefit matches.

None of the golf associations will hold their usual championships this season, it is said, in order that the Red Cross series may be made the great event. It is expected to turn over not less than $1,000,000 to the Red Cross.

Among the players who have entered for the medal are J. M. Barnes of Broadmoor, Colorado Springs, Col., professional champion; Chick Evans, Edgewater, Chicago; Gil Nichols, former metropolitan open champion; Walter Hagen, former open champion; Jock Hutchinson of Chicago, and many others of note.

Under the scoring rules an eligible will receive 5 points credit for winning from another eligible, the loser sustaining 5 points loss. For winning from a non-eligible an eligible will receive 3 point, and 3 points will be given for beating a course record if held by an eligible.

Evans and Hutchinson will play Barnes and Nichols at Louisville, Ky., April 17, and at French Lick on April 20.

HARRIERS TO RACE TODAY.

Junior Tittle Run to be Held Despite Weather Conditions.

The sixty-six cross-country runners who will strive for the junior championship title of the local association of the A. A. U. at Van Cortlandt Park this afternoon will be put to severe test unless the weather conditions improve. Fred A. Niles, one of the officials of the race, stated yesterday that weather conditions would not cause a postponement of the event. Although there will be none of the strength-sapping hill climbs of former years, nevertheless the six-mile course, with the treacherous footing conditions, will furnish a stiff test for the harriers.

Six clubs registered with the Metropolitan Association have entered their teams, and in addition eight harriers will start under the colors of the 102d Engineers, stationed at Camp Humphries, Va. The clubs are the Morningside A. C., Glencoe A. C., Paulist A. C., St. Christopher Club, Brooklyn A. A. and St. Anselm's A. C. The individual entries include Joe Giorgio and Al Huisebosch, Paulist A. C.; P. Trivoulidas, unattached; Otto Laakko, Kaleva A. C.; J. W. Bjork and Viani Noppa, Finnish-American A. C.; A. J. Teber, Hungarian-American A. C.; H. Jamoson, Camp Humphries; L. C. Spencer, Haven Boys' Club, and H. H. Retlig, Central Y. M. C. A., Brooklyn.

Former Penn State Distance Star to Handle Track Team.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., April 12.—The Wesleyan Athletic Council has secured Hermann A. Lum of Madison, N. J., a former Penn State College long distance runner, to coach the track men. Lum was captain of the 1913 track team at Penn State, and established a new college record in the mile run that year. He will start work with the squad at once.

Yale Crews to Meet Penn.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 12.—It was announced tonight by Yale athletic authorities that the 'Varsity crew and the Freshman crew would race like crews of the University of Pennsylvania on the Schuylkill on May 11. The 'Varsity race will be two miles and the Freshman a mile.

Crew to Choose New Leader.

Columbia oarsmen, informed yesterday by Coast Rice that they would have to elect a Captain for the 'Varsity shell before they went to Princeton on May 4 for the Child Cup race, have decided to hold an election soon to chose a leader in place of Bob O'Loughlin, the Captain-elect who is now serving overseas.

Oulmet to Lead Camp Team.

AYER, Mass., April 12.—Sergeant Francis Quimet, Western amateur champion, will head the Camp Devens golf team, the makeup of which was announced today by Lieutenant Robert C. Deming, division Athletic Director. Other members of the team are Lieutenants Gorion, Herbert Jacques and Robert V. Bean, Sergeants Christopher Dunphy, A. R. McIntyre, B. P. Merriman and Frank McNamara, and Corporal J. F. Held.

BOWIE FIRE'S TOLL SEVENTEEN HORSES

BOWIE, Md., April 12.—A fire in the stables, which destroyed seventeen thoroughbreds valued at more than $50,000, cast a feeling of gloom over the horsemen here today which was not dispelled during the running of the seven races which made up the card of the next to the last day of the annual Spring meeting.

As it was, the Calumet Stable lost heavily. Among its promising animals burned to death were George W. Avery, a three-year-old which won its brackets only a few days ago in a most impressive race; Moosehead, Caljar, Fellowship, all good campaigners, and four unlried two-year-olds. G. C. Winfrey bemoaned the loss of Woodward, Jem, and Eagle, three of the best campaigners in the country, and Walter House lost Fragonard, a stake possibility which House valued at more than $15,000, besides Valley Club and a pony. Track officials insist that the fire was caused by the explosion of a lamp, but many assert that the series of fires which have visited Bowie in the last two years should be the subject of investigations. The sloppy track and continued rain made the races uninteresting. Tiger Rose, a two-year-old maiden belonging to the Brighton Stable, broke into the winners' class after covering herself with mud over the half-mile journey. Baby Sister and Silk Bird were popular victors.

REFUSES TO ALTER DRAFT QUOTA BASIS

House Rejects Shallenberger's Plan to Fix It on Number of Men Liable.

WILSON OPPOSES CHANGE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—After a spirited debate on a resolution to permit the President to modify the selective draft law in respect to the calling of men from certain classes—action on which has been delayed for weeks—the House today rejected an amendment offered by Representative A. C. Shallenberger of Nebraska to fix the quota on the number of men actually liable to military service rather than on the population of the several States.

The adoption of this amendment, it was contended by proponents of the draft law, would have destroyed the essential features of the system. By a vote of 244 to 118 the amendment was defeated, but another amendment offered by Mr. Shallenberger defining how the credits for men in service should be given each State, was adopted by a vote of 292 to 63. This amendment reads:

Credit shall be given on its quotas to any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, or sub-divisions thereof, for the number of persons who have entered the military or naval service of the United States from any such State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, or any sub-division thereof, since April 1, 1917, including the numbers of the National Guards who were in Federal service.

Inasmuch as this system is virtually now in effect by a regulation, but is not mandatory by statute, there was no serious objection to its acceptance as an amendment to the draft law.

Representative Thomas Harrison of Virginia offered an amendment to exempt those engaged in agricultural pursuits from selective military service. While there is not sufficient strength in the House to force through this exemption, sentiment for such a law exists in Southern States where there has been a shortage of labor resulting from the draft.

Adjournment Halts Action.

As the hour was late, Representative W. J. Fields of Kentucky, in charge of the bill, moved that the House adjourn before final action could be had on this amendment and the bill. Members of the Military Affairs Committee declared that the Harrison amendment will be rejected by a decisive vote.

Before the House began consideration of the resolution Representative S. H. Dent, Chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs, gave out a letter written him by President Wilson which in effect showed the President opposed to the change in obtaining the quota, but favored the credit argument advanced by Representative Shallenberger. The letter follows:

"My Dear Mr. Dent:

"After my brief conference the other day with you and two of your colleagues of the Military Affairs Committee I laid the matter we then discussed before the Acting Secretary of War and he has sent me the inclosed memorandum. I must frankly say that I find the arguments contained in this memorandum very hard to answer. The whole thing is very debatable, but, on the whole, I think the weight of the debate lies on the side of the contention of the War Department.

"It may be, as they say, that in giving credits for voluntary enlistments under the draft no 'useful purpose' would be served, but I think, nevertheless, that it would be perfectly proper to include such allowance in the new law. Cordially and sincerely yours,

"WOODROW WILSON."

Representative Julius Kahn of California, who was in charge of the enactment of the Draft bill and other war measures in the last legislative session, because of the unsympathetic attitude of Chairman Dent, made the chief speech in support of the bill. Representatives Shallenberger, William Gordon of Ohio, E. W. Saunders of Virginia, and Carl Hayden of Arizona spoke in favor of the amendment offered by the Nebraska member.

Representative Martin Madden, who got behind Mr. Kahn in his fight, said that the men insisting on the amendments were "pacifists, and the same men who were opposed to war and originally opposed to the draft and have been more or less opposed to every measure intended for the vigorous prosecution of the war."

Situation Grave, Says Kahn.

In his speech Mr. Kahn dealt with the seriousness of the war situation and impressed upon the country the necessity for strengthening the military service by legislation recommended by the War Department.

"No one can read the speech of the English Premier delivered in the House of Commons last Tuesday without becoming impressed with the seriousness of the European war situation and the magnitude of the task that lies before us," said Mr. Kahn. "Personally I have tried, since the country entered the war, not to minimize our difficulties. At times I may have seemed pessimistic in discussing the matter with my colleagues, but I think I understand the psychology of the German people. I know that they must be defeated for the sake of our own peace and the contentment of the American people on this Western Hemisphere.

"It was inevitable that the first draft, based upon population figures, could not be anything like correct. No census had been taken since 1910. The Census Bureau had to guess at the population in many of the rapidly growing manufacturing cities of the country. There will be no census taken in this country until 1920 under the Constitution. So the population figures have been misleading in numerous instances. But the classification figures form a safe basis from which to draw quotas.

"The Provost Marshal General has sent a message to all the Governors of the States asking them to check up the work of the various district and local boards. Where it appears upon the face of the returns that a local board might have been too lenient or too rigorous, the work of that board is even now being inspected by agents of the Government. If wrongs have been committed, an effort will be made to right them.

"But after all, to my mind the great consideration involved in this legislation is that we are fighting as a nation, not as forty-eight States of 435 Congressional districts. Even if slight inequalities occur in some Congressional districts or some of the States, that fact ought not to be considered when the very life of the nation is involved in this struggle.

"For me the cause of the Union in this crisis is paramount, and the legislation for which we are called upon to vote today will enable us to furnish an army of men who will do the least possible injury to our economic and social relations."

DRAFT LAW IS URGED TO INCLUDE MEN OF 40

Crowder Also Would Call Those Between 31 and 45 for Industrial Service.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Legislation is now being considered to increase the industrial man power for war activities and for an extension of the selective draft law to include men 40 years old.

Major General Crowder, Provost Marshal General, has recommended to President Wilson that the age limit of those who are subject to military service under the draft law shall be 45 years and that men between the ages of 31 and 45 years shall be called in such industrial service, under military law, as shall seem necessary to the authorities.

Such recommendation has been before President Wilson several weeks. In the absence of Secretary of War Baker the Administration has given no indication of its position on the proposed extension of the selective draft law to bring older men into military service for industrial purposes.

Opposition has developed among the labor organizations to the proposition advanced by General Crowder. These leaders say that the proposed system would prevent strikes and workmen would have no opportunity of protecting themselves from unsatisfactory labor conditions. They have expressed themselves, however, in favor of the proposed amendment of the selective draft law if industry is commandeered, as, they say, labor would be by the enactment of such a law.

Representative A. C. Shallenberger of Nebraska, while not considering the matter from an industrial phase, has prepared an amendment to the Selective Draft law to fix the age limit at 45 years instead of 31 as at present. He said that he would offer his amendment to a bill which has passed the Senate, bringing under military service all those who have reached the age of 21 years since the last draft.

"I think that I will be able to induce the House to accept such amendment, although I am not certain that the House will consent to go as high as 45 years," Mr. Shallenberger said tonight. "I think that I can get an amendment to the bill fixing the age limit at 40 years. You remember the House passed the Draft bill fixing the age limit at 40 years. The Senate's bill set the limit at 25 years and the limit of 31 years was arrived at in conference as a compromise."

The serious situation on the western front has brought about a condition in Congress where such legislation can be enacted without much objection. In the opinion of leaders of the House the proposition advanced by Mr. Shallenberger is likely to be favorably considered, and provision is likely to be made in the draft law which will cover the suggestions offered by General Crowder.

WOOD TELLS OF NEW NEED.

General Declares 40,000 More Officers Must Be Provided.

KANSAS CITY, April 12.—Forty thousand more officers for drafts yet to come were needed urgently, Major General Leonard Wood, commander of the 89th Division, National Army, Camp Funston, Kan., declared here today. General Wood passed through the city en route to Camp Funston.

"We must have officers," General Wood said. "I am in favor of opening new officers' training camps at once and making the course one of six months instead of three. Then, too, we must have older men, say from 35 to 40, for our officer material."

ALIEN BILL IN SENATE.

It Would Naturalize 123,000 Men in Our Army and Navy.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—House legislation designed to protect 123,000 unnaturalized Germans and Austrians serving in America's army and navy and also to permit naturalization of aliens whose citizenship applications were pending when the United States entered the war was reported favorably to the Senate today.

Chairman Hardwick of the Immigration Committee said the legislation was urgent because unnaturalized aliens in the American military forces, if captured, might be subject to treatment as traitors. Of 123,000 such men in the army and navy, he said, only 46,000 had their first papers.

Numerous amendments were added to the House bill by the committee. One provides for a $400,000 appropriation to be used for admitting quickly to citizenship loyal American soldiers of foreign birth, while another authorized the President to exempt from time to time, by proclamation or otherwise, any individual or class of individuals who are by our laws declared to be alien enemies.

The bill automatically restores to citizenship all Americans who enlisted in the allied armies before the United States entered the war, and extends citizenship to native-born Filipinos and other aliens who have either enlisted or have been honorably discharged from our military service.

Another provision would enable the Bureau of Naturalization assisting the public schools to conduct night schools to teach citizenship responsibilities to foreigners.

Superintendents of Schools in 1,796 communities have agreed to organize these night classes.

STAMP SALES AT HIGH MARK

Total Receipts of $4,317,000 in One Day Throughout the Country.

The New York War Savings Committee was informed from Washington yesterday that Thursday's receipts from the sale of war savings stamps amounted to $4,317,000 for the entire country. This is the largest daily total so far reported, and bears out Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo's prediction that the Liberty Loan campaign would stimulate interest in the stamps.

The Thursday sales in New York City amounted to $110,000, making the total receipts $9,148,141 since the campaign began. Today a military and naval parade for the joint cause of Liberty bonds and war savings stamps will leave Sixth Avenue and Forty-fifth Street at 11 o'clock for a circuit of the centre of the city by way of Eighth and Fifth Avenues. There will be about 4,000 persons in line, headed by a squad of mounted police. A series of decorated floats has been contributed by the Hippodrome.

Postmaster Thomas G. Patten, Augustus Thomas, and W. Bourke Cockran made patriotic speeches to the audience at the performance of "Her Country" at the Harris Theatre last night, and more than $2,000 war savings stamps were sold between the acts by the Mayor's Committee of Women on National Defense.

COL. SIMONS FOUND DEAD.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 12.—Colonel William H. Simons, commanding the 327th Infantry Regiment, National Army, was found dead with a bullet wound in his head today in his quarters at Camp Gordon. No further statement regarding his death was obtainable at divisional headquarters.

Colonel Simons, a regular army Lieutenant Colonel, was a native of South Carolina. He was appointed Second Lieutenant in 1891 after graduation from the South Carolina Military Academy.

SAND BAGS SAVE TUBE FROM FLOOD

WRECKS ALONG THE COAST

The high east wind and the unusually high tide yesterday caused great damage all along the Atlantic Coast. From the Weather Bureau point of view the most remarkable thing about the storm was not the high wind and the snow and rain, but its duration. New York and the Middle Atlantic States have experienced four days of storm. This was because the storm centre, which was off the Middle Atlantic States, was hedged in by unusual high pressure areas to the north and could not move.

On the waterfront the water piled up by the wind flooded streets, undermined houses, interfered with ferry traffic, and caused discomfort to thousands of persons. In New Jersey the water came up so high that it flooded the waiting rooms of the railroad stations and interfered with the handling of freight in the Erie and Pennsylvania railroad yards.

When the tide came up water began to run down the steps of the entrance to the Hudson tunnel in the Lackawanna station in Hoboken. It soon became so bad that the entrance had to be closed to the public, and a barricade of boards was hastily raised to stop the water from flooding into the tube and interfering with the traffic. As the tide came higher the water rose in the ferry houses and more poured into the tunnel. The boards were unable to stop the flood, and there was danger that the water in the tube at this point might gain on the pumps that had been keeping the roadbed clear. A rescue crew was called on and the board barricade was reinforced with bags of sand. These bags were piled up close together to a depth of several feet and so high that the water could not run over them. In the Erie station it was also necessary to employ sandbags to stop the flow of water.

In the Jersey City stockyards the water reached such a height that slaughtering had to be stopped. Some of the hogpens were removed to save the animals from drowning. In the Wells Fargo Express Company's station at the north pier of the Erie station the employees used rafts to load and unload merchandise. The flood receded in the afternoon.

Wind and tide wrought destruction along the shore from Long Beach to Sea Gate. At Coney Island, Brighton, and Sea Gate the police last night estimated the damage at $50,000. Along Surf Avenue, from Twenty-third Street to Norton's Point, the water came up so high that the cars could not run to the Sea Gate entrance. Scores of small buildings were flooded, and many of the small Summer houses were undermined and made unsafe. Many persons became frightened when the water routed them out of their beds.

Damage to railroad property, bulkheads, houses, and streets at Seabright, N. J., was estimated by Mayor P. Hall Packer at $150,000 or more. Two New York trains due in Seabright on Thursday night were stalled a mile from the station by sand blown across the tracks and the passengers had to be removed in automobiles. In the same vicinity the garages of Buchanan Coffer and Neilson Jacobson were washed away. The cars were rescued. The home of Stephen Johnson, the Chief of the Fire Department, was swept into the ocean. The boardwalk in front of the Beach Club was torn to pieces. Fifty buildings, mostly boat houses, were washed away from Monmouth Beach to Seabright.

The Atlantic Highlands were hard hit by the storm, and reports came in slowly because wire communication was interfered with, and between Keansburg and East Long Beach communication was impossible. An airplane factory had to close down because the men could not reach the plant. Important work at Fort Hancock and Sandy Hook was also halted because civilian workmen could not reach the fort.

In the district around Far Rockaway streets were flooded, small buildings carried away, and larger ones damaged. Train and trolley service was practically stopped. Near Howard Beach parts of the Long Island Railroad tracks were covered by water. Families, fearing the water would rise above their living quarters, sought refuge in the upper stories. Finucan's Hotel, facing the sea, was so undermined by water that it was feared it would collapse. The boulevard at Edgemere was covered with water and several bungalows were washed away.

While nearly all of the beaches along Staten Island had tons of debris washed ashore, little material damage was done in that vicinity. In the entire section, from Great Kills to Fort Wadsworth, taking in Woodland, Midland, and South Beaches, nearly 100 small bungalows were washed away. Several contained furniture, but the majority were empty and untenanted.

At the Quarantine Station, the Quarantine tug Governor Flower was battered against the bulkhead until one of the port lights was smashed and the boat sunk at its moorings.

Much damage was done on the water by the wind. Scores of boats broke away from their moorings along the Long Island shore and men were kept busy retrieving them. Thirty motor boats and other craft in Sheepshead Bay were damaged. Some were overturned and others dashed against bulkheads.

A message was received at the office of the Gulf Refining Company, 21 State Street, yesterday announcing that the tank steamship Currier had gone on a reef near Nantucket. She was bound from Boston to Bayonne. A Government cutter was sent to her aid.

The greatest velocity of the wind yesterday was 48 miles. The continuance of snow and rain made conditions underfoot very bad. According to the city gauge at Pier A, North River, at 10 o'clock Thursday night the card registered a height of water of eight and fifteen-hundredths feet above mean low water. This is the highest tide since the records were established in 1886.

Work in the Submarine Boat Corporation's shipyard at Port Newark terminal was hampered by the storm yesterday. All work on the ways was stopped and most outdoor work was abandoned. Newark Bay rose several feet and flooded the meadows adjacent to the shipyards and some low spots in the yards. A Central Railroad train was stalled from 9 Thursday till noon yesterday on the Newark meadows south of the shipyards. Bound Creek, a stream that flows beside the track, went over its banks and washed away some of the roadbed. Thirty persons slept in the train all night, and early yesterday waded across the washout. The Passaic River overflowed its banks at a half dozen places in Newark and caused a partial suspension of work in several factories.

SEA FLOODS ATLANTIC CITY.

All Electric Lights Out, and Much Property Damaged.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 12.—A record tide did much damage along the sea front today. For the first time in years the sea flooded the lawns of the big hotels, smashed doors and flooded cellars, drowning out fires in some of the apartment houses and causing loss of property in storerooms. The water put the plant of the electric company out of service, and the entire city was in darkness last night. A single telephone wire was the only means of communication between Margate City and Longport on the lower end of the island. Property loss has been heavy, for the water has undermined the foundations of some of the handsome cottages along the Chelsea and Ventnor Beaches. The water covered the meadows to such a depth that train service was demoralized.

Along the beach there is much damage. Platforms used by bathers were splintered by the bombardment of the sea.

NO WORD OF OUR MARINES.

News of Landing at Vladivostok Lacks Official Confirmation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Secretaries Lansing and Daniels both stated positively late this afternoon that no word of the reported landing of American marines at Vladivostok had been officially received. The marines were reported in press dispatches to have landed on April 5.

The Navy Department has heard from Admiral Knight, commanding the Asiatic Fleet, in dispatches dated later than April 5, and these contained no suggestion of the landing of American marines or sailors at Vladivostok. It was added that Admiral Knight could not land American marines there except to protect life and property. It was not denied that instructions had been sent to the fleet commander on the subject, but their nature was not disclosed.

ACTORS' THEATRE PLANNED.

Players and Dramatists Discuss Their Project at a Meeting.

Plans for a co-operative Actors' and Authors' Theatre in New York, an institution which a number of prominent people of the theatre have had in view for some time, were discussed yesterday afternoon at a meeting of players and playwrights at the Hotel Plaza. The aim of those who have the enterprise in hand will be to establish a theatre in which players may be reasonably certain of finding employment between other and more profitable engagements, and where they will receive a small guarantee and a pro rata share of the profits. Negotiations for a theatre, it is understood, are now under way.

Edwin Milton Royle presided at yesterday's meeting, and the speakers included Augustus Thomas, Louis K. Anspacher, Cosmo Hamilton, Virginia Fox Brooks, Mrs. Thomas A. Wise, Mme. Yorska, Howard Kyle, and W. Herbert Adams. Two playwrights, Messrs. Anspacher and Hamilton, offered the prospective theatre the use of any of their plays without royalty.

A meeting to decide definitely on the question will be held soon, and in the meantime stock in the new enterprise is to be offered to non-professionals.

HAMPDEN ACTS HAMLET.

The week-end Shakespearean performances instituted by the Shakespeare Playhouse at the Cort Theatre were continued yesterday afternoon with the production of "Hamlet." The play was staged with the effective simplicity which has been in evidence in the other productions of the series, and it was, therefore, possible for the audience to devote a major portion of its attention to the text. This latter, for the most part, was well spoken. Walter Hampden, making his first appearance in this country as Hamlet, was excellent, although perhaps a trifle more settled than the character is commonly interpreted. Beatrice Terry, a niece of Ellen Terry, was a satisfactory Ophelia, and the other parts were handled with varying degrees of efficiency.

The audience contained a considerably smaller percentage of children than has been in evidence at the previous performances—which, perhaps, is no more than is to be expected when "Hamlet" is played. The performance will be repeated at 10:30 o'clock this morning.

ACT CHINESE MELODRAMA.

Henderson Players Give "The Dragon's Claws" in Revised Program.

The omission of the piece de resistance detracted somewhat from a program given last night at the Bramhall Playhouse by the Henderson Players, a semi-professional body of performers under the leadership of Alfred E. Henderson. The premiere of a two-act play entitled "The Return to Mutton," by James N. Rosenberg, was announced to have been postponed to April 20 and in its place was some rather amateurish pantomime work by a young woman named Agda Granberg.

The principal event on the revised program was a Chinese melodrama entitled "The Dragon's Claws," the work of Grant Carpenter, which although a trifle crude, nevertheless managed to hold the spectators. Some good acting was done in this piece by Marjorie Baruch, who also appeared in another one-act play, "The Proposal," by Vernon Radcliffe.

'Romance' to End Long London Run

LONDON, April 12.—Doris Keane's long engagement here in "Romance," Edward Sheldon's drama, is announced to close on April 27. Miss Keane has been playing in "Romance" at the Lyric Theatre for nearly three years, and the run of about 1,100 unbroken performances is among the longest ever recorded here. Miss Keane will reappear in London in September in Avery Hopwood's comedy, "Roxanna," played in New York under the title of "Nobody's Widow."

Mayo Wadler Makes His Debut.

Mayo Wadler, a young violinist of serious aim and foreign schooling under Willy Hess, made his bow at Aeolian Hall last evening, playing with Bertha Klemen a suite by Goldmark, an air of Debussy, and several novelties. He was also assisted by a string quintet in Bach's concerto in A minor, the added players including Isidore Moskowitz, Harry Levey, Frank Gurowitsch, Isaac Sear, and Richard Cherkasky.

Mme. Alda's Farewell in "Marouf."

Rabaud's "Marouf" was performed for the sixth and last time at the Metropolitan last evening. It was a farewell for Mme. Alda, and the stagehands, in honor of their director's wife, filled her dressing room table and mirror as well as her shoes with flowers. Mr. De Luca and Miss Howard sang, with Messrs. Rothier, de Segurola, Bada and others, and Mr. Monteux conducted.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Members of the Mayor's Committee of Women on National Defense, headed by Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, the Chairman, and Mrs. Thomas G. Patten, wife of Postmaster Patten, occupied boxes at the Harris Theatre last night. War Savings Stamps were sold by members of the committee in the lobby of the theatre. Augustus Thomas, the playwright, addressed the audience in the interest of the W. S. S. campaign, during the intermission.

AUSTRIA'S CONFESSION OF GUILT.

Plain internal evidence warrants the belief that the letter of the Emperor of Austria-Hungary addressed to his brother-in-law to be laid before President POINCARE of France was the sincere outpouring of a distressed soul, and not an attempt, in collusion and understanding with Germany, to separate France from her allies. It was an autograph letter, its text has been published by the French Government, its authenticity cannot be assailed. In this letter to "My Dear SIXTUS," Emperor CHARLES expresses the hope that his "keen sympathy for France, "joined to that which prevails in the "whole monarchy, will forever avoid "a return of the state of war, for "which no responsibility can fall on "me." To that very direct and terrible blow aimed at his own august person, his Imperial Majesty of Germany could never have given assent, not even for the purpose of tricking the Allies and dividing them. The responsibility for bringing on the war may be the German Kaiser's, it may be placed at the door of my predecessor on the throne, FRANCIS JOSEPH, it is not mine—that is the plain import of Emperor CHARLES's astonishing words. It has been often hinted that he personally was not an ardent advocate and supporter of the war into which Austria's act and Germany's set purpose plunged the world in 1914. It had never been supposed that he would thus frankly state his position by disclaiming responsibility.

Nor could the German Emperor have given his assent and approval to the Austrian Emperor's assurance to President POINCARE that "I will support "by every means, and by exerting "all my personal influence with my "allies, France's just claim regarding "Alsace and Lorraine." No German speaking with responsibility has ever admitted that the question of Alsace-Lorraine could even be discussed. The provinces are Germany's, they will remain Germany's. By this declaration Emperor CHARLES put himself squarely in opposition to his ally upon a question of war policy and of territory that Germany has made fundamental. It is by far the boldest outgiving of the Austrian Government since the war began and plainly is the best of soil for the sprouting of recriminations, distrust, and disagreement between Austria and Germany. The plain natural meaning of CHARLES's words is that of assent to and support for "France's just claim for Alsace and Lorraine"; that is, an acknowledgment that her claim to the restoration of the provinces is just. There is another possible construction, that if France is able to advance a just claim to the provinces, he will support it. But the first interpretation is the more direct and natural. President POINCARE would have been justified in accepting the assurance in that most gratifying sense.

Again, the German Government would never have assented to Emperor CHARLES's declarations in respect to Serbia. Assent would have been fatal to Germany, as these expressions of a policy of good-will to Serbia are fatal to Austria, for they are a confession from the very fountainhead of offending that the war was not necessary and should never have been begun. Emperor CHARLES would permit the re-establishment of Serbia in her sovereignty, he would accord to her an equitable access to the Adriatic, and wide economic concessions in Austria-Hungary. He demands only that Serbia shall suppress every association or group whose political object is the disintegration of the Dual Monarchy, particularly "the Serbian political society, Narodni Ochrana," and that Serbia shall prevent political agitation within her borders against the Austrian interests. But all these things were specifically promised by Serbia in her reply of July 27, 1914, to the Austrian note, although it is notorious that much of this agitation was instigated by Vienna to create pretexts for hostile action. Much more was promised. The Serbian Government would try and on proof of guilt remove from the military service all persons engaged in these intrigues, she would admit Austrian collaboration, and she undertook to punish any Serbians found to be implicated in the assassination of the Grand Duke. Thus, after two and one-half years of war, the Emperor CHARLES of Austria-Hungary voluntarily admitted that the Serbian note should have been accepted by the Government of which FRANCIS JOSEPH was then the head, that war should neither have been declared nor begun. It is a confession of positive guilt in the perpetration of the greatest crime in all history, the guilt of his Government and of Germany. Certainly Emperor WILLIAM II. would never have assented to the inclusion of such dangerous matter in any peace overture to the President of the French Republic.

We may, therefore, unhesitatingly accept this letter as a sincere prayer for peace, not as one of those familiar efforts of Vienna, of which there have been so many during the last year, to sow the seeds of discord in the councils of the Allies. The time and the circumstances in which the letter was written confirm belief in its sincerity. The Russian revolution had overthrown the Czar less than a month earlier. Emperor CHARLES must have been well aware of the forces of treason at work among the Ministers of the Czar to bring about a separate peace with Russia. The revolution put an end to all that. The Allies certainly believed, the Central Powers may well have believed, that from that time on Russia would fight with renewed determination, loyally, without the handicap of Ministers removing Generals and directing military operations in the German interest. In the west HINDENBURG had been forced back to his celebrated "line." The United States had broken off relations with Germany, and our entry into the war, then visibly imminent, was, in fact, only a matter of days. In the military sense, the outlook for the Central Powers was dark. And the never-ending troubles of the Austrian Government with the discontented races under its sway were at an acute stage. Austria was no longer solvent, Germany was not solvent, among the peoples of both empires there was much distress and suffering; in Austria particularly the outcries of the people for food and for relief from the horrors of war were pitiful. These conditions explain why Emperor CHARLES wrote to his brother-in-law, SIXTUS, asking him to say to President POINCARE that he should have the support of Austria in his just claim for France to Alsace-Lorraine; that Serbia should have justice, and that he, the Austro-Hungarian Emperor, was not responsible for the war.

We may be very sure that the French Government has it in its power to make other interesting disclosures concerning these negotiations. At the proper time it will doubtless tell the world why this overture for peace from Emperor CHARLES was not accepted in the spirit in which it was sent and then followed up. France, of course, knew that without the counter-signature of Germany, without proof of Germany's assent, the letter was of little value, and in itself held forth small promise of successful negotiations for peace. For that reason, it may be, although we may confidently assume that the English Government was apprised of the receipt of the letter, no formal answer was transmitted to the Austrian Emperor. There is no hint that any such answer was sent. But only by haste and baseless conjecture can blame be put upon the French Government for not availing itself of the Emperor's letter as the opening of the way to peace. Emperor CHARLES could not have made peace without Germany, it is practically certain that he would have withdrawn from any negotiations as soon as Germany manifested its disapproval. Without Germany that letter gave no promise of peace.

The publication of this remarkable letter puts Emperor CHARLES in a position from which any high personage might well pray to be delivered, a position in which the heads of great States rarely find themselves. The haste he shows in assuring the Kaiser that he is still a faithful ally and his brazen repudiation of sentiments his own letter proves he entertained show that he feels his position to be dangerous. He was plainly acting without the knowledge of the Government of his ally, and acting in a way which that Government will pretty certainly regard as an attempted betrayal of its interests. The disclosures will make Germany gravely distrustful of Austria from this time forth, and in the past there has been no little evidence of distrust. CHARLES was weary of the great war a year ago; in view of the disappointing results of peace with Russia, he may soon be at the point of exhaustion.

FARMER STATES.

Oregon is the first State officially to report that its Liberty Loan quota has been oversubscribed. Iowa put in a claim before Oregon to the same honor, but hasn't set forth officially her titles to the Flag.

Iowa, which the East used to regard, not so long ago, in 1916 for example, as a hearth of pacifism, pro-Germanism! Oregon, Senator CHAMBERLAIN's Oregon, to be sure, but the home of all new-fangled political and economic notions and nostrums, desolated with real and amateur socialism, and greatly overrun with I. W. W.!

Farming States; and hasn't it been impressed upon the country that in preceding loans the farmers were "slackers"? Haven't we read of the money they have made and spent on automobiles? Not so long ago weren't we afraid that the farmers weren't interested enough in the war?

Well, if Oregon and Iowa are true spokesmen of the farmers, they have done more than their part in this Liberty Loan. They are one, as we believe and have believed, with the rest of us, substantially. All Americans, from agriculturist to zoologist, are one in the resolution to smash Germany and save freedom.

PROGRESS OF THE GREAT BATTLE

In taking Merville on Thursday night the German "drive" carried a part of the line ten miles west of Neuve Eglise, further north, where the Germans and British were at grips. There is a danger to the Hindenburg strategy in an advance that is pushed far forward at any one point while the British defensive is holding elsewhere, as is the case ten miles northeast of Merville. The distance is probably greater. A desperate game is being played by the German high command. Men are sacrificed by thousands to push on, as if there were a surplus of human material that could never be exhausted.

The object of the thrust at Merville and beyond is clear enough. Seven miles to the northwest of that place is the railroad that runs from Ypres southwest to Lillers, and then east to Bethune. For the transportation of reinforcements it is of great value to the British. The Forest of Nieppe lies between Merville and the railroad, and the forest skirts a wagon road to Thiennes on the south. It may be assumed that the British will not neglect the opportunity to mass reserves to contest the advance of the Germans west of Merville, and the latter are likely to find themselves confronted by a "stone wall" in that direction.

The "furthest west" of the Germans in this part of the far-flung battle line exposes them to flank attacks. Both north and south they are held or making slow progress, and their losses are enormous. There must soon come a breathing spell. In the balance against the capture of Merville must be placed local British successes in counterattacks near Festubert and between Loisne and the Lawe River. According to the German press, the strategy of the offensive is still unrevealed. What, however, appears plain is that the risks of the assault on a front of almost 100 miles increase. In their violent onslaughts the Germans are in a fair way to overreach themselves. Some parts of the advance are getting out of touch with others. The counteroffensive will come when FOCH thinks the time is ripe. The army of manoeuvre has been organized. It struck at the battle of the Marne. It will strike again. Field Marshal HAIG's special order of the day issued yesterday to the British troops, while it certainly reveals a most critical phase of the battle, does recall that first exhortation to the French in the battle of the Marne which nerved them to their glorious triumph. And he says the French are coming to help the British.

WHIP AND BRAKE.

Senator LEWIS of Illinois, one of the most amiable of men and Conscript Fathers, means better than well, but he is too subject to exudations of exuberance. Lauding the Overman bill, he emitted this pontifical assertion:

> Any who are against any measure that the President demands as necessary to run the war are against the President.

In the Name of the Prophet, figs! Wise as Mr. WILSON is, deserved and strong as is public confidence in him, he would be the last to subscribe to this doctrine. He uses his judgment. So should members of Congress and other folks; and not to be persuaded always by him is far enough from being against him.

Mr. LEWIS is much heard of as "the Democratic whip." The Democratic whip occasionally or oftener needs the brake.

THE CITY'S DOCK POLICY.

When the city is in funds and times are hard the city builds docks for the encouragement of trade, and cheerfully loses money on them. When the city is low in funds and trade is embarrassed for facilities the city raises the rent of the docks regardless of the effect upon trade. Diligent search of the city's accounts shows that it has outstanding $122,673,891 of dock bonds, but fails to show in any one place a ledger account of debits and credits concerning this particular municipal undertaking. The receipts are stated in one place at about seven millions, against which there must be put interest and budget expenses of about an equal total.

The accounts of a private corporation would be kept in a manner to show profit and loss, but public accounts are kept with a view of concealing such results. First, it is unnecessary, as expenses are paid from taxes, and, secondly, if the accounts disclosed deficits there might be trouble in executing the intentions of those in executive position, but without responsibility for financial results. The change of administration has produced a report from a new Controller which weighs pounds, and is a marvel of industry and accuracy. Everything which could possibly be wanted for information must be in it, but it gives up information with reluctance on such points as this, although bursting with information of interest to officials.

Without such information it is difficult to form an opinion about the case in which dock privileges have been taken from an old tenant because he has been overbid by a new concern about which little is known, and what is known gives no hint of the use to be made of the dock. The conflict between the city's need to raise the rent and the service to commerce is evident, but no attention is paid to it, although the service to trade is paramount at present. Surely it is right to ask all the rent that the dock traffic will bear, having due regard of the use made of the dock. But why should the city refuse the higher offer? There can be no opinion on this point until it is possible to compare the old and new use of the dock. The mystery about the new bidder is so far balanced by his bid that there is something of a presumption that the increase would not be paid unless the dock were to be used enough to earn the increase.

TAMMANY AND THE PUBLIC HEALTH.

Just what is Tammany driving at in this "investigation" of the Health Department? We know the Tammany rage against "experts." In its pretended zeal to "reorganize" the Health Department, will the department be divested of its bureaus and special modern apparatus and methods? Does Tammany really believe that it can afford to play politics with the city's health, go back to the careless, ancient, medico-political ways of administration?

Here is the Bureau of Child Hygiene, for example. Is Tammany serious in threatening to abolish it? Does Tammany imagine that the work carried on so fruitfully by this bureau, its reduction of infant mortality, can be reckoned among the fantasies and freaks, the "frills" so repulsive to the Spartans of East Fourteenth Street?

The resolution of the Pediatric Section of the Academy of Medicine, condemning the proposed abolition, is indicative of the general opinion of the medical profession not only as to that particular bureau but as to this whole outburst of fictitious zeal for "economy."

Ostensibly the investigation is to settle a painful anxiety in the Tammany bosom. Are the seven bureaus of the Health Department legally authorized by the charter? Do their heads hold office legally? The Municipal Civil Service Commission and the Corporation Counsel are to attack those questions.

Back of all this solemn feinting lies, presumably, the immortal Tammany doubt: Is it legal for anybody not a Tammany devotee to hold office under the City Charter? These proceedings in restraint of the public health will bear and receive keen-eyed watching.

KULTUR DISBANDING.

The New York Legislature revokes the charter of the German-American Alliance in this State; the National German-American Alliance disbands, protesting that it is not responsible for the blatant sedition of State organizations affiliated with it. It makes no difference whether it is or is not. People are too busy to form themselves into an investigating committee for the purpose of discovering which German-American organizations are openly anti-American, which are merely furtively disloyal, which are only neutral, and which are loyally American. There is no room any longer in this country for any association, whether loyal or disloyal, whose object is to extend Kultur to the United States. Before the war that seemed to some a debatable idea. It is debatable no longer. We don't want this country Kulturized even in a nonmilitary way.

"It is the beautiful and profitable task of German-Americans," said Professor KARL JOHANN HEINRICH VOSS of the University of Wisconsin a year and a half ago, "to prepare the way "in this country for the German spirit "and the German conception of life." We have traveled far and learned much in the eighteen months that have passed since he said that. We have learned that "the German spirit "and the German conception of life" are in virulent opposition to everything in our spirit and our conception of life, and that unless we mean to abandon the one we must yield nothing whatever to the other.

"The delusion that the Western "world must be under the absolute "rule of Anglo-Saxon thought is com- "ing to an end," said Professor EUGEN KUEHNEMANN to this very German-American Alliance in November, 1915. Well, that may or may not be; but if the Anglo-Saxon conception of what this country is for must give way to some other conception, it at least must not give way to the German conception. The Anglo-Saxon idea may have to pack up and move, and WASHINGTON and ADAMS and FRANKLIN may have to be stored away in the attic; but whoever takes their place it will not be BLUECHER or FREDERICK the Great. We are not only at war with Germany, but we are at war with the German idea; and we will no more permit ourselves to be dominated by "the German spirit and the German conception of life" than by HINDENBURG's armies. Organizations formed for that purpose are not wanted here, because we have found that they are irreconcilably adverse to everything that America, the real America, stands for. Organizations that work for the success of the German arms we shall suppress; but organizations that only work for the domination of Kultur, for its substitution for Americanism, are no longer welcome and had better disband.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Abilities Still Rewarded.

People who think, as many seemingly do, judging from what they say, that in these latter days the possibility of attaining great success by individual exertion of any sort is less than it was in the supposedly simpler times when our grandfathers were young, need only to look about them to have their conviction weakened, if not altogether overturned. In art as in business there is still the opportunity for what by the accepted standards passes for high achievement, and as a contemporaneous illustration of that truth one has only to observe the case of MARY PICKFORD, her triumphs having been called to mind by the obviously deep and sincere interest taken in her by the assorted denizens of Wall Street when she went down there this week to urge the buying of Liberty bonds.

Cautiously passing over the question whether the welcome she received tells the more about her claims to fame than about Wall Street's taste, safe ground can be reached on coming to the unquestionable fact that this amiable and pleasing young woman's earning power is enormous, and while opinions might, probably do, differ as to the elevation of the art of which she is the most brilliant exponent, there's no doubt that it really is art of its kind, and to measure it, in its kind, by the reward it has received is entirely reasonable. Everybody knows that—none better than those who sniff at such a measurement when its units are dollars.

Concerning the magnitude of Miss PICKFORD's annual earnings there is not the uncertainty that veils the proclaimed recompense of many other luminaries of the stage. That she is not paid in stage money is proved, among other ways, by a suit recently brought against her for a percentage of more than a million, received in a single year—a million that assuredly was earned or it wouldn't have been paid by the thoroughly practical persons who exploited her phenomenal talent for charming the movie-mad public. There be critics who deny that Miss PICKFORD is the ablest exponent of camera histrionism, but obviously she gives something or other that her rivals do not, and the something is what has leveled her fortune with those of industry's greater, if not greatest, captains.

Royalty's Terrible Experience.

Sad, and sad indeed, is the tale told of Russia's Dowager Empress and her noble relatives, living down in the Crimea on a few miserable thousands of rubles a year, and some of them actually forced to do their own washing for lack of money to pay the laundress!

This revelation, naturally, has started diplomatic machinery in action for the relief of a situation so cruel, and yet, if one chose to ask why it is worse for these people, who once had much, now to have little than it is for the great majority of the world's inhabitants to be in circumstances equally or more straitened, the question might not receive instant answer.

The first reply that suggests itself is that, while it may not be worse, it certainly is harder. It is the contrast between past and present that counts—the breaking of established habits. The dispatches say that now the Dowager Empress has only five servants. Only!

SOCIALISTS FOR THE WAR.

Now See That Force Alone Can Free the World from Prussianism.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the old days, a great many Socialists, among whom I was one, saw in "militarism" an evil to be combated. We did not then realize, and perhaps some do not realize even today, that a far greater evil was impending, and that Prussianism, if successful, will not only put an end to democracy, but will make the world a place unfit for any free man to live in. Only by and through militarism can Prussianism be stamped out. Words, phrases, and philosophies will not avail, as witness Russia. Force, and force alone, can liberate the world. This is a naked fact, and he who denies it is either a coward or a fool.

Nothing can be more criminally futile than theorizings in this time of peril. When the ship is sinking, who will indulge in idle speculations? When the house is afire, who will theorize? Nothing remains to do but take quick, effective measures. Militarism, the power of the armed fist, is the only effective measure to crush Prussianism. Therefore, I count myself among those Socialists who have seen the light and have changed their policy. Their names are familiar. Most, if not all, have become the targets of vituperation from their erstwhile "comrades." Such vituperation is a compliment of the highest order. If it be my lot to share such, well and good. Charles Edward Russell has voiced the situation so finely that I can do no better than quote his words: "If I cannot be a Socialist and an American, then I will be an American."

We are all in the same boat. A common defeat or a common victory awaits us all. It is a man's part to suspend criticism, to forget partisanship, and to stand solidly back of the Government. If this war be lost, all is lost. It must not be lost; it will not be lost. I have supreme faith and confidence that this evil thing, Prussianism, cannot and shall not conquer the free peoples of the world. But, in order that it may the sooner be defeated, we must all stand shoulder to shoulder, each of us doing his bit as best he can. In thought, word, and deed, loyalty should be every true American's only watchword. And if any man who reads these words feels that his unqualified loyalty is not given to the cause of Americanism as against Prussianism, then to him should be denied the title of American.

The liberation of the world waits on the issue. Once realizing that, who can be so base as to be disloyal?

WORK IN FRANCE SHOWING.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I arrived yesterday from New York, landing in one of the principal seaports of France, which I left just two years ago; and during the last twenty-four hours I have been wandering about the city, observing and classing my impressions. If I were to give you these impressions in detail, they would fill a page of your paper. What follows are these impressions, generalized and condensed, as far as they have to do with things American:

As our ship came into port we ran very close to one shore, where we saw under construction one of our biggest bases in France. Long wharfs extended out into the bay, the material having all been brought from the United States. The workmen are all Americans. "The whole thing will be completed within ten days," said one of them to me, later. A special American railway is also being rapidly finished. It will go right up to the front. The naval band on our ship played martial and patriotic airs as we sailed by, which called down to the shore hundreds of our soldiers and workmen, who cheered and welcomed to France the some 1,500 soldiers and sailors whom we had on board.

The streets of this city are as full of American officers and soldiers as they are of French officers and soldiers. Not even the small boy turns to look at them, so habituated is he to the American uniform. At the shoeshining stand was a soldier from Chicago, just back from the front. "All is going on nicely there. We are well fed and enthusiastic."

At the telegraphic office was a youth in uniform who had been two years in the French Foreign Legion. He was sending a cable home to say that he was coming over on a leave of absence. "We will finish them up by next August." Three American officers, the perfect picture of health and energy, came into my hotel restaurant. "Yes, our men mean business." In the hospital quarter of the city I noticed three American noncommissioned officers standing in the door of an abandoned bakery. The sign over the door told this. "We are converting this shop into an annex to our military hospital."

There is an important United States Military Post Office in this city. I inspected it. "We have a half dozen post office clerks, all of whom have had at least six years' experience in postal work. If complaints are made from this side that letters do not come or are late, the fault is on the other side." Great motor drays, with "U. S." painted conspicuously on them, and manned by American soldiers, are continually seen in the streets, busy at their work. One of these was numbered 11197, which doesn't mean that we haven't a larger number in France. At dinner I sat at a table next to two American officers. "We came down from Limoges last night." I found it hard to get a room in my favorite hotel. "The American officers and their orderlies have taken all our extra accommodations." At the big central railway station are two representatives of the American "military police," the reason given being "because so many of our boys come this way."

In a word, our soldiers and sailors have taken possession of one of the largest and richest seaports of France.

Since we entered the war last April, I had been in the United States. Though I read carefully during that time both Paris and American journals, I had no idea of the activity and extent of our work over here. The last twenty-four hours have been a most agreeable surprise to me, and lead me to ask why you, in America, are not given less military and political news from this side and told more of the splendid work which we are doing back of the firing line.

Milwaukee's War Effort.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In view of the unfavorable comments on Milwaukee's status as an American city, recently made in the public press of the country, it may prove both timely and interesting on the part of a publication like your own to look us over at a closer range and tell the whole truth.

We are confident that such an inquiry would not only be in the interest of American fair play but also serve the great cause in which the nation is now engaged. As a preliminary we present the following:

MILWAUKEE WAR AID SUBSCRIPTIONS.

	Allotment.	Subscri'd.
First Liberty Loan......	$14,000,000	$17,000,000
Second Liberty Loan...	25,000,000	33,000,000
Red Cross war fund....	500,000	780,000
Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. war funds.....	165,000	187,000
Red Cross memberships.	100,000	162,000
Knights of Columbus...	100,000	133,000
Total	$39,865,000	$51,262,000

These figures speak more eloquently and convincingly than a volume of explanations. Milwaukee is a generous city, a loyal city, and to the core an American city.

An Irishman's Viewpoint.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Yesterday morning on an early train out of town I took a seat by the side of an Irish laboring man and asked him about his ideas on the subject of Irish conscription. I cannot transfer his brogue or all of his remarks in reply, but the gist of it all was this:

"I have been in this country twenty years. If I were in the old country now I would be fighting England, and I am still of the same mind. This is a special question now, however. It means military control of Ireland by England or by Germany, and between the two I would take the side of England and allow myself to be conscripted. If Americans stood for conscription the Irish should do the same thing. If the Irish stand for England now I believe that England would give the Irish almost everything they wanted, or could give in such a complicated matter. There will be a great deal of strong talk on both sides, but the talkers don't affect men like me, because we Irish know ourselves. Almost every man knows what is really right and what is really wrong, and most people will do what they know is right most of the time."

GRATITUDE.

"Over there" are murdered babes, mute evidence of work
Sanctioned by the German God, through Prussian and through Turk.
I give thanks, all reverently, that, perfectly at rest,
My little son can sleep, his hand upon my breast.

"Over there" are men who worship at a nobler shrine,
Fighting hard to make the world more safe for babes like mine.
May he be a man like these! But now, secure from harm,
My little son can sleep, his head upon my arm.

All the thoughts and all the prayers that fill my grateful heart,
Travel with each soldier lad who sails to do his part
Where the country that I love her faith with mankind keeps,
And fights her fight, the while my little baby sleeps.

THE STAND OF THE GERMAN-AMERICANS.

A Statement of Unqualified Loyalty to America Called Forth by Professor Francke's Letter.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read the article, "Where Do You Stand?" written by my classmate, Mr. Hermann Hagedorn, and today I am reading an answer to that article by my former teacher, Mr. Kuno Francke. Perhaps a few words from me will be acceptable, for I, too, am of pure German blood.

My own mother is Prussian, and so from infancy I have learned to have a profound regard for Prussian method and Prussian procedure. But from infancy I have also learned to have a profound regard for things American. I have known since I was 5 years old that this great war was coming. It was the first bit of conversation that I remember of hearing, and it came from my grandfather. And we were taught, as were other German families (and there were many of them in Hazleton, Penn.,) that our sympathies would be with the United States. I never dreamed that I would see a disloyal citizen of German blood until one day in Pittsburgh in 1916 I actually did see one, and I heard his poisonous talk; and since then I am afraid I have gradually been growing more and more extreme in my tolerance of methods of dealing with American citizens of German blood who cannot give positive and unmistakable proof of 100 per cent. American citizenship.

I hold Dr. Kuno Francke in highest esteem, like the members of that noble army of patriots in Cambridge, his co-workers. No one doubts his loyalty; but I wish he would put a stiff punch into it. I am proud of my German blood; and I am proud that I am proud. I cannot help that any more than I can help the contour of my face. But I am prouder still of my American training.

Germany has made a mistake, the most prodigious mistake in human history, and she must be punished until she admits that she has made a mistake and until she promises to mend her ways; which means, I am afraid, that Germany must be punished almost to extermination. Let us proceed to do that. Let us whip Germany to her knees, even if in doing so we wipe from the face of the earth all traces of Teutonic civilization forever. If our "fanatics who make it their business to inflame the people indiscriminately against Germany and everything German" are contributing to ultimate victory, then more power to them!—that is the proper war spirit; a just and wholesome public opinion will see to it that the condemnations and sufferings of the innocent are not carried to excess. And we can show best our "sympathy with the German progressive parties," and help them most in winning "their fight against the reactionaries" by administering to all Germany a defeat that is overwhelming in its completeness, and commensurate with the bestial dishonor and depraved cruelty of that arch criminal across the Atlantic.

These sentiments are subscribed to by my father, by my mother, by my four sisters, who are working to the limit of their endurance for the cause of their country, and by my four brothers, who are already in the trenches of France, and who have already received their baptism of fire, and who will shortly be joined, please God, by

Yours very sincerely,
KARL FRIEDRICH BRILL.

Reflects on Our Allies.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter of Professor Kuno Francke to Mr. Hermann Hagedorn, which is republished in your issue of the 10th instant, must give every true American food for serious thought. It is so hemmed in by qualifications and allowances, it is so guarded by restrictions and restraints as to make it quite valueless as an expression of American sentiment at a moment like the present.

It seems that Professor Francke has only "now come to believe"—i. e., after we have been in a state of war with Germany for more than a year—that our participation "will eventually make for a peace more democratic, equitable, and permanent than would otherwise have been the case."

This attempted slur upon our valiant Allies is one that every true American will dismiss with the contempt that it deserves. The slur is carried over into the following sentence, in which Professor Francke writes as if he condescended to lend his support to the country in which he is a citizen "in upholding the Government in its policy of forcing Germany" to accept a certain peace. Here, also, with a meticulous ingenuity an imputation is suggested by the addition of the words "and for that matter all the belligerents." It is evident that no word of complaint is to be uttered against the "Fatherland" without it includes some traducement of the Allies.

Nor is this all. What kind of American citizenship can this be that "recognizes," with our present knowledge of the German system, the achievements of the German Government, and that has words of praise for the "training of the German people." After the recent revelations of Lichnowsky, confirmed as they are by the statement of von Jagow, it requires a large measure of assurance to couple a profession of American citizenship—I was about to write "patriotism," but I see the word is not used by Professor Francke—with a eulogy of the "personal worth and attainment" of the very Germans who have perpetrated the horrors that, in the future, must cling to the German name. There are some Americans who believe—and I gladly range myself among them—that all the worth and attainment acquired by the German people, and that whatsoever they have accomplished in letters, arts, and the sciences, count for naught when weighed in the balance with the untold evil occasioned by the German Government, together with the German people, in bringing on this war.

Our fellow-citizens of German birth will need a great deal more training if they are to rise—as they should rise—above the level upon which Professor Francke now places himself.

Found Wanting.

Professor Francke says he has "come to believe" that our participation in the war will "eventually" lead to a peace "more democratic, equitable, and permanent than would otherwise have been the case." How otherwise? Sadly he accepts the fact that Germany, "for the time being," is his country's enemy, and is determined to uphold our Government in forcing not Germany alone but all the belligerents to accept a peace which will indeed make the world safe for democracy. Now, it may seem carping to say that this suggestion is offensive and unfair, but let us go further. Professor Francke is very decided in his denunciation of fanatics who make it their business to inflame the people indiscriminately against Germany and everything German. Why this righteous indignation against anti-German fanatics when for three long years no voice was raised against anti-American fanatics, plotters, and propagandists whose name is legion?

German-Americans have themselves to blame if the "stand" that they take, at the last minute, and under what looks something like unwelcome compulsion, impresses us as something like a straddle.

We are not interested in Professor Francke's appreciation of the German Government's excellent qualities in the training of the German people in good citizenship and service. In fact, the expression of this appreciation under present conditions, the tacit ignoring of the arrogance, brutality, and ruthlessness of that Government in its relations with the rest of the world are an insult to real American intelligence and feeling.

As a Tribute to America.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

What a tremendously significant letter from Professor Kuno Francke to Mr. Hagedorn in your issue of yesterday! What more perfect tribute could we ask to the genius of America and the cause of freedom, coming, as it did, from the mind and heart of so able an exponent of the highest German attainment? His article, "The True Germany," in one of last year's Atlantics, was to me the only convincing analysis of German character I had seen. Like General Wood, Professor Francke knows the power of German purpose, hence the famous victory for us in his acceptance of the cause of America and democracy.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

We fully agree that the Liberty Loan is first and foremost now in our communal life; we are, however, using two slogans, i. e., "Help your Government!" and "Help your Poor!" Brooklyn has an estimated population of between 400,000 and 500,000 Jews. Of these a large percentage are workers employed in factories in Manhattan. Brooklyn is largely a wage-earning community. If a working man becomes ill while working in a Manhattan factory, it is the Brooklyn institution that will have to care for him and his dependents.

It has been the policy of Manhattan to draw a line between the dependent of Manhattan and the dependent of Brooklyn. Manhattan, with a population of about 800,000 Jews, has four times as many institutions as Brooklyn. The reason for this is that 95 per cent. of the wealthy population of Greater New York live in Manhattan and feel obligated only to their strictly local charities. Most Manhattan residents will not consider Brooklyn at all. Brooklyn is considered the "bedroom for the Manhattan business man." Even those doing business in Manhattan, and sleeping in Brooklyn, when called upon to help Manhattan, often claim that they do their share in Brooklyn, and hence, dodge both obligations to the charities. This and similar conditions should and must be changed at once. The East River should not be the dividing line for one's charitable benefactions.

It is hoped that all Manhattan Jews should feel that they ought to help the Brooklyn Federation of Jewish Charities and its affiliated organizations. They must not only subscribe their money liberally, but they must insist on getting new subscribers to Brooklyn.

Permit me to quote from a recent letter from Julius Rosenwald:

> This is the only city in the United States in which I, as an outsider, have taken a special interest, because I have long felt that Brooklyn was the most unfortunately situated of any city. It has an altogether disproportionate amount of wealthier Jews as compared with the great number who need help in that community; and New York has treated Brooklyn worse than a step-child, and has shirked the responsibility which it would not have been able to do were it not for the river which divides the two cities which are really one.

The Brooklyn Federation contributes toward the support of the following constituent organizations: The United Jewish Aid Societies of Brooklyn, Brooklyn Hebrew Orphan Asylum, the Jewish Hospital of Brooklyn, the Hebrew Educational Society of Brooklyn, Women's Auxiliary of the Brooklyn Hebrew Orphan Asylum, Women's Auxiliary of the Jewish Hospital of Brooklyn, the Council of Jewish Women, Brooklyn section; East New York Dispensary, Council Home for Jewish Girls, (Amalie Seldner Memorial;) Training School for Nurses of the Jewish Hospital, Young Men's Hebrew Association, Ninth Street; Young Men's Hebrew Association of Bath Beach.

Red Cross and Anti-Vivisectionists.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I express to you my very hearty thanks for the timely and vigorous editorial comment relative to action taken by the Red Cross in deciding not to use for "animal experimentation" funds which had been specifically appropriated for that purpose?

Our army sorely needs the efforts of an efficient Red Cross, but the Red Cross equally sorely needs nation-wide support. How such a monumental blunder could be made at this time, with all its prospects of alienating valuable support, is incomprehensible.

Doubtless some plausible and flabby explanation will be offered; but why, oh, why did the Red Cross permit itself to make a declaration in favor of "vicious ignorance" as against "common sense"?

That our medical scientists who are at this time striving their utmost to master the various diseases from which our soldiers, both at home and abroad, have been suffering should be hampered by the ravings of the anti-vivisectionists is little short of monstrous. Publicity has cured many pernicious things. Let us hope that this latest outburst will be thoroughly ventilated and that popular wrath will put anti-vivisectionists where they can at least do no harm until the war is over.

SHAKEUP AT HAND IN AIRCRAFT WORK

URGES ONE-MAN CONTROL

Findings Said to Agree in the Main with Those of Senate Military Committee.

GOULD OFFERS REFORM BILL

New York Representative Presents Measure Providing for an Aircraft Administrator.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The committee, under the chairmanship of H. Snowden Marshall, which was appointed by President Wilson to investigate deficiencies in the Aircraft Administration submitted its report to Benedict Crowell, Acting Secretary of War, tonight and the document was sent to the President at once. It contains features that the President and his advisers may hesitate to disclose to the country, and it is problematical as to how much of it will be made public.

The Marshall committee's conclusions as to the causes of failure are in the main those of the Senate Military Affairs Committee. As the two committees agree that there should be a reorganization of the entire Aircraft Administration, it is certain that the President will undertake the reorganization as soon as he has digested the report.

It was said tonight that if the committee's suggestions were followed new life would be given to the aircraft program and the aircraft production and operation machinery would be moving in perfect order within a month. Apparently those acquainted with the conclusions of the Marshall committee are confident that a plan for reform is recommended that cannot fail to bring success.

Favors One-Man Control.

The main recommendations of the Marshall Committee are understood to be:

One-man control of aircraft production instead of the present hydra-headed administration, with half a dozen different bureaus and boards comprising it, and accentuating the lack of co-ordination.

The divorce of the Signal Corps of the army from aircraft production and intrusting it solely with the military operation of aircraft, including the selection and training of aviators.

Legislation that will place the making of contracts for aircraft in the hands of another body than the Signal Corps, which has general statutory authority at present over aircraft purchases for the army.

It is said that the committee will suggest that persons connected with concerns engaged in producing aircraft for the Government should not be employed in official capacities having to do with contracts for aircraft, but there has been no official confirmation of this.

The Marshall Committee is credited with having included in its report an explanation that the Liberty motor was never intended to be used in fast battle or scouting planes, but for planes employed in training, photographing, and bombing, which are protected from attack by scouting planes. In this it differs from the report of the Senate committee which asserted that it was of the impression that the motor was designed to do the most advanced war work in competition with the fastest planes of the enemy.

The Marshall Committee is said to share the view that the aircraft administration injured its cause by creating the impression through statements to the press that the program was being carried out on an immense scale, and that everything was rosy for completing an exceedingly ambitious scheme of production.

The interest of Congress in the disclosures of failure in the aircraft production program is intense, and there is every evidence that many men in both Senate and House will insist on reforms. An indication of this interest was given today when Representative Norman J. Gould of New York introduced a bill to create the office of Aircraft Administrator. The measure showed that it was the result of study and careful preparation.

Under the bill the Aircraft Administrator would have entire charge of aircraft production for the army and navy. In presenting it Mr Gould said he was inspired to do so by the failures of the Government in building air machines as revealed by the reports of the Senate Committee on Military Affairs.

Text of the Bill.

Mr. Gould's bill, outlining the scope of the proposed department, reads:

Section 1—Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that there is hereby created the office of Aircraft Administrator to be in charge of an Aircraft Administrator who shall be appointed by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and who shall receive a salary at the rate of $7,500 per annum.

There shall be in such office a Vice Aircraft Administrator who who shall be appointed by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and who shall receive a salary at the rate of $5,000 per annum.

There shall be in such office four Assistant Administrators, each of whom shall be appointed by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate and shall receive a salary at the rate of $4,500 per annum. One of the Assistant Administrators shall have charge of aircraft research and experimentation; one shall have charge of the manufacture and production of machinery, equipment, and ordnance; one shall have charge of the manufacture and production of aircraft, exclusive of machinery, equipment, and ordnance; one shall have charge of securing the necessary materials for machinery, equipment, and ordnance, and aircraft, and for the efficient performance of his duties shall co-operate with the War Industries Board; one shall have charge of distribution.

The Aircraft Administrator shall have full authority to lease, purchase, or construct all necessary office space or office equipment for the conduct of the business of this office.

There shall also be in such office such experts, attorneys, clerks, and other employes as may be necessary and as may be from time to time provided for by Congress.

Section 2. That it shall be the province and duty of the Aircraft Administrator to encourage aircraft production and to develop the science of flying, and he shall be vested with full control over the Governmental activities dealing with aeronautics.

There are hereby transferred to the office of the Aircraft Administrator, the Aeronautic Section of the Signal Corps, of the War Department and the office of Naval Aeronautics of the Navy Department, together with all that pertains thereto, and the President shall from time to time, as he thinks best, transfer to the office of Aircraft Administrator the whole or any part of any bureau, division, or other branch of the Government engaged in work pertaining to aeronautics, and shall assign to such office any military or naval officer or enlisted man that he may deem necessary.

All unexpended balances of appropriations available for the use of any transferred bureau, division, or other branch of the Government, or which may become available thereafter, shall be available for the office of Aircraft Administrator.

Section 3. That there is hereby appropriated out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated the sum of $25,000,000 to be available immediately for the office of Aircraft Administrator for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this act.

The Aircraft Production Board is hereby abolished, and the unexpended appropriation, if any, available for such board is hereby made available for the office of Aircraft Administrator.

Gould Explains Bill.

Explaining the bill, Mr. Gould said:

"Since last September I have been following with particular interest the progress made by the Aircraft Production Board in its effort to comply with the duty of producing airplanes for our army and navy, and the delay in accomplishing results now confirmed by the report of the Senate Committee on Military Affairs confirms the opinion that I, as a business man and a manufacturer of machinery, had formed.

"The present organization in charge of what is conceded to be one of the most important branches of our fighting program has failed to produce the goods, and there is no need of my discussing the details, which have already been made public, and, therefore, I have today introduced a bill outlining a form of organization based on lines that have proved successful in manufacturing industries.

"The scope is wide and President Wilson would be enabled to select an aircraft administrator with sufficient assistants to properly supervise and hasten to completion the production of aircraft for the army and navy.

"There is only one way to win the war, and all of us intend and desire to support and aid our Commander in Chief. To attain that end I feel that suggestions of constructive nature are welcome and have endeavored to outline an organization and plan that should prove successful."

TAMMANY HAS PLAN TO FINANCE CITY

Wagner Offers a Bill Which Would Do Away with the Pay-as-You-Go Policy.

HAS HYLAN'S INDORSEMENT

Authorizes Bond Issues of $15,000,000 Annually for Expenditures—Measure Will Pass Both Houses.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 12.—Tammany has found a way of getting around the pay-as-you-go policy which was established by law for the protection of the city's credit during the Mitchel administration. Under the terms of a bill introduced by Minority Leader Wagner of the Senate on Wednesday, and which appeared in printed form today, the present Tammany administration would be authorized to issue bonds not to exceed $15,000,000 per annum for the period of the war and one year after, and use the proceeds for expenditures which, under the pay-as-you-go policy, should be defrayed out of current revenues.

The bill is scheduled to pass both houses tomorrow with the aid of Republican votes. Mayor Hylan favors the plan. He, his fellow-members of the Board of Estimate, and the Tammany lawmakers have been brooding over the scheme since the Legislature first convened, and have been able to reach their understanding with the Republican leaders for its consummation only in the closing moments of the session.

It was upon the earnest representations of a group of financiers who came to the aid of the city on the liquidation of debts incurred abroad on short term notes at the outbreak of the European war that the pay-as-you-go policy was inaugurated to observe the most rigid economy for the financial rehabilitation of the city.

From the very beginning the spokesmen for Tammany Hall in the Legislature have urged that the pay-as-you-go plan should be rescinded, or at least relaxed to the end that the taxpayer's burden should be less heavy during the war. Senator Cromwell of Richmond, Chairman of the Senate Committee on New York City Affairs, said tonight that New York bankers favored the plan.

The Wagner bill provides for the issue of serial bonds or corporate stock for purposes enumerated in the measure and classified as to the length of time for which the security issued is to run. It is retroactive to Jan. 1, this year. It is stipulated in the bill that none of the proceeds from the sale of such securities shall be used for the acquisition of any public utility or property used in connection with a public utility. Serial bonds must mature in equal annual installments, the first installment to mature not more than two years from the date of issue of the bonds.

In a general way it is provided that no bond issue shall run for any period longer than the improvement for which it has been issued. Under this general provision, however, ten-year bonds may be issued for almost any purpose.

Despite Mayor Hylan's protest, the Assembly, as well as the Senate, has devoted its energies to the enactment of measures which will impose added burdens on the long-suffering taxpayers of New York City. Half a dozen pension bills affecting city employes which were sent to the Assembly for concurrence from the Senate passed through the House mill without a murmur of protest from the Tammany members. The Mayor will have an opportunity to veto some of the bills.

Wagner's Hunter's College pension bill, Burlingame's pension bill for municipal court employes, Walker's general pension bill for city employes, the Wells-Lawson pension bill for employes of the Kings County courts, the bill introduced by A. E. Smith providing a pension system for employes of the Surrogates' Courts, and the bill introduced by Senator Walters of Onondaga creating a number of new jobs in the department of the Commissioner of Records in the Borough of the Bronx, and the Farrenkopf bill, creating a pension fund for the employes of the Street Cleaning Department in the Borough of Queens, are among measures passed by the Senate and Assembly.

When the Farrenkopf bill came over to the Assembly for concurrence today it passed on a "rapid roll call." After Speaker Sweet had declared the bill "duly passed," Assemblyman Meyer, Republican, of New York, with a glance across the aisle toward the Tammany seats, asked: "Mr. Speaker, do I understand that despite Mayor Hylan's protests against this sort of legislation, the Farrenkopf bill passed without objection?"

"There was no objection," said the Speaker, curtly.

The Lawson-Wells bill, which has become known as the "three per cent. bill," came back to the Senate from the Assembly, at the session this evening, with amendments. Its author moved that the amendments be concurred in. This was done and the bill passed and made ready for the Governor. Upon closer examination, however, Senator Lawson found that his bill was no longer the "three per cent. bill." In the Assembly the provision levying 3 per cent. of their salary on employes of the Kings County courts to maintain the proposed pension fund, had been changed so as to decrease their contribution to 1 per cent., which would bankrupt the fund and shift the larger share of its maintenance to the taxpayers. Upon this discovery Senator Lawson moved that his bill be sent to the Committee on Revision.

That the Republicans were trying "to put the Mayor in a hole" was charged by Minority Leader Wagner in the Senate today when the bill introduced by Senator Lockwood of Kings providing for the suspension of rapid transit construction contracts in New York City came up for final passage. The bill was reported by the Committee on War Measures.

The Lockwood bill provides that the Board of Estimate and the Public Service Commission shall have joint jurisdiction in the matter and authorize an examination of contractors' books, not only for the last year, but from the time work was begun, where a release is asked for, with a view of ascertaining whether they are able to carry out their contracts without loss.

A similar bill introduced by Senator Walters of Syracuse and already passed applies to all public contracts, permits examination of books only for the period this country has been a belligerent, and eliminates the Public Service Commission as a factor, leaving the determination wholly in the city authorities. Senator Wagner said he thought the Senate ought to stand on its action on the Walters bill.

"This bill has the additional advantage that it will be submitted to the Mayor of New York for approval," said Senate Leader Brown.

"You are trying to put the Mayor in a hole. I do not regard that as statesmanlike, but rather small," said Minority Leader Wagner.

The bill was passed by a vote of 43 to 6.

R. BLANKENBURG DIES; THE REFORM MAYOR

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., April 12.—Rudolph Blankenburg, former Mayor of Philadelphia, one of its most patriotic adopted citizens and known as the "Old War Horse of Reform," died this morning at his home in Germantown. He was 75 years old. He was always active for reform in politics and fought all bosses, including Penrose and Quay, for forty years. His election to the Mayoralty in 1911 was the climax of one of the greatest reform campaigns ever fought in this country. He immediately stopped assessments of the police and other officeholders by ward leaders, wiped out the old Civil Service Commission, reorganizing that department so that merit would be the basis of appointment. He brought about needed reforms in the city financial management, started the comprehensive transit plans, and gave impetus to port improvements.

In addition to his activities in behalf of good government, Mr. Blankenburg also aided in many local charities. He went to Russia in 1892 with a shipload of flour which Philadelphians sent to starving subjects of that empire, and was Chairman of the Permanent Relief Committee for many years.

Although born in Germany, Mr. Blankenburg was a real American, and did much toward increasing the loyalty of the German-Americans in the United States.

Mr. Blankenburg was the first reform Mayor Philadelphia has had since the Bullitt Charter went into effect in 1887. He was elected Mayor in November, 1911, for a term of four years.

One of the real monuments of his administration is the passage by the Legislature of acts enabling the city to build subways and elevated railways for leasing purposes.

Mr. Blankenburg was born in Hillentrup, Lippe-Detmold, near Hanover, Germany, on Feb. 16, 1843. He came to this country in 1865, and shortly afterward came to this city. He engaged in the importing and manufacturing business for many years. He was an unalterable Republican in national politics.

SENATOR BROUSSARD OF LOUISIANA DEAD

Democrat Who Had First Served 18 Years in House Dies at His New Iberia Home.

NEW IBERIA, La., April 12.—Robert F. Broussard, Jr., United States Senator from Louisiana, died at his home here tonight after an illness of several weeks from a complication of diseases.

The death of Senator Broussard will make it necessary for Louisiana to elect two United States Senators in the general election next November. Senator Ransdell's term expires March 4 next, and a successor will have to be chosen to fill out the term of Senator Broussard, which expires March 4, 1921.

Robert F. Broussard, Democrat, was born Aug. 17, 1864, on his father's plantation near New Iberia, La. He was educated at Georgetown University at Washington, and was graduated from the Law School of Tulane University in 1889. He practiced law in New Iberia after his graduation and was twice elected District Attorney of his district, resigning the office to enter Congress. He had been a member of the Democratic State Central Committee of Louisiana for twenty-five years, and had served in the House of Representatives for eighteen years, from the Fifty-fifth to the Sixty-third Congresses, inclusive.

Senator Broussard was nominated for the United States Senate at the general Democratic State primary in January, 1912, and the nomination was confirmed by the Legislature of Louisiana by his election to the Senate in May, 1912, for the term beginning March 4, 1915. Senator Broussard was popular in Louisiana, and was one of the few members of Congress who could make political speeches in French. During political campaigns it was his custom to make speeches in cities where there were many French Canadians.

Professor McKibben, who spoke before the Institute of Arts and Sciences, said that the air fleet which the United States was building could never be available unless there were ships to take the planes to France when they had been built.

BUSINESS PLEDGES FULL LIMIT FOR WAR

STRIKES AT PROFITEERING

Calls on War Trade Board to Decide What Industries Are Essential—Wheeler Elected President.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 12.—A ringing declaration that American business men are squarely behind the Government in the vigorous prosecution of the war "until Prussianism is utterly destroyed," was the keynote of the resolution adopted today at the closing meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

The organization, representing more than 500,000 business men, followed it up with an avowal that every disloyalist, traitor, and pro-German plotter should be punished to the full limit of the law.

"We urge all branches of the Government," said the resolution, "by tireless vigilance, relentless pursuit and prosecution, and severe penalties, to visit to the full limit stern and prompt punishment upon all persons found guilty of hostile acts, whether they be alien enemies abusing hospitality or traitors abusing their citizenship."

The Chamber of Commerce unanimously elected Harry A. Wheeler of Chicago as President. He is Food Administrator of Illinois. Joseph H. De Frees of Chicago was re-elected by the Directors as Vice President from the Northern Central Division. The three honorary Vice Presidents were also re-elected—Charles Nagel of St. Louis, A. B. Farquhar of York, Pa., and John H. Fahey of Boston.

R. Goodwyn Rhett of Charleston, S. C., retiring President, was made an honorary Vice President, and John Joy Edson of Washington, D. C., was re-elected Treasurer. Election of the three other Vice Presidents was postponed until the next meeting of the Directors.

The resolutions declared for universal military training, and on the subject of the Liberty Loan said, "Winning the war is the most important business of every business man."

The convention declared it to be the duty of every business in the country to do all in its power to speed up shipbuilding. It recommended that local organizations take steps to see that shipyards have the first call upon the best labor and executive ability available. It indorsed the recommendation just made to Congress by the Emergency Fleet Corporation that $50,000,000 be appropriated for the construction of concrete ships.

As to Government control the resolutions urged close scrutiny on the part of Congress of all proposals having for the object the control of industries. The platform declared for amendment or revision to put the Sherman and Clayton acts on a war economics basis.

On undertakings not essential to the war the resolutions recommended that "all new undertakings not essential to and not contributing either directly or indirectly toward aiding the war, which involve the utilization of labor, materials, and capital required in the production, supply, or distribution of direct or indirect war needs, will be discouraged."

It called on the War Industries Board to designate as soon as possible what industries are essential for the conduct of the war.

It recommended and urged the passage of a law providing for the payment of income, excess, and other special war taxes in installments.

Government control of prices was dealt with by a declaration that the fixing of prices and control of excess profits by taxation go hand in hand and that the present tax laws should be amended if they prove inadequate to prevent abnormal and unreasonable profits as a result of the war. The anti-profiteering plank read:

"Since the fixing of prices and control of excess profits go hand in hand, it is our belief that present tax laws should be amended so far as necessary if they prove inadequate to prevent abnormal and unreasonable profits as a result of the war."

The central control of Government war buying was dealt with in a resolution which favors prompt action by Congress conferring upon the President power to bring about for the period of the war such reassignment of functions and readjustment of relations among the various departments and special bureaus actively engaged in war work, as well as the new power to create new agencies as may from time to time prove necessary, to the end that adequate control over the operation of such agencies may be secured.

GARFIELD MILL ALIEN PALMER REAFFIRMS

GOVERNMENT IN CONTROL

Statement Grows Out of Denial of Enemy Ownership by Corporation's Attorney.

A denial was issued in this city today of the statement made in Washington a fortnight ago by the Alien Property Custodian that the Garfield Worsted Mills of Garfield, N. J., had been taken over by the Government because they were owned by Germans, and that a Governing Board had been appointed to conduct the company's business.

The statement of the company was given out by an accredited representative. It set forth specifically that the management of the Garfield Mills is made up entirely of Americans; that it has no connection with the Woolen Cartel of the German Government; that it is not owned by Germans; that it has not been seized and that there is no reason to suspect it, and that its business is not being conducted by the Alien Property Custodian. It is true that considerable stock of the company is owned by alien enemies, the statement continues, but these persons are not in this country, do not control the mill, and have no part in its management.

The statement sent out from Washington came from The Associated Press, and was published in THE NEW YORK TIMES. The following correspondence then ensued:

New York, April 1, 1918.

Dear Sir: I feel that I should bring to your attention that the article published in THE NEW YORK TIMES on the 29th inst., purporting to be an announcement by you, is particularly unfair in relation to the Garfield Worsted Mills.

To begin with, I do not believe that the statement was made by you. The fact must be, however, that somebody in your department has undertaken to advertise it to the very great detriment of others, a result which I am certain you will agree with me is undignified, unnecessary, and unfair.

The full facts were given you in relation to the Garfield Mills, and you, yourself, stated that its situation was entirely different from the others. It is true that 47 per cent. of its stock is owned by an alien enemy, (who has been in prison in France since August, 1914;) he cannot possibly benefit from it or in any way influence the situation. It is also true that the balance of the stock is owned by American citizens who have placed every fact before your department in connection with their ownership and offered to co-operate with your department in any way necessary to carry out its proper ends.

A large percentage of the output of the mill is Government work which it is making practically at cost. It is plain to any one that the actual position of this corporation does not warrant its being placed in the category of concerns which have been operating to the benefit of Germany, or which are controlled by German interests.

On Thursday last the counsel for this corporation appeared at the New York office of your department, and not only give full facts, but proof of the facts to which I have referred, inviting the fullest investigation and answered satisfactorily every question that was propounded by your representatives, and whoever gave out the information to the newspapers could not have been informed of that meeting and its results, otherwise they would not have made the statement that the Directors mentioned in the article had been elected to the board of the Garfield Mills.

The resentment by the management of this mill of the false position in which it has been placed is not a matter of caprice but one of very grave consequences, as the fact that it is alleged to be a German concern is bound to injure the corporation's standing and business.

There is every reason for protecting the property of alien enemies, and there is every reason for this country to guard against German interference of every kind; but in this instance, there is no occasion for injuring the American stockholders of 53 per cent. of a company by announcements which are not facts, for the apparent purpose of protecting the stock ownership in a corporation by an alien enemy.

In view of the foregoing facts, I must respectfully suggest that you will give this matter your personal attention and see to it that whoever has undertaken to advertise the activities of your bureau in the newspapers will kindly stick to the facts and not do so hereafter to the detriment of American citizens.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) HENRY M. EARLE.

Washington, April 4, 1918.

Dear Sir: We have received and noted your letter of the 1st instant wherein you complain that the statement in THE NEW YORK TIMES on the 29th ultimo, concerning the Passaic Worsted Mills and purporting to have been made by the Alien Property Custodian, is particularly unfair to the Garfield Worsted Mills.

This announcement was not made personally by the Alien Property Custodian, but it contained substantially a fair statement of the facts concerning the situation in Passaic. It was not an advertisement, as you suggest, but a statement of facts to which the public is entitled.

Although your records show that only 47 per cent. of the stock is now enemy-owned, nevertheless those same records show that as late as 1917 about 74 per cent. of the stock was owned by alien enemies. Therefore, the situation of the Garfield Worsted Mills differs only from the other mills in percentage of enemy ownership.

We might further call your attention to the fact that although your Treasurer, Anton Schmid, originally reported that none of the certificates representing the enemy stock are in this country, he afterward, on March 29, 1918, transmitted to this office two certificates, representing 200 shares belonging to enemies, and stated that they had just been found in the company's files. He at the same time stated that another of the enemies had safe deposit boxes in the company's safe, which the company had not heretofore reported.

All of the foregoing facts may be susceptible of explanation, but under the circumstances they would certainly not influence us in placing the Garfield Worsted Mills in any different category from the other worsted mills of Passaic.

Very truly yours, F. HORNE.
Assistant Director, Bureau of Trusts.

After the statement by the Garfield Worsted Mills had been read to him over the telephone at Stroudsburg, Penn., last night, A. Mitchel Palmer, the Alien Property Custodian, said:

"The fact is that 47 per cent. of the stock of the Garfield Worsted Mills is owned by Germans. I have taken possession of that stock and my representative, in control of that stock, is represented in the management of the company.

"Before and during part of 1915 a very large percentage of the company's stock was owned in Germany, but in 1918 some of the stock held by Germans was purchased in this country, leaving a little over 47 per cent. of the stock in the hands of Germans. The difference between the Garfield Worsted Mills and other woolen mills at Passaic in which Germans are interested is only one of degree."

TO SAVE LIVES OF MOTHERS.

Maternity Centre Committee Will Open Branches Here.

To reduce the loss of life among mothers, which its members say is startling, and to save the lives of children who die from neglect of the mothers at birth, a Maternity Centre Committee, headed by well-known obstetricians, with a large co-operating committee of women, has been formed to start centres in every district in the city. A centre has already been at work under the auspices of the Women's City Club for the last year, and three others, organized by the new committee, are practically ready.

This is regarded partially a war work to save at the source the life which the country would now so seriously need. Members of the committee are Dr. Edwin B. Cragin, Dr. Herbert B. Wilcox, Dr. J. Clifton Edgar, Dr. Ralph W. Lobenstine, and Stephen Williams, with a large number of prominent city women. Mrs. John S. Rogers is Chairman. Among the women members are Mrs. Arthur Scott Burden, Mrs. Henry Delafield, Mrs. John C. Breckinridge, Mrs. Samuel W. Lambert, Mrs. Seth M. Milliken, and Mrs. Reginald Auchincloss. The committee will hold a meeting on Monday at the home of Mrs. Rogers, 53 East Seventy-ninth Street, at which Dr. Grace L. Meigs of the National Children's Bureau, Washington; Miss Frances Perkins, and Dr. Lobenstine will speak.

EDWARDS HOST TO WORKERS

Collector Entertains Staff at Reception and Dance.

Collector William H. Edwards of the Wall Street Revenue District entertained 500 employes and guests last night at a patriotic reception and dance at the Hotel Ansonia, as an appreciation of the work just completed by the office in collecting income tax returns.

"My sincere regrets that work on the Third Liberty Loan in the South prevents my being with you. My heartiest and best congratulations and thanks to your efficient force for loyal service not only on the income tax drive, but at all times."

Internal Revenue Commissioner Roper sent a telegram that assured the tax workers that, while Mr. Roper could not be with them, he was "always with you in spirit in the faithful service which you and your co-workers are rendering for the country at this time."

Augustus Thomas, the playwright, made a patriotic speech, and Thomas Healy, the restaurateur, gave a surprise at 10 o'clock by sending over his cabaret show.

One of the most interesting guests was Colonel Elisha C. Hibbard, 79 years old, who has been in the revenue service twenty years. The Colonel is not new at collecting money to help a war, as he raised $50,000 in the civil war and commanded a regiment under General Sheridan.

3,330,000 HENS SAVED.

In Consequence the Ban on Fresh Fowl Is Soon to be Lifted.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The Food Administration announced today that the restrictions against the sale of fresh fowl would be lifted on April 20, as it was believed that the desired conservation measures would then be accomplished.

The restrictions went into effect on Feb. 23, and it is estimated that in the New York, Chicago, and Boston markets alone at least 3,330,000 hens, capable of producing eggs and increasing the country's flocks, have been saved.

In lifting the restrictions the Food Administration appealed to the farmers not to begin rushing their hens to market, but to send them gradually, in order to avoid the danger of loss from spoilage.

MRS. FAIRBANKS SPEAKS OUT

Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks, wife of the motion-picture actor, said last night that she had been greatly surprised to read that her husband, who is now in Chicago, had denied that they had separated. She said:

"We have separated. There is no question about it. I do not understand why Mr. Fairbanks should continue to deny it. If they continue to cast doubt upon my truthfulness, I shall take steps to prove what I have said. An actress has told all my friends, some of my relatives, and my representatives that she is in love with Mr. Fairbanks, and I do not understand why she should deny it publicly. I have not any intention of suing for divorce, but I will not allow them to keep on with their denials."

CLUB TO FLY ALLIED FLAGS.

National Democratic's President Denies This Follows Controversy.

A report was current in this city last night that the National Democratic Club, 617 Fifth Avenue, had been asked to fly the colors of the allied nations in front of the clubhouse in future, and when asked about it John M. Riehle, the club's President, said that it had been decided to fly the flags of all the Allies, including the emblem of Portugal, hereafter.

"It is not true, however," said Mr. Riehle, "that there was any controversy over this matter. This report has also been going the rounds. The flags of all the Allies have been flown when occasion demanded since our entrance into the war. Yesterday it was decided to keep the flags before the club until further notice."

TO BAR PICRIC FUMES.

A jury in the Hudson County Court in Jersey City yesterday returned a verdict of guilty upon the charge of maintaining a public nuisance, against William A. Bradford, President; George A. McIntosh, Vice President, and Joel I. Dye and Sheldon S. Yates, Directors, of the Butterworth-Judson Company of Jersey City. The prosecution contended that fumes from the picric acid plant of the company on the west bank of the Passaic River, in Essex County, menaced public health.

John W. Griggs, counsel for the company, said the nuisance had been mitigated and that the plant could not be closed because of the need of picric acid in making munitions. He gave notice of an appeal. The maximum penalty is three years' imprisonment for each of the officials, $1,000 fine for the individuals and for the corporation, or both.

Friends Defend Dr. Hirsch.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 12.—Friends of Dr. Emil G. Hirsch, Rabbi of Sinai Temple, declared today that the attacks on him and his attitude toward the war had collapsed and would be heard of no more. They were the more certain of this in view of the announcement that he would deliver a thoroughly patriotic sermon next Sunday.

Letters to The Times on Various Subjects

COLLEGES IN THE WAR

Heavy Contributions to the Country Have Left Them Serious Problems.

By ELMER ELLSWORTH BROWN,
Chancellor New York University.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Let no one think that our universities are burdened and complaining. Their loyalty is not of that lukewarm quality. They have been enriched beyond measure in their spiritual life by the demands that war has made upon them, and instead of bemoaning their losses they rejoice in the consciousness of inestimable gains.

Cambridge and Oxford are lonesome places today, and a great part of the young life that thronged their halls and colleges is gone forever, but they have taken on a dignity and distinction surpassing all that the past had left in their keeping. Read that little volume which tells in the fewest and simplest words what the whole group of British universities has done in this war, from the oldest foundations to the most recent of provincial establishments, and you will be overborne with a sense not only of the losses they have suffered but of the new greatness which they have achieved.

Here in our own land, the same destiny has laid its claim upon our institutions of learning, and already, at the very beginning, we have gained by what we have lost. Our greatest universities and all of their kindred institutions, large and small, have entered upon the new conditions and employments, rejoicing "as a strong man to run a race." That is the spirit of university men at the front. They are begging to be sent to the line of greatest need and danger. And they should know, and our people at home should know, that the same spirit is in the institutions from which these men have gone. The colleges say to their sons and to all the world: "We are alive and strong today. We are abounding in wealth such as we never knew before. We are glad for that which we are called to give; and the more we give the more we become the thing that we have always sought and striven to be."

How great is the call that has come to them and how generous their response can be only imperfectly shown at this time. Institutions are so occupied with the work in hand that a request for information regarding their performance seems almost an impertinence. But so much as this we can say even now:

Sixty of our American colleges and universities show a loss of twenty thousand students as compared with their attendance a year ago. The loss in the whole number of institutions of this grade throughout the country will probably run to twice this number and more. College football men are in demand in the aviation corps. Young engineers by thousands have been required in the war zone and related industries, and they have answered the call regardless of conscription. In spite of advice from the general Government that technical students continue at their studies the engineering schools of the country have already lost 18 per cent. of their student registration. So many of the instructors in these schools have been called away that it is difficult to man even these depleted classes. Of all departments of the higher education medicine alone shows a small increase in student registration. It is well that this is so, for the shortage of physicians is already felt in this country. In some medical schools the members of senior classes have crowded a semester of regular work into what would have been their Summer vacation and are now ready for their State examinations. The Faculties of medical, dental and veterinary colleges have been cut down by voluntary enlistments, and those instructors who remain with their classes are put to the severest strain to carry additional labor which falls to their part. The schools of other professions are under similar stress. Our law schools, the country over, have lost 31 per cent. of their students and many members of their Faculties. One might think that the colleges of liberal arts had been placed at this time in the pathetic situation of standing empty of any specific contribution that they can offer, while their sister schools of the professions and the technical arts are giving with liberal hand what the nation sorely needs. But their case is altogether different. It is men that are now chiefly needed—men of capacity and vision—and it is evident that the colleges have not failed in their professed endeavor to send forth men of this character. The art colleges have lost 11 per cent. of their students and great numbers of their instructors. The quota of young officers in our training camps includes an impressive proportion of these college men.

All over the land university laboratories and laboratory teachers are now in the service of the Government, their occupation in many instances being of such confidential character that even that part of the public which lies nearest to their doors can have little conception of what is going on.

As the war continues and the need of men specially trained in many directions becomes obvious and acute, our Government, in order to meet this need with sufficient promptitude, turns to educational institutions which are already "going concerns," instead of building new schools from the very foundation. So it happens that men in khaki and civilians only one remove from actual military service appear upon the campus of more than one institution, filling workshops and lecture rooms, drilling on athletic fields, and fitting themselves for service as aviators, marine engineers, electricians, wireless operators, and signal men. If the war shall be long continued, we shall find many an academic establishment shaken from its long-time self-absorption and repose, and chiefly given over to these employments.

When we come to the higher departments of our Governmental activity, we are still more deeply impressed with the part which is played by men from the higher institutions of learning. A university President and professor is at the head of our Federal Government. Our forces in France are commanded by a graduate of a normal school—he is a West Point graduate as well. Special commissioners in positions of the highest responsibility, and the membership of advisory boards whose advice is authoritative, have been largely recruited from the ranks of our colleges and universities. Nor is this simply an idiosyncrasy of the present Administration. It is to be doubted if the proportion of university men drafted into high emergency services would have been less if a like emergency had arisen under any one of our twentieth century Administrations. This is not to say that men of university training and they alone are fitted to serve their country in a supreme crisis. But it is clearly the case that men who have the requisite native endowment to begin with are more and more going to college; and that in college and university they are receiving an education which heightens their ability to serve their country in the time of bitterest need.

It is in such sons, in such an opportunity, in the record of a public crisis squarely met, in casualty lists which show the finest human promise thrown without reserve upon the altar, in citations for clearheaded courage in the face of grim disaster—it is in these things that our colleges and universities are rich today, rich beyond their brightest expectations of earlier days.

It is in their treasury accounts that they are poor; and their poverty, too, must not be forgotten, lest they fail after all when spiritually they are at their best. Their good things are not their own, but their country's, and it is for the general good that they must be maintained at their best estate.

How poor they are as regards financial need becomes more manifest every day. They are facing deficits of one hundred, two hundred, three hundred thousand dollars on a single year's operations of single institutions.

The difficulties are intensified by the increased demands upon our scientific laboratories. These are normally the most costly part of a university's equipment, but now the scientific trend of modern warfare is increasing the demand upon them, with every likelihood that that demand will be multiplied fourfold, and it may well be twentyfold, by the new demands of modern industries when the claims of war shall be withdrawn.

More insistently than ever, then, institutions of higher education must now call aloud for financial help. But they do not ask for help as mendicants, whose miserable condition may arouse pity, but as those honored by a call to high and necessary employment, who are glad of their opportunity, would lay hands on the tools and implements that shall enable them to render their employment worthy of the occasion and in full measure serviceable.

WHO WAS "ME, TOO"?

Some Memories of the Famous Senate Controversy.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your recent editorial article in regard to the petty and petulant resignation of Senators Conkling and Platt in 1881 in the fight with Garfield, over an implied affront to Senatorial dignity, by the appointment of Robertson as Collector of the Port of New York, prompts me to tell a little story of that event, which has never before been printed, but it does not establish the identity of "Me, too."

When I was publishing The Berkshire County Eagle in Pittsfield, Mass., in 1887-9, I enjoyed and appreciated the cordial acquaintance and friendship of Senator Henry L. Dawes, in his home town, and he was a man of great ability and profound judgment in most important matters, and his opinion was always held in high esteem in all public affairs. One day, by a little encouragement, Senator Dawes fell into a little reminiscent talk, and told about an incident concerning the Conkling controversy with Garfield. I must rely upon my memory, but as it has been used for about sixty-four years in newspaper practice, it works quite as perfectly as less matured faculties of the kind, and at that time The Eagle had some voice in public affairs.

Mr. Dawes said that on the Saturday before the Monday when Conkling and Platt resigned, he was walking along Pennsylvania Avenue in Washington, carrying an umbrella, when Senator Conkling was passing along in a carriage, and, seeing Mr. Dawes, he stopped and came to the sidewalk, to ask Mr. Dawes's opinion and advice in regard to the controversy, which had become a subject of nation-wide interest. Mr. Dawes said they stood there for more than an hour discussing the subject, and he said that, as Mr. Conkling had asked for his advice, he concluded to give it with frank sincerity. The business of Congress, and of the country, in fact, had been deadlocked by Conkling's unyielding opposition to the confirmation of Robertson's appointment, and I think it had lasted for six or eight weeks, and the tension was increasing. Mr. Dawes said that he told Senator Conkling that if he would go into the Senate on Monday and declare that for the welfare of the country he would overlook established Senatorial privileges and yield the Senatorial prerogative, and move to proceed to business, thus ending the long deadlock, he would instantly win the commendation and good-will of the entire country, and his name and fame would ring from Maine to California, and that in 1884 his name would command attention. Mr. Dawes said that he showed how the country had been impressed and affected by the lingering and wavering controversy, was not in sympathy with the obstructionists, and there was a most inviting opportunity to win or recover the favor of the people, and even that of the Administration.

Mr. Dawes said that Mr. Conkling seemed to be deeply impressed with the advice and the advantages of the suggested action, and when they parted after the long interview on the street Mr. Dawes said he felt very confident that Mr. Conkling would accept the advice, and that the harmful deadlock would be happily ended. In fact, Mr. Conkling had said that he believed it would be the wisest course to pursue. But, greatly to the astonishment of Mr. Dawes, the resignations of Conkling and Platt were sent to the Senate on Monday. Whether Mr. Platt changed the course of events may never be known, but the popular impression at the time was that Conkling led the retreat, and "Me, Too, T. Platt" obediently followed in his footsteps. But the act was as fatal to Conkling's political life as the big blizzard of 1888 was to his physical existence.

ENEMY ARTISTS IN GERMANY

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It may be appropriate at this time, in connection with the arrest of Dr. Karl Muck, to recall the treatment accorded to artists of enemy citizenship by Germany during the war.

At the outbreak of the war, a great many foreign artists were resident or traveling in Germany. With few exceptions they were seized and placed in internment camps. Later they were concentrated in Ruhleben. These men were not seized for cause, but merely because they were citizens of countries against which Germany had declared war. Dr. Muck was arrested for cause nearly one year after declaration of war against Germany.

The writer surveyed the Ruhleben camp in 1916, and was never able to understand why the general conditions of this wretched camp did not arouse protest on the part of German artists against such treatment of fellow-artists. The Ruhleben internment camp is located in a race track to the west of Berlin. Here were thrown together painters, sculptors, musicians, singers, actors, university professors and a great many business men, to whom [illegible] gradually added the crews of merchant ships and trawlers captured at sea. Here were also gamblers, jockeys, and prize fighters; and criminals from England and France, who had found a haven in Germany before the war. These men were of all ages, from boys of 16 to men of over 65. The quarters were crowded, dirty, inadequately heated; the roofs leaked and were never repaired; all of the equipment was of the crudest and most primitive type; the men were literally herded in. Ambassador Gerard upon repeated occasions in diplomatic documents, and later in public, protested against the conditions, which were carefully surveyed and described in a report by the Boston lawyer, Ellis Loring Dresel, now attached to the American Legation in Berne. The food conditions were entirely inadequate, both from the standpoint of quality and quantity, although this made less difference with the men since most of the interned men were supplied with food from the outside. In the camp were hundreds of so-called pro-German Englishmen, whose fathers were British subjects who living in Germany had married German women, and the children born in Germany were technically British subjects, though most of them had never been outside of Germany and could not speak a word of English. These men were given relief from the conditions of their own camp through the aid of a fund raised by Prince Max of Baden. The camp was also liberally sprinkled with German spies.

The British organized the camp in the most energetic fashion, and made life as bearable as possible. George Ferguson, the well known vocal teacher, gave lessons to aspiring voices that he had discovered in the camp, and was one of the kitchen managers.

Most of these men were of no military value whatsoever. Nothing was gained to Germany by keeping them in Germany; no military gain could have come to the enemy by permitting their release. Practically speaking, every artist of enemy citizenship in Germany was interned, and interned under conditions that bespoke no consideration of his antecedents or qualities. With this must be contrasted the situation in the United States. Except when arrested for cause, German artists have been permitted freely to continue their normal lives in our midst. To what extent they have abused this very exceptional privilege, the writer is unable to state. To what extent Karl Muck has violated the trust reposed in his honor is for determination by competent authorities. When interned, alien enemies are assigned adequate, comfortable, and well-equipped quarters in agreeable and sanitary surroundings, and are provided with proper subsistence. The distinction in treatment of artists, simply on the basis of enemy citizenship, has certainly been striking enough to convince one, if that were still necessary, that the point of view of the military authorities in Germany and in the United States is as far apart as our respective conceptions of the rôle of war in its relation to civilization.

"When the Germans Take Arras—"

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The town of Arras being almost daily mentioned in the accounts from "over there," this little episode may not be quite out of place.

When the French took the town from the Spanish in 1640 they found the following inscription, which had been engraved by the Spaniards upon one of the gates of the town:

"Quand les Francais prendront Arras
Les souris mangeront les rats."
("When the French take Arras,
Mice will feed upon rats.")

"When the French surrender Arras,

Victory in Defeat.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

An editorial note in THE TIMES of March 30 says: "What's the good of a nation when it lets itself be beaten and enslaved by barbarians?" Although this referred to ancient Athens, may it not be taken to apply also to modern Belgium, especially in view of the context of the editorial note? Is it not much more to the purpose to say:

"What is a man (or a nation) profited if he shall gain the whole world and lose his soul?"

Has any one any doubt that Belgium and the spirit of Belgium will live when Prussia and the Prussian spirit are but dim memories, the occasion or challenge of Belgium's greatness?

The soul of the little nation that dared to keep its faith will ever be alive; an inspiration to the entire world. It has lost much, but it has gained more. And that which it has lost is transient, but that which it has gained is imperishable. It is in the things of the spirit that a nation really finds its treasure. Can any one doubt that Cardinal Mercier is a more precious possession than Hindenburg or Tirpitz?

A French Officer's Opinion.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Perhaps you will like to publish this as encouragement to our men just starting overseas and, too, it should help their women they are leaving behind. It was in a letter I had from a Frenchwoman this morning:

"I dined with a French officer last evening who had been at the front by the side of your American men in their first battle. He said, 'They were splendid!' and that he was perfectly delighted with them.

"I knew it would be so. I have perfect faith in your men, so I was not surprised to hear this."

SOLDIERS' PARCELS.

Difficulties of the New War Department Order.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A situation has developed which I think is due to a mistaken interpretation by the Post Office Department of the War Department's regulation with regard to shipments of packages to our boys on the other side. The War Department order, dated March 26, 1918, reads as follows:

In future, shipments of any articles to members of the American Expeditionary Forces abroad will be limited to those articles which have been requested by the individual to whom same are to be shipped, such request having been approved by his regimental or higher commander. Parcel post shipments will be accepted by the Post Office authorities and other shipments by express or freight companies only upon presentation of the above-approved request in each individual case.

The Post Office Department regulation reads:

Postmasters must secure the assurance of the sender in each case that all the articles contained in the parcel are sent at the addressee's approved written request, and that such request is inclosed in the parcel, by requiring the sender to place on the wrapper of the parcel under his name and address the following indorsement: "This parcel contains only articles sent at approved request of addressee, which is inclosed."

Now, it is obvious that all the War Department order actually says is that in each individual case the Post Office is entitled to see the request, duly approved, but it does not say that each individual shipment must be based upon a fresh request and that that request, being inclosed in the package, becomes functus and can no longer be used. If the War Department meant that, it imposes not only upon the soldiers and their parents, but upon the regimental commanders, an intolerable, vexatious detail burden.

It seems to me that the Post Office Department ought to interpret the War Department's order as indicating in the case of any individual soldier or officer that he may give to his father or friend a written request, duly countersigned as required, which could be pasted on a pasteboard card and presented when each parcel is sent to him, in order that the Post Office may satisfy itself there is nothing being sent over that is not covered by the request, although some weeks the parent might not care to comply with the entire request. For example, the boys want batteries for their trench lights, or they want cubes for their little heaters, or they want stated supplies of tobacco or chocolate. Judging from what has occurred heretofore, if the request must come from the other side and be actually inclosed in the parcel and not be capable of being used a second time, then the soldier or officer has to write his request, get a special O K on it from his regimental commander and trust it to the army mail, and it may be six weeks or more before the request can be satisfied.

I have four sons in the service, and it is obvious that there is no purpose of using the mail facilities unreasonably, but that I am interested in this proposition; and a fortnightly package to each one of the soldiers from his family on the basis suggested above would not be unreasonable. It might be perfectly fair for the Post Office Department to say that a head of a family, signing a recognizance not to send any articles other than those specified in the order, unless it should be at some time modified with similar formalities, would be permitted to send not oftener than once a fortnight a package to each of his sons, or members of his immediate family abroad, provided that each individual shipment did not exceed a smaller limit than the parcel post is now, say two or three pounds.

It seems to me that when the regulations as they are now framed come to be understood by the people, and the complaints begin to come in from the other side, the unfairness thereof will become manifest to the people generally, and it would be easier to change the plan now.

War Bread.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In today's TIMES your correspondent "M. R. W." complains that the war bread she gets is unpalatable. You might print the following directions for making bread that my family like better than wheat bread; it is well to know that of all the wheat substitutes, oats contains the most gluten and consequently rises best: 2 large cups of rolled oats, 2 large cups of unsifted wheat flour, 2 cups of water, 2 tablespoons shortening, 1 saltspoon salt, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 cake compressed yeast, evaporated milk.

Soak the oats four or five hours in one and one-half cups of water. At bedtime dissolve the yeast for fifteen minutes in one-half cup of water. Add to the oats the yeast, salt, sugar, and melted shortening, and stir well. Then add the wheat flour and enough evaporated milk to make a stiff dough. Knead for five minutes and set in a moderate temperature all night. In the morning knead again for five minutes, form into rolls or loaves, and set in a warm place until it rises to twice its size, first greasing the top with lard or other shortening. Bake in a moderate oven. There is no mystery about bread-making, and homemade bread is better and cheaper than bakery bread, and takes very little time and work.

A New Army.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

With the entrance of America into the world war it seemed as though the last great accession of resources for the Allies had been reached. Further contribution on a large scale could not be looked for. Yet within the last week a new army is being formed. If we count the members of political parties, when they throw off their separate endeavors and amalgamate for some paramount issue, a new party, with equal certainty we may consider the co-ordination of the allied armies on the western front under one command a new army. The vastness of the war is such that, large as the various armies were, each representing a nation's force, the arrangement was too parochial to meet the world-war need. Thus this new army which I venture to name the "Army of Civilization" has come into being. God speed the new army!

Humanity with all its fears,
With all the hopes of future years,
Is hanging breathless on thy fate!

THEIR IDEA OF PEACE

By DENYS P. MYERS,
Corresponding Secretary World Peace Foundation.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Several quotations have recently come to my attention so aptly illustrating militarism as it is practiced in Germany that they deserve attention together. Peace negotiations are usually assumed to mean negotiations for a state of peace, but the German conception is apparently otherwise. Richard von Kühlmann, the Foreign Secretary, speaking at the sitting of the Main Committee of the Reichstag on Jan. 25, when the first negotiations at Brest-Litovsk were still under way, said:

I should like to say one word with regard to the representatives of the Supreme Army Command in the peace delegation. In the last two comparatively short wars of 1866 and 1870 the peace negotiations brought the responsible military authorities and the responsible statesmen into daily and hourly touch in one place, frequently even under one roof. The peace negotiations were short, and only had to be concluded with one opponent. In the present position it would be entirely impossible to conduct negotiations without the Supreme Army Command being represented by a plenipotentiary. I should like, too, unconditionally, to adhere to the view that the representative of the Supreme Army Command must retain the right to insist on the observance, to the extent now fixed by his Majesty, of the Chancellor's proposals.

The next day he made a second speech replying to questions raised in debate, a portion of which is thus summarized:

Baron von Camp asks whether the peace conditions for the East were discussed with the chief army authorities. The character (Gestaltung) of our allies in the East formed the object of very detailed deliberations, and, especially before the beginning of the negotiations, in very frequent exchanges of views between the political and chief military leaders. The intimate connection between the peace delegation and the chief army authorities is as perfect as is at all possible with the imperfection of human things.

Chancellor Hertling, speaking of Poland on Feb. 25, stated:

The announcement of the peace with the Ukraine at first caused unrest in Poland, (with respect to boundaries.) However, I hope that with good-will it will be possible, by taking ethnographical conditions into just consideration, to arrive at a compromise of all claims. The announced intention of making an earnest effort in this direction has already led to a marked feeling of quiet in Polish circles, a thing which I take satisfaction in noting. Germany will, when it comes to settling the boundary question, only demand that which is absolutely required by military considerations.

In the same speech he asserted an intention toward portions of Russia as being peaceful, and after explaining intervention in the Ukraine stated:

We do not intend to establish ourselves in Esthonia or Livonia. [Hear! Hear!—on the Left.] but merely entertain the desire to live after the war on friendly, neighborly terms with the political organizations which we find there. [Bravo!—Left.] Regarding Courland and Lithuania, I need say nothing today. It is a question of furnishing to the populations of those countries organs for their self-determination and self-administration, or to strengthen those already being built up. [Very correct.] We look with calmness toward their further development.

The reference to Courland and Lithuania can be profitably read in connection with a passage from the speech of the Austro-Hungarian Minister for Foreign Affairs before the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Austrian Delegation on Jan. 24. Citing a difference of opinion at Brest-Litovsk over self-determination for German-occupied territories of Russia, Count Czernin said:

"Russia demands that the plebiscite should take place after all German troops and administrative organs have vacated the occupied provinces, while Germany contends that by such evacuation, carried through to its extreme consequence, a vacuum would have been created, which undoubtedly would bring about irrevocably complete anarchy and the greatest misery. Here it must be explained that everything which today allows political life in the occupied provinces is German property. The railways, posts, telegraph, all industries and administrative parts of police and justice are in German hands."

AMERICANIZING CHILDREN.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The National Conference of School Superintendents at Atlantic City was largely taken up with the momentous problem of Americanization of the foreigners who live among us. A number of educators of nation-wide reputation spoke upon this subject and we came away with a feeling of disappointment because in some cases they failed to grasp the significance of the problem and in other cases confused the problem with issues that are quite distinct from Americanization in the usual interpretation of the term.

Wild statements were made concerning the menace of the foreign-born in our country from the standpoint of disease. These statements were not definite enough to show exactly what was in the mind of the speakers, but the impression was conveyed that every colony of foreign-born in this country is a positive menace to the health of the rest of the community.

I could not help thinking of our own children with whom we deal. During the epidemic of poliomyelitis, which occurred during the Summer of 1916, out of over 6,000 children who attended the nurseries, kindergartens, and schools of the Children's Aid Society, only three had the disease. Since we take the children into our nurseries when they are just able to walk, and most of our schools do not run above a 4A grade, you will see that we had many children who were of the ages afflicted by the disease. A year ago the Italian school of the Children's Aid Society, containing 1,200 children, was subjected to the Shick test for diphtheria. The report given at the conclusion of the tests was that only 15 per cent. of our children in that building were susceptible to diphtheria.

Incidents like these make one feel that either general statements relative to the menace of immigrants from the standpoint of health are dangerous to make, or that the type of work the Children's Aid Society is doing rapidly corrects this menace. My own experience seems to indicate that the foreign immigrant and first generation of children are enviably healthy. Of course, the continued living of the immigrant under the wretched conditions under which many of them now live would seem likely to bring about a health problem sooner or later. This is, however, a question of housing conditions which is wholly distinct from the question of Americanization.

Another phase of the problem seems to be the stress laid upon the ability of the foreigner to speak the English language. This may be a vital problem in some sections of our country, but it seems of less importance in the problem of Americanization in New York City, because our city schools are overcoming it rapidly in so far as the children are concerned.

One of the causes which tend to make the problem of Americanization an acute one at the present time is the fact that during this war there has been an element in our country which has failed to rally to the support of the Government, and in some cases there has been positive opposition to the Government, and even attempts to interfere with the Government's successful prosecution of the war. It seems, however, that where outbreaks have occurred and the perpetrators have been discovered, they have been found to belong to an element in our population which is able to meet all tests that might be applied, such as ability to speak the English language, or to meet educational requirements.

The problem of Americanization then simmers down to one of attitude to society. Recognizing the importance of the problem, I wish to point out that the solution lies in a cultivation of the social side of the foreigners.

When Mr. Butcher of our Newsboys' Lodging House places 2,623 volunteers of all nationalities, particularly of foreign parents, in the American Army and Navy it shows the problem of Americanization can be solved if we go about it in the proper way. Our Children's Aid Society schools are made up largely of Italians, Russians, and Bohemians, and a visit to those schools would convince the most unsympathetic observer that we are producing good American citizens. But we do not secure these results with a club, and any attempts to club these foreigners into becoming good Americans through such suggested plans as ability to pass a test in the English language, or through fixed educational requirements which single them out and make them attend special evening schools or continuation schools which are not intended to apply to all the population equally, will only result in alienating their sympathies. The first step in Americanizing the foreigner is to secure his confidence, and this cannot be forced.

The children in the schools of the Children's Aid Society, although almost wholly of foreign-born parentage, are, under our encouragement, purchasing Liberty bonds and thrift stamps, making sheets and bandages for hospitals, material of all kinds for the Red Cross, displaying Service Flags, singing patriotic and war songs, joining boy scouts and girl scouts, translating war menus into foreign languages, which they take home with them, learning to eat and like American food and cooking, through the daily lunches furnished them, and imbibing ideals of democracy exactly as other red-blooded American boys and girls. Even alien mothers are sewing in our mothers' clubs for our boys "over there."

An important phase of the difficulty of Americanizing the immigrants is the crowding in colonies of people from the same foreign country and the lack of mingling of these people with others with its resulting mutual respect and sympathy. The best method of attack here seems through extending and enlarging our present plan of sending our school children to the country or seashore for a vacation each Summer. This fresh-air movement throws together children of different nationalities all in a new and different environment, which is approached by each in the spirit of a new adventure. Each is thus in a receptive attitude, and under the wise direction of right leaders all barriers are broken down unconsciously.

In this way American standards of food and living are established. These children work in school gardens, raise, help, prepare, and then eat the vegetables indigenous to this section of the country, and when they return at the end of their vacation they frequently carry home loads of the same vegetables. During the Summer the children meet at a community table, observe the same hours of retiring and rising, sleep under the same hygienic conditions, play the same games in the daytime, sing the same songs, salute the same flag, are under the influence of loyal American teachers, and return to their homes, believing that this country is the best place in the world, and determined to do their part to help keep it so.

May I therefore suggest that the solution of the problem of Americanizing the children of the aliens can best be approached through neighborhood centres similar to the Italian school of the Children's Aid Society, and by Summer activities like those of the society's fresh-air department. I suggest that the attention of all organizations interested in Americanization be directed to the efforts of the Children's Aid Society for accomplishing the aims toward which we are all striving.

Unfortunately these efforts only reach a limited number of the immigrants. We need financial help to enlarge and develop this vital effort to Americanize the children in the tenements and to reach the mothers and fathers through the children. If patriotic individuals and organizations will aid us with large contributions the Children's Aid Society has the experience and the right method of solving the problem.

Secretary Children's Aid Society.

MAYOR IS ENJOINED IN PIER LEASE DEAL

Frank McGoey, a Friend of Hylan's Secretary, in Concern Which Won Bid.

HIS COMPANY NOT KNOWN

Bristol Line Says Its Offer of $30,000 for the Property Is a Matter of Record.

Mayor Hylan and other city officials who voted on Thursday at a meeting of the Sinking Fund Commission to lease Pier 60, North River, to the Hudson Dock and Terminal Corporation, at a yearly rental of $25,000, although the Bristol City Line, which is handling munitions for the British Government, bid $5,000 more, received notice yesterday that the latter company had obtained an injunction from Supreme Court Justice Hotchkiss restraining the City of New York, Dock Commissioner Murray Hulbert, and the Hudson Dock and Terminal Corporation from leasing the pier to the Hudson concern. The injunction is returnable before Justice Hotchkiss next Tuesday.

Officials of the Bristol Company, which is a subsidiary of the Occident Dock Company, in affidavits filed with the court stated that as far back as March 22 they made an offer of $30,000 to Dock Commissioner Hulbert for the rental of the pier, although Mayor Hylan, Commissioner Hulbert and Controller Craig asserted that no such offer had been received until the last moment. James Arkell, President of the Occident Dock Company, in an affidavit directly accused Commissioner Hulbert of blocking the company's attempt to get a release of the pier, although they were willing to pay $5,000 more than the Hudson Dock concern. Both the Mayor and Controller Craig issued statements yesterday defending their course in voting to give the lease to the latter company. Commissioner Hulbert went to Washington yesterday.

Name McGoey in Concern.

Although the identity of the men behind the Hudson Dock and Terminal Corporation remained considerable of a mystery, despite the fact that George W. Field of Platt & Field, attorneys for the Bristol City Line, had started an investigation to find out just who is interested in the concern, it was learned that Frank McGoey of Far Rockaway, who is connected with the Columbia Oil Company of Bayonne, N. J., and mentioned as one of the organizers of the Hudson Company, is a close friend of Grover A. Whalen, secretary to Mayor Hylan; was one of the organizers of the Hylan Business Men's League, and contributed $500 to Mayor Hylan's campaign last Fall.

Secretary Whalen was asked if he knew anything of the report that Mr. McGoey was a friend of "Big Bill" Devery of Far Rockaway and that Mr. Devery was connected with the Hudson Dock concern.

"I do not know," he replied.

It was also learned yesterday that the Hudson Dock and Terminal Corporation was organized on Feb. 18, last, and that the names of three Directors appeared as Daniel F. Murray of 372 Avenue C, Bayonne; John McCarthy of 750 Boulevard, Bayonne, and William H. Anthony of 241 West Fourteenth Street, New York City. The stockholders were given as Allan E. Moore of 37 Wall Street, owner of three shares, and S. C. T. Dodd of 2,225 Ditmas Avenue, Brooklyn, and F. H. Butehorn of 764 St. John's Park, Brooklyn, each owner of one share. The capital stock of the concern was given as $5,000, with the statement that it began business on $500. It was also learned that Moore, Dodd, and Butehorn were mere "dummies," having been named as stockholders when the concern was incorporated by the Corporation Company of 37 Wall Street, and that all three resigned and turned their stock over to Company. The officials of the Corporation

Furnished Temporary Directors.

At the office of the Corporation Company it was said yesterday that that company only filed the papers for the Hudson concern; that it was not financially interested, and that, after it had furnished the necessary men to act as Directors until such time as the real Directors took the concern over, it had no further connection with the Hudson Company. The officials of the Corporation Company and Allan E. Moore, one of the "dummy" Directors, who is a clerk, 22 years of age, said they had no idea who the men back of the Hudson Company were.

Daniel F. Murray, one of the Directors of the Hudson Company, is an employe at the Columbia Oil Company's plant at Bayonne, which is said to have closed down. When investigators called at the Murray home yesterday and asked what connection Mr. Murray had with the Hudson Dock concern they were informed by a Mrs. Murray that they had "better see Mr. McGoey." Mrs. Murray went on:

"Whatever it is, Mr. McGoey is the boss and has put Mr. Murray in."

As disproving the statement of Dock Commissioner Hulbert that he did not know of the offer of the Bristol City Company to pay $30,000 rental for the pier until the last moment and too late to prevent the lease going to the Hudson concern, President Arkell of the Occident Dock Company in his affidavit filed first with the Sinking Fund Commission and later with Supreme Court Justice Hotchkiss stated that prior to April, 1913, the annual rental of Pier 60 was but $12,500, but since then it has been $15,000. On March 4 last he said he applied in person to Dock Commissioner Hulbert, in company with Ely J. Blair of counsel for the company, for a renewal of the lease, beginning May 1. He said the Dock Commissioner told him it was necessary to submit an offer and the Sinking Fund Commission would consider it. On March 21, he said, the Dock Commissioner's secretary wrote to Mr. Blair, wanting to know what determination had been reached. The next day, the affidavit goes on, Mr. Blair conferred with the Dock Commissioner, who advised Mr. Blair to submit an offer of $35,000. Mr. Blair, the affidavit states, wrote to the Commissioner that the company was willing to pay $30,000 for the lease, but received word that Commissioner Hulbert was out of the city, with the suggestion that Mr. Blair call later.

The Mayor's statement yesterday regarding the matter was as follows:

Mayor Says Hulbert Acted Wisely.

"In proposing to lease Pier 60, North River, at $25,000 a year, the Dock Commissioner acted wisely and well, notwithstanding the false impression that some newspapers have willingly accepted and eagerly sought to spread.

"The public must learn to read between the lines and not be misled by the specious arguments of those who have private axes to grind. The Dock Commissioner has increased the city's revenue not less than $10,000 a year, but there is no word of commendation for that.

"The situation as I see it is this: By special favor heretofore a private interest has been continuously permitted to use one of the city's docks for $15,000 a year, although there is no question that the privilege was worth at least $25,000 a year.

"Commissioner Hulbert tried to get the agents of the Bristol City Line to agree to a reasonable rental as a condition to a renewal of their privilege. Instead of meeting him fairly they shuffled around and evaded making a definite offer. In the meantime the Commissioner accepted another offer of $25,000 a year. Then the Bristol City agents realizing that in their greed and cunning they had over-reached themselves, came forward and made a definite offer. It may be possible that they had come to regard their one-sided bargain as a vested right which gave them an especial claim for official consideration. They know differently now.

"Let the taxpayers remember that the vicious criticism that has been made in this case is not inspired by any regard for their welfare. The paid agents and attorneys of a private interest who would not have found any fault with a continuance of the old condition are professionally bitter at the idea of their clients losing the good thing they have so long enjoyed at the public expense.

"We may discover other instances where the city's interests have suffered in like manner and the example thus given may be regarded as a fair warning to any who may be inclined to pursue similar tactics in their dealings with this administration."

Controller Craig in his statement recited the fact that the Occident Dock Company had held the lease on Pier 60 for several years, and said that it neglected to submit an offer to pay more money until April 10, when the Sinking Fund Commission received its offer of $30,000. He added:

"The innuendo so vigorously thrown out by the Occident Dock Company that political influence figured in the matter is without any justification whatever."

TO COMBINE TICKET OFFICES

Plan for Joint Agencies to Cut Railroad Expenses.

Plans to comply with the recent request of Director General McAdoo for the closing of branch railroad ticket offices during the period of Government control of transportation lines in order to cut down expenses were discussed yesterday in the rooms of the Trunk Line Association, 143 Liberty Street, by a special committee representing the lines east of Chicago and St. Louis.

George A. Cullen, Passenger Traffic Manager of the Lackawanna Railroad, Chairman of the committee, presided over the meeting. He said: "The ticket-selling agencies will be run on what I may term the department store idea. Here in New York, for example, there will be two union ticket offices established—one in lower Broadway and the other along Broadway at, say, Twenty-eighth Street. The existing individual railroad ticket offices here will thus be merged into the two I have mentioned."

NEW YORK ALLIANCE QUITS.

Henry Weismann Says German-Americans Will Be Patriots.

The New York State Chapter of the National German-American Alliance has dissolved. Henry Weismann, President of the State organization, yesterday said:

"Letters will be sent tomorrow to all local branches urging them to go out of existence as German-American organizations and to become patriotic societies, working for the Liberty Loan and educating people to justice of America's cause. I was personally in favor of dissolving the organization and the Executive Committee was practically unanimous for it. We felt that the name of the organization laid it open to unjust charges that it lacked patriotism or favored our enemies. I believe that all other State organizations of the German-American Alliance will take similar steps."

STICKS TO $2.50 WHEAT.

Senate Favors the Increase, but House Prepares to Fight.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—In the controversy over increase of the Government minimum guarantee price for wheat to $2.50 per bushel, the Senate late today again recorded itself in favor of the increase. It adopted the conference report on the $28,000,000 Agricultural Appropriation bill, and by a viva voce vote insisted on retention of the amendment increasing the wheat guarantee. The wheat question now awaits the vote of the House.

Representative Lever of South Carolina, Chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, conferred with President Wilson late today, and said afterward the Senate amendment would be vigorously opposed in the House.

Jerome Av. Line Ordered Opened.

The Public Service Commission has directed the Interborough to put into operation at noon on Monday the last section of the Jerome Avenue elevated branch of the Lexington Avenue subway. Service over part of the line was begun on June 2. The new section will complete the service between Kingsbridge Road and Woodlawn Cemetery. Delay has been caused by difficulty in getting materials for sub-stations of the power houses.

ANTI-PRIMARY BILL DROPPED AT ALBANY

VICTORY FOR WHITMAN

Governor's Friends Believe His Nomination for a Third Term Is Now Assured.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 12.—Elon R. Brown, President pro tempore of the Senate, and the group of lawmakers who stood with him for the restoration of the convention as an agency for the nomination of candidates for State and Judiciary offices, gave up their fight today. Senator Brown himself moved that the Direct Primary Repeal Bill, which was framed by a special committee appointed by him, be recommitted and killed.

"Despite the fact that a large majority of the Senators informed me in personal conversation that they thought the State Convention should be reestablished, I discovered that the bill would not pass the Senate, except through the exertion of personal influence on my part, and I therefore ceased to pursue it further, because I scorn on a question of this kind to secure votes through personal solicitation or through a desire on the part of Senators to gratify me personally," said the Senate leader.

Friends of Governor Whitman pronounced the action in the Senate today a personal triumph for him and tangible evidence of his strength within his own party. From the beginning he has opposed changing the method of making nominations, while many Republicans of undoubted influence and sincerity, among them prominent lawyers speaking for the Bar Association, had advocated the enactment of the measure. With the nominations for State offices this Fall made at the primaries the Governor's friends regard his renomination for a third term as good as assured.

Says Whitman Violated Pledges.

Senator Brown, speaking in support of his motion, declared that Governor Whitman violated solemn party pledges embodied in the platform on which he ran in 1914. The Senate leader advanced this as proof of the futility of "unofficial" conventions, the only kind authorized under the direct primary law. He declared that disorganization and lack of party principles had followed the abandonment of the official convention system.

"I have not agreed with the Governor upon this subject," said Senator Brown.

Senator Brown in his speech urged the pressing need of restoring the old system before the two leading parties held another National Convention.

"I was anxious that the legislation should be passed for several reasons," said Senator Brown. "One was that I had perceived that here had been great disorganization in relation to public issues in the State as we attempted to solve them through party government. I felt that we were growing more and more disorganized. There have not been in many years more important issues pending in this State than at present.

"I will illustrate to you by calling up the subject of municipal ownership and the great problem of taxation now remaining substantially unsolved. Upon these questions there is no party alignment. There has been no opportunity for the parties of the State to declare themselves upon these issues.

National Issues Mixed.

"In national issues the case is even more distressing. There was never a time in the history of this country when the issues pending before the country were more important than they are today, even limiting it to the issues that arise by reason of the present war. When that war closes there will be other and greater issues that the people will be determined shall be solved, and if we are to solve them under party government there must be a representative system of party government, so that the representatives of the different parties, when they sit in the legislative halls, shall know the policy of the party in power.

"It has been suggested that we should have unofficial conventions to express the will of the people. We have had a number of unofficial conventions in this State, and they have proved not only to be unofficial but to be unrepresentative and to be nullities and empty, and if such a convention is held this year by either party it will be recognized as an idle thing."

DEMANDS ROUNDUP OF "TAX SLACKERS"

Commissioner's Report Says It Is a Patriotic Duty to Expose Those Who Evade Levy.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—All taxpayers were called upon today by Internal Commissioner Roper to help round up "tax slackers" who have not made returns to revenue collectors. In a nation-wide drive against delinquents, the Commissioner expects to gather millions of dollars in taxes.

"All delinquents will be promptly and vigorously prosecuted," said the commissioner in a statement. "There is no difference between the slacker in military service and the slacker from tax duty. Both in effect are disloyal to their Government."

At the same time, the commissioner suggested that persons who neglected to file returns by April 1 and hasten to fulfill their duty now may avoid the usual penalties and danger of prosecution.

"The most important thing in taxation," he said, "is equity in distributing the tax burden. It is difficult to conceive that any one should endeavor to escape his share of the levy made for the prosecution of a war in defense of Christian civilization. It is the duty of every man who has paid his tax to cooperate with us in locating the tax slacker.

"If a taxpayer has reason to believe that any person known to him is a tax slacker, he should report his name to the collector of his district or to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. This kind of co-operation constitutes real war service. It will make for the equalization of the tax burden."

To Determine Debt Limit Anew.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court granted yesterday the application by the present City Government for a new determination as to the city's debt limit on the ground that the earnings from the present subway should be computed in determining the sum which the city can borrow. The present debt limit was fixed before the city began to realize on the subway earnings.

HOME DEFENSE MEN ATTACKED BY HYLAN

Speaking at a review of the Police Reserves at the 13th Regiment Armory, Brooklyn, last night, Mayor Hylan attacked the Mitchel administration and said that after the election last November some $40,490 remaining from $100,000 which had been appropriated to buy overcoats for the Home Defense League had been used for other purposes.

The Home Defense League, organized during the Mitchel administration, was renamed the Police Reserves after Mayor Hylan took office. The Mayor also charged that District Majors and higher officials and staffs of the Home Defense League had "deserted without being relieved" because he [Hylan] had been elected.

The Mayor complimented the organization upon its work in connection with the draft registration, the State military census, registration of enemy aliens, policing big meetings, keeping lines at parades, &c., and went on:

"As members of the Home Defense League you did good work. The rank and file that I see here before me did not let partisanship or social cares interfere with their allegiance to the city or in the performance of duty when the results of the election last November became known."

The Mayor said that politics and "social caste" would not count with him in promotion in the organization, and then accused some of the former members of desertion.

"I am informed District Majors and higher officers and staffs of the Home Defense League deserted without being relieved," he said, "because the electors of this great city chose for the office of Mayor a man who differed from them in political belief.

"Under the previous administration $100,000 were appropriated to buy you overcoats; $59,510 was expended for the purpose for which the money was appropriated. After election, when it was seen that you could be of no more service to the private and personal interests of the members of that administration, the $40,490 remaining of the sum appropriated for your overcoats I understand was used for other purposes."

After the meeting Mayor Hylan refused to give any explanation of his remarks about overcoats, or to say definitely whether he meant to accuse any one of dishonesty.

"The Mayor's statement is an absolute falsehood," said James C. Auchincloss last night when informed of the charges of the Mayor that District Majors and higher officials of the Home Defense League "deserted" when the Mayor was elected.

"Every one of the District Majors, including myself, placed his resignation in the hands of Police Commissioner Bugher on the 31st of December with the understanding that we would serve until he appointed our successors and relieved us of our posts," said Mr. Auchincloss. "Commissioner Bugher refused to accept our resignations and we all remained with the exception of one man, who refused to stay. Mr. Bugher appointed me a special deputy in charge of the Home Defense League and I was in the process of reorganizing it when the Police Commissioner resigned and then I also handed in my resignation.

"I know nothing of the matter of the overcoats, but I am sure that whatever remained over after the coats had been bought was turned back to the proper authorities."

HOLDS CITY ZONING AN "INCUMBRANCE"

Appellate Division Decides That Restriction Prevents Giving 'Free and Clear' Deed.

By a vote of three to two the Appellate Division decided yesterday that the present division of the city into building zones constitutes an incumbrance on property affected by the restrictions prohibiting the erection of business buildings in certain parts of the city, and that a person contracting to sell property "free and clear of all incumbrances," is unable to give such a deed on account of the zoning law. Presiding Justice Clarke, who wrote the minority opinion, with Justice Dowling concurring, ruled that the zoning law is not an incumbrance within the meaning of a contract for the sale of property, but is a police regulation as much as the tenement house law, building code, or other regulations, which have never been held to be incumbrances.

The Lincoln Trust Company, as trustee, sued the Williams Building Corporation to enforce a contract for the purchase of property by the defendant, consisting of a block fronting on St. Nicholas and Edgecombe Avenues.

Justice Smith, who wrote the majority opinion, with Justices Laughlin and Shearn concurring, stated that the defendant had no actual knowledge that the premises in question were in a restricted zone, and says there is no doubt that the restrictions affect the value of the property. The Court says that to hold that the defendant should have had constructive knowledge that the property was restricted "would place on him an unreasonable burden." The Court dismissed the suit to compel the defendant to take the property, and directs the return of the deposit made on signing the contract and the cost of examining the title.

Under the Court ruling all other contracts for the purchase of property in restricted zones will be held valid in the suit of any purchaser if the latter is able to prove lack of knowledge of the restriction.

REVIEW THE NEW SEVENTH.

Gen. Appleton Tells of Achievements in This War of Regiment's Veterans.

Major Gen. Daniel Appleton, Brig. Gen. George R. Dyer, and officers of the New York Guard last night reviewed the new 7th Regiment in its armory at Sixty-sixth Street and Park Avenue in honor of the veterans of the regiment. In a talk to the officers after the review General Appleton reminded them that veterans of the regiment were already in the trenches with the 165th Infantry, the old 69th, and that the names of some of them had been sent in on the casualty lists already. He said that many of the men were also in France as officers with other regiments, "upholding the traditions of this famous command."

Colonel De Witt Clinton Falls presented the Kemp trophy to Company C for excellence in marksmanship for the year and received for the regiment the gift of a fully equipped ambulance for field service. It was announced that these First Lieutenants had been promoted to Captains: Jesse A. B. Smith, Henry H. Pelton, and Robert H. McConnell. The Rev. Dr. Joseph P. McComas has been commissioned Captain and appointed Chaplain.

Cheney Named for P. S. Commission.

ALBANY, April 12.—The nomination of Jerome L. Cheney of Syracuse as a member of the up-State Public Service Commission was sent to the Senate today by Governor Whitman. Upon motion of Senator Walters it was confirmed immediately. Mr. Cheney was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the death of William Temple Emmet.

LEGISLATURE BACKS LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Resolution, Adopted on Taft's Plea, for Peace Safeguard After the War.

FIRST TASK IS TO WIN WAR

Ex-President Advocates Sending an Army of 5,000,000 Americans to France.

ALBANY, April 12.—The New York Legislature, after listening to a stirring war speech by ex-President Taft, today unanimously and enthusiastically adopted a resolution declaring that the State "favors the entrance of the United States, after the war, into a league of nations to safeguard the peace that must be won by the joint military forces of the allied nations."

The resolution in full follows:

Whereas, The most important task before the United States is to win the war; and

Whereas, The war will not be won until the peaceful development of all free peoples is guaranteed by the strength of their own will; therefore be it

Resolved, By the Legislature of the State of New York, both houses concurring, that the State of New York pledges all its resources to the vigorous prosecution of the war until Prussian autocracy has been defeated; and be it further

Resolved, That the State of New York favors the entrance of the United States after the war into a league of nations to safeguard the peace that must be won by the joint military forces of the allied nations; and be it further

Resolved, That certified copies of these resolutions be sent by the Secretary of State to the President and to the presiding officers of both branches of Congress and each of the Senators and Representatives from New York.

Mr. Taft spoke before a joint session of the Legislature, which was attended by Governor Whitman and by a crowd that filled the Assembly Chamber. He advocated that the United States as soon as possible put into the western battlefront an army of from 5,000,000 to 7,000,000 men. This probably would take two years or more, he said.

"When we get our army of 5,000,000 men abroad," he declared, "the victory is won. We'll occupy the centre of that terrible battle front, and we'll bear the brunt of the struggle as we should after our allies have been fighting our battles for the last three years.

"I have traveled about this country a great deal recently, and this one fact is uppermost in my mind as a result of my observations: The one big thing for which the hearts of our people are yearning, the one factor for which they are willing to sacrifice all, is that when this war ends in victory for our cause and the cause of the Allies, a repetition of this dastardly effort on the part of William Hohenzollern and the Potsdam gang will be impossible in the lifetime of this generation or of many generations to come."

Mr. Taft then asked the Legislature for some concrete expression of approval of a plan for a league of nations, which would see to it that a second world war was an impossibility. The adoption of the resolution offered by Chairman Sage of the Senate Finance Committee was the result.

Mr. Taft spoke at two other meetings today and tonight.

ACCUSED AS A SPENDTHRIFT

New Proceeding Against Robinson, Who Inherited $500,000.

Ten years after a jury in the Supreme Court had decided that George Hyatt Robinson was incompetent to care for his property because he was an inveterate drunkard and spendthrift, which ruling was set aside later and Robinson restored to control of his property, he must again appear in similar proceedings, as the result of an order signed yesterday by Justice Hotchkiss directing that his present mental condition be determined.

The petitioner now is Robinson's Secretary, Walter R. Byrne, aided by the alleged incompetent's present wife, Mrs. Mary Marion Robinson. The latter quoted from an affidavit made in the first proceeding by Mrs. Marion Hall Robinson, then the alleged spendthrift's wife, asserting that he was "an idler and absolutely irresponsible." The present Mrs. Robinson says she finds no change in her husband's condition.

Robinson inherited more than $500,000 from his mother and an aunt, but because of his habits the property is tied up in such a manner that his Secretary says "he has pawned his clothing, is almost compelled to beg daily for a dollar or two, and will do almost anything to get a dollar." Robinson is now 31 years old.

GREEKS ENTER A PROTEST.

Says Bulgarians and Turks Seek to Shut Them Out.

The Central Committee of Unredeemed Greeks, at Athens, has forwarded to all allied and neutral Governments a protest against the methods employed by Bulgarians and Turks to eliminate the Greek population in Macedonia, Thrace and Asia Minor, so that at the peace conference after the war Bulgaria and Turkey may claim these territories on racial grounds. John Stephanides, a lawyer, of 27 William Street, has received by a cable a copy of the protest, signed by M. Kyriakidis, President of the committee.

5,851 Treated at Throat Hospital.

The forty-fifth annual report of the Metropolitan Throat Hospital, whose building is at 351 West Thirty-fourth Street, shows that 5,851 treatments were given at the hospital last year. Dr. G. B. Hope, the Medical Superintendent, reported that the hospital was ready to contribute its resources to the Government for the treatment of soldiers and sailors, and that various official requests had been made in behalf of the Government regarding the question of using the hospital.

Sun Alumni Association to Dine.

The fourteenth annual dinner of The Sun Alumni Association will be served this evening at the Salmagundi Club, 47 Fifth Avenue. The addresses will consist of an intimate talk by Will Irwin, the war correspondent, a former member of The Sun staff, and informal talks by other former Sun men. George Barry Mallon, for many years city editor of The Sun, President of the association, will preside.

RULES AGAINST CHAPLIN.

Court Continues Attachment in Suit for $500,000.

Supreme Court Justice Guy denied yesterday an application by counsel for Charlie Chaplin, movie star, to vacate the service of papers and to set aside an attachment in a $500,000 breach of contract suit brought by the Essanay Film Manufacturing Company on the ground that Chaplin had agreed to direct and appear in eight pictures for the First Exhibitors' Circuit, for which he is to get $1,075,000, although he is still under contract to the plaintiff.

The papers were served on Chaplin at a Liberty Loan meeting at the Sub-Treasury, and the application to set aside the service of the papers was based on the allegation that he was immune from legal process because he came here from his home in California at Secretary McAdoo's request, solely for the purpose of aiding in the Liberty Loan drive.

Justice Guy refused to vacate the service of the papers, saying that if he did so "every debtor would be touring the country and asking exemption on that ground."

IF the free peoples of the earth are not to become toiling millions for the Prussian Junkers and the Prussian Krupps, if they are not to be terror-ridden slaves at the mercy of a German Kaiser's will, Prussianism must be driven back within its own borders and kept there.

That is why the war must be fought on European soil. We are fighting in Europe now that we may not have to fight in America, on the very thresholds of our own homes, later.

We are fighting for the safety and liberty of our children, our homes, our country. No price is too great to pay for Victory.

Americans, you are called upon to back our armies in France, to furnish them the guns and shells and ships and airplanes, the enormous quantities of every sort of supplies that they must have to defeat the Prussian armies and drive them back across the Rhine.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

If the financial community had not realized the gravity of the crisis raised by the determined effort of the enemy to bring the war to a close before the strength of America can come to the support of the Allies, and prepared itself for bad news, the further reverses announced in yesterday's statement of the progress of the battle on the northern section of the line might have been reflected by a continuation of the selling which forced prices down in the final hour on Thursday. There is such a thing as being worried without being alarmed, and while measuring the fresh gains which the Germans have made with a costly expenditure of lives, traders have never ceased to believe that the offensive will wear itself down to a point where further material progress is impossible before decisive advantage is gained.

Thus, while there has been no incentive in the news to buy securities, it has not been of a nature to produce widespread liquidation, and where offerings have been absorbed without bringing additional pressure to bear, prices have moved back soon afterward. There was a smaller volume of selling orders in hand yesterday and most issues closed with net gains. With but a little more than 200,000 shares changing hands it was comparatively easy for the group operating in Distillers Securities to make that issue the day's leader, both in point of activity and strength. A sympathetic move carried Industrial Alcohol forward on more moderate dealings, and a number of other industrials gained a point or more without special effort. Steel closed practically at its best price for the day with a net recovery of a point and most of the rails benefited by the disappearance of liquidation.

The cotton market witnessed another interesting session with much the same tendencies that have undermined the recent bull movement at work. The withdrawal of mill buying and heavy selling orders from the South left traders demoralized, and though rallies promised at several times to end the downward movement the declines of the previous day were increased without stimulating buying as might have been expected after the extent of the recent break.

Call money continues easy, with broker's demands running much lighter than usual. Most of yesterday's loans on the Stock Exchange were made at 4½ per cent., with money offered down to 2 per cent. at the close. The Liberty 4s displayed a slightly improved tone, although the market still receded before selling orders of any considerable size. The success which attended the first days of the new campaign for the 4¼s has served to divert the attention from the unsatisfactory behavior of the old loans.

LONDON MARKET CHEERFUL.

Little Disposition to Do Business Over the Week End.

LONDON, April 12.—While there was little disposition to do business over the week-end, the stock market today maintained a cheerful tone. Consols improved and the war loan and other investment stocks were firmly maintained on light buying. Tin mines continued in favor and Spanish bonds were the strongest features on the low exchange rate. Shipping shares were easy, while the other sections were dull.

Money was easy to obtain and discount rates were weak.

PARIS, April 12.—Trading on the Bourse today was unchanged.

Names Receiver for Brokerage Firm.

Judge Learned Hand named yesterday Silas W. Howland of the law firm of Root, Clark, Buckner & Howland as receiver in bankruptcy of the stock brokerage firm of Morgan, Truett & Co., which made a voluntary assignment on April 8 for the benefit of all of its creditors. The receiver was named on the application of J. S. Hires Sons, Inc.; R. M. Comfort, and Emanuel Rosen, who filed a petition which said that the firm had a considerable amount of securities pledged for loans, and that the equity would probably amount to $60,000.

HOW TO FIND LOST BONDS.

Federal Reserve Bank Issues Pamphlet of Instructions.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York has issued a pamphlet on "Destroyed, Defaced, and Lost United States Government Bonds," describing in detail the procedure to be followed in order to obtain duplicates where coupon bonds have been destroyed or defaced, and registered bonds destroyed, defaced, or lost. The bank calls particular attention of holders of bonds to the following:

"Do not write your name or any other matter on either the face or the back of your registered or coupon bonds. The value of a bond so marked is impaired. It is not a good delivery under the rules of the New York Stock Exchange and you will probably experience difficulty in disposing of it elsewhere, if so marked.

"If the holder of a coupon bond wishes to have the fact of his ownership appear on the bond so as to have the additional protection thus afforded in case of loss, the coupon bond should be exchanged for a bond registered in his name. This can be done by complying with the regulations of the Treasury Department, (Department Circular No. 100, dated Dec. 26, 1917, governing transactions involving interchanges of bonds.) Consult your bank as to the course to be followed to effect such an exchange. It should be noted, however, in this connection that, as a registered bond requires certain formalities in connection with its transfer which are not required in the case of a coupon bond which passes by delivery, a registered bond is usually quoted at a price a fraction lower than a coupon bond of the same series."

The Cotton Decline.

There are two interesting features of the big decline in cotton during the last week. The first is that, so far as cursory inquiry around the cotton ring goes, nobody made any money out of it. At least none of the most persistent and incurable bears, who have been "feeling for the top" in cotton and have been so often disappointed during the season, would admit to having profited much. They had been caught so often on previous guesses that they could not believe the market at last was going their way, and such as sold short on the early break—and they were comparatively few—very largely covered on a profit of only 40 or 50 points. Some of them immediately replaced their short lines, but not many. Much more of the selling, all the way down, appeared to be "on the nail" than short of the market.

The Southern Markets.

The second interesting feature of the decline is the fact that, although Southern spot quotations yesterday followed the local market down to some extent, they are still far higher, relatively. Cotton, on the usual differential to cover the cost of transportation North, is still, as it has been all season, far cheaper in New York than anywhere else in the country. Yet local stocks are relatively large. Another feature of yesterday's reports from the South was the course of spot sales. Galveston marked the spot price down 60 points, but sold only 164 bales at this price. New Orleans reported down 50 points, but sales of only 651 bales. Augusta, down 50 points, no cotton sold at all. Memphis, 25 points up, sales 700 bales. Little Rock, quotation unchanged, sales 2,111 bales. Yet normally far more cotton is sold at Galveston and New Orleans than at Memphis or Little Rock.

Steel Corporation's War Work.

The plants of the Steel Corporation are heavily engaged on the production of steel for war purposes, and the prospects point toward a much greater concentration of men and facilities on this class of manufacturing as the weeks pass. The annual report recounted briefly that the construction of a gun forging plant had been started at Gary, Ind., while there was also undertaken last year "the enlargement of the works of the National Tube Company for the manufacture of torpedo air flask forgings and the installation of machinery and equipment in the armorplate department for the production of recuperator forgings for heavy guns." It is believed in steel trade circles that the corporation will soon engage with the Government to manufacture great guns in entirety, although the officials are not discussing the matter. Such a program, if undertaken, would aim at results to be secured next year and the year after.

Distillers Securities Active.

Distillers' Securities shares dominated yesterday's market, both in activity and the extent of its advance. Gossip of the commission houses indicated that the stock was being taken by traders on the assumption that the management was planning to continue dividends at the rate of $8 a year. Persistent tips of a substantial advance have also helped the price along this week. Yesterday's turnover of 42,000 shares was 800 shares more than in Steel.

Operations by Wire.

Brokerage houses with private wire connections to Chicago and other cities said yesterday that the warning of Food Administrator Hoover in respect to speculation in grain was not expected to affect their business. The desire of the Government authorities to restrain harmful speculation, it was said, had been met by the brokers and the wire houses would continue to cooperate with the Food Administration. It was pointed out that speculative operations had largely curbed themselves; in other words, traders had been doing very little in any of the grain markets for some time.

The Coastwise Steamers.

People in closest touch with the affairs of the Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies Steamship Company, which controls the Clyde and Mallory lines, now commandeered by the Government, were waiting yesterday to find out just what the order meant. This company already has some forty-five steamers of its fleet under requisition by the Shipping Board, on the board's fixed schedule of time-charter rates, which it is operating for Government account at a compensation yet to be fixed, and about a dozen others under requisition by the army and actually in the transport and transatlantic cargo service. Nobody knows how these boats will be affected, or rather the rates the company gets for them, by the new order.

Another Government Puzzle.

The Merchants and Miners fleet is less affected by this situation, as its boats are smaller, and so far as could be learned yesterday, have generally escaped requisition hitherto. But nobody knows how the Atlantic-Gulf Company will make out. Will it and the Merchants and Miners be taken over on the railroad basis—a fixed income for everything, based on the earnings for the last three years—or on the Shipping Board basis of fixed time-charter rates for each steamer, and nothing for office management and so on? Since they are to be under Mr. McAdoo, they hope, naturally, for the railroad basis, which would be a bonanza, for A. G. W. I. at least, as its last three years were the most prosperous in its history. That arrangement would also be free from the uncertainties of the Shipping Board's plan on the financial side.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL HAS $15,191,326 EARNINGS

Gross Operating Revenues Increase $13,404,520 and Expenses Jump $9,496,684.

The report of the Illinois Central Railroad Company for the calendar year 1917, just published, shows a net income for the year of $15,191,326, which, although a decrease of $2,435,875 as compared with the showing for 1916, represents earnings equivalent to 13.9 per cent. on the $109,291,391 of capital stock outstanding.

The company's gross operating revenue increased by $13,404,520 to a total of $87,144,786, and expenses increased by $9,496,684, more than $6,000,000 of this being represented by increased actual transportation costs, and upward of $2,500,000 by maintenance charges. The total expenses were $62,339,834. The loss in net income was due in part to a heavy increase in taxes, amounting to $2,070,299, and to a big drop in nonoperating income, which fell off $5,006,465, to a total of only $8,000,365.

This loss was due to the failure of the Yazoo & Mississippi Valley Railroad to pay interest on the Louisville, New Orleans & Texas second mortgage income bonds, held by the Illinois Central, and of the Dubuque & Sioux City Railroad to pay dividends on its preferred stock. At the same time the Illinois Central during the year increased its own funded debt by $13,330,170, by the issue of refunding mortgage gold bonds and Illinois Central and Chicago, St. Louis & New Orleans joint first refunding mortgage bonds, while first lien equipment mortgage bonds and equipment trusts were retired.

The total amount of new bonds issued was $17,598,170, while $4,268,000 of other issues were retired. The number of stockholders on Dec. 31, 1917, was 10,578, as against 10,025 one year earlier. During the year the company expended $15,642,600 on improvements to roadway and structures and for new equipment.

U.S. STEEL STOCK HAS WIDER DISTRIBUTION

Common Share Owners on March 1, 1918, Numbered 61,044, a New High Record.

FOREIGN HOLDINGS GROW

England and Canada Have More, and France and Germany Less, Than on Dec. 31 Last.

The United States Steel Corporation's common stock was distributed on March 1, the latest available record date, among more holders than ever before since the steel combination was formed. The total was 61,044, giving each shareowner an average amount of slightly more than 83 shares. The previous high record was 36,825 shares on March 1, 1916. From the latter date to Dec. 1, 1916, there was a decline to 37,720 owners, and from this level came a steady expansion of 23,324 names to the March total.

Holders of preferred stock on the corporation's books numbered 80,661 on Feb. 1 last, an aggregate about 5,600 smaller than on the same date in 1915. The decline from the high level of three years ago was gradual, not becoming marked until May, 1916, and in November, 1917, the total was 79,321. The preferred stock ownership fluctuates moderately as compared with the common. The corporation's records show that it has been invariably the case in the past that accumulation of the common stock in investment hands has occurred when prices were low, disproving the theory that the public has stock "handed" to it at the top by the speculative fraternity.

Foreign holdings of Steel common and preferred changed to a small extent only in the quarter ended March 31, the alteration indicating more purchases than sales. The 485,704 shares of common held abroad were 1,516 shares more than on Dec. 31, 1917. Canada owned 1,671 shares more at the end of the quarter than three months before, England had 436 shares more, France had about 800 shares less, Germany 145 shares less, and Holland's stock was not changed at all, either common or preferred. The record of changes in Germany's holdings presumably was disclosed in reports from neutral countries.

France	29,179	26,048	30,050	25,762
Germany	467	876	612	882
Holland	229,185	29,274	229,185	23,274
Switzerl'd	1,547	2,851	1,442	2,848
W. Indies	3,873	1,378	2,690	1,250
Total for. holdings	485,704	140,138	484,190	140,077
Per cent of whole	9.56	3.9	9.53	3.89

The figures indicate that liquidation from abroad was hardly a factor in the Steel market during the first quarter of 1918, and only small changes in the foreign ownership figures occurred in the final three months last year.

In respect to domestic holdings, a significant development in the March quarter was the decline in brokerage house ownership in New York. There were about 70,000 shares less of common stock on brokers' books in this State on March 31 than on Dec. 31, 1917, indicating that purchasers had been taking their shares to their strong boxes. Brokers' holdings, both domestic and foreign, amounted to 2,202,530 shares of common on March 31, compared with 2,365,261 shares three months before. Investors held 2,820,445 shares of common at the end of last month, against 2,717,764 shares at the close of 1917. Investment holdings of preferred stock were 3,265,300 shares on March 31, compared with 3,256,286 shares three months before.

THE COTTON MARKET.

The local cotton market yesterday continued, at an accelerated pace, the decline which apparently set in in earnest on Thursday. The general tendency of the market has been downward all this week, but yesterday was the largest break in a single session, with prices going steadily off all day long, and closing, with the market steady and a few points up from the worst, at net losses for the day ranging from 79 to 92 points.

More significant, in the view of men in the cotton trade, than prices on the local market, was the fact that spot cotton quotations on the big Southern markets, although with a small volume of sales, were generally lower, although they are still lagging well behind the break in prices here, calculating on the usual differential between local and Southern markets. There was a noticeable amount of Southern selling here yesterday and reports of increased offerings in the South were general.

The market opened in rather better tone. The technical position appeared to have been strengthened somewhat by the late break on Thursday, and there was a little more trade buying than in earlier days of the week, while Liverpool interests, which had been selling, bought back a little cotton for replacement at bargain prices. With the help of a little covering by cautious shorts prices worked from 5 to 22 points above Thursday's close, and held up well until early afternoon.

At this point Southern representatives began to sell cotton freely all down the list. Simultaneously came reports of heavy offerings of spot cotton in the South, and a flood of speculative selling from Wall Street and Western sources which carried everything before it. The market recovered a trifle just before the close on profit-taking by still cautious speculative shorts, but showed no other signs of support anywhere.

No new reason appeared for the decline, which appeared due to continued favorable new crop news, the cessation of trade demand, and evidence of uneasiness on the part of Southern holders with the generally topheavy condition of the market. Old crop statistics have been bearish for some time, and their effect appears to have been delayed but cumulative.

Exports yesterday were 26,095 bales, making 44,148 for the week, as compared with 61,230 a year ago. Southern spot markets were generally 25 to 60 points lower, but some were unchanged, and Memphis 25 points higher.

COAL MEN SEE PERIL IN RAILWAY FAVORS

Condemn Plan for Giving Car Preference to Mines That Sell Under Price to Roads.

FEAR SHORTAGE IN WINTER

The Wholesale Coal Trade Association of 1 Broadway, through Charles S. Allen, its Secretary, sent out a warning yesterday that if the present practice of the Railroad Administration of making coal contracts with individual operators at a less price than that fixed by the Fuel Administration is persisted in there will be a coal famine in this country next Winter that will be much more serious than that faced last Winter. The action of the Railroad Administration, it is charged, in holding out the promise of a full coal car supply to the mines signing contracts, is disturbing equitable distribution and causing labor unrest.

"The practical coal man is convinced that certain proposals with respect to the distribution of coal cars will result in serious curtailment of the output of coal, and the effect will be that next Winter the country will be faced with a coal famine compared to which that of last year will fade into insignificance," said Mr. Allen. "The Railroad Administration is attempting to make contracts with coal operators for coal for railroad purposes at a price less than that fixed by the Fuel Administration, offering as an inducement 100 per cent. car supply.

"Car supply is a governing factor in the quantity of coal produced, and the cost of production, as the overhead charges, when distributed over a production reduced to 20 or 25 per cent. of normal, are tremendous, as compared with 100 per cent. production. Another phase of the matter is that such discrimination in the car supply has had its direct effect upon the labor situation, causing unrest and dissatisfaction among the miners at operations so discriminated against.

Foresees Increased Coal.

"In addition to the discouragement of operators who do not enter into contracts with the Railroad Administration under the proposed plan and the possibility of their being forced to discontinue operation, the Fuel Administrator has stated a number of times that when an operator can demonstrate that the cost of production is in excess of the price fixed a correction of that situation will be made. The putting into effect of the proposal will therefore result in an increased cost to the consumers of coal other than the railroads.

"The Director General of Railroads, in the effort to reduce the operating expenses of the roads, is pressing this proposition, but we call attention to the fact that its result will be unfair to the coal man and to consumers other than the railroads because it will have the effect of placing an undue burden upon a restricted portion of the public to make up or prevent a deficit in the operation of the railroads. If there is such a deficit, instead of attempting to saddle it upon a restricted class, it should be taken care of by a blanket increase in freight and passenger rates so that the burden will be evenly distributed upon those who make use of the carriers.

Increased Rates Accepted.

"Incidentally it will be remembered that at no time has there been general opposition on the part of the public to the several blanket increases in rates which have been granted by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Another evil which is being effected is that some railroads, even at the present time, are obtaining a supply of coal in excess of their requirements and are disposing of it to certain favored industries located on their lines. Altogether we think the proposal of the Railroad Administration is improper and should receive the condemnation of every one."

Coal Age will point out editorially today that John Skelton Williams, in charge of fuel purchases for the railroads, has refused to buy coal at the price fixed. It adds that Fuel Administrator Garfield is determined that the railroads shall not be exempted from the operation of fuel regulations.

"It is wholly unlikely that the President will sanction a plan that is sure to stir up serious labor unrest through its inequitable operation," the article adds. "He cannot indorse action that permits one Government department deliberately to violate the rulings of another Government administration. He cannot fail to see that if nearly one-third of the total bituminous production is exempted from Government restrictions, outlined by the Fuel Administrator, the remaining tonnage cannot be distributed in an efficient and satisfactory manner."

MANY COAL MINES CLOSING.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Coal mines in many sections are beginning to close because of car shortage, and both reduced production and unemployment have reached such a serious stage that Fuel Administration officials are frankly alarmed. The situation has been placed before the Railroad Administration with an urgent request for drastic steps to keep the mines supplied with cars.

In the Fairmount-Clarksburg bituminous fields in West Virginia the labor problem is giving officials the most concern. Some 1,500 miners are reported in danger of starvation as the result of mines shutting down, in a telegram sent the Fuel Administration by the local of the United Mine Workers of America for District 17, Taylor County, comprising a large number of mines of the Fairmount district.

Approximately 6,500 men have been idle per day in the Fairmount-Clarksburg fields, according to figures in the possession of the National Coal Association. In Iowa, Illinois, Ohio, and Pennsylvania, and practically every other bituminous coal-producing State, a similar condition is said to exist.

While complete figures on car shortage and miners idle for the first two weeks in April are not available, reports show that in one of the Pennsylvania bituminous fields normally getting 962 cars per day, only 428 were received at the mines one day last week, resulting in a loss of 26,700 tons of coal on that day.

In the Fairmount district figures for three days in April are said to be a fair barometer of conditions at all mines. On April 6, of 152 mines reporting 64 were shut down for lack of cars, throwing 5,199 miners out of work. Of 153 mines reporting April 9, 83 were closed for the same reason, with 6,959 men idle and a loss of 47,810 tons of coal. One hundred and fifty-one mines reported April 10. Of these 62 were closed and 5,351 men were out of work.

BARRETT CO. EARNINGS.

The Barrett Company, which is prominent in the asphalt and chemical industry, sold $34,297,371 worth of goods last year, an increase of $6,497,185 over the total for 1916. Expenses absorbed $27,173,090, this being $7,160,988 more than the year before, and including depreciation and, presumably, Federal war taxes as well. The corporation's income before accounting for administrative costs was $9,235,871, a decline of $311,733, and the net before charges and dividends was $3,673,244, a decline of $1,492,042.

The annual report, issued yesterday, said that, considering the high cost of labor and material, and the unusual outlay of earnings in taxes, the result of the year was considered satisfactory. The balance of $3,303,036, available for common stock dividends, was equal to $20.61 a share, compared with $29.43 earned in 1916. William H. Childs, President, informed stockholders that the company and its subsidiaries were co-operating with the Government to the fullest extent toward the successful prosecution of the war.

The balance sheet showed that the value of investments had been increased from $999,184, at the end of 1916, to $2,895,101. The cash item of $1,647,032 was $582,537 larger than a year before, and the total surplus displayed a gain of $2,268,494 to $6,794,691.

TO STOP SUBWAY LEAKS.

Leaks in the roof of the Canal Street Station of the Broadway Subway, which were noticeable shortly after the operation of trains began, have grown so that the Public Service Commission is making a study of the matter and trying to devise means of keeping the water out. Many complaints have been made by passengers, and Commissioner Hubbell, after a thorough investigation, submitted to the commission yesterday a long report. He verified the leaks, located the sources of some of them, and the matter now will be put in the hands of the engineering department.

The building of this part of the road was recognized as one of the most difficult parts of the entire dual system, the sub-grade being about thirty-five feet below mean high water.

In his report Mr. Hubbell said he had been unable to learn definitely the cause of the leaks, but he suggested that perhaps they were due to the fact that where the Canal Street structure passes under the Interborough line in Lafayette Street there is no backfill on the tunnel roof and "a large portion of the weight of both structures is carried to hard bottom by means of piles consisting of steel cylinders filled with concrete." Between Centre and Lafayette Streets the structure "is floated on the bottom without piles and there is about a ton and a half per square foot of backfill on the tunnel roof." He thought that this might have resulted in uneven settlement.

THE CONDITION OF TRADE.

General business continues to display the tendency toward improvement which began with the passing of the severest Winter weather, according to reports from various parts of the country. The agricultural outlook, which is favorable as a whole, is having its effect on the purchases of goods in farming territory. At the same time Government demands are absorbing more and more of the output on many lines of industry, and this is being taken into account by wholesale merchants in their plans.

Commenting on the situation of trade and the business of the banks, Dun's Review says:

> Both in the great farming regions, where the exceptionally remunerative returns from the products of the soil have appreciably augmented the purchasing power, and in the larger industrial centres, where labor is fully employed at the highest wages known, the position of trade is encouraging, and the many evidences of a disposition to provide liberally for forward needs indicate sustained confidence in the future. Yet it is clearer now than at any previous period that business is dominated by war conditions, and in leading branches, without exception, Government activities overshadow all other considerations.
> The majority of the principal cities in the United States continue to report record bank exchanges for this period, the total this week amounting to $5,010,610,516, a gain of 2.9 per cent. over a year ago. New York City reports a loss of 2.7 per cent. as compared with the same week last year, which is offset by a gain of 14.9 per cent. in the aggregate of the cities outside the metropolis.

Bradstreet's says:

> In textiles, especially wool lines, the fact that the Government comes first is leading to the cancellation of orders placed some time ago by civilians. Government regulation of cotton goods prices is also a topic of discussion. Speculation over a wide range is absolutely dead, the drive to make the Third Liberty Loan eminently successful getting major attention, and even where supplies of manufactured goods are apparently being held for higher prices, the Government is thought likely to step in.
>
> Needless to say, well recognized luxuries are in light call, but even in this respect there are isolated reports of good buying, thereby indicating that the necessity for economizing is being overlooked in parts of the country.

WHEAT.

There was no change in the wheat position on Friday, receipts being decidedly small at Western points, where the movement from the farms continues discouragingly small. Wheat and flour are being exported quite steadily, however, and the Food Administration is apparently making strenuous efforts to keep up its schedule. The recent rains over the West were looked upon as highly favorable for the new crop, which is apparently getting an unusually fine start, and, with favorable weather conditions during the remainder of the season, should produce an exceptionally large yield. Reports from foreign countries show fairly favorable crop conditions, but the question of tonnage makes America the most available market, as shipments are of necessity small from the Southern Hemisphere, especially from Australia, where there are still many millions of bushels, representing yields during the last two seasons.

RYE.

The local rye market was still nominal, but a slightly steadier tone developed in the West, where prices were unchanged to 2 cents higher, Minneapolis being quoted at $2.93 for No. 2 Western.

CORN.

Operations in the new contract in corn were of fairly large volume, but the undertone of the market was easier, and at the close the May position was unchanged, while June and July were ⅛c to ¼c net lower. It seemed to be the general impression that much of the selling was in the form of hedging against country holdings of cash corn, and an easier tone in the cash position gave evidence of increased pressure, with a less active demand. The local cash market was unsettled, with kiln-dried No. 3 yellow quoted at $1.90½; No. 4 yellow, $1.83½; No. 3 white, $2.20¼, cost and freight New York.

CHICAGO PRICES.

	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Close.	Last Year.

July	1.37	1.33⅜	1.34⅜	1.37⅜	1.33⅜

OATS.

The oats market was weak and lower, closing with a partial rally but at net losses of 1 to 1⅛c. Longs were disposed to liquidate, and the market felt the influence of a less active cash demand and increased offers from the country. Exporters are not buying freely at present, although a report from Omaha said that export sales there had amounted to about 350,000 bushels. The very favorable crop prospects are apparently having considerable influence on sentiment and the trade at large has been disappointed over the action of prices since the opening of the new corn contract. The local cash market was easier; natural quoted at $1.00½ to $1.02½, clipped white, $1.04½ to $1.06½, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market was very inactive, but prices were easier owing to quiet selling prompted by the action of the grain markets and in sympathy with weaker hogs. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 33,000, with 21,000 expected on Saturday.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The market for cottonseed oil was again dull and featureless, with no interest manifested in contracts, which were entirely nominal as to price. The cash position was inactive, but prices were steady.

COFFEE.

The coffee market showed a decidedly firmer tone yesterday as a result of covering and moderate buying, believed to be for trade account. Offerings were very light and after opening at an advance of 8 to 10 points, the market closed 16 to 20 points net higher. The local spot market was quiet on the basis of 9c for Rio 7s and 11¼c for Santos 4s.

SUGAR.

In the local market there appears to be sufficient sugar for present needs, but there still exists complaint from certain sections in the Middle West where the scarcity is still acute. Some of the refiners in this territory are unable to operate to full capacity, owing to delays in arrivals of their raw supplies, but conditions are generally improving, and it is believed that the International Committee will be able to furnish the full 300,000 tons of raw sugar promised during April and may exceed this amount. The International Committee reported purchases of 110,000 bags of Cubas, April shipment, at 4.985c, cost and freight.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 4,772 packages, including 1,000 packages in transit for export. Demand has been broadening considerably of late, and with some falling off in receipts supplies at the moment are insufficient and values are again higher and firm. The improvement extends to all qualities. Creamery, higher than extras, a lb., 44@44½c; extras, (92 score,) 43@43½c; firsts, (88 to 91 score,) 40½@42½c; seconds, (83 to 87 score,) 38½@40c; thirds, 37@38c; creamery, unsalted, higher than extras, 45@45½c; extras, 44@44½c; firsts, 42@43½c; seconds, 39@41c; creamery, held, as to quality, 35@41½c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 43c; good to prime, 39½@42½c; common to fair, 35@39c; renovated, extras, 39½@40c; firsts, 38@39c; lower grades, 34@37c; imitation creamery, firsts, 35½@36½c; ladles, current make, firsts, 31@33c; seconds, 33@33½c; lower grades, 31@32½c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 33@33½c; No. 2, 33½c; lower grades, 28@32c.

EGGS.—40,315 cases. The market maintains a firm tone on prime to choice qualities. Most of the Northern packers are putting their stock up for storage, and many of these shipments are still going into storage for shippers' or contractors' account. General offerings of current packed Western are selling chiefly at 34½@35c, but some fine Northern lots are reaching 35½c, and occasionally sales are made up to 36c of exceptionally fine goods which might not get a certificate as extra firsts. Southern regular packings selling mainly at 33@34c, with exceptional qualities higher. Storage packings have sold mainly at 36@37c as to section and quality, but we hear of bids up to 37½c on very fancy Northern marks. Nearby whites quiet and unchanged. Fresh gathered extras, a dozen, 36c; storage packed firsts, 36@37½c; regular packed extra firsts, 36@36½c; regular packed firsts, 34@35½c; seconds and poorer, 32@33½c; fresh gathered dirties, No. 1, 32@32½c; No. 2 and poorer, 30@31½c; fresh-gathered checks, good to choice, dry, 30@31½c; under grades, 28@29c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 38@40c; ordinary to prime, 37@38c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 36@38c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 36@38c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery browns, 37@38c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 34@36½c; duck eggs, 36@38c.

COMMODITIES PRICES.

Changes Last Week Fewer, with a Lessening of Advances.

Two things stood out in Dun's list of wholesale commodities prices this week—a falling off in the number of changes and lessening in the number of advances shown over declines. While last week's list showed 64 changes in the 325 quotations given, 39 of them being advances, this week's revisions totaled only 45. Of these 28 were upward. Interest again centred in foodstuffs and cotton goods.

The following list gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on forty-one standard commodities this week at this city, unless otherwise specified. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week a year ago:

*Nominal. †Government basis.

In the foodstuffs, also, the changes were fewer than usual, with the advances slightly more numerous than the declines. In the major provisions market at Chicago, short ribs supplied the only decline and mess pork the only unchanged quotation. All of the live meats, together with Middle Western lard, went up. Hams and bacon were unchanged here.

Several things happened in the dairy products list. The best butter advanced and the cheaper grades declined. The best cheese also went up, but the medium grade did not change. In eggs there was a further decline in nearby fancy stock and no revision in the price asked for the best Westerns. The best butter and cheese are both quoted below the corresponding 1917 figure, but the best eggs are still 3 cents a dozen higher than they were a year ago at this time.

Neither the fresh nor the dried fruits showed a fluctuation either way, but in the vegetable list were recorded advances in potatoes and cabbage and a drop in choice marrow beans. Despite their rise, potatoes continue to be quoted very much under the price that was asked for them at this time last year. The same is true of cabbage, but the beans that declined are still $1 a hundred pounds higher than a year ago.

Both basic grades of Brazilian coffee dropped again in price, but there were no changes in the teas. Sugars also were steady at set prices, and a rise in Zanzibar cloves was the only change in the spices. The only changes in the grains were declines in corn and oats.

While the leather list showed no quotable changes, the tone to the hide market was stronger. Five of the ten listed grades advanced, including No. 1 native packer, No. 1 Texas, Colorado, branded cows, and No. 1 country steers. The metal changes for the week were confined to declines in spelter and lead.

In the naval stores a rise in turpentine offset a drop in kiln-burned tar. The combined lists for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs, and oils showed five advances in twelve revisions. There was no special feature. Silks and woolens brought little of interest to the textile field, but higher burlap prices were again recorded as a result of primary market and shipping conditions. Lightweight goods sold best this week.

The cottons continued their upward climb, in spite of the ups and downs of cotton through the week. Most of the advances were again confined to unfinished drills, sheetings, and printcloths, but advances were also shown by the new prices made on standard prints.

BARS GERMAN IN CLUB.

Violation of New Union League Rule Punishable by Expulsion.

The Union League Club announced yesterday that it had adopted a rule forbidding conversations in the German language in the clubhouse for the period of the war and that a violation of the rule should be considered an offense meriting expulsion. The presence of enemy aliens in the club was also forbidden and any member introducing an enemy alien is made liable to expulsion.

It was also announced that the Union League Club had leased the old Princeton Club building in Gramercy Park and fitted it as lodgings for officers of the army and navy stationed temporarily in this city. It will be known as "The Union League Club Unit" and will be under the management of the New York Camp Community Service. A special fund was raised by subscriptions from club members for this purpose.

Linen to the Front.

With the season for washable dresses and suits and skirts well under way, linen in one form or another is reported to be gradually forging to the front. It has proved particularly popular in plain tailored suits and in separate skirts of various designs. In the latter, pleats are used a great deal. Linen suits, made with the coat cut along semi-fitted lines and in a riding habit effect with a close waist and rather flaring skirts, are apparently to be very much in vogue everywhere. It is said that in the majority of cases the light colors are preferred.

Jersey Cloth Almost a Staple.

In some quarters it is said that wool jersey has become almost as much a staple fabric for dresses and skirts as serge has always been. "Particularly in these abnormal times," said one dress manufacturer yesterday, "when women are looking for durability and lasting qualities as a matter of economy as well as smartness, is jersey cloth one of the most desirable and best selling fabrics on the market. It not only will outlast most other fabrics, but will withstand constant wear and hard usage, and will maintain its grace and beauty even without being pressed or done over."

Eton Suits Struck a Snag.

Although many buyers picked the Eton suit as a popular favorite for Spring, the pre-Easter demand proved positively disappointing to them, according to the bulletin of the National Garment Retailers' Association. The bulletin goes on: "'Pony coats and Eton effects fell flat,' said a buyer for a Fifth Avenue store, 'and in a few days the public will see some spectacular price cutting in them.' Another large department store buyer said he had stocked but sparingly of Eton suits and he was not surprised that they did not have such a big demand. 'On Easter Sunday,' he said, 'I saw very few people wearing Eton jackets, and, of course, those who did were young girls.' Another buyer, discussing Etons, thought that they might be good sellers when the weather grows warmer."

Combines Two Style Features.

One of the late Spring style developments which is said to be attracting considerable attention in the trade is the sleeveless coat suit made with a detachable military cape of the same material as the rest of the garment. Both sleeveless coat and cape suits have been popular all season, and the combination of the two, it is thought, will prove to be a great hit. The new combination is worked out in various ways by different manufacturers, and among the most used materials for the purpose are serge, tweed, and broadcloth.

Motor Coat Market Active.

There is said to be a very good demand for novelty raincoats and motor coats. Manufacturers in this city report that there have been a great many buyers in town since Easter seeking additional supplies, and there seems to have been considerable business of this sort placed. Solid colors are said to be very popular in this trade, and the bright shades are usually preferred, though there are some dark hues selling. Fairly large collars are usually sought, and the cape collar of last Winter seems still to be very much in vogue. Straight lines are the order of the day, and many of these coats are being made with leather belts to draw them in at the waistline.

Canes and Swagger Sticks Sell.

The recent demand for walking canes, swagger sticks and riding crops seems to have been extremely large. It is said that more goods of this sort have been sold during the last Winter than in any similar period on record. For swagger sticks, which are now being carried by women as well as by men in uniform, gold or silver handles in the shape of cartridges are particularly popular, and usually there is space left on the handles for engraving the insignia of whatever branch of the service the purchaser may desire. More straight handled canes are being carried now, it is said, though the hook handle is still very much in demand.

Gray Goods Sales Increase.

A nice business was done in a quiet way in the local gray goods market yesterday, some of it at prices which showed advances over Thursday's figures. Good-sized quantities of 38½-inch 60-48s were sold for April-June shipment at 18¾ cents, while spot 64-60s in that width brought 19 cents, and April-May 64-50s sold at 18¼ cents. April-May deliveries of 39-inch 56-44s were sold at 15¼ cents, and 13¼ cents was paid for narrow 64-60s for shipment in May and June. Most mills are asking 13¾ cents now for this construction. In the coarse goods, the most interesting thing was the selling of 40-inch 2.85-yard sheetings at 31 cents for May-June delivery. Converters for the clothing trade bought actively of sateens and twills at advancing prices, the deliveries running to October. These were the closing printcloth prices:

Though just at present there is said to be very little doing in Spring and Summer sweater lines, it is reported that Fall merchandise is fairly active. The comparative quiet in the more seasonable lines is thought to be due to the fact that most retailers are fairly well supplied with these garments, while the early buying for Fall is attributed to a widespread feeling that sweater production will be limited later on and that prices will be higher. The slip-over sweater is still popular in some sections, though generally, it is said, the coat cut type is becoming the most preferred. There seems to be no modification in the colors sought, the most brilliant shades being the most in demand. This is equally true of both Spring and Fall merchandise.

High Shoes Liked for Spring.

While a nice business is being done in men's Oxfords for the current season, high shoes for Spring are by no means being neglected. Several well-liked models are offered, including the so-called English walking and Blücher lasts. Some of the high shoes seen are unlined, but this is not the general rule. The popular leathers are about the same as those seen in the best-selling Oxfords. Both cap and plain toes are seen in this season's models, while the heels tend strongly toward the medium and military types. Several models show the use of one-piece outside back stays and counter covers, and some are made with combination leather and fibre soles. As to the lace fastenings, both invisible and visible eyelets are used, with some shoes showing half eyelets and half hooks.

Underwear Market Quiet.

The market for knit underwear in this city is reported to be very quiet. There is no lack of demand, but supplies are not available. The civilian output of the mills has been greatly restricted, it is said, due to Government purchases, and sellers are not inclined to take on further business until the present buying movement of the Government has ended. In order to avoid possible delays in transportation later on, the mills are shipping goods out as soon as they are made up, instead of storing them in factory warehouses. Though there are a great many inquiries for merchandise for the Spring of 1918, it is said that as yet the mills have done nothing on these lines, and probably will not do anything for some little time to come.

HOTELS TO ABOLISH BARS.

Association Forecasts Action in Favor of Beer and Wines Only.

CHICAGO, April 12.—Abolition of the bars in all hotels in the United States and Canada was forecast in an announcement today by the Executive Council of the American Hotel Association. Declaring that the interests of the hotel business were paramount to those of the saloon, the council strongly advocated that the sale of liquor be confined to light wines and beer.

This would mean the closing of all bar rooms run in connection with hotels and a ban on the sale of whisky, gin and other strong drinks, according to J. K. Blatchford of Chicago, a member of the council.

"The hotel men of the country stand solidly behind any movement that has for its object nation-wide moderation in the use of alcoholic beverages," the announcement reads. "The council is of the opinion that the sale of beer and light wines in hotels can be modified so that beer and light wines may be permitted to be served under such regulations and limitations as will best meet the moderate wishes and demands of patrons."

HEAVIER DRY GOODS BUYING.

Wholesale Distribution and Road Sales Exceed Those of Last Year.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 12.—Marshall Field & Co. in their weekly review of the dry goods trade say:

"Current wholesale distribution of dry goods is ahead of the heavy shipments for the same period a year ago. The total volume of road sales for both immediate and future deliveries shows a good increase over the large volume of the corresponding week of 1917. Merchants have been in the market in fewer numbers. The market on domestic cotton goods is strong. Collections continue good."

SALES AT FUR AUCTION.

Muskrat and Lynx Were the Pelts Most Sought Yesterday.

Yesterday was muskrat day at the fur auction here, and it resulted in new record price levels being established on both brown and black skins. Browns sold up to $1.44, an unprecedented figure, and blacks duplicated this feat with a mark of $2.18 for the best ones.

Not only did muskrats feature the day's selling, but they took the palm for being the most actively sought furs in the entire sale to date. More than 400,000 brown pelts were put under the hammer, but this collection was comparatively small. The offering of black "rats" ran over 25,000. Muskrat was one of the three items scheduled for the day that showed a smaller offering than at the Spring, 1917, sale. This was due to several causes, not the least of which were the war and the hard Winter just experienced, and the desire of the buyers to get them was shown in the rapid-fire bidding. The attendance, which was about 700 when muskrat was reached, was the largest the sale has seen so far, and the active bidding was due not only to the shortage of these skins, but to the fact that fashion is smiling on them very sweetly for use in coats. They are so employed both in the natural and dyed states, the latter being called Hudson seal.

Next to muskrat, lynx was the most sought fur yesterday. It was one of the other two varieties that were in shorter supply than at the sale last Spring, and buyers went after them hard. Canadian buyers were especially active when these skins came up. The only other skins that showed a smaller quantity than last Spring were skunk, which did not do any too well. Nutria could have done better also, according to trade comment, but the difficulty in getting them dressed militated against an active sale of them. These furs, like beaver, have to be plucked before they can be made up, and the scarcity of men to pluck them, probably as a result of the war, was held responsible for the fact that they failed to show an advance over the average prices obtained in January.

In no small degree due to the fact that muskrats brought fine prices, the day's sales total ran up to about $900,000, which brought the grand total for five days to approximately $3,500,000. The total subscriptions to the Third Liberty Loan were $2,139,150 at 3 P. M., which was the last official figure given out. The day's big subscribers were C. G. Gunther's Sons, who took $25,000 worth of bonds, and F. W. Adams, who increased a previous subscription of $10,000 to $20,000.

These are the highest prices paid for the various skins sold yesterday, together with the buyers: Nutria, $1.45, Carl Dernburg & Son; skunk, $5.70, Milton Schreiber & Co.; Japanese marten, $3.75, I. Beaber; stone marten, $6.50, Milton Schreiber & Co.; baum marten, $13.50, G. Gaudig & Blum; Japanese mink, $1.15, Joseph Ullman, Inc.; lynx, $30.75, G. Gaudig & Blum; hair seal, $4.50, Max Wulfsohn; Chinese weasel, 37 cents, H. April & Co.; muskrat, $1.44, Milton Schreiber & Co., and black muskrat, $2.18, A. C. Meely of Philadelphia.

Nutria and Eastern skunk failed to bring higher prices than those obtained at the January sale, but the other principal furs sold yesterday showed these percentage advances over the figures paid for them at the Winter auction: Northern skunk, 10; lynx, 20; muskrat, 30, and black muskrat, 25.

COUPLE ARRESTED IN HOTEL

CHICAGO, April 12.—Hinton G. Clabaugh, Chief of the local bureau of the Department of Justice, today announced that his agents last night took into custody Dr. William Issac Thomas of the Faculty of the University of Chicago, known as an authority on sociology, and a woman said to be the wife of a Texas man, now in France with General Pershing.

Mr. Clabaugh said he had turned over to United States District Attorney Clyne evidence completely rounded out for the institution of charges of violating the Mann act, and the act forbidding false registration at hotels.

Dr. Thomas and the woman, who said she was a Mrs. R. M. Granger, of Washington, D. C., are said in the data given Mr. Clyne to have registered at a downtown hotel last night as man and wife from Gary, Ind. Both were taken before Mr. Clyne last night and are quoted as having attempted little, if any, concealment.

Dr. Thomas is 55 years old, married, and has grown children. Mrs. Thomas was one of the founders of the Woman's Peace Party. Mrs. Granger is 24 years old, and has a child 3 years old living with her mother at Fort Worth, Texas. She said, according to Clabaugh, that she accompanied her husband from the training camp at Fort Worth to New York to say good-bye when he sailed. Dr. Thomas was in the city to gather material for a book on Poland. They were introduced by Mrs. Granger's sister. The latter and Mrs. Granger have been living at a South Side hotel for about two weeks.

Dr. Thomas for some time was much in demand for his lectures on sociology. Among his teachings were:

Women are better off for having had their fling as men do. Dissipated women often make excellent wives.

Any girl, mentally mature, has the right to have children and the right to limit their number.

Children are not the result of marriage, but marriage is the result of children.

After Dr. Thomas and Mrs. Granger were examined by the District Attorney in the presence of an assistant skilled in Mann act proceedings, they were allowed to leave the Federal Building on their own recognizance.

Vetoes a Special Session.

TRENTON, N. J., April 12.—Governor Edge today denied the request of George L. Record of Jersey City, assistant counsel for the New Jersey League of Municipalities in the fight against the Public Service Railway Company's proposed increased fares and transfer charges, for the calling of a special session of the Legislature to enact legislation nullifying a recent decision of the New Jersey Supreme Court that contracts made between public utilities and municipalities are repealable by the State Board of Public Utility Commissioners.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

The market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange yesterday closed very active and strong, the general list showing substantial net gains. Activity in the final hour followed a prolonged period of dullness, only a few stocks attracting attention. The dominant feature in the trading in the afternoon session was Distillers Securities. The war news, though interpreted unfavorably, had no apparent effect upon the market movement. Occasionally there were periods of profit taking, but the general tendency of the list from the opening was toward higher levels.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

Buying and leasing of garages and garage sites continue to figure prominently in the business. Lorenzo Cuneo and William Podesta bought yesterday from the Farmers Loan and Trust Company, as trustee of the Elnathan Thorne estate, the old three and four story buildings at 541 to 549 West Broadway, forming a plot 129 by 100, between West Third and Bleecker Streets. The purchasers plan the erection of a six-story garage. J. Irving Walsh was the broker in the transaction.

On the middle west side, the Weismore Garage Corporation, William Lea, President, leased from the Jay estate, the five-story garage now in course of construction at 219 to 223 West Seventy-seventh Street, from plans by Frederick Putnam Platt. This property has been taken for a term of forty-two years at a rental aggregating about $547,500. Ames & Co., the brokers in the deal, report that in spite of the size of the transaction negotiations were completed in six days.

Buy Block in Degnon Terminal.

For industrial purposes, the John Simmons Company, manufacturers of tools, plumbing, and miscellaneous supplies, has purchased the entire block in the Degnon Terminal at Long Island City, bounded by Nott Avenue, Manly Street, Anable Avenue and Orton Street. The various departments of the company are now located in Manhattan, Brooklyn, Newark, and Erie, Penn., and these will be consolidated in a new building to be erected, which will cover the greater portion of the block. The balance of the property will be used as a storeyard. The new plant will be served with a spur from the Degnon Terminal Railroad, and will be a block from the waterfront.

Deal on for Brokaw Country Place.

Nirvana, the country estate of W. Gould Brokaw, at Great Neck, L. I., where he lived for more than a decade, will soon change hands. Negotiations are now pending whereby the estate, or a large part of it, will be conveyed to Mrs. Preston Pope Satterwhite, wife of Dr. Satterwhite and a sister of Mr. Brokaw. Dr. Satterwhite admitted yesterday that negotiations were under way, but that it would probably be several weeks before the title passed.

Nirvana is one of the show places on the north shore of Long Island. It fronts on Little Neck Bay and surrounding the large mansion is a large Italian garden. Mr. Brokaw was a devotee to the turf and built at his country estate a half-mile track. Near the estate are the homes of Dr. Satterwhite, Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, Roswell Eldridge, Mrs. William R. Grace, and Arthur Sinclair.

Long Island.

J. Wilson Dayton sold for L. J. Hunter the property formerly occupied by Captain Houghton, U. S. A., to Dr. William H. McKay. The property is one of the show places of Bayside, is situated on a plot 100 by 100, and was held at $15,000.

It was held at $60,000, and was sold for cash. Griffen, Prince & Ripley were the brokers.

WOMEN DEMOCRATS FACE INTERNAL WAR

Miss Crosby Beaten for President by Candidate She Had to Coax to Run.

SOUGHT POST HERSELF

But Dove of Peace Took Charge After Mrs. George H. Childs Had Been Declared Victor.

There was a row at the annual meeting and elections of the Women's Democratic Club, the oldest women's Democratic organization in the city, at the Hotel Astor yesterday afternoon which looked for a time as if it would disrupt the entire organization. "It would not be the Democratic Club if they did not have a row," one of the members said, and the fight was conducted with vigor which showed experience.

Excitement hinged around the election of the President. Mrs. Charles D. Hirst was about to retire, and, as the member told the story yesterday, Mrs. John Sherwin Crosby, founder of the club, for many years its President and now retired to the glory of Honorary Chief, decided she would fill the vacancy. She went to Mrs. George H. Childs, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the club, and besought her to take the place. She argued with Mrs. Childs from sundown to midnight, urging her to run for the office, and when the victory was finally won Mrs. Crosby kissed the future President and, breathing a sigh of relief, exclaimed: "I am so glad that I shan't have to run myself!"

The trouble started right after this, when, persuaded that she really ought to have a final term of office as President of a woman's Democratic club that really means something now that women are voting, Mrs. Crosby decided to make a try for it. Mrs. Childs, learning to her great surprise that Mrs. Crosby had put herself in the field against her own candidate, made up her mind that she would not back down, and the club was divided between its liking for Mrs. Childs and its loyalty to its founder. Consequently, it was in an excited frame of mind when the meeting opened yesterday. Moreover, some of the club members were decidedly angry.

"It's dirty politics," said one of them, "and if this thing goes on I shall leave the club."

The Contest Opened.

Mrs. Charles A. Berry opened the fight, nominating Mrs. Crosby for President with a eulogy of the founder and first President of the "finest women's Democratic club in New York City and a stanch Democrat, recognized by President Wilson and Vance McCormick, and on the Woman's Advisory Committee of the National Democratic Committee."

"Mrs. Crosby is ineligible for the office," said Miss Edith Reiffert, who is a lawyer, "for she is Honorary President of the club, and to run for office she should have resigned long ago."

"The chair rules," contributed Mrs. Hirst, "that it is impossible for Mrs. Crosby to run for the office of President while she is Honorary President."

"I take exception to the ruling of the chair," retorted Mrs. Crosby. "I want the club to know that I have consulted the best lawyers in the city about this and they say that as the office of Honorary President is not mentioned in our constitution it practically does not exist, being an empty honor. I can run for office if I like and resign later."

"I have consulted the best women club parliamentarians in the city," insisted Mrs. Hirst, "and they say it is not legal. I will ask this body if the ruling of the chair is to be sustained or not."

There was a rising vote with 19 supporting Mrs. Hirst and 15 opposing her.

"The question has been decided in favor of the chair," said Mrs. Hirst triumphantly. "Now you can vote as you please and the legality can be decided afterward."

Mrs. John F. Curry rose to nominate Mrs. Childs but was interrupted by Mrs. Berry, who, having nominated Mrs. Crosby, was making a vigorous protest.

"Mrs. Curry has the floor," said the chair, rapping vigorously with her gavel, "and if you do not allow her to speak, Mrs. Berry, I shall have to ask you to leave the room."

"And I shall not go," snapped Mrs. Berry.

"I nominate Mrs. George H. Childs," said Mrs. Curry. "She was asked by Mrs. Crosby to run for President a month or more ago, and now Mrs. Crosby herself is running against her."

"I second the nomination," said Mrs. M. B. Stanton. "Mrs. Childs has shown us as Chairman of the Ways and Means how competent she is. She is loyal and has stood by the club when it was low down, and she has been treated very disloyally."

"I want it put on public record that Mrs. Stanton has called this club low down and it never was," said Mrs. Crosby amid applause from her followers.

Mrs. Childs Wins.

The meeting was held in the College Room of the Astor and polling places were improvised in the rear of the room with screens. It was nearly 7 o'clock when the returns showed that Mrs. Childs had 29 and Mrs. Crosby 23 out of the 52 cast.

"She has only lost by six votes," said Mrs. Berry, who had nominated Mrs. Crosby and who is President of a Democratic club of 500 women in the Bronx. "If I had known that I could have had those votes here."

Long waiting had cooled the members before the returns were announced, and Mrs. Berry moved that whoever was elected the entire club should be loyal to the new officers. At this all the members applauded and shouted: "Good! Good!"

Other officers elected were: Vice Presidents, Mrs. James P. Nieman, Mrs. John E. Quinn and Mrs. Edward S. Hackney; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. John Kennedy; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Alice Kraft; Treasurer, Mrs. A. Emil Skoog; Auditor, Mrs. James Court, and Historian, Mrs. John R. Miller. After the new officers were introduced, Mrs. Childs said how glad she was they had been elected and Mrs. Hirst shook each by the hand and told those re-elected how much she appreciated their work.

"Be loyal to your new President," she said to the club, "and if you have little criticisms to make don't go back and forth among yourselves with little things, but go straight to her."

The last act of the club was to make Mrs. Hirst Honorary President, but they were not sure this was legal, for they did not know whether they could have two Honorary Presidents and they didn't known whether Mrs. Crosby, after running for office, was still an Honorary or not.

SERVICE HEARINGS PUT OFF.

Board Doubts Authority to Permit Increase in Gas Rates.

The application for a rehearing on the order of the Public Service Commission directing the gas companies in the Second and Fourth Wards of Queens to reduce rates from $1 per thousand to 80 cents, which was set down for yesterday, was adjourned until April 24. It is believed that the commission will consent to take further testimony in the matter because of the large increase in the cost of labor and materials since the order was made.

The commisson also postponed the hearing on the application of the Bronx Gas and Electric Company for permission to increase its rate for gas until next Friday, because the Rochester fare decision of the Court of Appeals left in some doubt the power of the commission to authorize an increase in rates.

How to Find a Lost Ring.

The New York Times:

The ring lost by my wife yesterday was returned promptly this morning through my advertisement in The New York Times.

I thank the newspaper through whose agency I recovered a piece of jewelry, the sentimental attachment of which is far greater than its intrinsic worth. We are indeed fortunate to have The New York Times—a newspaper whose wide circulation can be so valuable under extraordinary circumstances.

A CRUSADER OF FRANCE
By Captain Ferdinand Belmont
Introduction by Henry Bordeaux.

Chicago Daily News says: "The simple letters of this glorious French youth tell things. They tell more of the living details that make the men in this war than any book yet published. It is a simple assertion to make, this classifying of the book in superlatives. The letters are conclusive in satisfying the tenderest curiosities. In allowing Capt. Belmont's letters to be reprinted in this country France allows itself to be read. The letters have that rare quality, atmosphere."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—A total of $573,451,000 in subscriptions at the close of Friday's work for the Third Liberty Loan was announced tonight by the Treasury Department. This is the official total received from the Federal Reserve Banks, Minneapolis alone not reporting, as the campaign in that district by arrangement does not begin until next Monday.

The total announced tonight is an increase of $121,707,600 over the total at the close of work on Thursday. The returns are only those reported to the Federal Reserve Banks from incorporated banks and trust companies. Dispatches to the Treasury Department from Minneapolis indicate that there will be a large volume of subscriptions in that district, as there have been nine days of speaking and great enthusiasm prevails everywhere.

It is known here that more than 1,000 cities and smaller communities have exceeded their quotas and earned the right to claim the honor flag. In this competition the San Francisco district leads with 173 flags won. The district also has the honor of having one State, Oregon, which has achieved its quota, and one large city, Portland, which has done likewise.

Other districts report the following number of honor flags earned:

Cleveland	134	New York	84
Boston	119	Kansas City	51
Chicago	114

Detailed reports were not received from other districts, but the general report from them was that great interest was being manifested in the honor flag competition.

Among the larger cities that have claimed the right to fly the honor flag to date are Detroit, Toledo, Oklahoma City, Erie, Penn.; Des Moines, Iowa; Sioux City, Iowa; Lynn, Mass.; Danville and Joliet, Ill., and Evansville, Ind. Southborough, Mass., telegraphed today that its honor flag had been raised with appropriate exercises and an address by Governor McCall.

Subscriptions by Districts.

The subscriptions by districts for Friday follow:

	Subscribed.	Quota.
Boston	$55,980,700	$200,000,000
Philadelphia	39,027,000	250,000,000
Richmond	9,207,550	100,000,000
St. Louis	47,013,100	150,000,000
Kansas City	18,334,200	130,000,000
Dallas	19,925,950	80,000,000

Whether Portland, Ore., or Toledo was the first city of their classification to win the right to fly the flag is still a matter of dispute. It has not been officially determined whether Oregon or Iowa was first to win State honors. Both these States and others now are engaged in a contest to determine which shall be the first to have the quotas of all its counties subscribed and thus become a "100 per cent. State."

Besides leading the race for the total number of honor flag awards, San Francisco is well up in the running for extra star awards. Nine extra stars, indicating a quota subscribed ten times, have been awarded to Cloverdale, Ore. Three other towns have two stars each, and fifty-nine one extra star each. Anchorage and Ketchikan, Alaska, are among communities winning flags. California itself is striving hard to be the next State to obtain its quota.

Fifty of the 119 flags awarded in New England have gone to New Hampshire. Twenty-five counties and twenty-six towns have claimed flags in the Kansas City district. Kansas is leading in that district in subscriptions with $5,300,100.

First American Prisoner to Escape from Germany

PARIS, April 13.—The first American prisoner to escape from Germany, says the Temps, has reached Basle, Switzerland.

The first notice of American soldiers captured was issued on Nov. 2, 1917, when it was stated from Berlin that German patrols had taken "some North Americans" over the Rhine-Marne Canal, on the Lorraine front.

FATAL FOOD RIOTS IN DUTCH CAPITAL

ONUS PUT ON GOVERNMENT

People See Germany's Hand in Failure to Accept Offer of the Allies.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, April 13.—"Bread, bread, and Posthuma's head" was the angry cry of the populace, men, women, and children, last night, when The Hague was the scene of food riots which continued till a late hour.

It should be pointed out that anger is directed against the Government, and especially against Minister of Agriculture Posthuma, who is hated by the lower classes. The crowds went from street to street breaking shop windows and plundering shops.

A number of people were killed and several policemen were wounded, and the crowd got so much out of hand that cavalry was called out before order could be restored. Many shots were fired and the police charged with drawn swords, a thing unheard of in Holland, for in this respect the Dutch are different from the Germans.

Although bread shops were the first to suffer, many other shops were damaged. There were no demonstrations in front of the legations of the Allied Governments, although the British Legation telephoned to the police for a guard owing to the dense crowd in Carrow Street where the legation is situated. Owing to the tone of the people at present and the difficulty over German negotiations, anything the Allied Governments do or state as their intention of doing will have an especially advantageous effect on their cause, and the fact that the people are angry at the Government for not foreseeing the food difficulties does not mean that the Allied Governments' generous acts will not be appreciated.

The fact that the meat ratio was reduced to half a pound a week suddenly and without warning and that the bread ration was reduced at the same time to a quantity even less than the bread ration of Belgium and Germany has not served to put the people in a good temper. The question of an ever-increasing lack of fodder for cattle has been under discussion for one year and became really acute last Summer.

Why, it may well be asked, have not refrigerators been provided to store frozen meat instead of sending cattle to the overeager Teuton neighbor. Doubtless the agrarians have enriched themselves, but the people are now hungry.

Another question asked is why the Government delays about sending for the grain put at its disposal by America. It is not an exaggeration to state that people with ample means now find it difficult to get sufficient food. During the morning a bulletin was received from Washington to the effect that the allied Governments had agreed to permit three Dutch ships to leave immediately for Holland with grain for the Dutch who are starving. This action is absolutely essential and comes in the nick of time in view of the seriousness of the food riots.

The action of the Allies shows the people that there need be no starvation in Holland through any fault of the Allies, and that the suffering of the Dutch people is chargeable to the German Government alone. As already known, the Allies have given assurances that the ships will be allowed to return, but it is evident that the Germans have not given similar assurances that the ships will not be torpedoed.

THRILLED BY HAIG'S CALL

Marshal's Words Rouse Tenacity and Courage of British People.

HAILED AS VICTORY NOTE

GARVIN ALSO CONFIDENT

Insists That Even Capture of Channel Ports Would Only Delay Germany's Defeat.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 13.—Publication here of Field Marshal Haig's special order to all ranks of the British Army in France and Flanders brought clearly home to the general public the gravity of the peril in which that army stands.

It goes without saying that the fighting men will respond magnificently to the splendid appeal which the Field Marshal makes to them, and as for the nation at home there is no doubt, as the Westminster Gazette says, that "under the stress of grave and perilous events the British people may be trusted to show the qualities of their race—courage, coolness, tenacity, and good sense—which have so often carried them through the crises of their history."

Haig's order is hailed in some quarters as "in itself a victory, for it tells the truth, and the British people are stout souled and will take truth with fearless hands and fashion it into a clean sword for the defense of hearth, home, and liberty."

One of the frankest statements made in the press about the military situation appears in today's Manchester Guardian, which says in part:

"We are now in the supreme crisis of the war. The Germans are raising the stakes like the military gamblers that they are. They have followed up their check in the Somme region by an attack between Arras and Ypres which is far more serious than anything that happened further south. The rank and file of the British army are on the whole superior to that of the enemy, who has had so much heavier casualties than ourselves. The numbers of the opposing armies are approximately equal. We know that on the authority of the Premier. In many arms, notably in air service, we are markedly superior to the enemy. If, therefore, the enemy gains ground in the vital region—and the valley of the Lys has always been that—it means that the Germans can move from one part of the front to another faster than we can.

"The German correspondents positively glow with admiration for the railway system behind our lines. It may be as good as they say, but if it were markedly inferior to the German and if the German correspondents had been instructed to single out our weakness for their admiration, the course of events as recorded in the reports would be much more intelligible. The immediate problem is to save Bailleul, for this is an important railway junction

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, April 13.—Advices received from Germany today say four regiments of Prussian Guards suffered severely from their own gas last Wednesday in the attack on Armentières, when the wind shifted suddenly and blew the gas back in their faces.

In order that the people may not be alarmed at seeing so many men of crack regiments blinded by gas, orders have been given to remove the shoulder straps and other identification marks from the victims before they are sent back to the base hospitals.

OUR TROOPS WIN ALL-DAY BATTLE

Repulse Two Attacks in Force in Toul Sector and Take 36 Prisoners.

BARRAGE CUTS OFF ENEMY

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, April 13, (Associated Press.)—Yesterday's battle was the first all-day struggle in which the American troops have been engaged. Two German attacks, which were delivered in force against the American positions northwest of Toul, were repulsed with heavy casualties to the enemy, including thirty-six prisoners left in the hands of the Americans. The American losses were slight.

The fighting began with one of the most violent bombardments ever laid down in that sector. During Thursday night the Germans kept up a harassing fire, throwing many gas shells into the American position. The first attack begnn at about 6 o'clock in the morning, and was directed against the French troops on the left flank of the American forces in the Forest of Apremont.

While this was going on the American troops made a counterattack on the German line, moving forward behind a perfect curtain of fire. The enemy, driven out of his trenches, was forced to fight in the open.

A deadly machine gun and automatic rifle fire was poured into the Germans, who offered stubborn resistance at first, but later retreated to their second line, hotly pursued by the American troops. Desultory fighting continued for several hours.

The Germans again attacked at 11 o'clock at a point further to the right. The American barrage fire cut them off, but the German officers drove their men through the exploding shells until a few succeeded in penetrating the American front line.

FULL FAITH IN FOCH

France Believes That His Force Will Soon Make a Decisive Attack.

LIKE JOFFRE AT THE MARNE

Difference Is That Foch Is Far Better Equipped with Men and Materials.

GERMANS PUZZLED SO FAR

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 13.—What will General Foch do? This is the question which is the subject of intense interest here as the great battle develops day after day. That Foch has the situation perfectly well in hand and will sooner or later act in a very definite and effective manner no one has the slightest doubt, and there is every confidence in his ability and sound judgment. And this confidence continues unbroken despite the heavy blows the enemy continues to deal against the British.

The people are comparing Foch's attitude at the present moment with that of Joffre during the long retreat which resulted in a crowning victory at the Marne, but it is pointed out that the allied position now is infinitely more favorable than before the Marne. It is realized that whereas Joffre, before the Marne, lacked not only men, but also material of almost every kind, Foch has at his disposal a wealth of supplies in men and guns of every calibre that renders any anxiety on this score impossible.

That the imminent intervention of Foch is expected is foreshadowed by Marcel Hutin in the Echo de Paris this morning.

"The British, in good order, it is true," he says, "have fallen back toward the north, but it is time that the German columns were stayed. We may be sure that Foch has taken all the necessary steps in order to establish the situation, both from the point of view of his command and in regard to sending requisite reinforcements to the British."

The Germans, Maurice Barres suggests, judging by local actions in which they are engaging at various points, seem to be holding themselves in a kind of expectancy and to be waiting for the French to disclose their hand. "The enemy," he says, "is evidently struck by the fact that there has been no powerful counteraction by the French armies, and this is puzzling them, for they know well we have the power of action."

The essential point at this juncture seems to be whether Foch or Ludendorff will succeed in wearing down his enemy most, and thus preserve the power to strike with superior strength in the last and decisive stages of the battle.

Germany's plan, at all events, is now becoming clearer every day. Its first plank is to keep the French busy on their own line with local battles, and its second, to prepare to smash the British by steadily forcing the main battle northward, where they hope it will be possible to lock the isolated British armies between themselves and the sea. The third idea is simultaneously to try to demoralize London and Paris by a series of air raids and long-range bombardments.

The latter effort, whatever the immediate results of the German tactics may be at the front, has signally failed. In spite of the bombardment yesterday and the raids by the Gothas last night, which resulted in twenty-six deaths, Paris refuses to look at the future with anything but unqualified optimism. She is keeping a stiff upper lip without signs of flinching. Paris, like the whole of France, has unquestionably the fullest possible confidence in Foch and is eagerly waiting the news that will tell her of the beginning of a new and greater victory than the battle of the Marne.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
From a Staff Correspondent.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, April 13.—THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent visited today a battery of heavy artillery whose target is the German guns that are bombarding Paris. The French know to a yard the situation of the latter, which are situated on the spurs of low hills on the Laon-La Fère railroad, a few miles northwest of the town first named.

As early as October French airmen brought word of big gun emplacements in this locality, but it was then supposed that they were for cannon to be used against Soissons. Three months ago prisoners spoke of "eine kolosale Kanone," which was going to shell Paris.

The officer in charge of the counterbattery operations showed me a map in relief, giving the exact positions of the supercannon. Air photographs of later date show the effect of the French fire, which has already put one of the monsters out of action, two shells having fallen on the barrel.

It is stated that these guns are ninety-six feet long. At the moment of firing other big guns let fly simultaneously, to confuse the French, and a smoke screen is emitted in the vicinity to hide the pieces from aircraft. Up to yesterday there had been no firing at night, lest the flashes show the position of the cannon. How necessary this precaution is may be illustrated by my experience last night, when I saw the whole northern sky constantly lit up by the guns on the eighty-mile front of the German offensive.

Directly one of the long-range guns fires on Paris the counterbattery receives a telephone message and responds immediately. As I approached the counterbattery—the Germans had been shelling it vigorously and the neighborhood was highly dangerous—there was a sudden terrific burst of sound, as if the sky were splitting overhead. For a moment I thought a German shell had landed very close, but it was simply one of the French guns.

To a nonprofessional observer their barrels seem almost vertical. The shells they use are very different from those which fall in Paris, their weight being more than half a ton. Air photographs show that not only has one German gun been put out of action and that tremendous craters have been made around others, but that one French shell fell plumb on an important main line, which was blocked for a whole day—and that at a time when rapid transport was essential to the Germans.

A French officer admitted the difficulty of obtaining absolute accuracy at a range of ten miles, but assured me that it was only a question of time before all three supercannon were destroyed.

PARIS, April 13.—The bombardment of the region of Paris by long-range guns was resumed today.

PETAIN BREAKS INTO GERMAN LINE

STOPS ATTACK NEAR NOYON

PARIS, April 13.—French troops in an attack today northwest of Orvillers-Sorel made an advance of several hundred meters along a front of about two-thirds of a mile, according to the War Office announcement tonight.

A German attack in the Noyon sector was repulsed with heavy losses to the enemy.

Heavy gun fire was in progress on the front north of Montdidier.

Complete success in the Hangard counterattacks last night was reported in the day bulletin. The entire village as well as the cemetery is now in French hands.

Part of Rheims is in flames. While the Germans continue to bombard, the French are trying to restrict the progress of the fire.

The night bulletin is as follows:

There were artillery duels at various points north of Montdidier, notably in the region of Cantigny and Grivesnes.

West of Lassigny our troops delivered an attack against the wood northwest of Orvilles-Sorel. On a front of about 1,200 meters we made an advance several hundred meters in depth and took a number of prisoners.

In the Noyon sector special storming troops, who launched an attack against our positions, were caught under our fire before being able to reach our lines and suffered a sanguinary check.

There was quite heavy artillery activity at Hill 304, Eparges, and in the Parroy Forest.

The day bulletin (outside of a paragraph concerning operations with American troops in the St. Mihiel sector) reads:

Counterattacks delivered during the night by French troops in the region of Hangard-en-Santerre resulted in the enemy being thrown back completely. The French again hold the entire village, as well as the ceme-

GERMANS REPORT CONTINUED GAINS

Progress "All the Way" on the Lys, Is the Statement from Headquarters.

MOVING TOWARD BAILLEUL

Railway Leading from That Town to the Southwest Has Been Reached.

BERLIN, April 13.—Continued gain of ground all the way on "the battlefront on the Lys" is reported officially by the General Headquarters tonight.

The day report told of successes in the direction of Wulverghem (west of Messines) and between the railways leading from Armentières to Bailleul and Merville. In the latter area, it is stated, the German forces have reached the railway leading from Bailleul to Merris, (four miles southwest of Bailleul.)

The evening statement from General Headquarters reads:

We gained ground on the battlefront on the Lys all the way. Otherwise there is nothing new.

The day bulletin is as follows:

On the battlefield of the Lys our attacks against English divisions, which had been brought up as quickly as possible in motor cars and by railway, made good progress.

From the heights of Messines we pushed forward across the Steenbeek River and reached the eastern border of Wulverghem.

Troops which had advanced to the south of Ploegsteert Wood swung around toward the north in a rapid and independent action under Regimental Commander Lieut. Col. Potmann, and took the fortified height of Rossignol by storm, and joined hands with a detachment which had advanced to the north along the wood.

The strongly wired wood, which would have been difficult to capture by means of a frontal attack, fell through being surrounded.

Between the railways leading from Armentières to Bailleul and Merville we carried our attack forward as far as the railway leading from Bailleul to Merris, and as far as the eastern border of Nieppe Wood.

To the south of Merville our troops

LINE HOLDS NEAR MERVILLE

LONDON, April 13.—British troops in the region northwest of Armentières are now checking the German onset and regaining a little ground, according to tonight's bulletin from Field Marshal Haig at General Headquarters.

Today the British troops by a hard drive at Neuve Eglise (three miles southwest of Messines) recovered the town, which had been captured by the enemy last night. Prisoners were taken, including a battalion commander.

Four German attacks southeast of Bailleul were beaten off during the day, as well as an attempted attack south of Meteren, (two miles west of Bailleul.)

The day report, recording the events of last evening, told of repulses inflicted on the Germans east of Locon (southwest of Armentières) and also west of Merville, near the tip of the German salient.

As a result of the fighting last night in the neighborhood of Neuve Eglise, the enemy succeeded after a prolonged struggle in forcing his way into the village. This morning he was vigorously counterattacked by our troops and driven out, leaving a number of prisoners, including a battalion commander, in our hands. A furtber attack, made by the enemy later in the morning, was successfully repulsed.

In the courno of the morning a number of other attacks were made by the enemy unsuccessfully at different points along the battlefront north of La Bassée Canal.

Three separate attacks against our line southwest and west and north of Merville were in each case repulsed after heavy fighting.

An attack attempted by the enemy south of Meteren was successfully driven back, and four attacks launched against our positions southeast of Bailleul were beaten off.

Heavy casualties were inflicted on the enemy in these several unsuccessful attacks.

This afternoon another hostile attack in strength has developed between the Meteren-Becque River, southwest of Meteren and Wulverghem. Severe fighting has taken place on the whole of this front.

On other parts of the British front the day passed without any incident of importance.

The day bulletin reads:

Heavy fighting developed yesterday evening in the neighborhood of Neuve Eglise and Wulverghem, and at a late hour last night was still continuing. We advanced our line slightly in the neighborhood of Festubert and secured a few prisoners.

Early in the night a strong hostile attack, preceded by a heavy bombardment, was launched against our positions east of Locon. The enemy succeeded in entering our

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, April 13.—THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent was received this afternoon by a famous French General, commanding an army on an important sector of the front. His headquarters is an unassuming villa so near the firing line that the roar of the French "departs" followed by the explosion of the German "arrivals" is almost continuous.

The General spoke with the same brevity as other great leaders. His optimism is superb.

"Now everything is going splendidly," he said, "though I do not deny that we had anxious moments on two occasions in the last week of March. But the unity of command was an enormous change in our favor. In an army of one nation a Generalissimo is, perhaps, less important than in the case of allies.

"The British throughout have fought magnificently, and once their operations and movements are completely in accord with ours, there is no risk of the enemy breaking through. The situation warrants full optimism.

"You ask for a word to America. It is this: Hurry—Hurry—Hurry.

"It cannot be too strongly impressed on the Americans that speed is all-essential. It is now we want your aid when Germany is playing, in my opinion, her last desperate throw for victory. The Germans cannot wait. They must have a speedy decision. I know the temper of the American people. They will not fail us.

"I have had an American division with my troops in a different sector. They are first-class material, keen and enthusiastic. I am very pleased with them."

lines at certain points, but was driven out again by a counter-attack, and a second attack attempted by the enemy later in the night in the same locality was successfully beaten off. During the early part of the night the enemy also attacked west of Merville and was repulsed.

On the remainder of the northern battlefront the situation is unchanged.

Sharp local fighting took place yesterday south of the Somme, in the neighborhood of Hangard, and positions into which the enemy had forced his way were regained by counterattacks delivered by British and French troops. North of the Somme the enemy's artillery has been more active.

Sixty of Foe's Airplanes Downed.

Atmospheric conditions were favorable Friday and a great concentration of our machines was effected on the battlefront. A large number of low-flying machines were employed in bombing and sweeping with machine-gun fire roads packed with enemy troops. Thirty-six tons of bombs were dropped and over 110,000 rounds of ammunition were fired.

In the meantime other formations, flying at a greater height, engaged the enemy planes, which were extremely lively in this sector. Forty German machines were brought down and twenty others were brought down out of control. Two were brought down by gunfire. Twelve of ours are missing.

Incessant bombing was carried out between dark and dawn. Over twenty-two tons were dropped on the Douai railway station and roads leading to the battlefront in the neighborhood of Estaires.

BRITISH HOLD GATES TO VITAL RAILWAYS

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, April 13, (Associated Press.)—The German hosts this morning continued to deliver sledge-hammer blows in the Bailleul and Merville sectors in an attempt to break through and gain possession of the railway junctions of Hazelbrouck and Aire, but the British were still hanging doggedly to the gateways leading westward. After a night of desperate fighting there was no great change in the situation since last evening, but the position of the defending troops seemed more cheerful.

The enemy's greatest gain was Southwest of Bailleul, where they pushed their lines forward by heavy attacks to the line of the Hazelbrouck-Bailleul railway. Throughout the afternoon and night the Germans kept hurling troops against this point in at attempt to force the British from Bailleul, but the latter held the town and along the railway.

The enemy succeeded in penetrating Meeris, on the railway southwest of Bailleul, last night, and here a hot fight was exchanged at close quarters, with the result that the enemy was pushed and held off in the outskirts of the place.

The enemy seeks the domination of the railway, so that troops, guns and supplies can be rushed forward. The ground on which the present operations are taking place is very low and wet and unfavorable for the rapid movement of heavy guns. Work on the Armentières-Bailleul railway has been pushed furiously by the enemy since the occupation of the former town, and artillery is being moved forward as rapidly as possible.

Between Bailleul and Nsuve Eglise the British assumed the offensive during the night, and, after bitter fighting, pushed the German lines back considerably. Neuve Eglise itself has been the centre of a sanguinary struggle.

The enemy last night drove forward here and captured the village, but a counterattack early today brought it back into British hands. A heavy engagement was in progress here this forenoon and at least four German attacks were repulsed.

The enemy's pressure in the drive toward Neuve Eglise was from Wytschaete southward, and they gradually forced the British to fall back from Ploegsteert and Ploegsteert Wood until the battle reached Neuve Eglise.

In the region west of Merville the British lines this morning lay in front of the great forest of Nieppe. Following the retirement to this position yesterday, after a day of fighting, the Germans made a fresh assault early last night, with the intention of occupying the forest, but gained only a few hundred yards at the expense of heavy casualties.

St. Venant, between Merville and Aire, was heavily attacked yesterday by strong forces of Germans after they took Merville.

The German attack about Givenchy, on the southern end of the battleline was pressed yesterday by some nine divisions. There has been virtually no cessation in the fighting here since the beginning of the battle on Tuesday. Thus far the British have maintained a stone-wall defense, against which the Germans have flung themselves with heavy losses. The casualty list of the attacking troops was swelled appallingly yesterday as the British artillery and machine guns pounded concentration points and troops advancing in close formation.

The work of the British gunners at Givenchy has been noteworthy throughout. On the first day, when the Germans swept forward in masses and the situation was grave, many artillerymen worked for hours shooting pointblank at close range. One gunnery sergeant stood by his piece firing with open sights at a range of 200 yards and held the enemy off for a considerable time before he was compelled to fall back.

With the exception of Merville the Germans thus far have not reached their objectives. A captured German document reveals that there were to be three smashes on the front north and south of Armentières. One had Bailleul as its main objective, another Merville and Aire, and the third Bethune.

Not less than twenty-eight divisions had been employed by the enemy in this pretentious program, which has meant that at some places the British have been heavily outnumbered.

TO HAMMER THE BRITISH.

French View That a Succession of Blows Is Planned.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, April 13, (Associated Press.)—All efforts of the German high command for the present are directed toward the systematic dislocation of the British armies. Having failed to break the communications between the British and French, the enemy has turned his attention northward and it appears likely that the Germans will continue to throw all their available strength in that direction.

The enemy's plan seems to be to deliver a succession of hammering blows at different points between the Somme and the sea with the aim of bringing about a British evacuation of the northern district of France.

Six German armies are participating in the battle raging along the front. They are von Arnim's, von Quast's, Otto von Below's, von Marwitz's, von Hutier's, and von Boehm's, on the east of the Oise.

The Germans, owing to their possession of interior lines of communication, are able to move their strategic reserves with greater facility than the Allies, and thus make surprise attacks with rapidly concentrated superior forces. Owing to the tenacity of the Allies the enemy has been unable to carry out his pre-arranged program. Orders captured on prisoners who have fallen into allied hands in considerable numbers foresaw the capture of the line along the Lys River on April 9. Bethune was to have been taken on April 10, but was saved by the wonderful defence of the British at Givenchy.

GERMANS LINK NAVAL AND LAND DRIVES?

Some Washington Observers Think Foe Prepares for Chance of Channel Ports Seizure.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Intimations from neutral source that Germany has been preparing for a naval offensive, as contained in press reports reaching this country, had already come to the Navy Department in an official way. Mobilization of naval reserves at the fleet bases, assembly of supplies, and other activities indicating plans for a dash to sea have been reported for some weeks.

Navy officials, however, are in doubt as to the extent to which these reports are to be credited. They are not certain that the news is not put out by the Germans themselves, for they find it difficult to see what object the Germans would have in risking the High Seas Fleet against the much superior British and American naval force.

In some quarters the sudden drop in submarine sinkings last week is thought to lend color to the possibility of a German naval drive to supplement the land operations, the explanation being that the submarines have been called in to prepare for co-operation with the fleet.

Undoubtedly, it is said, the German drives in Picardy and Flanders are for the purpose of capturing the Channel ports through which British troops and supplies flow to the front. They were launched in the firm conviction that success would attend them, and officers say it naturally follows that steps are taken to prepare the battle fleets and submarines to co-operate with the army.

RESERVES REACHING HAIG'S ARMY NOW

Both British and French Reinforcements Have Arrived, Says the British Attache Here.

GERMANS SLACKENING UP

Are in a Narrow Salient, He Says, Dominated by the British on Higher Ground.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Both French and British reinforcements are reaching Sir Douglas Haig's Army in Flanders, which is now in a strong position to meet further German attacks, Major Gen. James D. McLachlan, the British Military Attaché here, said tonight in reviewing the situation on the northern part of the western battle line.

"As things stand, the Germans have scored," said General McLachlan, "but not so heavily as they would have liked to have done. They have won no decisive victory and each hour that their advance is delayed makes it less likely that they will. They are in a position not very different from that which they occupied at the end of the first, and what may be called mobile, stage of the battle for Amiens.

"By their drive at Amiens the Germans hoped to separate the British from the French Army. Their attack between the Ypres-Comines Canal and La Bassée is as clearly meant to divide the British Army, roll it up and penetrate to the English Channel. In the battle for Amiens their attack was stopped upon the northern portion of the line between Arras and Albert. In the present battle their northern flank, while bending back the British line, has similarly failed in its object.

"The country between Wytschaete and La Bassée back to Hazelbrouck is in the nature of a shallow basin, surrounded by high ground. Into this basin the Germans have penetrated to a maximum depth of about ten miles and on a front of about fifteen miles, between Ploegsteert Wood and La Bassée, but they have failed to force the British from the hills, stretching west from Wytschaete, and at the south end of their attack have been held on the line of Festubert-Givenchy-Hulluch, and have thus been kept from Bethune, which was their immediate objective in that region. These two failures leave them, in spite of all their gains in the centre, in an uncomfortably narrow salient, dominated by higher ground in the hands of the British.

"The British are in a strong position to meet further attacks, which are bound to come. Their own and French reinforcements are reaching them, and behind them they have the line of hills running from Wytschaete on the line of Kommel-Scherpenberg-Mont Kokercele-Kruystrete-Saint Sylvestre to Cassel. To achieve as success that will compensate them for the losses incurred by the great number of divisions (over twenty) used in the initial attack, the Germans will, moreover, have not only to occupy those heights, but to press on through the country behind, which is undulating and broken, and the defensive qualities, of which the British Commander in Chief is not likely to have overlooked. That, however, is for the future.

"The main thing about the situation, as it stands today, is that by failing to break through between the Ypres-Comines Canal and Wytschaete, and thus to push the British from the ridge, running west toward Cassel, the Germans find themselves in an awkwardly narrow salient. For that reason, if for no other, the battle is bound to continue with great ferocity, as Field Marshal Haig warned the British Army in his special order of the day, published in today's newspapers.

MAINTAIN FAITH IN ALLIES.

Washington Military Experts See No Cause for Pessimism.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The special order issued by Field Marshal Haig to "All ranks of the British Army in France and Flanders" gave rise today to various surmises as to the situation on the Picardy front, some of them pessimistic, others hopeful. The expression of the British commander, "with our backs to the wall," was construed by some nonmilitary observers as an admission that the situation of the British and French armies in Picardy and Flanders was desperate, and it was repeated during the day with many headshakings and mournful surmises.

Those who were inclined to discouragement generally acknowledged that they were in the dark as to the exact situation that confronted Haig's forces. Some saw a sign of optimism in the possibility that the British commander had issued the order on the eve of throwing in his reserves in a movement intended to crush the enemy, hoping that his words would serve to make them understand that, even with help at hand, they were depended upon to fight desperately to make the reserve movement a success.

Others sought the counsel of military experts. To those in the latter class great comfort was given. It was a striking development of the day that army officers did not interpret Sir Douglas Haig's order as a declaration of possible defeat. On the contrary, these trained soldiers found no marked cause for alarm. They were quite cheerful in discussing the outlook and indulged in some adverse but kindly criticism of the Field Marshal in sounding what the lay population of the allied nations and the Central Empires would be inclined to regard as a note of alarm.

High ranking army officers stationed in Washington asserted that the situation on the Picardy and Flanders fronts was in reality not nearly so desperate as Field Marshal Haig's order might cause the uninformed to think, and that there was excellent reason to look for developments that would be helpful to the allied side.

Germany, they said, had brought into the fifty-odd mile sector all her effective forces that could be spared from other fronts. The 106 divisions, the strength of the Germans as estimated by Haig, would represent not more than 1,200,000 troops, the largest number that could be handled on so narrow a front. The British themselves have a greater number than the Germans, without counting the French and Italian armies now in immediate touch with the situation, or even considering the Americans available for instant use.

Germany, risking everything, employing all her strength in one mighty effort, must win. It was pointed out, to avert the most terrible catastrophe, and failure by her to attain her objectives, which she regards as equivalent to winning a decisive victory, would present to the Allies an opportunity of following up the German failure with such a crushing defeat as would destroy the very possibility of a new enemy initiative for the remainder of the war. If it did not actually effect a peace within a short time.

Military men here already are beginning to regard the present battle as the Gettysburg of this war. They believe its end will mark the uttermost reach of the German power, and that thenceforward there will be a rapid decline of German military efficiency. The battle, it is predicted, will continue in intensity and ferocity until Germany realizes her failure. It is likely to last for months, barring an earlier irruption of the allied reserves on the enemy flank, and in it Germany will require at least an additional 500,000 men, who can be obtained only by the employment of all the men between 18 and 19—the Central Empires' last card, except the weakening of the Austrian Army.

It is believed here that the counter-offensive will be struck south of Amiens. There have been some indications, however, such as the statement in Haig's order of the day, that the French reinforcements would be thrown against the Germans in company with the British, which might make impossible the delivery of a counteroffensive on the flank.

The sector between Montdidier and Bariels, according to War Department experts, offers the most advantageous situation for a counteroffensive, and delivered there, it was asserted, it would bring immediate and most effective relief to the British, hard-pressed and yielding at other points. Military men commented upon the fact that the French part of the line had held firm and that there had been no evidences of such a feeling among the French as that exhibited in Haig's order of the day.

It was also suggested that the German successes to date might be attributed to the employment of new tactics, which, it was said, nearly always succeeded until a reply to them was devised. The best method for meeting any situation, however, was asserted to be a counterattack, and army experts here are hopeful that it will not be much longer postponed.

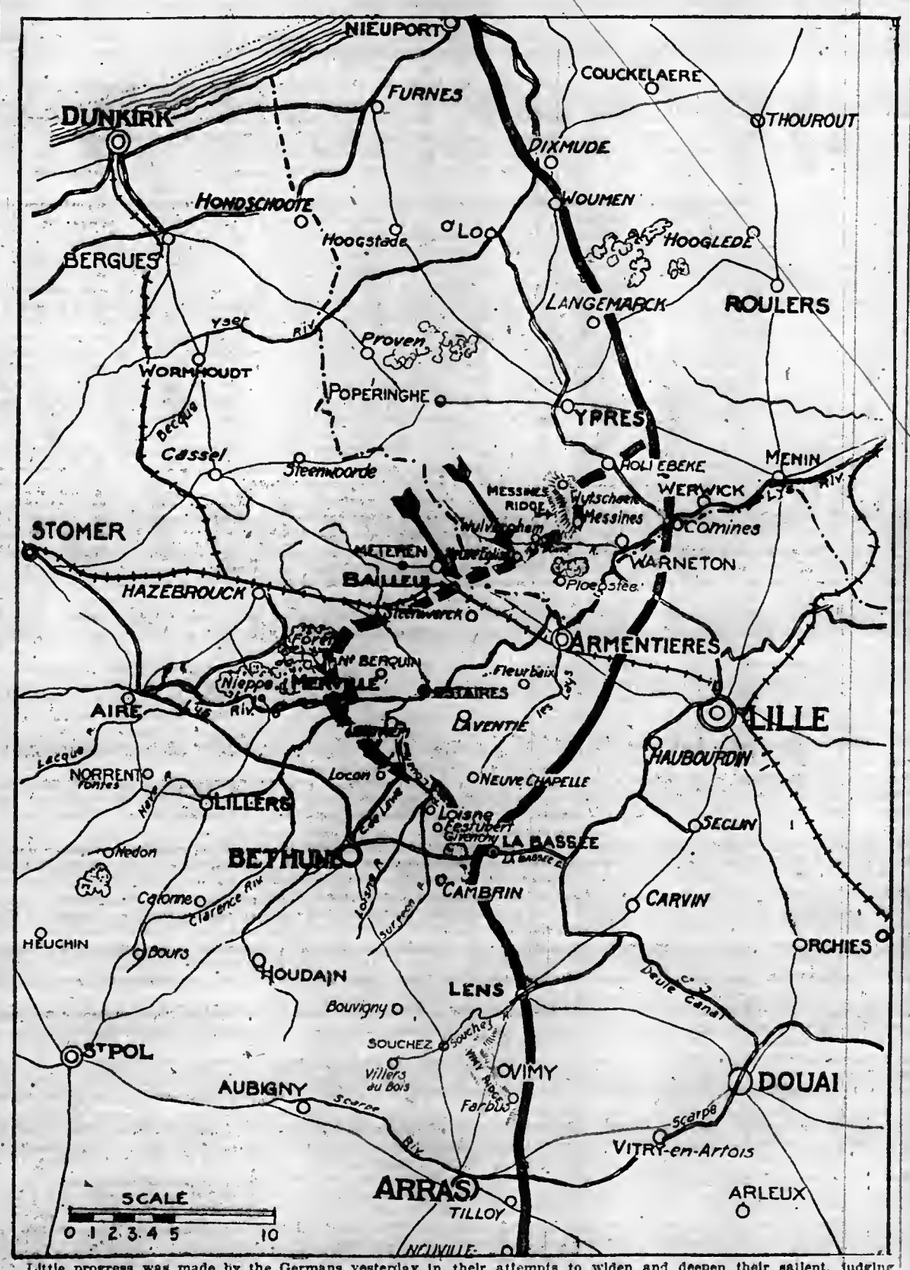
PARIS, April 13.—Premier Clemenceau spent Thursday and Friday on the battlefront, returning to Paris last night. He visited Gensrl Foch and General Pétain and the British troops.

The Battleline North and South of Armentieres.



Little progress was made by the Germans yesterday in their attempts to widen and deepen their salient, judging from the official reports from London and Berlin.

They have taken and lost Neuve Eglise at the north, where they are trying to make progress back of Messines ridge. They have also suffered repulses in the Bailleul region, but report having reached the railway southwest of that town.

STILL SNEER AT AID OF AMERICAN ARMY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, April 13.—Since the offensive on the western front the German press has endeavored to prove to the German people that American help on that front is of no consequence. The Cologne Gazette comments on Lord Curzon's speech, and points out that American help lies in the future, and will come too late if at all.

Other papers mock at American aircraft, saying that America announced the sending of 50,000 and 100,000 airplanes to the west front, and meant to decide the war with their help. The paper says even England was skeptical, that in reality America only possessed seventy-three efficient airplanes up to January, 1917, and that up to now not one really reliable airplane has been sent to the front, although waterplanes from England and France appear to have been used in fighting the submarines somewhat unsuccessfully.

"On the German front," says the Gazette, "not one single American airplane has been captured, and only one American machine has been sighted, although War Secretary Baker announced on Feb. 22 that the first American machines had been sent to Europe five months before the agreement. None have been seen at the front, perhaps largely because the machines were sent over without motors, and must be mounted with French motors. One has heard of the American Liberty motor, but as yet nothing has been seen of it."

Another paper says that America promised all sorts of support to the Allies when she first entered the war and an army of a million for France. It adds: "How much this meant has been shown by the present battle in France, where only a small portion of the million army has put in an appearance."

The paper also refers sarcastically to the air fleet promised and the airmen who were to be ready before the end of 1917. It says that France plays up all these reports to encourage the people, but the English are waiting to see results. It says the plans for the new airplanes have failed and American has been obliged to copy the best English and French machines, and it still remains to be seen how far she can do this.

The paper says the few American airmen at the front have not distinguished themselves, and that all this shows that also in this department America promised the Western Powers more than she could fulfill.

Another paper, commenting on the offensive, says even in America it is gradually dawning on the people that they have let themselves in for a bad business, and the President's latest stormy speech indicates this. It says the President's indifference appears to have been considerably shaken, and the whole "success" which he prophesied a year ago appears to be that Pershing has cabled to America American losses over 3,000.

tery. The Germans suffered losses without obtaining any result and also left in our hands seventy prisoners, of whom three are officers.

Artillery fighting continues with violence in this region. Between Montdidier and Noyon there was an active bombardment, together with unusually great patrolling activity. The French took ten prisoners north of Orvillers-Sorel. Between the Miette and the Aisne German raids were repulsed by the French fire. The French took prisoners in the sectors of St. Hilaire and Souain.

The Germans continue to bombard Rheims. One part of the city is in flames. We are making energetic efforts to restrict the fire to this area, notwithstanding the very heavy bombardment of the enemy.

In Lorraine the French made a raid in the region of Eply. There is nothing to report on the remainder of the front.

Intense Aerial Activity.

On April 12 our airplanes displayed great activity along the whole front, particularly in the regions of the Somme and the Oise. Our pursuit machines carried out more than 350 sorties and fought 120 engagements. Eight enemy airplanes were brought down; twenty-three others fell within their own lines, seriously damaged. Five enemy captive balloons were set on fire; five others, pierced by bullets, were obliged to drop precipitately to the earth.

Our bombing machines likewise carried out demonstrations. In the day of April 12 and the night of April 12-13 a total of 48,000 kilos of projectiles was dropped in the course of these expeditions, in which Italian machines took part. The railway stations of Jussy, Roye, St. Quentin, Nesle, Ham, Guiscard, and Noyon, railways, cantonments, and numerous convoys in these regions, as well as the stations at Hireon, Laon and Montcornet were copiously bombed. Several fires and explosions occurred.

BRITISH NAVAL ATTACK ON FLANDERS COAST

BERLIN, April 13, (via London.)—An official statement issued tonight says:

"British naval forces, consisting of monitors, torpedo craft, and aircraft, attacked the coast of Flanders Thursday night. Ostend was bombarded with heavy calibre guns, and aircraft bombed Zeebrugge. The attacks were beaten off without trouble by our batteries. There was no damage.

"A torpedo boat approaching Ostend was set afire and the crew abandoned it. We captured the boat with its complete equipment."

LONDON, April 13.—With reference to the German official statement claiming that in the attack on the coast of Flanders a British torpedo boat was set afire and captured by the Germans, the Admiralty says that only one small motor boat is missing.

A German torpedo boat struck a mine off Zeebrugge Friday and sank, according to a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from The Hague.

THINK LLOYD GEORGE SPOKE IN DESPERATION

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, April 13.—The German press argues that Lloyd George's speech in the House of Commons is a clear sign that England is coming to the end of her resources, and the papers naturally rejoice greatly at this sign, which they create for themselves.

"The speech shows," says the militarist journal, Die Post, "that England and Lloyd George have understood very well the manner in which the German sword has spoken during the last few weeks."

The Lokal-Anzeiger thinks the speech the most mournful ever heard in the British Parliament, but the Berliner Tageblatt, more sensible and more cautious, thinks it "shows that all the elements in England are determined to hold together and concentrate all their energies on the work of the battlefield, with the hope of turning the fortune of war."

The Kreuz-Zeitung, the organ of the high Conservative and military parties declares the speech shows how serious England's position is, and expresses the belief that the speech demonstrates that Lloyd George has the vast majority of the House of Commons behind him, and that the country has decided "to put forth all efforts to bring the war to a successful conclusion."

The Vossische Zeitung says that Lloyd George is the first Premier to speak with the English tradition, which demands that English blood shall be hunbanded, and it points out that the raising of the age limit is clear proof of a determined will to carry on the war. This journal, which has lately become highly hostile to England, proceeds to declare that the war is now being carried on solely and wholly against England. It says: "The peoples now allied with England will one day see for what their blood is being spilt. German arms will one day give them a true idea of German strength, and it is the Germans' task to show them that we have a sense of right. When they recognize that our war is against England, and against England alone, then the last hour of England resistance will have come."

Germania still clings to the idea that American help is a mere chimera, as do numerous other papers.

Austrian Emperor's Latest Explanation of His Letter

AMSTERDAM, April 12.—An official statement issued by Count Czernin, the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, "by all-highest command," declares that Emperor Charles's letter published by the French was falsified. It says that Prince Sixtus began the correspondance, and that the Emperor wrote a purely private letter, not mentioning Belgium, but saying: "I would have used all my personal influence in favor of the French claims for the return of Alsace-Lorraine if these claims were just. They are not, however."

The Vienna newspapers make various explanations, some saying that the letter is a forgery, and others that it was garbled.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The Austrian semi-official explanation of the peace letter of Emperor Charles, according to a dispatch received today from France, is that it was written by the Duchess of Parma, mother of Empress Zita, to her son, Prince Sixtus, and that the Emperor must have added certain lines over his signature. The Vienna view is that this explains how Premier Clemenceau was able to say that the letter was signed by the Emperor.

The dispatch from France says:

"The following information was telegraphed Friday evening from Berne, which gives us an idea of the effect which may be produced by the revelations of M. Clemenceau. It has been possible this morning to note the impression caused by this publication among the journalists of the Central Powers living at Berne. In the course of an extremely animated conversation this morning, in which several German and Austrian journalists took part, one of them exclaimed, with the approval of his interlocutors: 'It is a vertable bomb that has just exploded. He will have to abdicate.'

"Before the publication of the text of the letter the Austro-German press, in conformity with the insans lies of the Emperor Charles and his Minister, had the audacity to declare that it was a pure invention. The confusion produced in the camps of the Central Empires must be nearly as great as was their impudence of yesterday. They will attempt to throw the responsibility for the famous letter upon certain members of the imperial family."

Never Doubted Him, Kaiser Says.

AMSTERDAM, April 13.—The German Emperor has sent the following telegram to Emperor Charles of Austria:

"Accept my heartiest thanks for the letter in which you repudiate the assertion of the French Premier regarding your attitude toward the French claims on Alsace-Lorraine as entirely baseless and once again accentuate the solidarity of the interests which exist between us and our empires. I hasten to tell you that in my eyes there is no need whatever for such assurances on your part, for I have not for a moment been in doubt. You have made our cause your own; in like measure we stand for the rights of your monarchy."

"The heavy battles in these years clearly demonstrate this for every one who will see. They have only drawn the bond closer. Our enemies, who are unable to do anything against us in honorable battle, do not recoil from the most sordid and lowest means. We must put up with that, but all the more it is our duty ruthlessly to grapple with and beat the enemy in all the war theatres."

An official telegram from Vienna says the letter from Emperor Charles to Prince Sixtus, as it was published in Paris, was garbled.

A dispatch from Vienna to the Frankfurter Zeitung, referring to the disclosures made by Premier Clemenceau in respect to Austrian peace proposals, says, assuming the existence of the Emperor's letter, it was written before the breakdown of Russia, at a time "when the war outlook was quite different from today, and when a young, peace-loving monarch might take steps which today, under entirely altered conditions, must appear in another light."

KAISER KARL FINDS AUSTRIANS IN MISERY

Labor Leaders in Industrial Regions Appeal to Him with Tales of Severe Suffering.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, April 13.—According to the Vienna Arbeiter Zeitung, Emperor Charles, who has been traveling in Austrian industrial regions, has heard some homely truths from labor leaders there. In the Warnsdorf district he received several labor leaders, to one of whom he remarked:

"Well, you aren't very well off here, are you?"

"No," replied the leader. "Our poor are suffering frightfully from hunger. No one can live on the legal rations and those who cannot obtain something extra must soon go under. Yet we are threatened with reduced rations. Your Majesty, may I express the wish of thousands that your Majesty should do all that lies in your power to relieve the hunger and misery of our district?"

To this the Emperor replied:

"It is frightful. Be assured I shall do my best."

"And may I express another wish?" the labor representative went on. "Our poor, hungry people, especially the women, seek to add to what food they can obtain by walking far into the country in order to get small quantities of potatoes and other vegetables in exchange for what clothes they can possibly do without. But the gendarmes take away from them their hard-earned little quantities of food thus obtained. Heartrending scenes take place, and though the women beg and weep, the authorities act without mercy. Your Majesty, this misery is too much for us."

"That is terrible," replied the monarch, "and it must be done away with."

In other districts similar terrible stories were told to the Emperor. Bakers said they had no supplies to make bread. For two months no potatoes had been seen and bread could be obtained to the extent of only two or three ounces a day. Fat was quite unobtainable. Coal could be obtained only in lots of a few pounds weekly. In Schluckenau the Emperor was told that 50 per cent. of the people were underfed and many were quite incapable of work.

"The Winter we have passed through," said one man to the monarch, "is not to be described."

The Emperor could only promise in all cases to do his best to improve conditions.

HAIG'S APPEAL THRILLS ENGLAND

"The situation is not desperate. The whole of the enemy's advance has been in the low-lying country between Armentieres and Bethune. High ground lies in a semicircle around this. We have Wytschaete, although the lower slips of Messines Ridge may have gone. Then in the arc around from Wytschaete we hold the high ground of Mont Kemmel and Neuve Eglise, the hills of Fletre, and Berthen, behind Bailleul, and in front of Hasebrouck, and between it and Merville, which we have lost, is the forest of Vieppe. It is an amphitheatre of high ground and it is most encouraging that the enemy has never been able to capture high ground. Every yard that we lose now is important.

"The recapture of Givenchy, the elevation near La Bassee, which we temporarily lost earlier in the week, was one of the great moments in the war. If the reserves, which we have in great numbers, can come up in time we ought to keep this high ground, even though we should lose Bailleul, and if we do we shall have had a bad setback, but we shall live through the crisis. It is a golden rule in war that the moment of the greatest depression on one side between equal opponents is the moment of greatest anxiety on the other. The Germans have lost terribly. Six hundred thousand men since March 21 is not a wild estimate, and they have thrown two-thirds of their fighting force into the battle. With reasonable organization and equal numbers, which we have, we should hold."

Lloyd's Weekly says: "Not since that first momentous Sunday when the British public first heard of the retreat from Mons and Sir H. Smith Dorrien's great stand at Le Cateau has there been such a feeling of crisis as hangs over London this week-end. Happily, conditions are very different. With Britain's great reserves, vast supplies of munitions and guns, and Generals trained in three and a half years of arduous warfare, one can face whatever the days bring with calmness and assurance.

"The fighting has swung northward to an area which has seen more British blood spilled than in any other part of the world. Edward III. fought there, and Marlborough, and it was there that the line held by Haig and Smith Dorrien and Wilcox with his Indians swayed and finally held in October and November, 1914, when they were securing the road to the sea. Lord Roberts's last sight of the British Army was on this very front, for he was at Estaires and Armentieres and Givenchy on the day before he was taken ill, and it was at Neuve Chapelle that General Rawlinson, under the direction of Sir John French, took the offensive for first time.

"All eyes are on Plumer and Horne, two Generals whose commands adjoin each other here this week end. Plumer is trusted thoroughly by his men and he has as Chief of Staff General Harington, to whose capacity for organization every one bears testimony. General Horne invented the creeping barrage and captured Fricourt on the opening day of the Somme battle. When the history of the 9th Division, now desperately holding the place of honor on the ridge at Wytschaete, comes to be written, it will be the most remarkable in the whole army, it was the First Division of Lord Kitchener's army, the first instalment of the first hundred thousand, and since it went over the top for the first time at Loos, in September, 1915, it has been in every offensive but one.

"It won fresh glories on the Somme, at Delville Wood, and Longueval. It was in the last and bloodiest battle for Passchendaele and acted as rearguard in the retreat from St. Quentin three weeks ago. Now it has the place of honor in the British Army. Its first commander, General Furse, is now a member of the Army Council and Master General of Ordnance. To him will fall the production of its eighty-mile gun. The division's present commander is General Lukin, a South African friend of Smuts. He has a South African brigade in the division."

GARVIN SURE OF VICTORY.

Warns Germans That Capture of Channel Ports Would Not End War.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 13.—In an article in The Observer, headed "The Supreme Hour," J. L. Garvin writes:

"It must be thoroughly understood both in this country and in Germany that even the loss of the Channel ports, if in the long run we were compelled to contemplate that eventuality, would by no means end this struggle, but would only prolong it. It would not in itself destroy the British Army with its American allies nor rupture their contract with the French. The loss of the Channel ports would not in itself mean the loss of the war. It would not in itself mean that the Germans in the long run would win the whole campaign. Our command of the sea would still leave us with various and immense means for continuing our resistance and wearing down the enemy. That is obviously why our fleet may presently be challenged as well as our army is now.

"If the Allies are not totally beaten and broken in this campaign but continue, as we confidently expect, to keep a solid line, even though it might be a very different line across France from Alsace to the sea, the Allies will win the war at last whatever of good or bad may happen during the next few months. But extensive realignments of the Allies' front, and especially of the British front, may quite possibly be necessary. We must learn in the new conditions to look without disturbance on movements and changes which in former phases would have caused astonishment and disquiet. We must be in all circumstances a disciplined people, an iron-hearted, unwavering people, seeing big things in their right proportion, not put out by incidents however unpleasant, not flinching under any test of fortitude however harsh, a people endlessly dogged, immeasurably obstinate, immortally resolved, even if we forfeited all the land Britain and America would never yield, but would keep up the struggle, remaining true to the last to the final interests of every ally we have now. This is our temper, and it is well that at this particular hour it should be declared throughout the land and that Germans should know it. Whatever the catacombs of dead they pile up, whatever gigantic efforts they may make, whatever ground they may gain they will not force the decision they want. They will not be done with Britain in the present campaign, not by any means."

THREATENS AUSTRIA WITH MORE PROOFS

EXULT OVER SIXTUS LETTER

French Think Its Publication Will Increase Distrust Between Germany and Austria.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 13. — Clemenceau has struck once more, and struck hard. The publication by the French Government of the Austrian Emperor's letter to his brother-in-law, Prince Sixtus of Bourbon-Parma, is one of the finest examples of the "Tiger's" methods, if not the very finest of his whole long political career. Franco is delighted and proud of the vigorous grip with which her seventy-six-year-old Premier is handling her destinies at the most critical stage of her history.

Through Clemenceau's clever treatment of the situation the Austrian Emperor and his Foreign Minister find themselves in a cleft stick. If the letter was written without the knowledge of Germany, which many people here regard as very doubtful, then a wedge has been driven into the mutual confidence of the Central Empires, which may have a serious bearing on the ultimate results of the war.

Czernin Started the Trouble.

In any case, Czernin's speech of a week or so back, which was obviously intended to cause dissension among the Allies, has proved a veritable boomerang. His assertion that Clemenceau just before the present offensive made overtures to Austria for separate peace gave the Premier just such an opening as he could have wished. Clemenceau contented himself at first with the brutal reply that Czernin was a liar. He followed this with a formal official statement in which the French Government categorically denied Czernin's allegations and flatly asserted that it was Austria, and not France, that had attempted to initiate negotiations for a separate peace.

The French were able to support this denial by pointing to the existence of a formal document in their possession in which the Austrian representative had been foolish enough to admit in writing that the initiative had been taken by Austria. Czernin was warned, moreover, that if he persisted in his false allegations France was in possession of written evidence from a much more important personage which would amply justify the French denial.

With incredible folly the Austrian Minister persisted in his allegations against France, and Clemenceau has now retaliated by publishing the text of a letter written by the Austrian Emperor, dated March 31, 1917, in which the Emperor begged his French brother-in-law, Prince Sixtus, secretly and unofficially to inform President Poincaré that he was ready to support by every possible means the just claims of France relative to Alsace-Lorraine.

French opinion, while in perfect accord as to the diplomatic triumph which Clemenceau has achieved, is divided as to the reason for the astounding blunder the Austrians have made in stirring up such a hornet's nest. One school inclines to the belief that Emperor Charles in his letter of March of last year was really acting under the direction of Germany, and that the plan was to tempt France into separate negotiations for peace for the sole and express purpose of supporting Germany's traditional effort to sow discord among the Allies opposed to her.

Another section of opinion while not overlooking the Austrian love of crooked diplomacy, prefers to explain what has occurred as merely another typical manifestation of the clumsiness which has characterized Austro-German diplomacy for many years past.

Yet a third section of opinion is inclined to think that the letter when written was a perfectly genuine reflection of Austria's desire to save herself at any cost from the consequence of what she believed to be the ultimate, inevitable defeat of the Central Empires, and that she has been frightened out of adherence to this view solely by the bullying pressure of her German ally.

Saint Brice in the Journal thinks that the bombshell which Clemenceau has thrown into the Austro-German camp may have important effects—perhaps even the separation of Austria from Germany. It is probable, he says, that Clemenceau is able to throw a good deal more light on the events that have occurred since the letter was written.

Says Clemenceau Has Other Proofs.

The Petit Journal, the paper edited by Stephen Pichon down to the day he took office in the Clemenceau Cabinet, states flatly that if the authenticity of the letter is disputed the Premier has plenty of other proofs ready for publication that will convince the most skeptical of the odious duplicity of the Vienna and Berlin Governments.

The Echo de Paris sees in the "servile denials" of the Emperor Charles proof that his letter of March of last year was written not as the expression of his personal views, but merely by direction of Berlin in order to entice the French into a trap, and that these denials are the result of the German Government's wish to throw dust in the eyes of the German people, who have not yet been let into the mystery.

Altogether France is satisfied that Clemenceau has succeeded in throwing considerable disorder into the enemy's camp, and that the outcome can only be to increase mutual distrust between Germans and Austrians.

Prince Sixtus of Bourbon-Parma, to whom the Emperor's letter was addressed, volunteered for service in the French Army at the beginning of the war, but was refused under the law which prevents any member of a former French reigning family from fighting in the French Army. He and his brother Xavier then took service in the French Red Cross. Afterward, thanks to the influence of the Queen of the Belgians, they joined the Belgian Army, and served with much distinction on the Yser that they subsequently received the Croix de Guerre at the hands of President Poincaré. In thanking him Prince Sixtus said that he was all the more appreciative of the honor since it was the first France had accorded to a member of his family for more than a century.

Letter Long Known to the Allies.

PARIS, April 13.—The Petit Parisien says that the letter written by Emperor Charles to Prince Sixtus of Bourbon-Parma, outlining the means by which France might attain peace, was on its receipt immediately communicated to all of the allies of France. It was unanimously decided, the Petit Parisien adds, at an interallied conference, which was held soon afterward, that there was no occasion to act on the Emperor's suggestion.

EXHIBIT RESTRAINT ON IRISH QUESTION

HOPE OF PEACEFUL OUTCOME

LONDON, April 13.—There are strong hopes in London that the Irish troubles will undergo a graduat and pacific solution. An important fact is that the menace of critical events in France overshadows all other considerations, and imposes restraint upon even all the factions of Irishmen and their ardent British supporters.

This restraint has been exhibited in several ways. If ex-Premier Asquith had translated his judgment against conscription into a motion to reject the Government's proposal last night, he might have arrayed a majority of the members of the House against it. This would have meant a change of Government. But Mr. Asquith considered that an impossible thing to propose under the present circumstances and confined himself to registering his conviction that conscription in Ireland would be a great mistake. As a result, the minority which voted against conscription was composed of Irish Nationalists and a few Liberals, most of them pacifists and those gensrally listed as faddists.

John Dillon and Joseph Devlin, who have been jointly filling John Redmond's shoes as leaders of the Irish Party, might have made a much more troublesome fight than they did. If they had felt strongly enough to go to extremes, they might have repeated the old scenes of the Parnell days, when Irish members were dragged out of the House by the police, and popular expectation looked forward to such action. But they refrained from Parliamentary obstruction and limited their offensive to strong words.

Both of them tempered their fight against conscription with the statement that they believed the cause of Great Britain in the war was a just cause. Mr. Devlin went further by proclaiming his desire to fight for it. This attitude is bound to have an influence in Ireland.

Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster leader, and his Ulster followers, who generally manage to kindle all the animosity there is latent among the Irish factions whenever any Irish question is raised, also exhibited restraint by remaining silent instead of denouncing Irishmen who oppose conscription, as they might have done.

Nationalist Press Belligerent.

The Nationalist and Sinn Fein newspapers in Ireland, maintain a belligerent tone, but Mr. Asquith once described this as mostly "contingent and rhetorical belligerency." A striking example was recently given by events in County Clare. Lieut. Gen. Mahon, Commander of the British forces in Ireland, proclaimed martial law. There were, as a consequence, rioting and attacks on the police. Small detachments of soldiers took charge of the strategical points. There has been no trouble since, while the people have been very friendly to the soldiers and have given them hospitality, which was unheard of in the land league times.

Ireland is enjoying a prosperity hitherto unknown. She is the chief feeder for England. Her farmers are becoming rich. They are the backbone of the country, and rebellious events would destroy their prosperity.

The Sinn Feiners, of course, are irreconcilable, but they represent none of the property interests of the country.

The foregoing are the features of the situation which cause optimism here. On the other side is the opposition of the Catholic clergy to conscription.

The meeting between John Dillon and Joseph Devlin and the Sinn Fein leaders, scheduled for an early date, may develop into a conciliatory influence, rather than otherwise.

Stormy Scenes in Parliament.

A proposal by Irish Nationalists to omit the Irish conscription clause from the Government Man-Power Bill was rejected by a majority of 172 in the House of Commons last night. The total vote shows that a large section of the House abstained from voting.

The Government spokesman in the House, Andrew Bonar Law, in a brief speech winding up the discussion, contended that the Government had a moral sanction for what it was doing and would be craven not to do it.

"We could not tell America she had the right to conscript Irishmen in the United States while we had not the same right at home," he said. "We intend at the earliest moment to introduce a bill which we hope will give Home Rule, or, rather, local government, to Ireland." This statement brought a fresh uproar and derisive laughter from the Irish members. Mr. Bonar Law went on:

"We shall try to carry it through simultaneously with preparations for carrying out the Man-Power bill; that is all I can say."

His speech was interrupted constantly by ironical remarks from the Irish benches. The Irish members, at the conclusion, challenged the Government to a further division on the conscription clause. It was carried by the Government this time by 251 to 116, a majority of 135. [The result as told in a special dispatch to THE NEW YORK TIMES printed yesterday.]

William Adamson, on behalf of the Labor Party, appealed to the Government to give a clear assurance that conscription would not operate until a generous measure of Home Rule was on the statute books. Captain L. C. M. S. Amery, a Unionist, joined in the appeal of Mr. Asquith and Arthur Henderson, labor leader, for the immediate introduction of a measure of Home Rule.

Another uproar arose when Herbert L. Samuel, former Postmaster General, declared that the most important statement of the debate was that made by Chief Secretary Duke, that the act for settling up a Parliament in Ireland should be passed before any Irishman was called to the colors. Mr. Duke interjected:

"I did not say that."

Mr. Samuel resumed: "I took down the words as they were spoken."

"If I had said that," roplied Secretary Duke "I should have been contradicting the Prime Minister. I had no authority to say that."

Timothy Healy, Nationalist for County Cork, thereupon said:

"It is because we understood you as saying that that we abstained from speaking."

PLAN PASSIVE RESISTANCE.

Irish Newspapers Hope Thus to Thwart Conscription Measures.

DUBLIN, April 13.—The report of the Irish Convention followed the lines forecast and created little stir in political circles in Ireland. Each party asserts that it shows the reasonableness of its attitude.

Discussion of the report is overshadowed by the conscription controversy, which grows acute. Sheaves of resolutions of protest, as expected, come from Nationalist bodies, some of them being forwarded to the American Ambassador in London.

Prominence is given by Nationalist newspapers to the suggestion that Sunday at mass the priests instruct the people to make passive resistance to conscription, and urge that organized resistance of this type would be more effectual than an armed revolt, which would be spasmodic, short, and unsuccessful.

Meanwhile the threat of conscription has begun to stimulate volunteer recruiting. At Derry forty ship workers enlisted rather than wait for conscription.

On the other hand, Irish workmen who have been employed on munitions work in England are returning here in batches, thinking that the prospect of avoiding military service is greater in Ireland. One hundred of these workmen arrived in Dublin today.

ULSTER BACKS THE PREMIER.

LONDON, April 13.—The Cork Corporation Council last night unanimously adopted a resolution against conscription and appealing to President Wilson for "protection." At the same time the Ulster Council issued a statement upholding the Government's proposal, pointing out that Ireland, at present "the most prosperous portion of the United Kingdom, is in duty and honor bound to contribute her portion, be the war long or short, of the cost incurred; to do less would be to surrender, which Ulster at any rate would never willingly do, her shars in the great empire which is our common glory and our common heritage."

The Ulster statement says that successive elections have shown that the majority of the Nationalist vote is controlled by a party "of open and avowed treason." The statement adds, after pointing out the growth of the Sinn Fein movement, that "it is pretty obvious that a general election to an Irish Parliament would place the balance of power in the hands of a party which is engaged in drilling and preparing, with German asistance and German promises of arms, to strike a blow at the heart of the British Empire."

ASKS BERLIN TO STOP KILLINGS BY TURKS

LONDON, April 13.—A Russian wireless message, addressed to Berlin, says:

"The offensive of the Turkish troops and dotachments on the Caucasian front has been followed by the murder of the whole Armenian population. The peaceful population of women and children have been killed without mercy and their property has been plundered and burned.

"The peace treaty, which we were forced to sign at Brest-Litovsk, left the determination of the future destiny of the people of the provinces of Ardahan, Kars, and Batum to themselves. The events which have taken place in these provinces testify that the old policy of the annihilation of the Armenian people is still to be applied.

"On the Turkish front the advantage in the war was on the side of Russia, and Russia was forced to give up Ardahan, Kars, and Batum only because Germany was the ally of Turkey. The responsibility for all the horrors which the Armenian population is now suffering in those regions already occupied by the Turkish troops lies, therefore, with the German Government, which directly helped Turkey to secure these regions.

"The People's Commissariat for Foreign Affairs protests against such abuse of the right of self-determination of the population of these provinces, and expresses the hope and insists on the necessity of immediate and energetic intervention on the part of Germany in the Caucasus, with a view to stopping further murders and the annihilation of the peaceful population, such as has taken place in Ardahan."

GERMAN GIFT STATUE PLACED IN CELLAR

THREATS TO BLOW IT UP

Stick of Dynamite Reported Actually Found Under the Bronze Coat Tail of War Lord.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The statue of Frederick the Great, presented to the United States in 1904 by Kaiser Wilhelm, was removed from its pedestal on the terrace in front of the War College today and laid away in seclusion in a cold, damp storeroom in the cellar of that building. It is understood that the action was taken at the suggestion of President Wilson.

There has been much criticism of the fact that the statue of Germany's one-time super war lord, who, according to history, sowed the seeds of the militarism which resulted in the present world war, was permitted to remain in front of the War College. Rumors have been heard also that plots were being hatched to tear it down if no official action was taken, and there is an apparently authenticated report that a stick of dynamite was found under the coat tail of the statue a few months ago.

The work of removing the statue was done quietly, under orders from Colonel D. W. Ketcham, Acting Secretary of the college, who had received authority from Acting Secretary of War Crowell. A large A-frame was constructed a few feet in the rear of the statue and ropes were placed about the neck and waist of the bronze Kaiser. When the word was given soldiers yanked heartily on the ropes, and the statue was lifted from the pedestal. When it had been braced and tied securely to the A-frame, it was carted away to the cellar. There were few witnesses.

The statue, which weighs 1,400 pounds, stood ten feet high on its pedestal, and was the first to be erected on the War College terrace. There have been discussions in the Senate and House as to the wisdom of permitting the statue to remain there after the United States declared war on Germany, and the agitation for its removal was taken up throughout the country. There were many who advocated the conversion of the statue into bullets to be used by the American troops at the front. It is said that the authorities at the War College were afraid efforts might be made to damage the statue.

'GREATER FINLAND' PROMISED BY KAISER

Danish Report Says He Will Fight Russia Again if He Wins in the West.

SIBERIA AS BAIT TO JAPAN

Said to be Offered if She Will Join the Proposed German-Finnish Alliance.

LONDON, April 13.—Germany has agreed to the establishment of a Greater Finland, including the Petrograd-Murman Railway to the Arctic, according to Swedish press reports forwarded in an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen. In the event that Germany wins on the western front, the dispatch says, she will begin a new war against Russia, co-operating with the Finns.

Japan, it is added, will receive Siberia if she joins the German-Finnish alliance.

These statements are published by the Folketsdagblad of Stockholm, which says the plans originated with Finnish statesmen who are now in Sweden. It asserts that General Mannerheim, Commander of the Finnish White Guards, expects to capture Helsingfors next month and Petrograd by June.

The newspaper adds that Germany is to have a free harbor in the Arctic, and that the Finnish railway system will be enlarged, direct connections being established from North Cape to Budapest and Constantinople. A Finnish representative is said to be on the way to Berlin to carry on negotiations to this end.

STOCKHOLM, April 13.—M. Sario, Minister of Foreign Affairs in the Finnish White Guard Government, has been compelled to resign, according to information in well-informed circles.

The resignation is probably not unconnected with his failure to protect American and British members of a special mission from insults by Finnish officers at Vasa. M. Sario has been known as a Germanophile.

AMSTERDAM, April 13.—The Esthonian Provincial Council at Reval, according to the Berlin Tageblatt, has resolved to request the German Government to recognize the State of Esthonia. The council decided also to strive for the closest political and economic union with Germany.

GENERAL RUIN IN RUSSIA.

German Officer Writes: "The Whole Country is Devastated."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, April 13.—From thoroughly reliable sources I hear that the destruction wrought in Russia by the revolutionists is terrible.

"Country houses and estates have been plundered and robbed, so that there is practically nothing left," a German officer writes. "The whole country is devastated."

VLADIVOSTOK REDS PROTEST.

Local Soviet Says the Japanese Landing Was Without Warrant.

TOKIO, April 13.—At a meeting on Monday of the Vladivostok Municipal Assembly and Council of Labor Delegates and Soldiers a resolution was adopted protesting against the landing of Japanese marines, according to special dispatches received here.

The protests were made on the ground that the action of Japan was not justified by the murders, which the resolution asserted occur in the most advanced countries. The resolution noted that the landing of the marines seemed to indicate an intention to interfere in the internal affairs of the country.

POLITICAL FERMENT IN CENTRAL POWERS

Talk in German Press That Both Kuehlmann and Czernin Are Skating on Thin Ice.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, April 13.—There is considerable talk of political changes in the German press. Von Bülow's name has been once more whispered. It is said he has renewed his dreams of the Chancellorship. The Social Democratic International Korrespondenz asserts that the fact that von Heifferich is at Headquarters gives rise to the rumor that he may replace von Kühlmann, because, it is said, the economical part of the Rumanian agreement was unfavorable.

It is still maintained in these circles, even since President Wilson's Baltimore speech—and Count Czernin is reproached for it—that Czernin's last speech made peace by understanding impossible and that his declaration regarding Clemenceau's peace offer has made it impossible for him personally to take up the line of peace by agreement, thereby making the inner political situation more difficult. The paper says that Czernin's retirement is much talked of, but that the Premier was obliged to take the big western offensive into consideration and moderate his policy to suit Berlin. The paper says many persons criticise this dependence on Germany's policy.

Von Heifferich is supposed to have been called to Headquarters by the Kaiser on account of the Rumanian agreement. There is no doubt that the Pan Germans, who hate von Kühlmann, are doing all in their power to get rid of the Foreign Secretary, and that, with the increase of their power since the offensive, they will stop at nothing.

The Tageblatt points out that Czernin's sudden return from Bucharest has started talk about the Premier's fall. It declares Czernin's enemies have increased lately, especially among the court set.

"Many high personages at court," says the Tageblatt, "wish now, as always, a definite policy of peace and understanding directed toward the west. It is still a favorite idea with these people that Kaiser Karl will lead the way to peace with President Wilson. There is a conviction that this is still possible."

War Situation Serious, Says Taft.

GENEVA, N. Y., April 13.—"I am not pessimistic, but the situation in Europe is serious," said William Howard Taft this morning. Mr. Taft stopped at Geneva for breakfast en route to Ithaca, where he spoke today.

DIVORCE DECISION DEFERRED

Professor Alpheus D. Crosby of the chair of literature in the Bloomfield Theological Seminary and teacher in the Bloomfield High School, was a witness yesterday before Supreme Court Justice Lehmann in a suit of his brother, John Spencer Crosby of 5 West Thirty-seventh Street, against Mrs. Viola Crosby for a divorce.

Crosby, who is vice President of a millinery company, accuses his wife of misconduct at the Cumberland Hotel on Feb. 2 last. The evidence was obtained in a raid arranged by detectives, in which the plaintiff's brother and a friend, Marshall Shackelford, Secretary of the Rivers and Harbors Congress in Washington, participated. The court reserved decision in the suit.

ALLIANCE LEADER HELD AS DISLOYAL

MOBS ACTIVE IN THE WEST

Michigan Women Tar and Feather a Neighbor — Colorado Teacher Greased and Ordered Out of Town.

ST. LOUIS, April 13.—A Federal warrant was issued today for the arrest of Dr. Charles H. Weinsberg of St. Louis, President of the Missouri branch of the German-American Alliance. The action was based on an alleged declaration by Dr. Weinsberg in a newspaper interview that the war would end in six months with Germany the victor. He is in jail here and will be arraigned on Monday.

Assistant United States District Attorney White, who issued the warrant, said he was proceeding under Section 3 of the Espionage Act, which forbids any statement with intent to create disloyalty or insubordination in the military or naval forces of the United States.

Weinsberg was quoted as predicting that the Austro-German forces would break through the Italian lines, invade France from the Italian frontier, and either outflank the Allied forces or make it necessary for the French to send troops to hold back the new inroads. This, he said, would make possible the breaking of the French lines elsewhere and would bring about the defeat of France.

With Germany victorious over France, he is alleged to have declared, the war would become a naval and commercial contest between Germany and America and England—a conflict which, he said, it would not be to the interest of any of the parties to prolong in view of the British food shortage and American unpreparedness for war.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Favorable report on the bill to revoke the charter of the National German-American Alliance for disloyal activities will be made to the Senate Judiciary Committee Monday by the subcommittee, which has considered the bill for several weeks. This action will be taken regardless of plans to disband the alliance.

NEWTON, Mass., April 13.—The resignation of the Rev. Abraham J. Muste, pastor of the Central Congregational Church, who had been on probation because of his declared opposition to the war, was accepted last night at his own request. Albert M. Lyon, moderator of the parish, said today that the minister had not been accused of being pro-German. His viewpoint was, Mr. Lyon explained, that war was something that could be avoided by prayer, and that men could not do in the spirit of Christ, the things they were called upon to do in battle. Muste was born in Holland.

Colorado Teacher Mobbed.

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo., April 13.—Dr. E. E. Cole, Superintendent of a school at Appleton, near here, was taken from his home last night by three men who applied a coat of grease and feathers and warned him to leave the community. Dr. Cole is widely known in Colorado educational circles. He is alleged to have made a pro-German talk in chapel.

Dr. Cole's assailants were armed with shotguns. After they had completed the work of covering him with feathers the leader of the party said:

"If you don't leave this community in thirty-six hours we'll hang you to the nearest telephone pole."

Dr. Cole is alleged to have said that the Government of Germany had done more to advance the civilization of the world in the last five years than all nations of the world had accomplished in the last fifty. Cole denies such a statement.

MUSKOGEE, Okla., April 13.—Ten minutes after he had been released from the County Jail at Tahlequah, near here, last night, J. A. Lewis, an alleged pro-German agitator and I. W. W. organizer, was tarred and feathered by Tahlequah citizens and forced to leave town. He had been held in jail for investigation.

FLINT, Mich., April 13.—Genesee County authorities today are investigating the tarring and feathering last night of Mrs. Harley Stafford at Montrose, fifteen miles northwest of this city.

A party of more than sixty persons, including a score of women, went to the home of Mrs. Stafford, where male members bound her husband, while the women took her outside and applied a coating of tar and feathers.

LANSING, Mich., April 13.—Governor Albert Sleeper, in a proclamation today, called upon the people of Michigan to avoid mob rule. He said he appreciated that conditions had aroused some citizens, but urged all to have patience and thereby retain the respect of peoples of other Governments. "I call upon all our people to make this time of stress a period of careful law observance," he said. "The authorities of each community and county must see to it that peace and good order prevail and that the laws of the State are upheld."

Michigan Preacher Indicted.

BAY CITY, Mich., April 13.—The Rev. Martin Quahl, pastor of the German Reformed Church here, was taken into custody today for the Federal authorities at Marquette, Mich., where he had been indicted under the Espionage act. He is charged with making disloyal utterances and interfering with the draft and the enlistment of soldiers.

He denied the charges and furnished bond for his appearance at Marquette.

JOPLIN, Mo., April 13.—The delicatessen shop of G. A. Brautigan here was smeared with yellow paint today as a result of his alleged pro-Germanism. A crowd began forming when Brautigan is said to have declared he could whip, one at a time, the members of a "committee" which did the painting. He was removed to Carthage for protection. Saloons were ordered closed for a time.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., April 13.—Henry Homan, a local grocer, pleaded guilty in the Federal Court here today of violating the Espionage act and was fined $1,000. Homan served in the United States Army during the Spanish war and has a Government pension. He was arrested soon after the announcement of the death of Major Augustus P. Gardner, former United States Representative from Massachusetts, in a Georgia training camp. Homan was charged with making disloyal remarks in commenting on Major Gardner's death.

MINNEAPOLIS, April 13.—The case of James A. Peterson, recent Republican candidate for nomination for United States Senator, charged with violation of the Espionage act, went to a jury in Federal District Court here today.

Articles published in The Minneapolis and St. Paul American, a weekly newspaper, on which Peterson's indictment was based, were characterized as "part of the Berlin game, that camouflage campaign for peace" by District Attorney Alfred Jacques in his closing argument.

MEDFORD, Ore., April 13.—E. P. Taliaferro, a traveling preacher for the International Bible Students' Association, was not allowed to lecture here, and was ordered out of town by Mayor C. E. Gates today. He remained, however, until a crowd of several hundred persons threatened violence, when he hurriedly left by automobile.

He was followed by a part of the crowd, who, failing to locate Taliaferro, seized George Maynard, local leader of the sect, painted a huge Iron Cross upon his body, and gave him until Monday to leave the city.

Women Win Drama Prizes.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Awards of prizes today in the Drama League of America's competition for patriotic plays for use of schools and amateur organizations places second prize of $250 with Miss Doris F. Halman, Brookline, Mass., and third prize of $100 with Miss Rachel L. Field, Cambridge, Mass. The first prize of $500 was not awarded.

GLASS FOUND IN BREAD.

Portchester Girl Ill After Eating It —Other Cases Reported.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., April 13.—The Port Chester, N. Y., police and the Department of Justice are working today on a case involving the injury of Gladys Nelson, thirteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Meyer Nelson of Orchard Street, Port Chester, by broken glass in bread. The girl cut her tongue while eating the bread, and a piece of glass more than a quarter of an inch in diameter was found in the loaf. She complained today of pains in her stomach and is reported to be seriously ill. It is believed that she may have swallowed some particles of the glass.

Charles S. Hartwig found glass in his luncheon in Port Chester yesterday, and Mrs. Dominick Rucci, in the same town, found glass in a loaf of bread purchased from an Italian bakery wagon.

Reopen Mineola Aviation Camp.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The army aviation training camp at Mineola, Long Island, which has been closed for the Winter, will be reopened next Monday, it was said today at the War Department.

GERMAN BOMBS KILL 31 IN PARIS AND LONDON

PARIS, April 13.—Twenty-six persons were killed and seventy-two wounded as the result of the German air raid last night on Paris, it was officially announced today. Most of the bombs fell in one spot, striking a house. It was evident the raiders found their work much more difficult under the new system of aerial defenses, and dropped their bombs hastily.

It was a still, dark night of the sort most favorable for an aerial attack, and a raid was generally expected. The theatres were in the midst of their performances when the sounding of sirens and the noise of anti-aircraft guns gave warning that the raiders were approaching. The crowds in the theatres made their way to the cellars or to other shelters near by, arrangements for which had been made in advance. In the cellar of the Comédie Française one of the performers sang old French songs.

LONDON, April 13.—Five persons were killed and fifteen injured in the German air raid last night on England, according to an official announcement made today. The announcement reads:

"Four airships participated in last night's raid. Two of them penetrated a few miles inland. Of the other two, one reached the midlands and the other nearly reached the northwest coast. The raiders were traveling at a great height, and showed no inclination to attempt to penetrate defended areas.

"Most of the bombs were dropped in open country, and apart from the demolition of four houses at one place the damage so far reported is inconsiderable. Particulars of the casualties will be published later."

BRITISH CASUALTIES RISE.

Total Reported for the Week Is Double That of Previous Weeks.

LONDON, April 13.—British casualties, reported in the course of the week ending today, totaled 8,129 officers and men, divided as follows:

Killed or died of wounds: Officers, 372; men, 1,101.

These casualties reported for the last week are more than twice the number reported in the preceding week. For several weeks the total casualties have been running between 3,000 and 4,000, the killed, wounded and missing in the great battles that have been going on in France not yet having been tabulated.

M. P. IN POLICE COURT.

Pemberton-Billing Accused of Libeling London Dancer and Manager.

LONDON, April 13.—Noel Pemberton-Billing, member of Parliament for East Hertfordshire and publisher of the newspaper Vigilante, was committed to trial in the Bow Street Magistrate Court today on the charge of having criminally libeled Miss Maude Allen, dancer, and J. T. Grein, manager of the Independent Theatre.

According to the Prosecuting Attorney, the statement appearing in the Vigilante to which objection is taken was contained in a paragraph which coupled Miss Allen's name with an objectionable headline regarding performances at the Independent Theatre.

SMITH COLLEGIANS SAFE.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., April 13.—Members of the Smith College Relief Unit in France, driven out of Grecourt by the German offensive, are now at Beauvais, where they are conducting an emergency canteen, according to a cablegram received at the college today.

The dispatch says all of the party are well. They are quartered in a girls' school. Many of the supplies needed by the unit are being furnished by the Red Cross, the cablegram says.

FREES ELECTION OFFICIAL.

Adolph L. Simon Acquitted by Jury of Fraud in Primary.

A jury in Justice Goff's part of the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court, where election cases are being disposed of resulting from indictments for alleged ballot frauds in the Republican primary on Sept. 19, acquitted Adolph L. Simon yesterday of the charge of certifying a false return of the ballots cast in the Twenty-ninth Election District of the Seventeenth Assembly District. The returns in that district gave William M. Bennett seven and Mayor Mitchel twenty-seven votes, whereas the actual vote cast was evenly divided between the candidates.

There were seventy-two indictments. More than sixty of these have now been disposed of, including fifty pleas of guilty to misdemeanors and several convictions. Convictions, it is said, will carry liability for more severe punishment than will be the case for those offering pleas. Three of the defendants have joined the United States Army, and the charges against these soldiers will probably be dropped. Sentences will not be imposed until all of the indictments have been disposed of.

WILLIAMS ORDNANCE CHIEF.

Senators Learn He Is to be Appointed, Crozier Probably Retiring.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—At their weekly conference with War Department officials today Senate Military Committee members said they were advised that further and important re-organization was planned and that Brig. Gen. Williams would be appointed Chief of Ordnance, probably through the retirement of Major Gen. Crozier, now serving on the Super War Council.

The re-organization announced yesterday, by which Major Gen. Goethals is to have charge of distribution and transportation of army materials, the Senators were told, is only the forerunner of other changes which probably will be announced within a week, especially in the Ordnance Bureau. The reorganization plans will affect a great improvement, in the opinion of the Senators to whom they were disclosed.

Improvement in the transportation situation was reported by the Senators after the conference. More ships have been obtained and it was said the round trips to Europe were being shortened with more efficient handling. "Large numbers" of troops are being rushed over as fast as it is possible to send them and provide for their maintenance, members of the committee said they were informed. Details were withheld for military reasons.

No material change in production of heavy artillery or airplanes since the conference last week was reported.

PRESIDENT RATIFIES CONCRETE SHIP PLAN

$50,000,000 Fund Sought for Five New Yards in Which to Construct Tankers.

AFTER NEW SPEED RECORD

Atlantic and Pacific Coast Firms in Keen Rivalry—Cuba May Turn Out Freighters.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The request of the United States Shipping Board for an appropriation of $50,000,000 with which to establish five shipyards for the construction of concrete tankers was approved today by President Wilson, and will be submitted on Monday morning to Representative Shirley, Chairman of the Appropriations Committee of the House.

The Shipping Board explained that the work will be in the nature of an experiment. The reports made by several experts have held out hope that the new kind of construction will prove successful. Labor and materials necessary for other shipyards will not be drawn on.

To expedite the work, Congress will be asked to make $15,000,000 of the appropriation available at once for the construction of the yards. The Emergency Fleet Corporation now has complete plans for 4,500-ton ships, and plans are being prepared for tankers of 7,600 tons capacity.

The present plan is to use these vessels in the oil trade, as the growth of the navy and the merchant fleet has called for fifty to seventy-five more tankers at the earliest date possible. The new concrete ships will be oil burners.

Great Output Possible.

Senator McCumber of North Dakota, who started the fight for the construction of concrete ships, said that he hoped Congress would grant the appropriation without delay.

"I have talked with experts in regard to this type," he said, referring to the 7,500-ton ship, "and I must confess that I am very much impressed by its possibilities. If we take up the building of it, and on a large enough scale, I believe that we can put 5,000,000 deadweight tons afloat by Jan. 1 of next year."

The first yard for the construction of the concrete tankers will be at Wilmington, Del.

R. J. Wig, the expert retained by the Shipping Board to make an inspection of the concrete ship Faith, which was built in San Francisco, has presented a report in favor of making the experiment.

"The available information," he said, "assures with all the certainty possible short of actual experience under service conditions that the concrete ship will be durable for several years, assuring satisfactory service throughout the probable duration of the present war. There are deteriorating elements which may limit the life of the concrete ship to three or four years. This, however, can only be told from experience. The present emergency calls for ships, and their life is not of great importance at the present time.

Advantages of Concrete.

"The construction of concrete hulls should not interfere with the present program for the construction of wood and steel hulls in so far as labor or materials are concerned. It should be recognized that the reinforced concrete hull cannot be built more rapidly than a steel hull in a well-organized yard. The advantage of the concrete, in so far as speed in construction is concerned, lies in the fact that a very simple plant, consisting of concrete mixers, hoists, and other simple equipment, which is obtainable in any large city, is all that is needed.

"On the other hand, steel ships cannot be constructed without first providing an elaborate plant, costing several hundred thousand dollars, and requiring considerable time for installation. The steel ship plant also required highly skilled labor, while, aside from the foreman and Superintendent, common labor is utilized in the construction of concrete ships. This simplifies the labor problem, as well as the equipment and material problem.

"The cost of the reinforced concrete ship, complete, will vary between $100 and $125 per ton dead weight, depending upon the number of ships built and the construction, as compared with $180 and $230 per ton for the steel ship. The Shipping Board has decided that a 3,500-ton cargo ship is uneconomical to operate, and recommended that our efforts be concentrated on ships of larger capacity. This department has completed all detailed plans for a 3,500-ton cargo ship, and it is the present plan to build three of these ships while awaiting the completion of plans for the 7,500-ton ship."

Rivalry for Building Record.

Keen rivalry has been started between Pacific and Atlantic Coast shipyards to establish, in the Summer, a new record for the construction of an 8,800-ton steel cargo ship. The record is now held by Skinner & Eddy of Seattle, who announced yesterday the launching of a hull in sixty-four days after the keel was laid.

An Atlantic shipyard has set out to beat this record and double shifts are being used on a ship the keel of which was laid Friday. With favorable weather conditions the company hopes to cut down the time to less than sixty days.

Skinner & Eddy, in a telegram just received by the Shipping Board, announced that they have made plans to turn out the next built in their yards in fifty-three days.

Another effort which will be made will be to equip the hull and deliver the ship to the Government within three weeks or less of the time of launching.

The Shipping Board and the War Industries Board are bending every effort to expedite delivery of supplies to the shipyards, so that no delays may be attributed to lack of supplies.

Home for Shipping Board.

The Shipping Board is planning to construct a permanent home, with 500,000 square feet of floor space, at a cost of approximately $5,000,000. An inspection of various sites is now being made and plans will be prepared at once if approval is given by the President.

The Shipping Board and the Emergency Fleet Corporation have offices in twenty-four buildings here, and the growth of the organization has been so rapid that additional space is needed.

The proposition to construct a temporary building at a cost of about $1,500,000 has been under consideration. This work would require about three months. As there is every indication that the Shipping Board will become a permanent Government agency because of the huge merchant fleet which has been planned, most of the officials now hold the opinion that a temporary structure would be a mistake.

It has been estimated that the permanent building could be constructed in from five to six months. It is proposed to make it a part of the general Government building plan. A building covering 100,000 square feet of ground is advocated.

Cuba May Build Freighters.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Proposals to increase the American merchant marine by the addition of a fleet of steel freighters to be built in Cuba will be submitted to the State Department next week by a special commission representing Cuban shipping interests, which arrived here today. The negotiations would be conducted with the sanction of the Cuban Government, it was said.

The commission, composed of Manuel R. Anguio and Domingo Gaidos of Havana, and P. H. Graham of New York, will agree to turn over the completed vessels to this Government if permission is obtained to export the necessary construction materials to Cuba. The company, which will be known as the Cuban Star Line, already has arranged for the establishment of a shipyard at Cabanee, it was announced. It proposes to build all-steel vessels of 8,000 to 10,000 tons displacement.

President Menocal was interested directly in the negotiations, it was said, and would be represented at the conferences here by Dr. Cespedes, the Cuban Minister.

Shifting of shipyard labor from one yard to another in America has caused so much confusion in the records that a special recruiting division will be established in the Shipping Board to keep trace of the men of draft age, to whom deferred classification has been given as long as they remain shipbuilders.

Conferences between Provost Marshal General Crowder and Shipping Board officials have resulted in a system of keeping the military authorities informed of the men's movements.

WOMEN'S WAR WORK GROWS

Barnard Hears of 10,000 Enrolled and 15,000 Needed.

The employments in which women are now engaged and to which the Committee on Women's War Work at Columbia is directing them, were outlined yesterday by Miss Virginia Gildersleeve, Dean of Barnard and Chairman of the committee.

Miss Gildersleeve estimated that, with the co-operation of Vassar, Radcliffe, Byrn Mawr, and other colleges, the committee had enrolled 10,000 women, and that at least 15,000 requests for workers had been sent to the Barnard headquarters. Places which the committee has filled have varied, she said, from positions with American embassies abroad to jobs on farms, where women either actually get out and dig the land, or act as supervisors.

House, by 325 to 3, Adopts Senate Resolution Eliminating State Population Method.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The Senate resolution embodying the War Department plan to put the draft quota basis on the number of men in Class 1 instead of on State population was adopted by the House today by a vote of 325 to 3. Representatives Gordon, Ohio, and Hudleston and Burnett, Alabama, voted against it.

An amendment by Representative Shallenberger of Nebraska to base the quota on the total draft registration and liability to military service was voted down yesterday. Another amendment by the Nebraska member directing that credit be given for volunteers was adopted.

The proposal to shift the basis for computing the quota arose from inequalities developed under the first draft. The chief injustice found was in communities where there were large alien populations not subject to draft. Under the new classification system all men immediately eligible for service would be placed in Class 1. It has been stated that the men in the deferred classes will not be called except under the gravest emergency.

TALKS ON HOME GARDENS.

Mayor's Committee of Women to Hold Meetings for Instruction.

Two practical talks on small home gardens will be given under the auspices of the Mayor's Committee of Women on National Defense in Room 526, Municipal Building, tomorrow and Tuesday at 5 o'clock. The purpose of these talks is to reach city employes and others in the downtown district at that hour, and to let them know that the Botanical Gardens are in existence and ready to give advice about war gardens which are so urgently desired by the Government.

Tomorrow Henry G. Parsons, Supervisor of Gardening Instruction of the New York Botanical Gardens, Bronx Park, will speak on scientific work done there, and on Tuesday Montague Free, head gardener of the Brooklyn Botanical Gardens, will talk.

Honduras Agrees on Boundary.

SAN SALVADOR, April 13.—A treaty approving the boundary between Salvador and Honduras as fixed by a mixed commission has been approved by the Congress of Honduras. The boundary had been in dispute for several years, and the commission was appointed two years ago to rectify it.

REVERSE OF 'PEACE' MEDAL.

Germane Fear Exchange of Russian Prisoners Will Affect Food Problem.

One of the other sides of the "peace" treaty concluded between the German Government and the Bolsheviki is shown in the following report from Stuttgart printed in the Berlin Vorwärts of March 12:

"The Centre Party Parliamentary Group in Württemberg has presented the following question to the Minister of the Interior: 'What does the Minister intend to do to prevent the endangering of the people's food supply through the imminent exchange of the Russian prisoners of war and its effect upon agriculture?'"

Joins Naval Reserve at 69.

BOSTON, April 13.—Edward P. Weaver, formerly of Bangor, Me., claimed the distinction today of being the oldest officer yet graduated from the free Government navigation schools, conducted by the United States Shipping Board. He is 69 years of age. Mr. Weaver, who had many years experience as a seaman, decided while at New Orleans some weeks ago to enter one of the schools and train for deck officer for the merchant marine.

PAPER EXHIBIT IN BERLIN.

New Effort to Popularize Uee of Paper Clothing.

AMSTERDAM, March 20, (Associated Press.)—To popularize paper clothing is the object of a national exhibition just opened in Berlin under the patronage of the Imperial Clothing Office.

In addition to clothing substitutes there are utilitarian articles of various sorts formerly made of wool, linen, and cotton, such as upholstery, curtains, rugs, screens, and tapestry—all now composed of paper fibre.

ASKS AID OF STUDENTS.

Secretary Wilson Urgee Them to Help Farmers During Vacations.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Secretary Wilson wrote today to the Presidents of 600 colleges asking them to urge students to spend their vacations on the farms assisting farmers with their crops.

Students volunteering will be enrolled by the Public Service Reserve in each State and will be placed on farms by the United States employment offices in each community.

MORE WHEAT IS CUT FROM LOAVES TODAY

Bakers Must Use 25 Per Cent. of Substitutes in Bread and More in Cakes.

HOTELS JOIN IN CRUSADE

All Wheat and Its Products Will Be Lacking on Their Breakfast Tables This Morning.

Beginning today bakers will be required to increase the amount of substitutes for wheat flour used in the baking of bread and rolls from 20 per cent. to 25 per cent. of the total. Today will also bring into effect the total elimination of wheat and wheat products from the service of all of the large hotels of the city, in accordance with the pledge which the hotel men took recently. Aside from producing bread with a certain amount of substitutes for wheat flour, the bakers will also be required from today on to introduce a specified content of substitutes in pastries, cakes, crackers, &c. A substitute content of 33½ per cent. is to be required hereafter in sweet yeast dough goods, cookies, ice cream cones, cakes, pies, fried cak . and pastry. In batter cakes, waffles, "quick" breads, such as muffins and Boston brown bread, 66 2-3 per cent. is to be required, and in crackers 15 per cent.

The Federal Food Board will have its inspectors all over the city tomorrow to see that bakers observe the new rules. Lack of the necessary amount of substitutes and ignorance of the various methods by which substitute breads may be produced, are expected to cause considerable confusion during the first few days. Arrangements, however, have been made by the Baking Division of the Federal Food Board, whereby small bakers may be instructed in the manipulation of substitutes by visiting demonstrations in the large bakery shops of the city.

The Federal Food Board will begin tomorrow a three weeks campaign to increase the consumption of potatoes, large quantities of which are now coming into the market. The Federal Food Board will run its potato campaign on the slogan, "Every Spud a Bullet." John Mitchell, Chairman of the Federal Food Board, said:

"Experts of our board have made an agreement with potato dealers whereby the following prices will prevail until the Winter supply is consumed: The consumer will pay $1.45 a bushel delivered to the home. This is a slight reduction in the price in our official market reports; the farmer will receive 85 cents a bushel and the remainder will be divided among the shippers, receivers, and retailers. By eating plenty of potatoes Americans can materially reduce their consumption of wheat products."

Assisted by the members of the Women's Committee of the Mayor's Committee on National Defense, Charles Lathrop Pack, President of the National War Garden Commission, yesterday planted the first seeds in the new model war garden in Bryant Park. Among the speakers besides Mr. Pack were Rabbi Joseph Silverman, Park Commissioner Grell, and A. N. Gitterman, Chairman of the War Garden Committee of the Park Department. Presenting a war garden flag to the city, Mr. Pack said in part:

"This war garden which you plant today is a symbol that the United States means business. It is a living, growing sign that the home food producer is going to provide the food which is essential to victory. President Wilson made it clear a week ago today that we intend to keep the light burning brightly on the Status of Liberty in this harbor. Without food that light will dim and go out and the hand of the Hun will fasten itself upon this republic and every other free country of the world just as it has on Belgium."

ASSAILS CRITICS OF HOOVER.

H. B. Endicott Characterizes Them as Disloyal or Irresponsible.

BOSTON, April 13.—Critics of the Federal Food Administration who assert that the country is being treated to "an exhibition of food hysteria," and that there has been frightful waste through "official muddling and meddling," were characterized as either disloyal or irresponsible in an address by Henry B. Endicott, State Food Administrator, at a patriotic mass meeting tonight.

"These criticisms of the Food Administration," he said, "remind me of a pack of yellow curs who go out on moonlight nights and bark at the moon, and the moon keeps on shining just the same. And when we have won this war I believe that Mr. Hoover will go down in history as a man who has done as much as any one man to bring about our victory. If the authors of any such statements as I have mentioned are irresponsible, then they should be put in places which the State and nation have for irresponsible people. If they are not irresponsible, then they are working in favor of Germany, and we have a place for such people."

Continuing, Mr. Endicott asserted that the total shipments of foodstuffs from the United States and Canada to our allies during the month of March were 2,200,000,000 pounds. "This does not look like 'muddling and meddling,'" he said, adding that not only wheat but rye, barley, and corn were being shipped.

A telegram from Mr. Hoover, read at the meeting, said:

"We stand at the threshold of perhaps the greatest crisis we have ever faced as a nation. We have staked our fortunes, the lives of our sons, and sunk our personal desires in the struggle for liberty. These men who have gone over need never question our support, but it is just as important to continue the stream of supplies, especially wheat flour, to valiant Britain, France, and Italy, without whose assistence and unimpaired morale our forces could accomplish nothing.

"The Allies use every possible cereal substitute and yet require some wheat flour to bind their scanty loaf. This flour must be furnished, and because our surplus has long been exhausted it can be supplied only from our saving. From all sections of the country, from organizations and individuels, have come messages pledging complete abstention from wheat until next harvest. I am hopeful that the response will be nation-wide from all who can afford it and we will be able to give to the women and children and soldiers of our allies the bread they ask."

PREDICT HUGE WHEAT CROP.

Millers' Federation Expects Billion-Bushel Harvest This Year.

CHICAGO, April 13.—A billion bushel wheat crop for 1918 was predicted by delegates to the sixteenth annual meeting of the Millers' National Federation here today. The Federation voted to recommend to the milling division of the Food Administration that the 30 per cent. allotment of the millers' output for the Allies be increased to the maximum available tonnage for shipment. The recommendation was made after Colonel H. B. Tasker of London, head of the Wheat Export Company in New York, told of the privations suffered in England and others of the allied countries.

"Still we're happy," he said. "But the Allies are still hungry, and if you can spare a little more flour, for God's sake send it."

C. H. Jenkine, who is Chairman of the Committee on Crop Improvements, said: "Permanent organization for increased production and conservation of foods in every State brought a large increase in production of coarse grain last year, and was instrumental in the planting of the largest acreage of Winter wheat in the history of the country. The force of the movement is now plainly visible in the efforts of the Spring wheat farmers, and in the fact that the acreage in that section will equal if not surpass any previous efforts on their part, in spite of the fact that the scarcity of farm labor was never so great as at the present time. The conditinns are thus far ideal for another billion bushel crop this year."

ORDERS WHEAT MARKETED.

Washington Gives North Dakota Farmers Until May 15.

FARGO, N. D., April 13.—All wheat in the hands of North Dakota farmers must be marketed before May 15, because of shortage of foodstuffs, according to an official statement issued by Dr. E. F. Ladd, State Food Administrator, today. Failure to market the wheat before that date, Dr. Ladd declared, would result in the wheat being taken and sold.

"Order all wheat sold before May 15. If not sold then, call officer and have it taken to town and sold, deducting the cost of taking it to town."

This year's seed wheat, Dr. Ladd asserted, was not affected by the order.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Food Administration officials said today that no order providing for the requisitioning of all wheat held by farmers had been issued. State Administrators, they said, had been instructed to seize grain where it appeared farmers were holding it because of pro-German influences.

CHANGES IN FOOD PRICES.

Live Stock on Upward Trend, While Dairy Products Go Down.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Wholesale price fluctuations for the week ended April 6 for food and feedstuffs showed more activity than at any time in the preceding three months, according to the Food Administration's weekly market report, made public today.

Live stock showed the sharpest increase over the week ended March 30. Native beef steers sold for $13.75, an increase of $1.85, while lambs brought $18.60, an increase of $1 over the previous week. Hogs went up 30 cents per 100 pounds from $17.10.

The sharpest decreases were in dairy products, potatoes, and hay. Fresh butter dropped 2 cents, from 42 cents the week before, while the price of storage butter fell 1 cent, from 38 cents. Only a fraction of a cent reduction was realized in fresh eggs and cheese.

Potatoes at New York dropped 3 cents per 100 pounds, from $1.91, while Chicago potatoes fell 10 cents, from $1.05.

YEAST COMPANIES WARNED.

Trade Board Admonishes Fleischmann and National Distilling Firms.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Orders to stop alleged unfair trade practices were issued today against the Fleischmann Company of Cincinnati and the National Distilling Company of Milwaukee, manufacturers of yeast, by the Federal Trade Commission. Both were found to have given authorities to induce the purchase of yeast, and to have given yeast to operative bakers in larger quantities than required for sample.

The Fleischmann Company was ordered also to desist from substituting its own for competitors' samples, from concealing its control of the bakers and Consumers Compressed Yeast Company of New York, from contributing money to "bakers' associations" to obtain patronage, and from unfair discrimination in price between different purchasers.

HULBERT IS ANGRY AFTER SEEING HYLAN

Dock Commissioner Says "They Are Not Going to Make a Goat of Me."

MAYOR CAME OUT SMILING

"Something May Happen on Monday," Is His Comment on Dock Lease Injunction.

There were rumors about the City Hall yesterday that Mayor Hylan and Dock Commissioner Murray Hulbert had had a serious disagreement over the action of the Sinking Fund Commission in voting last Thursday, at the request of the Dock Commissioner, to approve the leasing of Pier 60, North River, to the Hudson Dock and Terminal Corporation, a new concern, for $25,000 a year, although the Occident Dock Company, the present lessees, had offered $30,000 a year for the privilege of renewing its lease. Right after the Sinking Fund Commission meeting Commissioner Hulbert went to Washington. He returned yesterday, and was called to the City Hall by Mayor Hylan for a conference.

The Mayor and the Dock Commissioner were closeted for about two hours, and when it was over neither would state what had taken place. The Dock Commissioner went into the Mayor's office smiling and confident looking, but when he came out he was manifestly much angered.

"What have you to say about the latest phase of the Pier 60 lease?" Commissioner Hulbert was asked.

"I haven't a d—— word to say," he replied, as he hurried through the City Hall corridor. Then the Commissioner added: "The place to try this is in the court. I'll show these people something. They are not going to make a goat out of me."

The Commissioner would not explain his reference to a "goat" but left the building. Later the Mayor came out smiling. He said he had nothing to say about the matter. When reminded that during the injunction obtained by the Occident Dock Company to restrain the city and Dock Commissioner Hulbert from granting the lease to the Hudson Dock concern would come up for argument in the Supreme Court on Monday, the Mayor said: "Well, something may happen on Monday." A short time later the Mayor's Secretary, Grover A. Whalen, came out of his office and he was informed of Dock Commissioner Hulbert's statement.

"What did the Commissioner mean when he said they were not going to 'make a goat' out of him? Did he mean the Mayor or the Occident Dock Company?" Secretary Whalen was asked.

"I don't know what he meant," replied Mr. Whalen. "But wait until you hear Hulbert on Monday. He'll have a lot to say then." Earlier in the day Commissioner Hulbert defended his action in recommending that the lease be given to the Hudson Dock concern. He said:

"I am glad the case has been taken into open court, where I will be able to present my side, and I am satisfied the public will see the situation in the right light. I knew nothing of the Hudson Company. That is a matter for the Controller and the Mayor's Sinking Fund Commission to investigate. I never knew a Mr. McGoey was in any way connected with it, and his name has never appeared in the transaction.

"I do know the Hudson Company offered to pay full year's rental in advance, which is more than the present lessee is doing. I know the Mayor expects to receive $30,000 a year for the pier, and I believe the Hudson Company will pay it. I have taken up the matter of all the New York piers and am giving it careful consideration."

George W. Field of Platt & Field, attorneys for the Occident Dock Company, said yesterday that his investigators were still trying to fix the identity of the persons behind the Hudson Dock concern, but had met with no success. He said he had not been able to find out just what connection Frank McGoey of Far Rockaway, a friend of Grover Whalen, the Mayor's Secretary, had with the case, although it was understood that Mr. McGoey was a member of the Hudson Dock Company. Two of the Directors of the concern live in Bayonne, N. J., and were out of the jurisdiction of the process servers, who wanted to serve them with a copy of the injunction proceedings. The only other known Director, William H. Anthony, who gave a Fourteenth Street, New York, address, could not be found.

It became known yesterday that on Jan. 17 Alfred E. Smith, President of the Board of Aldermen, who was absent from the Sinking Fund Commission meet Thursday, presented a resolution at the commission meeting that before all dock leasee were submitted to the commission for approval a statement should be required showing the special reason for exempting any lease from competitive bidding. On motion of Controller Craig, this resolution was referred to Dock Commissioner Hulbert, who has not reported on it since.

Dock Commissioner Hulbert, at the Jefferson Day dinner at the Hotel Astor last night, said he had had no disagreement with the Mayor. He said he had conferred with the Mayor only about his visit to Washington. He said his attitude toward the leasing of Pier 60 had been misrepresented and that he would present the case in its true light at the court proceedings on Tuesday.

NORWAY IN FOOD CRISIS.

Public Growing Uneasy About Deferred Agreement with America.

CHRISTIANIA, April 13.—The public is growing uneasy over the failure of the Government to arrive at an agreement with the United States on Norwegian food supplies. It was announced in February that an agreement was ready for signing, but it is understood that new American terms have been discussed in secret in the Storthing.

Meanwhile the food situation becomes worse. The nation has been placed on a ration of four pounds of potatoes weekly, and milk is also being rationed. The bread situation is growing worse the longer the agreement with America is delayed.

The labor attitude is causing anxiety and some military precautions are being taken with a view to possible disturbances on May Day.

MINERS GIVE WARNING OF NEW COAL CRISES

Garfield Asked to Stabilize Industry to Get Full Production and Retain Workers.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 13.—Declaring that the present coal production in the United States is far below the nation's lowest possible estimated requirements, the International Executive Board of the United Mine Workers of America, in a telegram to Federal Fuel Administrator Garfield, urged the immediate stabilization of prices and distributing agencies, to prevent a recurrence of the crisis of 1917.

The telegram declares that mines in Iowa, Oklahoma, Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, and West Virginia are working less than half time and that many large producing mines are actually shut down. Miners are leaving centres where the car shortage shows no signs of improvement, the committee says, adding: "If this exodus of miners to other lines of employment is permitted to continue full car supply and the most satisfactory distributing facilities provided later will be destined to failure."

The telegram asserts that the miners of the country stand ready to dig all the coal that could possibly be used by the nation and that they are "able and eager to break all records in coal production and distribution if given the necessary facilities and co-operation."

"The best evidence of this fact is the record of production of 1917 under the most trying circumstances. The international, district, and local organizations have subscribed for approximately $2,000,000 of the three Liberty bond issues. We want to help with all our force in the present crisis—not hinder. But we find that the outlook for an adequate coal supply is of such grave concern that we must, for the protection of the mine workers and as a public duty, call your attention to what we are constrained to believe is a menace to the hope of providing sufficient coal.

"Almost every day coal prices are changed in the whole or part of some State. Distributing agencies are annulled as they exist, or restricted, or so completely changed as to upset every stable calculation. Whenever the prices are lowered in any State the operators affected immediately ask for a hearing. This invariably results in decreased production until the operators' appeals are definitely determined. When prices are raised the coal miner naturally feels that he should receive a proportionate amount of such increase. This condition has created an unrest that nothing short of a stable, permanent price arrangement can satisfy.

"The coal miners feel that they have not had that degree of consideration in adjusting the affairs of the industry and the promulgation of policies that rightfully is theirs. Therefore we feel it our duty to ask of the Fuel Administration that a greater degree of consultation be given the half million of our members through the organizations representative in order to promote the most efficient and effective co-operation."

CHAIN GROCERS ORGANIZE.

Seventeen Firms Unite for Economic Improvement.

Announcement was made yesterday that the Chain Store Grocers' Association of New York had been organized with a membership of seventeen firms, representing 5,000 retail stores. Recently, President C. W. Kimball of the New York Food Distributors' Association invited representatives of the chain stores to a conference held at the rooms of the Merchants' Association, where organization was effected.

Among the objects sought are elimination of uneconomic and unbusinesslike methods, to safeguard the public against impure, misbranded and short-weight goods, and to co-operate with producers and consumers for a more wholesome place in the eyes of the public. It was also decided that the chain store organization would co-operate with all food regulating agencies.

It was emphasized at the headquarters of the association, 97 Warren Street, that nothing would be done toward regulating prices.

JUSTICE'S NEPHEW WOUNDED IN FRANCE

HARVARD GRADUATE KILLED

Lieut. Perry Attended Plattsburg Camp—Letter on the Death of Lieut. Feigl.

Captain John B. Pitney, one of the two officers named in yesterday's casualty list from General Pershing, is a son of John O. H. Pitney, senior member of the law firm of Pitney, Hardin & Skinner of Newark, and a nephew of Associate Justice Mahlon Pitney of the United States Supreme Court. Captain Pitney, who is a Princeton graduate, is a brother-in-law of Joseph Leiter of Washington. His wife was Miss Frances Williams of that city, a sister of Mrs. Leiter. At the home of Mr. Pitney in Morristown it was said last night that the family had received word from Adjt. Gen. McCain that Captain Pitney had been wounded on the French front.

Lieutenant Edward Hale Perry, whose death in action was announced several days ago, was a Harvard graduate of the class of 1909, and before entering the army lived with his mother, Mrs. Georgiana W. Perry of Boston. He was one of the men graduated from the first Plattsburg training camp last Summer.

The War Department has notified Mr. and Mrs. H. T. McCoun of Brandon, Ontario, Canada, of the death in action of their son, Harry T. McCoun, Jr., who was a private in the 165th Infantry of the Rainbow Division. Private McCoun was killed on March 21. He was 23 years old, and was one of the Seventh Regiment men transferred to the old Sixty-ninth New York when that regiment was assigned to the Rainbow as the 165th Infantry of the Guard Army. Young McCoun enlisted in the Seventh the day after Congress declared war on Germany.

Cornell Man Wounded.

Captain Francis J. Cahill, who was reported as missing in the casualty list published yesterday morning, was a native of Hoosick Falls, N. Y., and a graduate of Cornell University, and also of the Cornell Medical College. He was for a time an intern at the Kings County Hospital in Brooklyn. He was an officer of the Medical Reserve, and when last heard from was serving in the advanced lines of the British Army in Picardy.

Colonel Frederick Feigl, father of Lieutenant Jefferson Feigl, who was killed in action on March 21, the only American killed on the first day of the German drive, received a letter yesterday from Brig. Gen. Charles P. Summerall, U. S. A., one of the artillery commanders of the Rainbow Division. The letter, from "Headquarters in the Field," under date of March 23, was as follows:

While you will have received the sad news of the death of your son, Lieutenant Jefferson Feigl, I desire, on behalf of this brigade, as well as myself, to extend to you and to his bereaved family the heartfelt sympathy of his comrades.

Throughout his service with this brigade he bore himself with a manliness and a soldierly spirit that won the admiration and affection of those with whom he was associated. His unfailing attendance to duty, his efficiency in every feature of his daily life and his qualities of leadership rendered him an invaluable officer of the command, and his loss is deeply felt.

At the same time, the sacrifice of his life for his country has left the proudest heritage to his family, and he gave it as he had lived it—in a sacred discharge of duty for his country. He was killed in the midst of the guns that he had fought so well, and he was spared the suffering, for which all should be thankful.

However irreparable his loss may be, you and those dear to him may well feel proud to have given him for his country in this hour of need.

With assurances of my great respect, I am Sincerely yours,

C. P. SUMMERALL.

Lieutenant Feigl was the only son of Colonel and Mrs. Feigl. He was 22 years old. Colonel Feigl has also received a letter of condolence from President Wilson.

Another letter that came to THE TIMES yesterday was one written by Frank McCabe, an enlisted man of the 165th Infantry, to his sister, Mrs. Nye. McCabe was wounded in action on March 21 and the letter was written just one week before, when he was in the first-line trenches.

From Front-Line Trenches.

In part the letter, as given to THE TIMES by Mrs. Nye, reads:

I received your letters a couple of days ago and I certainly was glad to hear from you. More so than ever because we are now in the trenches. It is over funny sitting here reading your letters and having German shells going merrily over your head, but after a couple of days you don't mind them a bit, until they hit twenty-five or fifty yards around you. Then you make one grand dive for your dugout. If you are not anywhere near it, why you just lie flat on your stomach until it passes over. We have a dandy dugout, six of us are working together—all fine fellows, too. The regiment has had pretty good luck so far. Only hope it keeps up.

We have had wonderful weather for the last week or so, just like Summer time. I did not receive that package you spoke of yet, but don't forget to tell mother to address it to the Headquarters Company, Signal Platoon, 165th Infantry. But if she has already sent it, I will receive it through the Machine Gun Company. You can tell the boys that this letter was written in the front line trenches, so if I make a mistake you will understand that a boche shell has just gone over. Some whistle the boys have! You hear them coming, and when you hear them going you feel much better, but they say the one that hits you you never hear. Therefore, I like to hear them. One good thing about the trenches is that they have not any first call or taps, and without that in the army it seems like a vacation.

Kitty, you had better not tell mother I am in action for she will only worry. Just as soon as we get out I will write you, and then you can use your own judgment.

Well, bye bye for awhile. Will write in a couple of days. Good luck, and God bless you and mother and all the folks.

Sheldon E. Minor of Greenwich, Conn., received word yesterday that his son, Pierrepont Minor, who has been with the American engineers in Picardy, is seriously ill of pneumonia at a base hospital in France.

SILENT ON PERSHING ARMY.

Washington Didn't Authorize Advertisement Saying He Has 500,000 Men.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The New York Liberty Loan Committee published in newspapers this morning a page advertisement in which the statement was made that 500,000 American soldiers were in France. That statement was not authorized by the War Department. The War Department has no statement to make as to the numerical strength of the American Expeditionary Forces.

The explanation made in behalf of the Central Liberty Loan Branch of the Treasury is that, when the New York committee made arrangements with some advertising agencies to place advertising for the loan in newspapers, one firm included in its "copy" the statement that 500,000 American soldiers were in France, in the belief that when the advertisement appeared that number of troops would be there.

The advertisement came to the notice of the Liberty Loan Bureau in the Treasury Department before it was published this morning, but it was said today that it was too late then to prevent its appearance. It was acknowledged by one of those connected with the Liberty Loan Publicity Bureau that there was no official authority for the statement.

The War Department has never made any statement as to the number of American troops under General Pershing's command and does not intend to do so.

Gen. Pershing Cables List 86 of Casualties, Making Total of 3,448 in Overseas Army

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Casualties in the American expeditionary forces cabled by General Pershing and made public by the Adjutant General's office today numbered 86, and increased the total number in the overseas army to 3,448. Of those reported today, the fatalities were 17, including 5 killed in action, 1 died of wounds, 7 of disease, and 4 of accident. The severely wounded in the list numbered 9, and slightly wounded 60, making a total of 1,707 wounded since the expeditionary forces entered the war area.

One commissioned officer, Lieutenant Wilmer E. Herr, was reported killed in action. Captain John B. Pitney was reported slightly wounded.

The War Department does not publish the addresses of officers and soldiers in its casualty lists, but in all cases telegraphic notice is immediately sent to the next of kin.

SEIZED AMERICAN WOMEN.

Chinese Bandits Capture, but Release Two Missionaries.

PEKING, Monday, April 8. — Miss Katherin Schmidt and Mrs. Stanley M. Dixon, American missionaries, formerly of Springfield, S. D., have been captured by bandits. They are representatives of the China Mennonite Mission Society. Miss Schmidt was attached to the station at Tsao-hsin, Shantung Province, and Mrs. Dixon to the station in the nearby town of Fang-shan, in Kiangsu Province.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The State Department was advised today that the two American missionaries captured by Chinese bandits had been released.

CONSCRIPT DUTCH LABOR.

Bill Offered in Parliament Includes Childless Women Up to 60.

THE HAGUE, April 13.—The Government has introduced in Parliament a bill providing for the establishment of compulsory civilian service for the duration of "extraordinary circumstances." The bill imposes this obligation upon all male citizens and all unmarried women or childless married women within the mother country between the ages of 17 and 60, with the exception of men in the naval or military service or persons included in specified exceptions.

The bill empowers the Government, in case of war, to control all available hands, and, at the present time, to compel all whose activities must not be suspended, lest the country's interests suffer, to continue such activities.

ejected the enemy, driving him back to his positions. The struggle continued to sway back and forth for several hours.

While the action was at its height the commander of an American machine gun unit reported to his chief that all the machine gun emplacements had been shot away, but that "every gun is working like hell."

The attacks were made by the reorganized remnant of 800 shock troops who failed to reach the American positions in their gigantic raid on Wednesday. Their ranks were filled out by picked men from other units. The German prisoners, who belonged to six different organizations, said that the attack was ordered to avenge the crushing defeat administered to the enemy on Wednesday.

Five of the prisoners were Uhlans, and all of the men taken were carrying haversacks well filled, as if in preparation for a protracted stay in the American trenches, corroborating the stories told by prisoners taken on Wednesday, who said that the Germans had been ordered to penetrate the American third line at all costs.

The American troops, although tired from nearly six days of infantry activity, went into their positions singing and expressing their pleasure at an opportunity to fight in the open, in preference to what they term "sewer fighting."

The residents of villages behind the lines saw the Americans moving forward, and shouted words of encouragement to the truckloads of smiling men, who waved their caps and cheered heartily. French officers have again praised the remarkable fighting qualities and the courage of the American infantrymen and the splendid cooperation shown by the American artillery. Some units of the artillery were forced for long periods to work in gas masks.

An artillery duel which was resumed last night continued with little interruption until late this morning.

French Positions Attacked.

PARIS, April 18.—The day report of the War Office says:

"In the Forest of Apremont the Germans renewed their attacks on the French positions in Bruie Wood. The American troops in this sector, in conjunction with the French, vigorously combated and broken the greater part of the German efforts. At one point where the Germans obtained a footing they were thrown out by a French counterattack. The number of prisoners taken since yesterday is more than forty."

AMERICAN FLIERS WIN D.S.C.

Captain Hall and Lieut. Bair Are First Aviators Thus Honored.

PARIS, April 13.—James Norman Hall, Captain of an aviation section, and Paul Frank Bair, a Lieutenant, are the first American aviators to win the Distinguished Service Cross of the American Army.

Captain Hall, leading a patrol, attacked a group of five German machines, destroyed one and forced down two others. Lieutenant Bair attacked single-handed a group of seven planes and destroyed one near Rhelms. On another occasion he attacked two two-seaters, one of which fell in flames.

Captain Hall's home is in Colfax, Iowa, and Lieutenant Bair's in Fort Wayne, Ind.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, April 13, (Associated Press.)—Captain James Norman Hall and Lieutenant Paul Frank Bair, members of the American aerial forces on this front, today received the Distinguished Service Cross. The official citation states that Captain Hall on March 26 attacked a group of five enemy single-seater machines and three enemy two-seaters while he was leading an aerial patrol of three machines. He himself destroyed one and forced down two others, which were probably destroyed.

Lieutenant Bair on March 11 attacked single-handed a group of seven enemy pursuit machines, destroying one, which crashed to the ground near the French line northeast of Rhelms. On March 16 he attacked two enemy two-seaters, one of which fell in flames. Since March 1 Lieutenant Bair has driven down six enemy machines, three of which are officially credited to him.

Battleship Rheinland Stranded.

AMSTERDAM, April 13.—The German battleship Rheinland, which was reported to have struck a mine and sunk, has not gone down, according to a Berlin dispatch. She is said to have been stranded near the Aland Islands, in the Baltic, in a fog on Wednesday, and efforts are being made to refloat her.

CROWELL DEFENDS MEYER'S CAPTAINCY

Reports to House That Lane's Former Assistant Was Not Subject to Draft.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The appointment of Herbert A. Meyer, former Assistant to the Secretary of the Interior, to a Captaincy in the Signal Corps, was in accordance with the regulations, and not a violation of the selective service law, according to a report which Acting Secretary of War Crowell submitted to the House of Representatives today.

The report was furnished in response to a resolution offered by Representative Daniel J. Anthony of Kansas, who declared that the law had been violated in Mr. Meyer's case and others. This is denied in a report which also supplies a list of men under 31 years appointed for inteligence work in the army.

Despite the fact that the report has explained how Mr. Meyer had been in continuous military service before the declaration of war, and was not subject to the selective draft for that reason, Representative Anthony continued his attack upon the War Department and Captain Meyer in a speech in the House. He asserted that the report was not comprehensive and did not give the names of all those appointed to staff positions in the army from civil life who were subject to selective draft.

"The country," declared Mr. Anthony after the report had been read in the House, "has been scandalized by the publication of a list of 200 or 300 young men, most of them of prominent families of the millionaire class and of strong political connections, who in the face of promised reform by the War Department have received commissions."

Mr. Anthony asserted that Captain Meyer had been transferred without proper examination into the nonflying division of the Aviation Corps, "where he was safe." The chief qualifications of Captain Meyer, he declared, were that he was "proficient in driving an automobile and in automobile repairs."

"In the face of appointments such as I have described," he said, "the War Department is not taking proper steps to provide sufficient commissioned officers to lead the next army of drafted men we shall raise. For three months there have been no officers' training camps in operation. It is about time we were showing signs of activity in the training of not less than 50,000 officers."

In its report the War Department said that it had not discontinued wholly the appointment of draft-age men to noncombatant positions, but that it had issued orders that no such men should be commissioned unless it were impossible to obtain other men equally well qualified who were above draft age. Explaining Captain Meyer's appointment, the report said:

"Attention is invited to the fact that as Captain, Quartermaster Reserve Corps on the inactive list, he was entitled to classification in Section 5, Selective Service Regulations; however, he failed to avail himself of this and was placed in Class 4, because of a dependent wife and child."

The report gives the names of the following who were commissioned, all in the infantry, for intelligence work solely:

Name and Rank.	Age and Address.
Knabenshue, C., Lt.Col., N.A.	45, Seattle.
Craig, Henry C., Capt., N.A.	32, Hoboken.
Cramer, J. Grant, Capt., N.A.	46, Washington.
Hughes, Rupert, Capt., N.A.	45, Washington.
Tiffany, Chas. L., Capt., N.A.	40, New York.
Tausig, Knox, 1st Lt., N.A.	32, St. Louis.
Hat, Clarence L., 2d Lt., N.A.	—, New York.
Manning, J. A., Capt., O.R.C.	38, Washington.

Acting Secretary Crowell, after saying that the foregoing were appointed upon recommendation of the Chief of Staff for intelligence work, adds:

"Orders have been issued that such officers shall not be assigned to line duty because they are not qualified. It was not desired that they be allowed to secure line commissions without having qualified through camps."

DECLARES GERMANY A WORLD OUTLAW

Senator Owen Urges That Nations Join in Isolating the Enemy.

ATTACK HER COMMERCIALLY

Senator Harding Says New Shipping Will Total 350,000 Tons a Month.

MAKE 11,500 RIFLES A DAY

Colonel McRoberts Tells Security League 75,000 Machine Guns Have Been Delivered.

United States Senators Warren G. Harding of Ohio and Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma, who were the principal speakers at a war luncheon given in their honor by the National Security League at the Hotel Astor, yesterday, both declared that the United States was in this war to the absolute limit of its resources, and that Germany must and would be beaten, even though the United States had to accomplish the feat alone and unaided. Senator Harding, who is one of the leading Republican members of the Senate Committee on Commerce, said that if the United States did not do its full part to end the German peril once and for all, then "America would not be fit to live in." Of the shipbuilding situation, with which he is in close touch, he said that the outlook was promising, and that before the end of this year America would be turning out 350,000 tons of ships every month.

Senator Owen urged that the Allies and all neutrals who could be induced to join them should enter into an ironclad international agreement to boycott Germany from commercial and other intercourse with the rest of the world until the Government and people of that country were ready to honorably and sincerely subscribe to the doctrine of right and honor among nations. He suggested also that it might be a good thing to throw the statue of Frederick the Great, which now stands in front of the War College at Washington, into the Potomac.

75,000 Machine Guns Delivered.

Colonel Samuel McRoberts, U. S. A., one of the head officials of the Ordnance Department in Washington, was also a speaker, and his message was one of "good news" so far as the production of guns and other ordnance materials was concerned. Today, he said, the United States was turning out more infantry rifles a day than ever was the case in England or France. 75,000 machine guns had been delivered to the fighting divisions of the service, while the production of small arms ammunition had reached a point greater than any record ever attained by our allies. His speech was distinctly optimistic, and he was continually interrupted by applause. Colonel McRoberts is a former Vice President of the National City Bank.

Frederic R. Coudert presided and also made a speech, in which he pleaded for a speeding up of the war to the end that America might at the earliest possible moment exert her powerful and deciding strength in the great struggle on the French front.

The first speaker was Senator Owen, one of the authors of the Federal Reserve act, and the Chairman of the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency. He was on the program to talk about "money," but he gave only a brief part of his speech to that subject.

"I take it," he said, "that all America is behind the splendid declaration of President Wilson, that we must use force in dealing with the Prussian, and more force, and still more force."

So far as the great financial problems involved were concerned, the country, he added, entered the war prepared. The Federal Reserve act, he said, had solved that part of the fighting problem.

Senator Owen then changed the course of his remarks and took up the subject of a possible banishment of Germany from commercial intercourse with the rest of the world.

Force of Psychology.

"We need," he said, "every force which is available to win this war, and I want to venture to make a suggestion in the hope that wiser men than I may consider it, may think of it, and if it have value, then that by common counsel the value may be shown and may be employed. We need every soldier on the battle line that we can place there, we need every gun that we can put in the battle line. We need all those forces, and America is exerting her utmost to provide guns and men and ships. But there are other forces which I think we can at the same time also employ, the force of psychology.

"We can learn much from Germany, and Germany has been waging a great war of psychology all over the universe. She has had her spies and her secret agents and her propagandists throughout the whole world, weakening the force of resistance of mankind, while she strengthened the German will to victory. We comprise seven-eighths of the human race, and we need but to engage the same psychological forces on our own behalf to break down the psychology and will to victory of the German people who are now behind the battle line. Let them know that America, Great Britain, France, Italy, China, Japan, India, and the South American republics are as one in demanding liberty and freedom for the human race. It is not enough for individuals to declare the principles which govern the relationships between nations. That has been done well by Lloyd George, by Clemenceau, by President Wilson, and by other statesmen; but the way to affect German psychology, the German heart, the German will, German opinion, in my judgment, is that these nations cohere now and not wait until after the war, but while we wage war with every energy of which we are capable, at the same time that we should unite and as nations declare the rules of international law, and then declare at the same time as international outlaws those nations who refuse to accept doctrines of decency and righteousness and justice which ought to prevail between the nations of the earth. And I would go further. Some time since I placed in the Congressional Record, in the hope that some man might inadvertently see it and read it and inwardly digest it, a statement attributed to August Theissen, who occupies some such relationship in Germany as Charles Schwab, the head of Bethlehem Steel, may be said to occupy in America, one of the great captains of industry in the iron and steel and coal trade. That statement of August Theissen was that in 1912 von Bethmann Hollweg, at the instance of the most infamous man in all history, William II., called together eighty of the captains of industry in Germany and took them up into a high mountain and showed them the kingdoms of the earth, and promised them all that they might covet and desire if they would sustain the Hohenzollern in a war. August Theissen says that he was promised 30,000 acres in Australia with $150,000 with which to develop a vast mineral property there; that others of these captains of industry were promised vast estates in India and Canada and in other parts of the world, and that, while he did not like it very much, at first he agreed to it and they agreed to it, and these men, from a heart of covetousness, desiring to take the property of other men, were willing to back William Hohenzollern in waging the most wicked and infamous war of all history upon innocent and unoffending peoples throughout the whole world, as a means of establishing a military autocracy and robbing other people of the proceeds of their labor.

"That was printed in England, that was printed in Japan, it was taken from Switzerland, it was printed in the United States; and no man, as far as I know, has ever seen from August Theissen a denial.

An Ultimatum to German Trade.

"Is there in history a conspiracy so depraved? I favor going further; I favor, having an organization of the great civilized nations now at war with the German Government, and all of the neutrals who will join with us, and declaring these principles of international government; that every nation should have the right of internal self-government, the right to control immigration and emigration, exports and imports, the right to complete territorial integrity, the right of access to the high seas and to international waterways and those principles which are recognized as true by Great Britain and the United States and by France and by Italy and by Japan; and then say to these captains of industry in Germany: 'You sought to rob us; we do not desire to rob you, but we say to you that you shall not profit by this war.'

"'We say to you that unless you underwrite these great principles of international government, including disarmament, when this war shall end, including those principles which are recognized and which have been set forth by the President of the United States, unless you use your influence to bring this war to an end, we will after a limited number of months impose upon you the following penalties:

"'That no ship shall be cleared from any port in the world which we control to any port in Germany; that no ship flying the German flag or transacting business with a German port or with a German subject shall be permitted to enter any of our ports; that no imports shall be permitted from Germany into any of our countries; that no exports from any of our countries, directly or indirectly, shall be permitted to reach Germany; that we will in our respective countries confiscate every dollar of property owned by any subject of Germany and use that money both to make war on you and to indemnify any of our nationals who have property in Germany.

Isolation of Germany.

"'That we will not permit any telegraphic, telephonic, express, or other communication with any person in Germany; that we will isolate you as far as we have the power—for a limited time—until you shall have learned the lesson that you cannot by organizing military force rob the other people of the world of their property or of their liberties.'

"I know that this is drastic; it is intended to be. I know that it will injure some of the interests of those who are connected with those at war with Germany. We can indemnify them. I am in favor of indemnifying them—German property. This suggestion which I make, I make because I would save if possible the slaughter of the beloved youth of the world. It is a means to an end. It is intended to notify these commercial and financial thieves behind William II. that not only they shall not succeed, but that unless they use their influence with William II. and his military group to end the slaughter we will end them as far as we can. We want to fight this war with all the force that we have—military, naval, commercial, financial and psychological. The weak spot of the force behind the Kaiser is covetousness. They have broken all the commandments known as the laws of God, but chief of all the Tenth Commandment.

"This is a combination between covetousness on the one side and desire to maintain a dynasty on the other. William II. was satisfied that the growth of democracy and socialism in Germany would overthrow his house unless he made this war; and, in order to make it successfully, he had to have the backing of the commercial and financial powers of Germany, and he made a corrupt bargain with them, and then under the color of declaring a war of defense he made a war of offense, having prepared for it for forty years."

"When Germany wanted to show her friendly relationship to the United States," concluded Senator Owen, "they sent us a bronze statue of Frederick II., a mercenary, unscrupulous, treaty-breaking Prince, who disgraced his own time and disgraced mankind for all time. We placed him in as inoffensive a position as we could, down in front of the War College at Washington, where very few persons see him except soldiers. I would have thought it would be advisable if we could, without ostentation and without any display, to quietly and peacefully drop him into an obscure part of the Potomac. But I do not think it ought to be done ostentatiously, because that is bad taste."

Senator Harding, whose subject was "ships," began with a reference to the great battle crisis in France.

"I want to say," he said, "that we are sure to have our full part in this conflict of civilization. Suppose that poor, miserable, impotent, and chaotic Russia should never strike another blow. Suppose that Italy, less able to meet the oncoming hordes of the Hun than the other nations at war, should fall. Suppose that noble, heroic, respiritualized France should be destroyed—and nothing else, my countrymen, would take her out of the war. And suppose that brave England should be starved, though we can little believe such a misfortune as that. But should all these things occur, mark you, my countrymen, even then the United States of America must go on.

"Originally we of the Republic went into the war in defense of American national rights, but now we find ourselves becoming part in a warfare for the preservation of civilization, and if this great Republic did not do its full part it would not be fit to live in. And so, the committal is unalterable.

"We have begun a shipping program in the United States of America which is going to place the flag eminently on the paths of ocean traffic throughout the world. From the beginning of the war to last Jan. 1 the neutral and allied shipping of the world had sustained a loss of 18,000,000 deadweight tons. Approximately 14,000,000 deadweight tons have been replaced, so that a net loss of approximately 4,000,000 deadweight tons has been sustained. If the submarine warfare is maintained at the same rate of destruction as has been recorded for the last year for the next fifteen months and more, but the big actively enlarged nor materially reduced, and if the production of the British is maintained and we of America meet 100 per cent. of American expectations, the available allied and neutral shipping will be restored to a normal balance in the middle of 1919, and thereafter production will rapidly outstrip destruction.

Sees Paralysis of the Submarine.

"No prediction can be made without many an 'if.' There is more than reasonable probability that in concrete and wood construction we may far exceed the program thus far planned. We are advancing more in preparedness to combat the submarine than is becoming for me to relate. If it did not have the seeming of boastfulness, which has brought us to keenest disappointment in some other lines of war preparation, I should venture the prediction that another year of warfare will witness the essential paralysis of the submarine arm of ruthlessness and frightfulness. However, of the two phases of conflict on the seas, I assume I am to speak of the constructive, the creation of cargo tonnage."

The Senator recalled that when the great war started the United States had been for decades a nation in which shipbuilding was not a leading industry. Today, he added, the nation had 2,762,000 tons of ships in war service between the United States and Europe, and "we are yet scarcely begun." About 300 ships, under American control or direction, are now running between this country and Europe; of these ships 322 are flying the American flag.

"Wonderful figures," said Senator Harding, "when read in view of our former incapacity, and yet only one-quarter of Britain's service between this country and the war zone in behalf of civilization."

Senator Harding closed his speech with a brief resumé of the achievements of the Shipping Board since we entered the war last April.

"In our first year at war," he said, "there was completed and put into service 1,750,000 deadweight tons. Great Britain exceeded that accomplishment, but it was a great addition for a nation where shipbuilding had essentially ceased as an industry. More, what yards and skilled builders we could boast were largely committed to naval production, which is a story within itself. To be sure, this addition in the first year was mainly composed of requisitioned ships, begun under private contract, for American, British or Norwegian operators, but they were the output of American resources and energy. Much of the tonnage of early delivery will likewise be of requisitioned vessels, taken in process of building, but those of our own beginning are moving toward completion with them. There is no need to anecdfy, they are all American now, all committed to the same cause.

350,000 Tons a Month.

"The first three months of this year steel vessels of 450,000 deadweight tons were commissioned under the flag. This month we shall add 150,000 tons more. There will be mounting figures in steel vessel production for May, June, and July, until we reach a quarter of a million tons for each of the months of August and September. Thereafter the increase mounts still more rapidly, until the estimated figures go to 350,000 tons each for November and December, or a total of 2,250,000 tons for the remainder of this year. I am speaking of steel ships only. Concrete is as yet a great adventure, awaiting reasonable proof before attempting the enormous production which is possible. As to wooden ships, I can only give you the estimates of the Fleet Corporation, which are accompanied by assurances of conservatism, and say 296 vessels are promised for delivery this year, with an aggregate of 945,200 deadweight tons. Twenty-one wooden hulls have been launched so far this month, and twenty more are due to be launched ere April is gone, and the estimates are forty in May and sixty in June.

"Mr. Heyworth, manager of the wooden ship division, told me only yesterday that his department expected to put 491 wooden ships into service by July, 1919, with a total of 1,750,000 deadweight tons, and that construction was being extended rather than restricted, as is oftimes reported. This wood addition to our merchant marine adds little to the transatlantic service, but it does maintain our coastwise and West Indian service and add to the sum total of shipping resources.

Task Is Still Staggering.

"Gratifying as these figures are, though less than early extravagant optimism suggested, they are vastly insufficient for the needs of effective warfare. No nation in all time has attempted a task of maintaining an army of millions 3,000 miles beyond its shores. It is a staggering task. In view of the impending crisis I dislike to utter our needs for self-dependence, but it goes into many millions of tons. One need not doubt capacity, one is concerned about speed. More steel, more timber, more men, more speed, and always more ships, more ships, and still more ships. Fifteen months and more to spend in the shipways, but the big thing is full efficiency in the yards now operating. Two shifts must be provided, three can be made possible. We are committed to this war everlastingly.

"The safety of civilization is dependent on the safety of the seas, and safety of America is dependent on our capacity on the seas to execute the unfailing arm of American conscience. One can not foresee all the opening avenues of war or the necessary course which we may be called to pursue. I only know that our task is incomplete until Germany is brought to terms. England has said, through Lloyd George, that there is no surrender for her so long as she has a ship at sea. We can go further; there is and can be no surrender for us so long as honor is worth while and there is energy and resource to make war in the cause to which we are committed. We have builded well thus far, we are only begun in demonstration of capacity. If we have encountered difficulties, and we have, it is only proof that we may rise above all that in time. If there has been halting, it is because the spirit was not aroused and realization not fully reached. We are moving now. The power of the Republic is committed, unalternably, and beyond measure, and lighted by an American soul aflame."

Produce 11,500 Rifles a Day.

Colonel McRoberts said that "America's mighty war machine" was now emerging from that state of public criticism in which he said "pretty generally everybody else is damned as incompetent." The total contracts entered into by the Ordnance Department in the first twelve months of war, Colonel McRoberts said, involved an expenditure of a little more than $3,000,000,000. The number of rifles contracted for, he said, was 2,500,000, and of these 1,050,000 had been delivered, while the production had reached 11,500 a day, which was, he added, "the largest volume of manufacture of the military rifle ever carried on in the history of the world."

"Of small arms ammunition," Colonel McRoberts said, "we have under contract 3,250,000,000 rounds, and production has already reached greater proportions than was ever reached in France or England. Our small arms ammunition production last month reached 270,000,000 rounds. We have let contracts for 300,000 machine guns of various types, and have delivered to the troops 75,000. Almost all the plant capacity for machine guns had to be created, with the consequent delays in delivery, and these guns will not reach the designed production until July, when we will produce about 18,000 a month. Now I am not permitted to discuss in detail our artillery program; I wish I could. But for the various types of field artillery and heavy artillery we have let contracts that amount to about $500,000,000, and all the needs of the army, including 1919, are now under manufacture.

"There is in process of manufacture 650,000,000 pounds of explosives and we are building two smokeless powder plants of a capacity of 1,300,000 pounds per day. It is hard to grasp what those figures mean, but I think I can illustrate it in this way. At the opening of the European war we were asked here to place a contract for a million pounds of smokeless powder. I presented the matter to leading powder manufacturers and was told that owing to the very great size of the order it would be necessary for extensions and building and nothing could be delivered until within four or five months after receiving the order. Now we are planning and have in process of manufacture three or four times that amount per day, so you can get an idea of what that volume means."

Mr. Coudert in his speech said that the battle of Picardy was, to his mind, "the final and great decisive battle of the world," and that the task of the United States was to prove, as he believed the country would, that in every respect she was "a great, a powerful, and a self-respecting nation," and that while the United States had made mistakes in the past "those mistakes were perhaps not attributable to peculiar individuals, but were attributable to a parochialism of mind which would not permit us to realize that this was not a European war, but a great final struggle between all the powers of the past and ideals of domination and subjugation, on the one hand and those groups of enlightening powers of the future that make for better and higher and more decent things, for those things which America has tried to stand for always."

"This is," said Mr. Coudert, "no time for recrimination. This is no time for surveying the past. We must look the facts straight in the face. I believe that along that front those splendid, valiant but tired soldiers that have withstood the onset will withstand it still, but whatever happens, under any and all circumstances, the boche shall not pass. It is the business of America; it is the business today of America with ships and with men and with money. It is the business of every individual, without regard to any consideration to have but one dominant thought, that that great legend written in blood by the free hosts of France and of Great Britain shall pass into history through the final effort of free America as the verdict of mankind. 'They shall not pass.'"

Service Board Directs Attention to Brooklyn Bridge Trains.

In reply to a letter from a Brooklyn citizen the Public Service Commission has described the effort if has been making in co-operation with the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company to induce passengers bound for Manhattan in the morning rush hours to take trains operating over the Brooklyn Bridge instead of those using the Williamsburg Bridge. The letter intimates that while the commission sympathizes with anxiety to get to Manhattan quickly it says just as good time can be made by crossing the Brooklyn Bridge, and that travel is more comfortable because the congestion is less.

"If a substantial number of passengers can be attracted to the Brooklyn Bridge," the letter of the commission says, "there will then be a justification for increased service. To ascertain to what extent the operation of the Myrtle Avenue trains over the Bridge in the morning hour is being availed of by Myrtle Avenue riders, counts were taken on the 1st and 2d of this month. The result of the counts on April 1 were as follows:

"A five-car Myrtle Avenue train across the Bridge between 7 and 7:30 A. M. carried 270 seats and 154 passengers; in the period between 7:30 and 8 A. M., two five-car trains carried 520 seats and 540 passengers; one five-car train between 8 and 8:30 A. M. carried 250 seats and 240 passengers and in the period between 8:30 and 9 A. M. two five-car trains carried 530 seats and 600 passengers."

A similar study on April 2 showed substantially the same situation.

Hays Declares California Republicans Are In Harmony.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 13.—Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, announced here today that factions in the party in California, which attracted attention in 1916, when Woodrow Wilson carried the State, became reconciled. Raymond Benjamin, Chairman of the State Committee, called on Mr. Hays; so did Percy V. Long, who said he could properly be designated a Republican, although still holding the office of Chairman of the Progressive State Committee, and W. H. Crocker, National Committeeman from California, who was found in the conservative wing of the party in 1916.

A Nevada delegation, including Whitman Symms, Chairman of the Republican Executive Committee; Q. H. Simmons, a former Progressive leader in the State, and Colonel H. B. Maxon, former National Committeeman from Nevada, also called on Mr. Hays.

SUBWAY PLACARDS YIELD CITY NOTHING

PROFITS $700,000 A YEAR

Operating Company Contends Division Should Not Begin Till All Lines Are Running.

An examination by the Public Service Commission of the reports submitted by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company disclosed that the company had not been crediting the city with any share of the returns from advertising on the new rapid transit lines now in operation. Under the contract with Artemas Ward, dated Dec. 27, 1913, about nine months after the signing of the dual contracts, the company is now receiving $700,000 a year for the advertising privileges. During 1919 and thereafter the amount will be increased to $800,000 plus 10 per cent. of the gross receipts.

While all of the lines of the Interborough Company will not be pooled until after permanent operation begins, which may not be until the latter part of this year, or even later, the commission contends that the money received from advertising contracts should be shared with the city because the greatly increased rate the company is receiving from the privileges—the amount having grown from $450,000 before December, 1913—is due to the new lines built by the city and operated by the company. Therefore the commission insists that part of the total payments on account of advertising should be credited to the city.

The Interborough Company has objected to giving the city any credit on account of advertising until after permanent operation begins. It contends that inasmuch as its income from advertising has not increased above the amount received before temporary operation of new lines, which began in June, 1915, it should not be asked to make any allowances in the city's favor until permanent operation begins.

Within the meaning of the dual contracts the new lines now in operation are the Queensboro line, the Seventh Avenue line between Times Square and the Pennsylvania Station, and the White Plains and Jerome Avenue extensions. Based on the number of tickets sold on the Queensboro line, which was put into operation on June 22, 1915, compared with the total sale on the entire Interborough system, there should be credited to the city, according to the commission's statisticians, $19,615.38 up to June 30, 1917, and a total of $39,500 a year on the four lines.

"In further reference to the advertising revenue to be included in the gross receipts of the lines in temporary operation I would call your attention to the condition existing on the Queensboro subway line under which subway cars are identified with the operation of this line only and do not connect with or are they operated on the other divisions of the subway system. It would thus appear that the advertising on these cars is separately identified with the Queensboro operation, and this would tend to disprove the contention made by Mr. Gaynor and Mr. Berry (representing the Interborough Company) that no additional advertising privileges had accrued to the advertising contractor, Artemas Ward, since Jan. 1, 1915.

"Your attention is also called to the following fact that the increase of $100,000 a year in the advertising contract payments covering the years 1915, 1916, 1917 and 1918 is certainly in connection with the additional advertising privileges which the contractor would enjoy as the new lines were put into operation. Therefore there can be no question but that $100,000 per annum is to be considered as 'additional advertising revenue.'

"The fact remains that the cars, both of the subway and of the Manhattan divisions operated on the Queensboro subway line, and on the Seventh Avenue and Lexington Avenue lines, carry advertising for which the Interborough receives income. The finance has failed to credit the pooled operation with any revenue from advertising, and it is suggested that the Interborough be requested to include a credit for advertising revenue determined on the basis of the value of the sales on the lines in temporary operation to the value of the sales on the entire subway system."

But the Interborough Company has so far declined to make such a credit, and the matter is still in course of adjustment. The commission has indicated that it will insist that the city receive the credit, and has told the company that there is no question but that in equity the city has a right to the credit. A determination of the question will affect all the other lines as they are put into operation, and the amount finally involved will be large.

CAPT. ROOSEVELT IMPROVING

Colonel Hears That Son Is Anxious to Get Into Action Again.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., April 13.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt received additional news today concerning the condition of his son, Captain Archibald Roosevelt, who was wounded in a battle and who was removed a few days ago to a hospital near Paris. The Colonel received a long letter from Captain Frank Joyce, who had seen the wounded officer in a hospital.

The letter said that all of the officers had given great praise to the manner in which Captain Roosevelt had handled his men during the battle and even after he was wounded. Captain Roosevelt was steadily improving, the letter added, and his one desire was to get back on the firing line.

UPHOLDS NEGRO SOLDIERS.

Shillady Protests Army Order Against Raising Color Question.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People announced yesterday that it had forwarded to the War Department a protest against an order issued on March 28 by command of Major Gen. Ballou, commander of the 92d Division, Camp Funston, Kan., in which the General advises negro officers and men that "no useful purpose will be served by any action on their part that will cause the color question to be raised," and admonishes them to refrain from going where their presence will be resented.

John R. Shillady, Secretary of the organization, calls the attention of the department to the fact that the order concerns illegal actions taken against negro officers and men and not illegal acts performed by the negro soldiers themselves.

The association calls General Ballou's order unjust, humiliating, and inexpedient.

HOSPITALS DIVIDED ON FEES FOR DOCTORS

Some Prohibit Charge for Signing Death or Other Certificates.

OTHERS IGNORE PRACTICE

This Attitude, It Is Explained, Is Due to the Fact That House Surgeons Serve Without Pay.

Hospital Superintendents in this city are at variance over the ethical propriety of permitting house physicians to charge a fee for signing death certificates and other documents required by insurance companies from beneficiaries of a deceased patient before payment is made on a policy. While the Superintendents declined yesterday to be drawn into a public controversy on the subject, the majority of them agreed that the practice, as permitted in some of the hospitals of the city, had no other basis than a feeling that house physicians, who were unpaid employes, should be allowed to make something for themselves in signing documents which were concerned entirely with insurance transactions, and which had no direct relation to their professional duties.

Some of the large hospitals of the city flatly prohibit the practice, among them being Bellevue and Allied Hospitals, and the Mt. Sinai Hospital. Others like the Memorial Hospital, the Roosevelt Hospital and the Polyclinic Hospital permit it under very definite limitations and restrictions. Even in those institutions where it is permitted, Superintendents express themselves as being personally opposed to it, but continue to tolerate the practice merely because it has grown up as more or less of a "general thing" for the house physician to charge, with the knowledge of the Superintendent, a small fee for the assistance which he may be called upon to render to relatives of a deceased patient in procuring the payment of an insurance policy. A Superintendent of one of the large hospitals of the city where the practice is not permitted, discussed both sides of the question as follows:

"In the first place house physicians are unpaid employes who often give us two years of their service without any payment or compensation in return. All they get is experience. But they are generally men without incomes, and the end of two years of service will often find them penniless. Consequently, hospitals have not manifested in the past any strong opposition to permitting a house physician to make a little something for himself on such odd jobs as do not come into direct relations with his professional duties.

"Among such jobs, some Superintendents include the signing of papers and certificates relating either to insurance or legal transactions requiring some record of the death or health of the deceased. In the matter of a death certificate for insurance the house physician is really assisting in a money or business transaction, and cannot be regarded as coming within the regular and professional functions of his position. In other words, he is doing something outside of his professional duties, as a matter of assistance, and for that reason he has been permitted in many instances to make a charge.

"On the other hand, there is the other side to the question. The function of a hospital is to render service, and any favor or assistance an employe of a hospital can render a patient or the relatives of that patient, should be considered as part of the general functions of that hospital and should not require an extra charge of any kind. Upon this ground, some of the large hospitals will not allow the house physicians to make any charge for death certificates."

A striking illustration of the extent to which this practice is carried occurred several days ago at the Memorial Hospital, when a house physician was requested to make out a death certificate in the case of a poor boy who died at the hospital and who had been insured by his employer under a group insurance plan, which entitled the family of the boy to a certain amount of money. Before the policy could be paid it was necessary to obtain a death certificate from the house physician who had the boy under his care. The house physician charged $2 for the service. When the matter was brought to the attention of Superintendent Holmes of the Memorial Hospital yesterday he admitted that it was a general and commonly recognized practice for house physicians to make such charges.

"The hospital itself will make out death certificates or any other documents referring to the status of a patient, that an insurance company, or the family of the patient may require, without any charge whatever," he said. "But where an insurance company, or a lawyer seeks the signature of a house physician it becomes a matter that is not directly related to the physician's professional duties, and he is, therefore, permitted to make a limited charge for his services. Personally I am opposed to the practice, but it has grown up for years and has never been made the subject of any vigorous protest, simply because house physicians are men who serve without pay and the amount they can make out of such odd jobs as they are called upon to perform outside of their strictly professional duties is very small."

At the Roosevelt Hospital the practice is permitted under one of the general rules of the hospital, with this limitation, that the house physician cannot make the charge without the knowledge of the Superintendent, who must fix the amount of the charge in each case. Supt. Charles E. Grimshaw at the Roosevelt Hospital said that the charge could not exceed $5, no matter how large the amount of insurance involved, and in the case of a small industrial insurance no charge whatever was allowed.

"The amount of the charge," he said, "is determined entirely by the size of the insurance and by the circumstances of the patient. It is really a service outside of the house physician's regular duties, and for that reason we have thought it not improper to allow him some kind of a fee."

RUSSIAN POTASH SEIZED.

Cargo Reported Worth $1,000,000 Held in Suit for Damages.

Deputy Sheriff Walter Bryan of Brooklyn, acting on a warrant of attachment, yesterday seized a cargo of potash, said to be worth $1,000,000, on the Russian steamship Irtysh, lying at the foot of Thirtieth Street, in that borough. The potash is the property of the Central War Industrial Committee of Russia, and was sent here for distribution among various chemical manufacturing concerns in this city. The warrant of attachment was issued by Supreme Court Justice Hotchkiss in Manhattan on a suit filed against representatives of the Central War Industrial Committee of Russia. Herman & Herman, chemical manufacturers of 6 Church Street, Manhattan, are the plaintiffs in the action. They claim damages for an alleged breach of contract.

Through the filing of an inventory in the County Clerk's office in Brooklyn yesterday it became known that a shipment of goods worth $57,873, consigned to Russia, had been held up by Sheriff Griffin of Kings County. The paper was filed in a suit brought by the owners of the Russian Volunteer Fleet against a Russian manufacturing concern. The property consists of electric motors and parts of motors and airplanes.

33 DEAD, 37 MISSING, IN HOSPITAL FIRE

PATIENTS FIGHT RESCUERS

NORMAN, Okla., April 13.—Thirty-three bodies, burned and charred beyond recognition, had been taken tonight from the ruined building that housed Ward No. 14 of the State Hospital for the Insane here, which was ravaged by a fire that started at 3 o'clock this morning. The list of missing tonight stood at thirty-seven. Three frame buildings were destroyed and a fourth badly damaged.

According to the best information obtainable, the fire started from defective wiring in a linen closet in Ward No. 14. A night watchman discovered the flames shortly after 2 o'clock this morning.

The flames were fanned to a fierce blaze when the watchman opened a door to go for help. The fire quickly spread through the first floor of the two-story structure. Efforts to arouse the inmates of the ward failed in most instances, only a few of the patients nearest the exits making their escape. The fire gained headway so quickly that effective work was impossible. It was in Ward No. 14 that all the deaths occurred.

Most of the thirty-three bodies recovered were found lying in the remains of the beds, indicating that most of them had been overcome by smoke before they awoke. The flames spread to an adjoining ward, and thirty-five helpless negroes were carried quickly to the open air.

Ward No. 10, a one-story frame structure, which housed eighty negro patients, next caught fire. All of the patients were rescued. The blaze spread to a two-story structure containing Wards 13 and 16, in which eighty-eight violent patients, most of them negroes, were housed. Some of the patients in this ward fought their rescuers as they were being taken from the building.

The fire in those wards was extinguished before the structure was totally destroyed. The bodies recovered were burned beyond recognition.

First reports placed the ages of those missing at from 10 to 15 years, but a later check made it probable that none of the men and boys missing from ward 14 was under 14 years.

Dr. D. W. Griffin, Superintendent of the hospital, believes that the list of missing will be cut down somewhat by the discovery of patients who escaped from the grounds in the first rush of excitement. Sixty employes of the hospital, among them many nurses, distinguished themselves by their work in rescuing patients and in fighting the flames. Women nurses risked their lives by entering the burning buildings and helping carry out crippled and paralytic patients.

ARRESTED AS DRAFT EVADER

Eugene Bishop Injures Policeman in Effort to Escape.

Eugene Bishop, 24 years old, a messenger, was arrested at his home, 1,523 Amsterdam Avenue, yesterday on complaint of Exemption Board 141 that Bishop had failed to report for examination after cards had been sent to him. Bishop told the police he had waived deferred classification, although his mother was a widow and dependent upon him for support. He said he had not received notice from the draft board to report for examination.

On the way to the police station Bishop tried to escape from Policeman James T. Manley, and in the scuffle the patrolman injured his hand so severely that he had to go to the Knickerbocker Hospital for treatment. Bishop was held pending examination of the draft board records.

MEXICANS CROSS BORDER.

Try to Abduct "American Spy"—Texas Rangers Disperse Them.

EL PASO, Texas, April 13.—Six armed Mexicans crossed the border into the United States near Fabiens yesterday and tried to abduct Miguel Hernandez, whom they accused of being a "spy for the Americans." Hernandez fled and barricaded himself in a house near Monument 18, the Mexicans demanding his surrender, stating they had a warrant from the "Governor."

They accused him, he said, of visiting Guadalupe, Chihuahua, and gathering information. A detachment of Texas Rangers rescued Hernandez, dispersing the Mexicans with an exchange of shots from which there were no casualties on either side.

NEW MOVE FOR MOONEY.

Counsel Asks Court to Postpone His Resentence to Death.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 13.—Indications that further legal action would be taken in behalf of Thomas J. Mooney, whose sentence to death has been affirmed by the State Supreme Court, were given here today by Maxwell McNutt, counsel for the defense, who asked that Mooney's resentencing to death be postponed until April 27.

Mooney was convicted of murder in connection with the preparedness parade bomb explosion here in 1916. McNutt's request was granted. He would not state what action he contemplated.

SABOTAGE BILL ALTERED.

Conferees Eliminate All Reference to Strikes in War Work.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The joint conferees on the so-called Sabotage bill today struck out all reference to strikes by labor engaged in war industries, thus making labor amenable to the broad restrictions of the measure. The conferees voted to eliminate Section 3, as demanded by the Senate in a vote on Thursday, under which labor would have been privileged to stop work in an effort for higher wages or better conditions. Besides this, they struck out the Cannon amendment, making it unlawful for laboring men engaged in war work to go on strike.

Organized labor had demanded the elimination of the Cannon amendment, while Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, had announced himself as strongly advocating the retention of Section 3, so as not to make it an offense for laboring men to cease work in the interest of higher pay. The conferees in deciding to emasculate all reference to strikes in the bill, yielded to labor's demands as to the inhibition of strikes, while opposing them as to the privilege to strike. As one of the conferees expressed it:

"The conference decision was an entirely neutral one."

The conferees, in eliminating Section 3, made it possible, leaders believe, for the bill to pass the Senate next week. A fight is expected to be made by advocates of the right of labor to strike, but the Senate majority is opposed to it. Under the measure as it will be returned to the Senate, any one who interferes with work or injures war material or factories engaged in war work will be amenable to $10,000 fine or thirty years' imprisonment or both. Under the wide scope of the bill, strikers could be prosecuted as interfering with the war program.

Advocates of a more energetic war program and the utilization of all the nation's forces to win the war would not hesitate, it was said at the Capitol today, to vote for a bill for the conscription of labor if necessary. This step, however, would not be attempted except in an extreme emergency.

FOUR SOLDIERS PUT IN JAIL.

Men Accused of Holdup and Shooting Are Held for Robbery.

Although the four soldiers arrested on the charge of robbing the café of Herman Beinbrink in Hollis on Friday night and of shooting a policeman and four other persons in their effort to escape pleaded not guilty in the Jamaica Police Court yesterday, Assistant District Attorney Hazelton of Queens said the men had signed confessions of their part in the holdup and the shooting. The soldiers were held on charges of robbery and felonious assault and taken to the Queens County Jail in Long Island City under heavy guard.

Mrs. Edna Brush, who was in the automobile commandeered by the police in their pursuit of the soldiers who fled after robbing the café, is in the St. Mary's hospital from gunshot wounds in the chest, and surgeons say she cannot recover. The condition of Policeman Henry Weber of the Jamaica Station, also is critical, but the surgeons say he will get well. The injuries of the other persons who were in the automobile pursuing the soldiers when they opened fire are reported serious. They are William Busche of Hollis, George B. Gerard and Walter L. Stillwell of Huntington.

Automatic pistols thrown away by the soldiers in their flight were found by the police, and the rings and money taken in the holdup of the saloon were found under a tree on the property of F. Howski, on Cherokee Avenue, near Warren Street, Hollis. A pistol was found near the cache. When the men went into the Beinbrink café it is said they asked for soft drinks, and then held up the other patrons as soon as the bartender turned. It has not been decided whether the accused soldiers will be tried before a military court. The names of the soldiers as given out by the police and the District Attorney were: Sergeant Otis Walker, aged 19, of Milburn, Okla.; Privates Henry Cohen, aged 20, of 534 Graham Avenue, Brooklyn; William B. Harrison, 20, of Centreville, Tenn., and Roy S. Smithson, 20, of Mount Hope, W. Va. All were members of a regiment now at Camp Mills.

BLAMED FOR DRAFT RIOTS.

Quebec Jury Deplores Tactless Action of Federal Police.

QUEBEC, April 13.—To "the tactless and grossly unwise fashion in which the Federal police acted toward absentees under the Military Service act" was attributed the anti-conscription riots of two weeks ago in a verdict returned here today hy a Coroner's jury.

Four civilians killed during the disorders on the night of April 1 "were entirely innocent of participation in the rioting," the jury stated in its verdict, adding that in its opinion the men were killed "by soldiers performing their duty of repressing a riot."

A recommendation that the Dominion Government indemnify the families of the four men was included in the finding along with an expresion of regret that "the good reputation of the city should have been put in doubt by the acts of light-headed youths or a few ill-intentioned men who probably were strangers in tha city."

SENATOR STONE GRAVELY ILL

His Condition, Following a Paralytic Stroke, Becomes Critical.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The condition of Senator Stone of Missouri, who suffered a paralytic stroke on a street car last Wednesday, was stated hy his physician tonight to be extremely grave. This hulletin was issued:

"Dr. Sprigg announces that Senator Stone had a restless night. This morning his pulse was 120, temperature 101.6, and respiration 28. No motion of left arm or leg. He is taking liquid nourishment fairly well."

In a bulletin issued later Senator Stone's physician stated that his temperature was lower and that his general condition was "slightly improved."

Asserts Situation Is Different from Cases Where Properties Were Seized by Government.

Following the publication yesterday of the statement of A. Mitchell Palmer, Alien Property Custodian, to the effect that 47 per cent. of the stock of the Garfield Worsted Mills is owned by Germans; that before and during 1915 a large percentage of the company's stock had been owned in Germany, but that in 1915 some of the stock held by Germans had been purchased here, leaving a little over 47 per cent. of the stock in the hands of Germans, the following letters sent to Mr. Palmer on April 8 by Henry M. Earle in behalf of the Garfield Mills were made public yesterday:

April 8, 1918.

In re Garfield Worsted Mills.

Dear Sir—I am in receipt of a letter dated April 4, in relation to the above company in reply to my letter about an article in THE NEW YORK TIMES on March 30.

I note your statement that the announcement complained of was not made personally by the Alien Property Custodian. Whether it was made personally, or whether if was made in writing, or whether it was made at the instigation of his representatives, I am not informed; I do know, however, that the paper expressly says that the announcement was made by Mr. Palmer.

It is quite true that in the early part of 1917, a considerable amount of the stock was owned by alien enemies, but the facts and circumstances will completely show that this stock was acquired under negotiations started in 1916, whereby American citizens purchased the stock outright for their own account. These facts were stated to the Custodian personally some weeks ago, and also prior to the publication of the article complained of they were stated to your representative here and complete proof presented.

In view of this situation I am unable to understand your statement, "therefore, the situation of the Garfield Worsted Mills differs only from the others in the percentage of enemy ownership."

The situation with the Garfield Worsted Mills differs very essentially from that of the other mills, as will be seen from the simple fact that the management of the Garfield mills is made up entirely of American citizens. It has no connection whatever with the Woolen Cartel of the German Government. It has never been engaged in anything that is contrary to the interests of this country, and it has for some time past been furnishing 35 per cent. of its product to the Government at cost.

I respectfully submit that the situation with the Garfield mills is so entirely different from those properties that have been seized by the Custodian that it is particularly unfair to place this company in the same category with them, and that there is no reasonable excuse for so doing, especially as the mills have not been seized and are not under the control of the Custodian.

Referring to your statement concerning Mr. Schmid having reported that none of the certificates representing enemy stock was in this country, there is certainly nothing very mysterious about his having subsequently discovered some certificates that had been left by their owner in a desk. Certainly if there had been any intention on the part of Mr. Schmid to deceive the Custodian when he made his original statement, which, of course, was based on the best of his knowledge and belief at the time, it would have been a very simple matter for him to have continued the deception by merely destroying or secreting the certificates which he found some months later. If this fact is taken into consideration it would seem to be a complete reply to your rather fanciful conjecture that Mr. Schmid was intending to suppress information in relation to the certificates. In view of your statement to this effect, I am obliged to record here the view that your statement is contrary to the fact and that we cannot agree with you.

Your statement in regard to the compartment in the company's safe is based on either a misapprehension or a disregard of the facts; on Nov. 16 Mr. Hall wrote you that as it appeared that the act did not apply to a citizen interned in France, that he presumed it was not necessary to report as to Mr. Haverland. On Nov. 20 you replied to the effect that Mr. Hall's view of the act was entirely correct. Subsequently, however, when Mr. Palmer changed his mind on this subject, and it was decided that a report should be given on all enemy aliens, Mr. Schmid at once reported the fact that Mr. Haverland had a compartment in the safe to which no one else had access. I call your attention to the fact that under the foregoing, the conclusions which you have drawn concerning Mr. Schmid are unfair, misleading, and unjustified.

Referring to the concluding paragraph of your letter, permit me to say, it is not a question of whether or not "the foregoing facts may be susceptible of explanation," they are so perfectly obvious that they require none. How you choose to consider them is, of course, something about which we are not informed. I am authorized to say, however, that we cannot accept the disposition concerning them suggested by your letter.

Very truly yours,
HENRY M. EARLE.

In re Garfield Worsted Mills:

Dear Sirs: On behalf of the Garfield Worsted Mills, I had occasion to call your attention to the extremely injurious and unfair position in which the said mills are placed by the statement given to the newspapers and published in THE TIMES of March 30, notwithstanding the fact that the statements made had no application to said mills.

I regret to be obliged to call your attention to the fact that certain trade papers in New York, dated April 1, 2, and 5, contain further statements by your representatives in this city, especially Mr. F. P. Garvin, which reiterate the statements complained of.

Permit me to again respectfully suggest that this sort of notoriety, however beneficial it may be thought to be in some respects, is considerably injurious to the Garfield Worsted Mills, and there are many evidences that it is very greatly militating against its business interests.

Very truly yours,
HENRY M. EARLE.

Palmer Here to Reorganize Mills.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Alien Property Custodian Palmer is in New York today to complete the reorganization of six large Jersey woolen mills that have enemy alien stockholders. The total value of the properties is estimated at $70,000,000, and the plan is to convert their operations into Government work to the largest extent possible. Officials of the mills sent for recently by textile experts of the War Department to ascertain how extensively the mills might engage in army work contended that the looms were not fitted for that class of work. They have been producing some work for the Government, however, and the alien property custodian and the War Department believe they can produce a larger output for the Government.

CITY BREVITIES.

An exhibition of khaki cloth and all other clothing needed by the Government for the armies will be given in the Grand Central Palace between April 29 and May 11 as part of the Sixth National Textile Exposition.

The Student Council of Barnard College gave a dinner in Students' Hall last night to the Dean and all the undergraduate Presidents of the past. The classes represented ranged from Miss Anna Cole Mellick, '90, to Miss Dorothy Brookway, '19.

The freshman and sophomore classes of Barnard College held their annual Greek games yesterday afternoon in Students' Hall, the recently completed gift of Jacob H. Schiff. The sophomores defeated the freshmen by the score of 64½ points to 34. The games consisted of a contest in dancing, music, costuming, and athletics.

AGENTS INTERCEPT MME. NIX'S LETTER

Missive in Which She Warned Count de Clairmont Now in Secret Service Hands.

BOTH AWAIT DEPORTATION

Woman Tells Companion to Declare Their Relations Are Platonic and to Guard His Answers.

The Secret Service intercepted a few days ago a letter written by Mme. Charlotte Nix, the German now waiting deportation to France, to Count Robert de Clairmont, a French citizen, who is a prisoner in Bellevue Hospital. In the letter she cautions de Clairmont to be careful about the answers he gives to questions asked him by agents of the United States Government. Mme. Nix and de Clairmont are held as alleged members of a band which is believed to have operated for Germany in this country under the direction of Mme. Despina Davidovitch Storch, who died on Ellis Island three weeks ago.

In the letter Mme. Nix told de Clairmont that if the Government agents asked him where she met him he was to reply at Nice, and to assure them that their relations were platonic. If he was asked why they had come to the United States as "Mr. and Mrs. Roberts," Mme. Nix wrote for Clairmont to say that "it was just a little piece of foolishness." She also urged Clairmont to say that when they left Gibraltar they went to Savoy, and added certain instruction he was to follow in the event he was asked about a certain trip to California.

Freidrich Haslov, a German subject, was taken into custody yesterday charged with supplying liquor to American soldiers. He was also held for failing to register with the police as an alien enemy. He was committed to the Essex County, N. J., jail for thirty days by William Wallace, Jr., the head of the Enemy Alien Bureau. Joseph Schuetz, who worked in a Coney Island restaurant, was sent to the same jail for six days for attempting to corrupt soldiers and sailors. Heinrich Posteur, a German, who came to this country in 1868, was arrested for uttering scurrilious remarks against the Government and the armed forces of the United States. It was said that he will probably be interned for the period of the war.

Joseph Fodorer, said to have the sobriquet of "Hungarian Joe," an Austrian, who has been employed at the plant of the United States Metals Refining Company at Chrome, N. J., was brought from that place yesterday to the Enemy Alien Bureau. He was charged with attempting to obstruct Government work and with trying to induce other aliens not to work on Government contracts.

The plant at Chrome, it was said, has contracts to turn out 2,200,000 pounds of copper per month for the United States and a $365,000 contract for the Allies. Fodorer is detained in the Essex County jail pending a final disposition of his case.

Mr. Wallace and some of his assistants will make a tour of inspection Monday of the docks and piers on the New Jersey side of the river. It will be noted how the docks are policed, what is needed, &c. The Dock Commissioners of New York City and of the New Jersey cities in this district are expected to accompany them.

It was requested at a meeting held in the Enemy Alien Bureau yesterday that the public be notified to report any enemy alien activity which may come to their knowledge to one of the agencies engaged in running down spies.

It was suggested that frivolous complaints were not desired, but that any person having knowledge of suspicious activity on the part of aliens could do their country a service by reporting it at once to one of these departments, or, if a rural district, to the nearest Postmaster.

RABBIS ISSUE AN APPEAL

Bishop Wilson Gives Message from Gen. Pershing, Who Says Germany Can, Must, and Will Be Beaten.

The latest available figures for subscriptions to the Third Liberty Loan show that in the first six days of the four weeks' campaign there were filed in the New York Federal Reserve District applications totaling $238,072,450. Yesterday's recorded subscriptions amounted to $31,512,400, a further gain of more than $5,000,000 over the previous day. At the end of the sixth day of the Second Liberty Loan campaign the New York total stood at $154,786,350.

More than 40 per cent. of the nation's subscriptions have come from the New York district, and, while New York has taken approximately 26 per cent. of its $900,000,000 quota, the other eleven districts have thus far reported applications equivalent to only about 11½ per cent. of their aggregate quotas. According to data prepared by the Treasury Department, the New York district was asked to supply 30 per cent. of the loan, the other 70 per cent. being distributed among all the other districts.

Though the Third Liberty Loan calls for $3,000,000,000, the Treasury has reserved the right to allot additional bonds up to the full amount of any oversubscription. It is the aim of each and every district and each and every community to oversubscribe its respective quota as many times as possible. Reports are encouraging, and, as the campaign advances, it is believed that they will become more so.

Figures for Subdivisions.

Brings Message from Pershing.

Bishop Luther B. Wilson of the Methodist Church, who recently returned from a tour of the battlefront, where he was permitted to get first-hand information of the American forces now fighting in France, spoke yesterday from the steps of the Sub-Treasury. He delivered this message from General Pershing:

"'It is heresy to say that Germany cannot be beaten. Germany can be beaten; Germany must be beaten; Germany will be beaten.'

"A man who refuses to do his part in this crisis repudiates the utterance of General Pershing," declared the Bishop. "Germany will be crushed only if we stand by the President, and that means that every man must do the thing that he can do best with red-blooded loyalty and enthusiasm. The force of America, spelled by the sword and syllabled by the cannon—that is the only speech that Germany can understand."

Bishop Burch said that every man in this country could go into partnership with the soldiers and sailors now on their way to France by sacrificing in money and comfort as they will be called upon to sacrifice in flesh and blood.

"The beast of frightfulness has got the British and French with their backs to the wall," he said. "God grant that our boys will not be pushed back, and I know that they will not be pushed back if they are supported by our dollars in the Third Liberty Loan."

Mgr. John P. Chidwick, formerly chaplain aboard the U. S. battleship Maine, who also spoke, told his audience that American soldiers would have a question to ask when they returned from the war. "They will say, 'Where were you when I was fighting in the trenches in France?'" he said. "What will we have to say in reply? If we cannot say, 'I bought Liberty bonds, I worked and saved, I did everything in my power to help uphold the honor and integrity of this land,' then we will deserve the look of scorn that will be turned upon us."

Rabbis Issue Appeal.

The New York Rabbis' Third Liberty Loan Committee issued yesterday the following appeal under the signatures of H. Pereira Mendes, Chairman; S. Schulman, B. Drachman, R. Grossman, E. Solomon, and E. Frisch, Secretary:

Our country is at war, not for conquest, not for revenge, not for any material gain, but only and solely to vindicate the cause of justice and the rights of man. We firmly believe that this is on our part a righteous war, a war whose fundamental aim it is "to make the world safe for democracy," to protect the rights of the weak, to establish God's Kingdom and blessedness on earth.

As loyal American citizens we call upon our fellow-Americans to stand as a unit behind our Government in the present crisis. In no way can we better evince our devotion to our common home, our nation, and our Government than by a generous support of the Third Liberty Loan. Let us prove to both our allies and to our foes that our people are unanimous in their determination to carry this righteous war to a successful end. Every Liberty bond that is bought gives so much strength to our boys and encourages the Government. Let each man and woman do his or her duty.

Dr. William J. O'Shea, who is in charge of the war activities for the public schools announced yesterday that the school drive in the interest of the Third Liberty Loan had netted more than $6,000,000 in subscriptions during the first week of the campaign. The following table shows the number of applications and amount of subscriptions that have thus far been obtained through the medium of the public schools:

	Number of Applications.	Total of Subscriptions.
Manhattan	19,065	$2,368,157
Bronx	9,493	886,450
Brooklyn	13,959	2,503,380
Queens	2,305	250,400
Richmond	1,085	7,100
Total............	46,807	$6,015,767

Brooklyn Boys' High School First.

The largest total for subscriptions is credited to the Boys' High School of Brooklyn, the pupils of that institution having brought in applications amounting to $1,204,350. The Morris High School, however, leads in the number of applications, its total being 1,438.

Dr. O'Shea said that the fact that these results were so remarkable testified to the great enthusiasm with which the work had been undertaken by the superintendents, principals, teachers, and pupils of the city's public schools. The campaign started last Monday when the principals of all schools received a circular letter issued by the President of the Board of Education, Arthur S. Somers, Dr. Gustave Straubenmuller, Acting Superintendent of Schools, and Dr. O'Shea. The letter was addressed to the public and was printed in English, Italian, and Yiddish. These letters were distributed among the pupils, with instructions that they hand them to their parents and solicit their subscriptions to the loan.

Thousands of Italians from all parts of the city expressed their enthusiasm and sympathy for the cause of the Allies against Germany in Washington Square yesterday. Old and young, rich and poor, they represented all classes of the city's Italian population, from the merchant and banker to the peanut vendor and bootblack.

Italians Take $250,000 Bonds.

Not only did they show their loyalty to America's cause with song and with cheers, but they manifested it by deeds, for from the crowd of Italians and Americans of Italian blood the Liberty Loan canvassers realized a total subscription of more than a quarter of a million dollars worth of bonds. Men who seemed to have not enough with which to clothe themselves properly spent hundreds of dollars, a good portion of their hard-earned savings, in Liberty bonds.

Many prominent Italians were present to lead their countrymen in the pledge of loyalty. Among the speakers were General Guglielmotti of the Italian Embassy, Captain Francisco M. Guardabassi of the Italian Army, Justice John J. Freschi of the Court of Special Sessions, Collector of Internal Revenue William H. Edwards, Miss Amy Bernardi, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Martin Vogel, Orestes Ferrara, ex-President of the Cuban Chamber of Deputies, and Robert Underwood Johnson.

Captain Guardabassi stood on the stand for several hours and sold books of Liberty bonds totaling many thousands of dollars. Enrico Caruso also participated in the sale of bonds. He signed his name to all receipts for first payments on subscriptions obtained by him. Lionello Perera, the Italian banker, purchased $100,000 worth of bonds.

Many Italian societies were represented on the scene. Scores of Garibaldi veterans mingled with the crowd, easily distinguished from the rest of the crowd by their red uniforms, gay plumage, and white beards.

The east side indulged in a patriotic demonstration yesterday afternoon, under the auspices of the United Hebrew Trades, which is largely socialistic in its membership. The meeting was first held in the Bank of United States Building, 77 Delancey Street, but later another session took place outside. The feature of the exercise was the speech of Max Pine, a Socialist, who called upon the workingmen to support the President and become "101 per cent." Americans. B. K. Marcus, who presided, had the gathering pledge allegiance to the flag. Subscriptions to the amount of about $43,000 were entered. Addresses were made by representatives of the various trade unions.

Banners in the crowd carried legends reading: "We, the Socialists of America, Are With Wilson to the End," "Are We With Wilson—You Bet We Are," and "Buy Liberty Bonds and Win the War."

Several hundred Poles gathered last night in Public School 116, Sussex and Washington Streets, Jersey City, for a Liberty Loan meeting, and after hearing several patriotic addresses, subscribed to more than $3,000 worth of bonds.

Jews Offer Organization.

The Brooklyn Federation of Jewish Charities announced last night that its campaign for funds and members would be suspended for the period of the Liberty Loan campaign and that the services of its organization and workers had been placed at the disposal of the Liberty Loan Committee.

Liberty Bell Park, at the corner of Madison Avenue and Thirty-eighth Street, will be formally opened to the public on Tuesday. There is being erected a reproduction of a battle scene entitled "Over There." American soldiers are seen going "over the top," while in front of them is a tank in pursuit of retreating Germans. In front of the trench rises a Liberty Bell, towering thirty feet above the ground. On the opening day of this exhibit several addresses will be delivered, one of the speakers being one of the first wounded American soldiers to return to this country.

Miss Bessie Beatty, an American newspaper woman, who recently returned from Russia, will speak tomorrow before a gathering of the National Security League's "Flying Squadron" of speakers, held at the Bar Association.

If the weather is favorable, Lieutenant Joseph C. Stehlin will start at 3 o'clock this afternoon from Sheepshead Bay on his air flight through New York State in the interest of the Liberty Loan.

The Hotel and Restaurants Committee announced yesterday that subscriptions taken in at the hotel and restaurant booths were averaging $25,000 a day. During the six days' drive the Plaza Hotel has received $175,000 worth of applications. The Hotel St. George of Brooklyn has the honor of being the first to exceed its allotment. Its subscriptions for the first week totaled three times the quota assigned to it. The 11,000 lunch rooms in the city are co-operating with the hotels and restaurants in the work of getting subscriptions.

Representatives of the large insurance companies held a meeting yesterday, following a luncheon, which was addressed by Major F. R. Stoddard, Deputy Superintendent of Insurance of the State, who has just returned from the front. These insurance men will canvass the financial district for subscriptions to the Liberty Loan.

Alfred E. Marling, Chairman of the Real Estate Board Committee, announced yesterday a total of 340 subscriptions amounting to $532,800 for the week. About 150 brokers are at work soliciting subscriptions.

SUBSCRIBE $1,600,000 FOR LOAN AT MEETING

Following an enthusiastic meeting held last night at Carnegie Hall under the auspices of the Interior Furnishing and Allied Trades Association to further the Third Liberty Loan, Captain Eugene Orsinigo of the Seventy-first Regiment mounted the platform and called for subscriptions to the loan. The audience of 4,000 persons had previously listened to a fiery denunciation of Germany, together with a recital of atrocities committed by the Germans on the eastern and western fronts by the Rev. Thomas Travis, known as the "Fighting Parson." The call met instant response from all parts of the big auditorium, the first bid being for $20,000. This brought loud applause, which was quickly renewed when the next voice called out "$100,000." There were several subscriptions for $100,000 and smaller amounts tapering down to $3,000. Ushers in the aisles found those subscribing, and at the close of the drive the Liberty Loan Publicity Committee announced that the subscriptions amounted to $1,600,000.

Mr. Travis said the great crisis in the world's history was now on and added: "America holds the legions of victory in her hand." The "Fighting Parson" told his hearers that he didn't ask for bonds alone, but in this great crisis he wanted "your shoes, your socks, your shirt, your body, your mind, your earning capacity, your religion, your soul—everything you have—now back of the flag."

The other speakers were Major Francis R. Stoddard, U. S. A., and Charles E. Mitchell, President of the National City Company. William Fellowes Morgan, President of the Merchants' Association, presided.

Mme. Schumann-Heink sang "The Star-Spangled Banner," while another feature of the rally was music by the New York Scottish Pipe and Drum Band. Detachments of soldiers and sailors occupied places on the platform.

WOULD SAVE TO BUY BONDS.

Howard S. Mott Wants 25 Per Cent. of Incomes Invested.

Howard S. Mott, Vice President of the Irving National Bank, says the reply to the question "Why should we buy Liberty bonds?" should be: "Why in the name of common sense and of your own self-interest, as well as for those abstractions, liberty and justice, shouldn't you subscribe?" He adds:

"Why shouldn't we all consume less and buy bonds? It means not only backing the boys at the front, but it means keeping down inflation, keeping down our own cost of living, as well as that of our neighbors. And it means getting paid 4¼ per cent. on the money employed to help us to live more cheaply. How many people realize that the larger the sum saved from their daily consumption and invested in Liberty bonds the lower will be the cost of things they have to buy? Why shouldn't they buy bonds and get paid 4¼ per cent. for rendering a service to themselves? Why shouldn't we do ourselves a favor, and at the same time enjoy the distinction of helping the other fellow?

"In 1918 we may raise $3,000,000,000 from taxes, but the war will cost not less than $15,000,000,000. The remaining $12,000,000,000 is approximately 25 per cent. of the total income of the people of the United States. We have just got to find that $12,000,000,000 out of our incomes. If we don't, we punish ourselves by borrowing money which we cannot soon repay, thereby directly or indirectly inflating credits and prices and raising still further the cost of everything we shall have to buy.

"Over in little Old England they've got the idea. Once a week, out of everybody's wages, something is set aside for investment in British Government bonds. And the total runs about $150,000,000 a week. In France, nobody thinks of buying anything but Government bonds. France's debt now amounts to about $25,000,000,000, yet her total income is about $8,250,000,000, and her total wealth about $60,000,000,000. No citizen of France believes his country's obligation is not good.

"The national wealth of the United States is about $250,000,000,000, and her total annual income about $50,000,000,000. Were we to contribute to the support of the war as France has done the United States would have an indebtedness of somewhere from $105,000,000,000 to $150,000,000,000, according as the figures are related to wealth or income. There is no prospect of our having such a debt at the present rate of expenditure for the next five years. Can any citizen doubt the security of the United States Government bonds?

"Over and above all, the controlling, the dominating, the absolute reason for an investment in Third Liberty Loan bonds lies in the fact that Germany has challenged the world with the insolent, the insufferable slogan that force, not right, must rule. And we have accepted the challenge as only freemen can who intend to prove that right, not force, shall rule. We must have a maximum effort whereby every man subscribes to bonds to, say, 25 per cent. of his income for the year. He must do it because it is his own self-interest to do it as well as because we must win the war."

Col. Roosevelt to Speak for Loan.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., April 13.—To assist his fellow-townsmen to raise more than their quota in the Liberty Loan, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt will make two addresses here next Thursday. In the afternoon he will speak to the women who are working under the leadership of Mrs. Thomas L. Clarke, and at night he will be the Chairman of a rally to be held in the theatre. The Colonel is expected to make a stirring war address. Others to speak are Congressman Frederick C. Hicks, and the Rev. John L. Belford.

of the campaign is the determination of cities that have obtained their quotas not to stop soliciting. Sioux City, Iowa, with a quota of $2,400,000, already has $3,800,000 and still is moving forward. Oklahoma City, one of the last of the large cities to report its quota subscribed, wired tonight that it had $2,400,000 to meet its quota of $2,270,000 and that subscriptions "still are coming in."

War Exhibit Trains Win.

The interest that the special war exhibit trains are arousing in the Atlanta, St. Louis, and Dallas districts—which embrace the greater portion of the South—is amazing. An example of the results they are obtaining in awakening the interest of the people in the war is given in a telegram received today from the Atlanta district.

"Sevierville, Tenn., a small town off the main line, turned out 8,000 persons to see the train," the message said. "It was the biggest crowd in the history of that section. At Maryville the train was met by a band and the Red Cross women. One man told me he had walked fifteen miles to hear about Liberty bonds. A foreman in one of the plants said he had many men making $2 a day who had subscribed. At Sweetwater the crowd, consisting of men, women, and children, who had come many miles to see the train, almost carried it away."

Initial reports today on the school house rallies for rural residents held on Friday night show great interest. More than a million persons attended them. Coincident with these meetings came reports of increased sales in the rural districts.

Secretary McAdoo closed his week's speaking engagements in New Orleans tonight and went to Jackson, Miss., where he will spend Sunday. He will speak next week in the Southwest and Middle West.

Keen Rivalry Up-State.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 13.—Keen interest is being shown through this whole district in the honor flag, and every city and town is working at high speed to put in a claim for a flag. In Greene County two towns, Athens and New Baltimore, leaped over the top and exceeded their quotas at 9 o'clock Saturday morning, the first day of the campaign. Six towns along the Delaware & Hudson Railroad, in Albany County, Elsemere, Delmar, Slingerlands, Meadowdale, Altamont, and Voorheesville, have oversubscribed their quotas. The anxiety of these towns to win the flag was so great that in every case the subscriptions were considerably in excess of the quotas.

The honor flag plan has done more to stimulate interest and enthusiasm in communities of all sizes throughout this entire district than any factor in any of the three Liberty Loan campaigns.

LAWRENCE GETS HONOR FLAG.

First Official Raising in This District Takes Place There.

LAWRENCE, L. I., April 13.—Liberty Loan honor flags, the first to be raised officially in the Second Federal Reserve Bank District, were hoisted here today for Lawrence, Hewlett, Cedarhurst, Woodmere, and Inwood, composing the Lawrence district. The district's quota of $229,000 was oversubscribed to the extent of $780,000 in the first few hours of the loan campaign.

Lewis B. Franklin, who came from Washington as the special representative of Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, and J. H. Burton of Cedarhurst, originator of the honor flag idea, were the principal speakers at the flag raising ceremonies. Mr. Franklin congratulated the district on its showing, and said that Mr. Burton's idea had won millions of dollars to the Third Liberty Loan from every part of the United States.

"Secretary McAdoo extends his felicitations to the people of this district," Mr. Franklin said, "not only for having a resident who is the cause of a more intensive drive, but because you are the first in the United States to receive official recognition."

A flag with three stars was raised yesterday at Far Rockaway, the first in New York City. Far Rockaway, with a quota of $339,152, had subscribed $1,050,550 twenty-four hours after the opening of the campaign, and now has subscriptions in excess of $1,350,000, it was announced.

McADOO HITS PARTISANS.

Expresses His Contempt for Those Who Play Politics Now.

NEW ORLEANS, La., April 13.—Secretary McAdoo, in an address here tonight, ending his Southern tour in behalf of the Third Liberty Loan, scored shirkers and seditionists and the practice of partisan politics when it in any way obstructs the Administration in the prosecution of the war.

Mr. McAdoo declared that in the present situation "there cannot be any talk of peace, except the peace of justice, rammed down the throats of the military autocrats of Europe with the superlative steel of American bayonets."

"The vital issues confronting the nation," said Mr. McAdoo, "are of such character that no man with the red blood of freedom in his veins can fail to be aroused and stimulated by a determined purpose to serve to the utmost of his ability in this great time. If there be any other kind in America, our soil is no place for them. We cannot temporize with shirkers or seditionists. We cannot tolerate spies or traitors. Every man must square himself with an absolute Americanism. In this critical situation we cannot think of or play cheap partisan politics, which is practiced too much, I am sorry to say, in America, and which even a great war does not wholly silence. That is the kind of politics we cannot for one moment permit to raise its head in this perilous time. I have infinite contempt for those who would take advantage of the situation in which our country finds itself today to advance any personal interest or ambition—public or private."

Liberty Ball Reaches Auburn, N. Y.

AUBURN, N. Y., April 13.—The Liberty Ball, which is being rolled from Buffalo to New York to advertise the Liberty Loan, reached the city limits of Auburn this afternoon and was taken over by Cayuga County Boy Scouts, who will roll it to Onondaga County. The ball will reach Syracuse Monday. The Liberty Coach will spend the night and tomorrow in Auburn.

MUST USE MONEY FOR WAR.

McAdoo Withdraws Requests for Appropriations for Public Buildings.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The unprecedented war demands on the nation's financial resources caused Secretary McAdoo to withdraw from Congress today his requests for appropriations to continue work on new post offices and other public buildings in several thousand cities and towns. Items in the bill include $100,000 for the Post Office at Honolulu.

It was explained at the Treasury that withdrawal of the appropriations will not interfere with building operations now in progress. In many cases, including that at Honolulu, the appropriations were withdrawn because there were sufficient funds available to carry the work forward until the next fiscal year.

DRIVE ALIENS FROM SOUND.

Government Cleaning Out Islands and Shacks Along Shore.

It became known today that the Department of Justice is proceeding against several German aliens who are living on islands and in shacks close to the northern shore of Long Island Sound. The police have been ordered to evict them. United States Marshal McCarthy has sent a letter to Chief of Police William H. Ballis of Rye in which he is directed to look after all German or Austrian alien enemies who are living near the Sound.

It is provided in the regulations that an enemy alien cannot "go within 100 yards of the waterfront." If the regulations are followed strictly it will mean that during the coming Summer no enemy alien will be allowed to visit Oakland or Rye beaches or will be allowed to enter the town park facing Long Island Sound.

'SHIPS, THEN MORE SHIPS,' SAYS DANIELS

Secretary Tells National Democratic Club That Is the Nation's Great Need.

EVERY AVAILABLE ONE USED

Still They Are Not Enough to Carry the Soldiers of Uncle Sam Over to France.

Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, in speaking last night at the dinner given by the National Democratic Club at the Hotel Astor in celebration of the 175th birthday of Thomas Jefferson, told the 800 men and woman diners that the great need of the nation in order to win the war was the building of ships. He said tha United States was sending men to the battlefront as fast as ships could get them there, but although every available ship in America had been requisitioned still there were not enough.

"Our duty tonight," Secretary Daniels declared, "is to build ships and to build more ships. I wish to tell you that the ships are carrying men to France faster every week. We have requisioned every ship in America as wait as Dutch ships, and have obtained ships from Great Britain, so that we may send our men, who are eager to go. The measura of America's strength in France today is tha measure of ships."

The diners, men and women, jumped to their feet and cheered Secretary Daniels loudly when he declared that the United States Navy today was ready for any fight, and that it is sinking submarines an dreducing the loss of ships every week.

"If we had had tha vision three years ago," said Secretary Daniels with emphasis at one point, "if we had known what we ought ta have known, the bill that passed the House of Representatives authorizing the building of merchant ships would have become a law, and today we would have had ten men in France where we have one."

Women Join in Applause.

The Secretary af the Navy was repeatedly cheered at every mention of tha war, but the citmax came when he dramatically shouted:

"If our boys cannot win this war, then every man in America will be called."

The crowd shouted its approval and the women joined in the applause. At another point Secretary Daniels was interrupted by applause when he declared:

"The Declaration of Independence, the Gettysburg speech, and the speech made last week in Baltimore by Woodrow Wilson, who has come to be by common consent the spokesman of tha warld, stand as the three great utterances which will inspire men in every day of tha world's history. We stand tonight, ladies and gentlemen, and scan the papers anxiously because we know that in this hour scientific barbarians of Germany have mada their onslaught at this minute because they know that after America has got its force in in full the day of their reckoning has come.

"The English and the French will hold the line. We shall have dark hours. we shall pay heavy toll, but no more was it ever written in the book of fate that Napoleon should beatride the world than that the Kaiser should overthrow all that our blood has bought for hundreds of years. To that victory which will come, for behind the English and the French line is the navy of the world, and behind the combined navy of the Allies, which at this hour and for every hour for months has been praying that Germany would come out and give them a fair chance and a fair fight in a fair field—ladies and gentlemen behind the armed force, army and navy, is the spirit of this people, indomitable and invincible. We share with Jefferson hatred of war, but we share with Jefferson 'that war is morality when liberty is at stake.' The American people are mobilized for this war."

"Our young men have gone, and most of them are coming back; and they are coming back with a victory hard won. And when they come into this port and the millions of people gather on the streets to welcoma them, you will give them such a reception, and give them such honor as never before were given to victorious warriors. But when they march down your streets I hope no man and no woman and no child will dare to look at them who has not a Liberty bond or a savings stamp. These boys are giving all they are and all they have, and all they hope to be. And what are we giving? What sacrifice are we making?

"I tell you, we are called upon to make a supreme sacrifice to furnish these men with everything that will add to their efficiency and their comfort. And this Liberty Loan is not anything but a high privilege. When you have given all you can, and the boy who takes a thrift stamp, if that is the measure of his ability, is doing as much as the man who takes millions of dollars; and the abligation is upon all of us to make sacrifices, ta contributa until we feel it.

"I say it with reverence, the mission of America is to keep the light of the Declaration of Independence, of the Gettysburg speech, of Wilson's speech at Baltimore; that light must be hurned, and unless we da it we will be damned, because we will lose our souls with our liberty."

"The Time for Realization."

United States Senator Henry F. Hollis of New Hampshire said, in part:

"This is a time not for optimism or pessimism. It is the time for realization, and avery one of us, men, women, and children, should do and must do our bit, no matter how small it may be. Action, not words, is what will win this war for America, and I hope that every man and every woman in this room tonight will make sacrifices so that the Liberty Loan will be oversubarribed and so that tha world will know that America is unanimous in support of its Government and of its Commander and Chief, Woodrow Wilson."

Abram I. Elkus evoked applause when he declared that tha nation was solidly behind President Wilson. He told of scenes he had witnessed when he visited the battlefields of France, and added:

"Our war is not a war of aggression. We ask for no indemnity—no territory, but solely that liberty and justice shall be re-established, not only for the great nations of the world, but for all the small peoples, so that they may have a place to live in the sun, to which all nations, as well as all people, are entitled, so that in the end there may be such a peace that war will never come again."

John M. Riehle, President of the National Democratic Club, presided. It was the first time that the club had allowed women the privilege of sitting with the men in tha dining room, and they were seated at almost every table. Practically every prominent Democrat in the city and many in the State were present. Those at the speakers' table, besides Secretary Daniels, Senator Hollis, and Mr. Elkus, were Representative William C. Adamson, Controller Charles L. Craig, Democratic State Chairman Edwin S. Harris, Dock Commissioner Murray Hulbert, Mgr. M. J. Lavelle, District Attorney Swann, and Samuel Untermyer. A letter from President Wilson, who regretted he could not be present, was read by President Riehle.

MURPHY AND OWEN ABSENT.

Tammany Leader Was at French Lick, but Senator Shunned Banquet.

A feature of the dinner of the National Democratic Club at its Jefferson Day celebration at the Hotel Astor last night, was the absence of both Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, and Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma. Both had been invited, but the invitation sent to Senator Owen had been cancelled after Mr. Murphy had abruptly left the dinner of the Young Man's Democratic League at the Hotel McAlpin a couple of weeks ago, because Senator Owen had been invited. At that time Mr. Murphy said he would not attend the Jefferson Day dinner if Senator Owen was to be present.

Mr. Murphy is at French Lick Springs. Senator Owen was in the city to speak at the National Security League luncheon, and when asked if he intended to attend the dinner, said:

"No, I shall not attend. I withdrew my acceptance when I learned that Mr. Murphy and his friends threatened to withdraw. That is Tammany etiquette. Murphy is not a man, but a system, the remedy for which is the preferential short ballot."

Representative Thomas F. Smith, Secretary of Tammany Hall, made this reply:

"I am sorry that my unobtrusive friend from Oklahoma has selected this time to assail Mr. Murphy, when he is out of the city. As an old-time Tammany man I would remind him that he misrepresents and slanders an organization which for 129 years has sought to uphuild the City of New York. History shows that a Tammany Mayor has succeeded a Tammany Mayor, but that no reform Mayor has ever succeeded himself."

MR. WILSON BELIEVES IN PLENTY OF PLAY

Motors, Golfs, and Attends Theatre, Sometimes as Often as Four Times in a Week.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Like every other toiler, President Wilson must have recreation to counterbalance the drab hours of work, and, like every other toiler, the President has recreations, but hardly as much, and hardly under such favorable conditions. The familiar saying about all work and no play applies just as much to the executive head of the nation as to the boy in the street.

So the President golfs, motors, walks, and goes to the theatre. And occasionally in the Summer, when the pavements of the capital's streets fairy sizzle, the White House family drops down the Potomac for a day or so on the President's yacht.

Early in the morning, long before the bustling crowds of Government workers swarm up Pennsylvania Avenue, a big car glides through the White House gates and purrs swiftly across the city to a neighboring country club, where the President plays golf around an eighteen-hole course. It isn't golf alone; the President likes fresh air, and is as much of an advocate of the outdoor life as some of his immediate predecessors in the executive mansion. Also, early morning air, he believes, is conductive to real thought. How many weighty questions of State have been decided while the President carefully poised over an eight-foot putt no one knows.

Moreover, Mr. Wilson isn't a fair-weather golf player. Whether Washington is bathed in sunshine or swept with chilly rains, he plays his game. He has been known to tramp enthusiastically over the course with the flakes of a snowstorm swirling about his ears.

The President is tremendously fond of the theatre. To attend twice a week is customary, while to go as often as four times is not remarkable.

The newspaper men in Washington usually scent a "big story" when it is noticed that the President is giving a large proportion of his evenings to the theatre. It is speculative, of course, but generally it is felt that the President is working on some important State matter and goes to the theatre to rest his mind.

Apparently the President doesn't care particularly for dramas, especially of the heavy type. It has been observed that his tastes run chiefly to musical comedy or vaudeville. It is inferred that he cannot find proper mental relaxation in the situations of the drama. He strictly avoids the "problem" play.

At a vaudeville performance no air of austerity prevails about the Presidential box. One or more of the performers usually address a few remarks in his general direction that send the audience into gales of laughter. A broad smile then suffuses the President's face, and if the "crack" has been unusually good, the speaker is rewarded by unmuffled handclapping from the White House box.

TRIBUTE TO SUN'S SOLDIERS

Alumni Association Dinner Features Praise of Men in Service.

The Sun Alumni Association paid tribute to the members of the Sun's editorial staff who have entered the service of their country at its fourteenth annual dinner, held last night at the Salmagundi Club, 47 Fifth Avenue.

There were about sixty alumni present and they applauded as Kenneth Lord, the city editor of The Sun, read out the names of about thirty men who have left the paper to answer the call to the colors.

George Barry Mallon, President of the association, was toastmaster, and the principal speaker was Will Irwin, war correspondent and former member of The Sun staff, who has returned from a visit to the Italian front. Mr. Irwin spoke in praise of the Italian Army and told of the days of stress and excitement when the Teutons broke through the Italian lines. He told of the treachery that the boche practiced in winning the friendship of Italian soldiers stationed at one point of the front; how in one night trained shock troops took the places of the fraternizing soldiers and how on the next day the enemy broke through.

Dr. Talcott Williams spoke in eulogy of the late Franklin Matthews, a former member af The Sun force and later night city editor of The Times. Other speakers were Colin Armstrong, Adjt. Gen. Charles H. Sherrill, Chester S. Lord, and David A. Curtis.

Among those present were Edward W. Townsend, Garrett Servias, Edward G. Riggs, Lorin Palmer, O. K. Davis, Martin Egan, George McAdam, Edward H. Mott, and Judge William H. Olmsted.

VANDERBILT SEEKS MEN.

Colonel Here in Effort to Gat 100 Recruits for His Regiment.

Colonel Cornelius Vanderbilt, commander of the 102d Engineers Regiment, formerly the 23d Engineers in tha old National Guard, has rome here from Camp Humphreys, at Bellevoir, Va., to aid in the campaign to enlist 100 men to fill the gaps in his regiment caused by promotions and transfers to other units. After a conference with Captain Tristan, Tuppen, head of the recruiting mission for the 27th Division; Paul C. Brown, and Robert E. Livingston of the Committee on Military Engineering for the Engineers' Club, Colonel Vanderbilt said he thought the needed recruits would be enrolled within a few days.

Among the 100 men Colonel Vanderbilt wants ten locomotive engineers, and as many bridge builders and riggers as he can gat. It is not essential that every recruit hnve a knowledge of engineering, although Colonel Vanderbilt said that was to be desired.

Amundsen, Vexed, Cuts Meeting.

HARTFORD, Conn., April 13.—Captain Roald Amundsen, who was to address a Hartford audience at a war rally in the High School Hall this evening, at the invitation of tha State Council of Defense, found that rooms reserved for him at a hotel were not quite ready, but he was assured they would be in a few minutes. Amundsen became angry and left for New York.

SHOW WAR WEAPONS IN ALL THEIR TERROR

Implements of Death, Each with Its Work Completed, Here for Americans to Study.

SCARRED RELICS OF BATTLE

Five shell-battered French 75s, newly arrived in this country, were moved from the French Line piers yesterday to the armory at Lexington Avenue and Twenty-sixth Street of the old 69th Regiment, now the 165th, which has been in the last few days in the heaviest fighting seen by American troops in France.

They were placed in position facing the entrance to the armory. Behind the 75s was the most complete collection of the new terrors of war in the air and in the trenches and of defensive apparatus which has been shown in this country. The exhibition, called Liberty Land, was arranged by the Liberty Loan Committee, and the implements of war were lent for the purpose by the British, French, Italian, and American Governments. Everything in the array of killing and of defensive weapons has been in actual service except the American exhibit, which was sent from Governors Island and will be used to destroy Germans later.

The French exhibit illustrated, by rusty and shot-marked relics from old battlefields, every phase of trench warfare. Masses of rusted barbed wire which had failed to stop a French charge lay in one corner, with the ugly short spears, together in sets of three, which are driven into the ground a few inches to hold the barbed wire. Some of these captured German antanglements had been partly melted by the terrific electric currents which had been turned through them to make them a still deadlier barrier against the French.

Near these were a set of French one-man tanks and one-man forts, which are set in position in front of trenches and other spots commanding enemy positions, to enable sniners to work in comparative safety. One of these looks like the head of a giant steel-horned toad into which a sniper inserts his head and shoulders, observes the enemy from narrow slits and fires from a hole just large enough to admit the gun barrel and allow the marksman to see his sights. These are on wheels and can be maneuvred about by tha leg-power of the sniper.

Weapons of Caesar's Day.

More than a score of different types of bomb and hand grenade throwers, short-barreled and ugly things, which hug the ground, appeared near them. Some of these would have been handled familiarly by Julius Caesar, as they differ little in construction and principle from boulder-throwing slings which aided him in restoring order in the three parts of Gaul. Others were practically identical with the cross-bow of the Middle Ages. Some might have served for artillery in the Chinese wars before the discovery of gunpowder penetrated to Europe. A good cooper could have turned out some of these weapons. They were simply narrow, well made barrels, with wooden staves, bound with wire, strong enough to survive an explosion of sufficient power to propel a heavy bomb a few hundred feet. Others were among the most delicate products of modern factories, fine weapons of steel, which could throw a bomb or grenade with the accuracy of a rifle. Some of the older types were improvised because trench mortars and grenade-throwers were needed faster than up-to-date implements could be manufactured.

French helmets, trenching implements, wire-cutting tools, trench cookstoves and heaters, trench pumps for preventing the soldier from being completely submerged, and nearly every incidental appliance required to enable hugo bodies of men to live like moles were in this exhibition. Several shot-marked and stained German uniforms were shown among the trophies, and there were helmets which only a thick-shouldered, hull-necked man could bear upon his head for more than a few minutes. These weighed more than twenty pounds apiece. They are thick enough to stop shrapnel, rifle bullets, or fragments of shell, without more damage than to make the wearer's ears ring.

Gun with Its Nose Peeled.

One of the French 75s, hit on the nose by a shell, had the steel stripped back from its barrel till it looked like a half peeled banana. Two raptured German planes, one badly wrecked and one in good condition, a series of French shells of all sizes, a set of the French needle bayonets, a heap of captured German rifles, some reduced to slivers and hammered steel by bombardment, and a French soldier's complete outfit were other features of this exhibition.

The British exhibit was not so complete, but hardly less efficient in etching a vivid and comprehensive picture of fighting in France on the minds of spectators. Besides an array of trench weapons and other equipment, it showed costumes of some of the Indian contingents and a cavalryman's display. In this was a sheaf of slight, bamboo lances, with points like surgical knives, with which a star British cavalryman, traveling on his mount at full speed, can pluck a small wooden peg from the ground. One corner of the exhibit was made up of captured German war goods of all kinds.

One striking part of the British exhibition was a collection of photographs showing every side of the land and naval warfare, and picturing scenes in Bagdad, among the British troops in Italy, in France and in England, and on the ocean. A vast expanse of ocean blotted out by the smudge from a smoke screen of torpedo boat destroyers, large birds-eye views of battlefields taken with magnificent lenses which show the detail with remarkable sharpness, intimate scenes in the trenches and on the way to the trenches, picturing the British soldiers at their best, and a hundred other war scenes were shown in the British official pictures which set new standards in the art of photography. Some of the photographs were nearly as large as circus posters. One of the middle-sized pictures is a fine full-length portrait of Field Marshal Haig, about half natural size.

Fine Pictures from Italy.

The Italian pictures were beautifully colored scenes from the Italian front and behind it. The French war exhibit was accompanied by several scores of the best photographs obtainable for the purpose of giving the setting for the hard-used relics from the French front.

The American exhibit consisted of complete outfits for soldiers in all branches of the services with a good deal of equipment, including devices like the trench periscope. The spectator was reminded by pinecard of the price of each piece of equipment and that it was being bought with money paid for Liberty bonds.

Secretary Daniels, in a speech at tha Liberty Land Show last night, paid high praise to the hospitality shown by New York City to soldiers and sailors passing through the city.

"I do not feel it is necessary for me to make an appeal to the people of this great patriotic city," hr said, "and I wish now for the navy, and I can speak equally as well for that great Secretary of War who is now in France, to express appreciation for the hospitality and splendid welcomo and kindness which the American metropolis has shown to the sailors and soldiers gathered here as they go across. It has been a glory to your city, and has made every man who has gone away happier.

"Every American loves New York. Over there in one of the cantonments where the sailors gathered when they come in after the strenuous work on the destroyers they have a little theatre, and what do you supposa is the thing they like to see best? A moving picture of the sky line of little old New York."

LEGISLATURE ENDS SESSION FOR YEAR

DAY SEES ONE BIG FIGHT

SESSION NOT CONSTRUCTIVE

Political Manoeuvring a Feature—Whitman to Put Treasury Raids Up to Hylan.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 13.—With its calendars practically cleared and approximately a thousand bills fresh from the legislative hopper sent to the Governor for slaughter or approval, the Legislature adjourned sine die shortly after 7 o'clock this evening. No Legislature in the memory of any lawmaker now at the Capitol has achieved so little in the way of constructive legislation.

The hour fixed for final adjournment was noon, but protracted wrangling over bills and ends of legislation kept the lawmakers going, while the hands of the clocks in both chambers were stopped at five minutes of the noon hour. In the Senate the final day of the session was enlivened by two determined attempts to repeal the Donnelly anti-trust law, which were checked only by threats of a filibuster on the part of the Democratic members.

Senator Albert Ottinger of New York was the author of the repeal bill. It was defeated a few days ago through lack of the required constitutional majority of twenty-six votes. Senator Ottinger, however, moved to reconsider the vote by which it failed of passage, and under this motion the bill, already passed by the Assembly, came up for action again shortly after the Senate convened today.

"The defeat of this bill," said Minority Leader Robert Wagner in debate, "is one of the few creditable things this Senate has accomplished. I understand that since we laid this bill low there has been considerable—what shall I say?—electioneering, and that the Senator who is sponsor for the bill has won over some votes."

This prediction proved true, twenty-four Senators voting for the bill. This, however, still left a shortage of two votes, although the accommodating Senate clerk delayed the rollcall so as to give the advocates of the measure time for missionary work among their colleagues in the Senate Chamber.

Bobs Up Once Again.

It was the general opinion that the bill had been done for, but when the session was drawing to a close Senator Ottinger found a way to bring up the companion bill, for which Assemblyman Ellenbogen of New York was sponsor, and which was identical with the Senator's own measure. By that time five Republican Senators had been excused for the day, leaving their votes to be cast by Senate Leader Elon R. Brown, who favored the measure.

For some time the chamber was in an uproar with shouts of dissent from Democratic Senators. After a hurried conference with other minority members, Senator Wagner moved a call of the house and had the absentees entered on the record, clearly establishing the absence of five Republican Senators whose votes Senator Brown had been authorized to cast. Senator Wagner then read into the record the constitutional provision requiring that on rollcalls members must answer in person, except when by unanimous consent another rule should have been established to meet some grave emergency.

Senator Wagner charged that the attempt to revive the Repeal bill was due to discreditable vote-trading. He declared that he would never consent to the votes of the absentees being cast by proxy and would keep the Legislature in session another day rather than permit the Ottinger-Ellenbogen bill to become a law.

Senator Cotillo, Tammany, launched a bitter attack on the bill and the methods of its sponsors.

"I warn you that I will resort to every technicality and will keep the Senate here for days, if necessary, to beat this bill," cried Senator Cotillo. "I have seen Senators buttonholed and pleaded with to give their votes for a measure which their conscientious conviction tells them they should not vote for. This is the only law standing between the poor and the profiteer in this state. From what is going on here, I dare say the gentleman on the second floor, (the Governor,) with another election coming on, may have some interest in what is being attempted."

After Senator Cotillo had held forth for some time, Senator Ottinger interrupted, saying that, if the bill could not be considered on its merits and if its fate was to depend upon the test of physical endurance involved in a filibuster, he would not subject the Senate to the inconvenience and discomfort of such an ordeal. He withdrew the bill.

Treasury Raids Up to Hylan.

As the session neared its close, word reached some lawmakers who enjoy Governor Whitman's confidence that the Governor had found a way of "putting up" to Mayor Hylan the salary increases, new pension bills, and bills creating new jobs which had emerged from the legislative mill in a constant stream during the last few days and which brought the Mayor to the Capitol recently to file a protest. While many of these measures were drafted so that they would not come within the veto power of the Mayor, the Governor is preparing to send them all to Mayor Hylan, and stands ready to be governed by any unofficial action the Mayor may take regarding them. It was predicted by some of the New York City lawmakers that Mayor Hylan might not relish such a responsibility.

Both Senate and Assembly passed without dissent the New York City Relief bill to enable the Hylan administration to get around the "pay-as-you-go" law and realize by bond sales of $35,000,000 a year for the period of the war and a year afterward, the money to be spent for purposes which under the present law must be met with funds realized from current revenues.

Leader Brown put through the Senate a concurrent resolution providing for an appropriation of $5,000 to defray the expenses of the special Senate committee created to investigate municipal ownership, with a view to recommending a fixed policy for the State to the next Legislature. The resolution was sent to the Assembly for concurrence, but came back amended so as to provide for participation by that body in the investigation. Mr. Brown tried in vain to put the resolution through in its amended form, and then angrily directed that it be returned to the House. Speaker Sweet, on further consideration, decided to let the resolution go through in the Assembly in the form in which it emerged from the Senate, for then, after all, the committee will have the funds necessary for its work.

Both houses, under an emergency message from Governor Whitman, passed the Sage bill authorizing the Canal Board to lease to private corporations, for power purposes, surplus waters of the barge canal, and Senator Thompson's bill providing for the creation of a State hydro-electric commission to recommend a State policy for the development of the latent water powers in the streams of the State.

Lobbyists for public service corporations camped on the legislative doorstep practically until the final gavel fell in an attempt to have passed the 6-cent fare bill and the Wicks bill, under the terms of which it would be possible to nullify the 80-cent gas law in New York City. Senator Thompson of Niagara, Chairman of the Public Service Committee, refused to report the Wicks bill.

Direct Tax Bill Passed.

The Senate and Assembly both passed the Machold bill providing for a direct tax of approximately $13,000,000, of which the share to come from New York City taxpayers will be about $9,000,000. The direct tax is being levied to meet the amortization charges of the various sinking funds of the State. Senator Wagner protested against the bill on the ground that there was sufficient money in the sinking funds already to meet all charges on maturity.

The Rules Committee dragged out from the mass of waiting legislation Senator Courtland Nicoll's bill to prevent the employment of women under 21 years on messenger service after 10 o'clock at night. The bill was fought bitterly all through the legislative procedure by the messenger services and telegraph companies, and was thought to be dead. An attempt to kill it on the floor of the House failed, and it was passed 94 to 10.

Members of the lower house refused to take kindly to Senator Knight's bill to tax charitable bequests to colleges. The bill was killed.

The Sunday baseball bill failed to find favor with the Rules Committee, and it was not reported out. It died.

Senator George Thompson of Westchester, while the speeches of felicitation and the presentation of gifts to leaders, incidental to the closing ceremonies, were in progress, announced in a valedictory speech that he would not seek re-election. It is understood Senator Slater will be a candidate for Surrogate of Westchester County in the Fall.

No Outstanding Achievement.

Even leaders of the Republican majority admit that the Legislature passed into history without any outstanding achievement to its credit. In his annual message, Governor Whitman told the legislators that a minimum of legislation would be expected from them. The lawmakers spent three months and a half living up to this injunction. There was less constructive legislation than at any previous session for a score of years.

The Legislature failed to ratify the Federal prohibition amendment, despite tremendous "dry" pressure, to which Governor Whitman added his personal influence. The result probably will be to make prohibition a dominant issue in the elections next Fall.

The Legislature also failed to enact a bill framed by a special committee to restore the convention as the medium for nominating candidates for State and judiciary offices, despite demands from prominent Republicans. The influence of Governor Whitman was exercised to the full against the proposal and the failure of the bill to make progress admittedly was a personal triumph for the Governor, which will add to his prestige for a third-term nomination.

In addition, the Legislature failed to enact legislation demanded by the New York City administration and a majority of the up-State municipalities to permit the cities of the State to acquire and operate public utilities. A special Senate committee was created to investigate the subject and make recommendations to the next Legislature.

As usual, in a year in which a Gubernatorial election is to be held, the spokesmen for the parties represented in the lawmaking body spent much time laying the foundation for their Fall campaigns by piling up campaign material. The controversies over prohibition, direct primaries, and municipal ownership all had political aspects.

Governor Whitman was anxious to corral the "dry" vote. His political foes within his own party chiefly were responsible for the introduction of the bill to repeal the direct primaries law. The Democrats, inspired by the success of their Mayoralty campaign in New York City, which was run on a municipal ownership issue, devoted much time to an effort to create a similar issue for the State campaign. They are viewing with equanimity the defeat of the Municipal Ownership bill, for its enactment would have deprived them of a cherished issue to fit a fight in which it is said William Randolph Hearst may be the standard bearer.

The Socialists had a larger representation in the Legislature this year than at any previous session. They had ten members in the Assembly. This third party did not contribute anything constructive to the session. They introduced many bills, but only one of these became law, and that was a measure not at all socialistic.

Repeal of Township School Act.

In the category of negative accomplishments is the repeal of the Township School act as a step toward bringing the rural school system of New York State up to the level of rural education in the New England States. Governor Whitman was led to urge its repeal by protests from farmers whose school taxes had been increased under the new plan, although the educational authorities of the State maintained that it had not had sufficient trial. The Republican lawmakers from up-State, who controlled the Legislature, gave ready compliance to the Governor's recommendation and failed to enact a compromise measure drafted by Senate Leader Brown, in conjunction with experts from the Educational Department, to take its place. Instead, a legislative committee was created to investigate the rural school system and recommend appropriate legislation to next year's Legislature.

A bill to repeal the Donnelly anti-trust law was passed by the Assembly, but failed in the Senate after a vigorous fight against the bill led by the Democrats. Bills exempting labor organizations and organizations of farmers banded together for co-operative marketing from the conspiracy clause in the Donnelly act were passed by both houses and sent to the Governor.

Requests from the New York City administration did not fall on friendly ears in the case of the present Legislature. The so-called Hylan program, consisting of bills proposed as economy measures, but in many instances pronounced of questionable wisdom, were sidetracked early in the session, while repeated raids on the city treasury in the form of measures increasing salaries, creating new jobs, and providing for pension systems devoid of actuarial safeguards, found ready assent in the Legislature, in spite of protests from Assistant Corporation Counsel Edward J. McGoldrick, who represents the city at the Capitol. Democrats and Republicans from New York City districts vied with one another in piling up demands on the city treasury.

About the only relief measure asked for by the City Administration which found favor with the lawmakers provides for a plan by which the cost of permanent improvements, which under the present law is paid for out of current revenues, may be defrayed by issuing corporate stock and serial bonds, not in excess of $15,000,000 annually, to run for terms of from ten to fifty years. This measure was urged as necessary to meet conditions growing out of the war, and was passed in both branches today after the Legislature had refused to repeal the "pay-as-you-go" law enacted upon recommendation of the late Mitchel administration.

Hylan Bills That Failed.

Of bills on the Hylan program the measures ousting the Parole Board, the Court House Board, the Water Supply Commission, and the Bronx Parkway Commission failed, as did the Foley Home Rule bill, giving the city power to reorganize and consolidate departments, Charter provisions to the contrary notwithstanding. The Boylan bill, limiting the assessment on realty to 2 per cent. and establishing a personal property tax not to exceed $1.50 for each $1,000, was passed by the Senate but not by the Assembly. Assemblyman Youker's bill abolishing the Sinking Fund Commission and vesting its functions and powers in the Board of Estimate received favorable consideration.

Senator Ottinger's bill, embodying a plan for the adjustment through a commission of the controversy between New York City and the New York Central Railroad in connection with the proposed west side terminal improvement, failed. The Legislature, however, approved a $100,000 appropriation for the benefit of the New York and New Jersey Harbor Development Commission in formulating a plan for the development of the facilities of the joint port.

Much time was occupied in the consideration of war measures. Senator Wagner's bill designating ex-Governor Benjamin B. Odell as State Ice Controller and authorizing him to contract in behalf of the State for a surplus harvest of natural ice and to control and restrict the manufacture of the artificial product, with a view to saving ammonia for the explosives industry, was enacted early in the session. The Ice Controller was also equipped with rate fixing powers. Another Wagner bill, also enacted, gave the State Food Control Commission power to fix the margin of profit in retail sales of necessaries of life.

Bills for the relief of contractors on public work unleashed by war conditions were passed. There were three such measures sent to the Governor. One, introduced by Senator Lockwood of Kings, gives the Board of Estimate and the Public Service Commission discretionary power to release contractors on rapid transit construction in New York City from their contract obligations when conditions justify. Senator Walters of Syracuse introduced a similar bill applying to all the municipalities of the State.

New York followed the lead of New Jersey and enacted as a war measure an anti-loafing bill, under the terms of which the idle rich and the idle poor alike under proclamation by the Governor may be drafted for useful employment. The Industrial Commission will administer the law. Senator Theodore Douglas Robinson of Herkimer introduced the bill.

War Measures Enacted.

In deference to demands from the War Department the Legislature passed two bills, introduced by Senator Thompson of Niagara, permitting the consolidation of the Hydraulic Power Company and the Niagara Power Company to insure more power for the munitions plants established at Niagara Falls and in its vicinity. The Federal Government has commandeered the power output of the two companies.

Another important war measure enacted was Senator Sage's bill making it a felony punishable by from five to twenty-five years' imprisonment to interfere with the production, manufacture, storage or transportation of war materials.

The Legislature has taken care of the newly-enfranchised women by passing bills making provisions for their registration for the special local option elections in cities and for their enrollment for the Fall primaries. Under the latter bill the women will have an opportunity to enroll with the political parties on Saturday, May 25.

In an effort to facilitate the taking of the soldier vote the date for the Fall primary was moved forward to the first Tuesday in September. The form of ballot for the soldiers is changed so that they may vote a straight party ticket with one mark if they choose.

Under Senator Walters's bill embodying a number of general amendments to the election law, New York City is to try the experiment of double election boards. This year, for the first time, there will be two boards in each election district, one to receive and the other to count the vote. This bill also provides for a complete recasting of election districts throughout the State, to care for the woman vote.

If approved by the Governor, one of the few really constructive laws of the session will be Assemblyman Youker's bill popularizing the Torrens law in this State. It simplifies procedure, lowers cost, and makes it easy, instead of difficult, for real estate owners to register titles with county officials, instead of relying upon private title companies.

The Legislature failed to act favorably on a bill legalizing moving-picture exhibitions on Sunday. This bill was introduced in anticipation of a decision by the Court of Appeals in a test case, which the large producers feared might be unfavorable to the industry. The Appellate Division in New York City has ruled that such shows are legal. The Appellate Division in the Third Department has declared them illegal.

Bills to restore legalized boxing, supervised by a State Athletic Commission, and giving sanction to professional baseball with an admission fee charged, also failed to pass.

Excoriate Republican Majority.

Minority Leader Robert F. Wagner of the Senate and Charles D. Donohue, leader of the Democratic minority in the Assembly, joined in a statement reviewing the session, in which they denounced the defeat of home rule, municipal ownership, and humanitarian legislation, and took the lawmakers of the majority to task for not reducing the State budget.

"Two things above all else this Legislature ought to have done," the statement read. "It ought to have reduced the State budget, and it ought to have amended the Corrupt Practices act so as to prevent forever a repetition of the scandalous conspiracy by organized wealth to debauch the city election in New York with a $2,000,000 corruption fund. It did neither. It passed no law to prevent the buying of elections. It increased the appalling total of the budget even beyond last year's high-water mark.

"At this crisis in our nation's history, when the private citizen is practicing economy on his loaf of bread, Republican legislators squander millions on political patronage. The State payroll today costs as much as the whole government cost under Governor Odell fifteen years ago. The total appropriation this year will be $81,000,000 or more. The Democratic Party under Governor Glynn confined State expenses to less than $48,000,000. This shameful increase of over $33,000,000 in four years exceeds the entire cost of government ($29,000,000) under Governor Hughes only ten years ago. They have today, without a direct tax, Treasury resources of $70,000,000, $22,000,000 more than it cost to operate the State under Governor Glynn, and yet they exact from the taxpayers an utterly unnecessary direct State tax of close to $15,000,000."

"Although the session of 1918 does not present any great legislative achievement, due to the fact that the successful carrying on of the war is the great question occupying the minds of the people, the regular business of the State has been efficiently handled and carried to completion in a reasonably short session," said Majority Leader Simon L. Adler of the Assembly.

DEMOCRATS DISCUSS WOMEN

State Committee Men and Women Consider Their Part in Campaign.

The part that women are to play in the State campaign this Fall was discussed yesterday at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Democratic State Committee held at the National Democratic Club, 617 Fifth Avenue. Under the new order of things there are twenty-one women on the committee, just as there are men, and it was the first time they had got together since their appointment by State Chairman Edwin S. Harris. The Tammany members of the Executive Committee kept away for the most part and let the women do the talking. There were seventeen women members present and only nine male members, some of these coming from up-State.

After several women told just why they were Democrats and what they were going to do to try to get every woman voter to cast her ballot for the Democratic candidates this Fall, a Plan and Scope Committee was organized to bring about a full enrollment of women in the Democratic Party. W. W. Farley of Binghamton was made Chairman of the committee, and the other members are Miss Ethel Stebbins of New York City, Miss Sara McPike of Yonkers, Miss Beulah Bailey of Troy, Mrs. Blanche W. Welzmiller of New York City, and State Senator Robert F. Wagner. A Committee on Ways and Means of Obtaining Publicity was formed, the women members being Mrs. William R. Hearst, Mrs. R. A. Lau, Mrs. M. S. Jenney of Syracuse, Miss Laura M. Mulcaire, and Mrs. Charles B. Smith of Buffalo. The men named on the committee were William F. Delaney of Brooklyn and William H. Manning of Saratoga.

Among the women present yesterday were Mrs. John B. Thompson, Miss Stebbins, Mrs. Lau, Mrs. Harry Hastings, Miss May E. Roarity, Miss May Patterson, Mrs. Welzmiller, Mrs. Anna Sinclair, and Miss Mulcaire from New York City, Mrs. Fred E. Kennedy of Binghamton, Miss McPike of Yonkers, Mrs. Smith of Buffalo, Mrs. Frances H. Lamon of Watertown, Miss Bailey of Troy, Mrs. Jenney of Syracuse, and Mary J. McCauley of Lockport. Chairman Harris, it was said after the meeting, will reorganize the Executive Committee, as several members were elected before the Mayoralty campaign last Fall to represent personal interests that are no longer of importance.

SUBMARINE CHASER HERO MAY BE PROMOTED

SOUTH ORANGE, N. J., April 13.—With his face badly disfigured, part of one ear gone, and two new eyelids in place of his own, Henry W. Robinson, victim of an accident on a submarine chaser, will leave here in a few days for Annapolis to be examined for promotion to Ensign in recognition for bravery at the time he received his burns. Robinson, who is 21 years old and married, is a graduate of Stevens Institute, and he lives at 316 Academy Street. After his graduation he took a course at the Naval School at Columbia University and on May 2 of last year enlisted in the Navy. He was assigned to scout patrol duty and has since seen service on three submarine chasers.

He was soon promoted to Chief Petty Officer and was placed in charge of the engine room of Chaser 121. On Jan. 1 a hurry order was received for all submarine chasers to put to sea. Robinson's craft was well under way when the main engine began to backfire and some gasoline in the bilge was ignited. The flames spread to Robinson's clothing and to a can of gasoline. With a fire extinguisher he put out the blaze in the bilge and with the burning can under his arm climbed the ladder from the engine room to the deck. He hurled the burning can into the sea and then jumped overboard. He was picked up twenty minutes later by the tug Pinnsr's Point in a semi-conscious condition, and was then taken to Portsmouth, Va.

WOULD REVOKE LICENSES.

Swann Tells of Men with Criminal Records Who Run Saloons.

The controversy between the District Attorney and counsel for the Manhattan office of the State Excise Department, concerning the legal grounds for revoking the licenses of restaurants, cafés, and saloons managed or owned by persons previously convicted of a felony, or where criminals are known to be among the regular frequenters, resulted in Judge Swann citing this law to the excise officials yesterday. In a letter addressed to Thomas F. Gleason, chief counsel to the Excise Commissioner, at 1,451 Broadway, Judge Swann wrote:

"Section 30 F, page 103, of the State excise law, reads: 'One who knowingly permits any person who has been convicted of a felony to sell or serve any liquor upon the premises is guilty of a misdemeanor, and Section 36, Subdivision 2 provides, 'Shall forfeit the liquor tax certificate held by him.'"

Referring to one of the places raided a week ago, the prosecutor continued: "Marshall Sofield of 153 West Forty-eighth Street knowingly permitted Herman Schultz, alias Billy Schultz, to sell and serve liquor upon the said premises after being convicted of carrying concealed weapons, which is a felony. I inclose criminal record of Schultz supplied by the Police Department.

"From the original record of Marshall Sofield, already furnished you, it will be seen that he himself has a criminal record, having served a term for petty larceny and having been convicted twice of disorderly conduct, and I can present evidence to you that he habitually permits the premises, 153 West Forty-eighth Street, to be the resort and rendezvous of disorderly persons, such as dope fiends, pickpockets, shoplifters, gunmen, and disorderly women. This office will aid you to the extent of its resources to establish these facts."

McADOO APPOINTS SPENCE.

Orders Creation of Coastwise Steamship Advisory Committee.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—To assist in the management of the coastwise steamship companies, taksn over today by the Railroad Administration, Director General McAdoo ordered the creation of a Coastwise Steamship Advisory Committee, with Lewis J. Spence of New York, Traffic Director for the Southern Pacific, as Chairman.

Mr. Spence will appoint other members of the committee from officers of the following companies: Clyde, Mallory, Merchants and Miners', Ocean, Old Dominion, Southern Pacific, and Southern. The committee will co-operate with the marine section of the Railroad Administration's division of transportation, which will have charge of the supervision of the lines.

Action will be taken soon to change the routing and sailing schedules of many coastwise vessels. A number will be assigned to carrying cotton from South Atlantic and Gulf ports to New England, and others to the coal trade between Hampton Roads and New England.

Several big steel steamers now in the coastwise trade probably will be transferred soon from the Railroad Administration to the Shipping Board for transatlantic service. Shipping Board officials expect to replace the steamers with smaller wooden vessels. It is probable the coastwise service will be expanded greatly when the output of wooden ships begins, as many of those vessels will be put into trade between American ports, to relieve the burden on the railroads.

Director General McAdoo today specified in a formal order that all officers and employes of the Clyde, Mallory, Merchants and Miners', and Southern Steamship Lines, which passed under Government control today, should continue their present duties and should not resign without adequate notice.

JEWS BACK IN JERUSALEM.

Turks Release Americans Who Moved Before British Took City.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—About 100 American families who had moved from Jerusalem just prior to the British occupation of that city have returned, presumably having been released by the Turks, according to semi-official cables received here today.

The War Trade Board has placed a limit of $175,000 a month on the amount of credits which may be sent from this country to the relief of Jews in Syria, under Turkish control. The amount which may be sent to the territory under British occupation is unlimited, except in so far as the British military authorities themselves may limit.

The State Department had been advised through official Swedish channels that reports of the mistreatment of the Jews in Syria by the Turkish authorities have been very inaccurate. Some Jews, it was stated, against whom political charges have been preferred, have been removed to Damascus, but are still at liberty.

Hurt by Skidding Motor Truck.

Seven persons were injured, two of them seriously, when a motor truck skidded and crashed into a portable vegetable stand in Park Avenue, between 114th and 115th Streets, last night. Mrs. Mary Brudner of 82 East 115th Street is in the Harlem Hospital in a serious condition with a fractured leg and probable internal injuries, and Louis Rossnbaum, aged 4, of 19 East 113th Street, sustained a fracture of the skull. Max Raskin of 108 East 110th Street was held by the police on a charge of felonious assault and operating an automobile without a license. He said that he lost control of the truck when it skidded. The vehicle demolished two street stands and covered the seven injured persons with the debris.

PRODUCES NO PROOF.

Anti-Vivisectionists Deal in Generalities in Reply to Reavis.

The National Anti-Vivisection Federation sent a reply yesterday to Congressman Reavis, who recently denounced the federation for printing this statement:

"The thousands of deaths deliberately inflicted upon our soldiers and sailors has passed the scandal line—it has become a tragedy."

Jessica Henderson, the Recording Secretary of the federation, who wrote the pamphlet containing the original charge, produced no proof in her reply to Congressman Reavis to support the charge that thousands of deaths had been deliberately inflicted on American soldiers and sailors. Not a single allegation is made in the reply with reference to health conditions in the American Army. The reply contains broad generalizations to the effect that vaccination is an evil based on the alleged opposition of some British soldiers to vaccination and to an alleged statement by a French physician.

The pamphlet itself, which was attacked by Congressman Reavis, made various sensational assertions, in addition to the charges that thousands of deaths had been deliberately inflicted on soldiers and sailors, but no authorities are quoted. The foundations for the statements are "A man reported," "According to a recent statement of a Lieutenant from Massachusetts," and "There were reported."

The pamphlet and the reply of the federation to Congressman Reavis have been turned over to the office of the Federal District Attorney.

URGES TRADE ACCEPTANCES

L. E. Pierson Regrets Slow Spread of Accurate Information.

Addressing the Chamber of Commerce of the United States at its recent meeting in Chicago, Lewis E. Pierson, Chairman of the Board of the Irving National Bank, and Chairman of the American Trade Acceptance Council, said that the chief difficulty in the way of wider acceptance of trade acceptances was the slow spread of accurate information regarding the new business method among those most directly affected by it.

"Great numbers of American business men still are uninformed concerning the details of the trade acceptance method and therefore unconvinced as to its merit," said Mr. Pierson. "Others honestly believe that conditions within their particular business or industry are such as to make this method poorly suited to their purpose. Still others, those of an ultra-conservative type, while conceding merit to this method, are not disposed to disturb an existing business condition which in the past has appeared to them sufficient for their purposes. This would about cover the list of those who are still honestly unconvinced as to the practical merit of the trade acceptance method."

NOW SEES GRAFT IN HEALTH BUREAU

REFUSES TO GIVE DETAILS

Declares He Will Continue to Bar the Public from All Hearings.

BIG MEETING OF PROTEST

Representatives of Philanthropies and of Labor Resent Star Chamber Methods.

Mayor Hylan's investigation into the legality of seven of the nine bureaus of the Department of Health took on a new aspect yesterday, when James E. MacBride, Chairman of the Civil Service Commission, who, with Commissioner of Accounts David Hirschfield, has been conducting the investigation for the Mayor, issued a statement, in which he announced that the investigation, which up to last Friday he insisted on calling a "private inquiry," was really an investigation of graft in the Health Department.

"The names of two directors of bureaus in the Health Department are given in these affidavits," said Mr. MacBride, referring to the affidavits, which he asserted were in his possession. He did not give the names, nor did he make public the affidavits. When seen last night at the dinner of the National Democratic Club at the Hotel Astor, Mr. MacBride declined to make public any further information as to the identity of the directors.

"Will you make public the names of the two bureau heads you refer to in your statement?" he was asked.

"No, Sir," was the reply.

"Will you make public the affidavits in your possession?"

"No, Sir; I will make public nothing more than I gave out in my statement."

"In view of the fact that this investigation is now really a graft investigation, will the hearing on Monday afternoon be open to the public?"

"It will not."

"Why not?"

"Because it won't."

May Hold Other Meetings.

Interest in the investigation continued to be manifested yesterday by medical societies and labor organizations, and in the afternoon a conference of the civic and social agencies of New York was held at the Bar Association. The question of beginning a taxpayers' suit to force the authorities to open the investigation to the public was discussed, but this plan was put aside for the present, and a Committee of Twenty-one was elected, headed by Dr. Lee K. Frankel of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, to call on the Mayor and on the Civil Service Commission to endeavor to have the investigation held in public.

Suggestions were made of holding other and larger meetings, and J. H. Larson, Secretary of the New York Milk Committee, earnestly declared: "We may have to fill Madison Square Garden in a big public meeting before this matter is over, and I am sure we can do it, too."

Ernest Bohm, Secretary of the Central Federated Union, sent a letter of protest to Mayor Hylan, asking that labor men be heard before action is taken.

The complete statement of Chairman MacBride of the Civil Service Commission follows:

"Do the people who are allowing themselves to be used in the propaganda which has been organized to fight the investigation of the Health Department realize that they are being used to block an investigation of charges of graft in that department?

"It had not been the intention of this commission to refer to certain affidavits and statements in its possession until they could become a matter of record, and until we could hear the defense as well as the complaint. The activities of these propagandists, however, have caused me to make this statement at this time.

"The names of two directors of bureaus in the Health Department are given in these affidavits in possession of the Civil Service Commission. And, let me add, according to my information, they are the directors most active in the propaganda work, which has for its purpose the stifling of this inquiry. They are the ones who are whispering to other directors that those who are eligible to retire should do so at once, and then advancing the suggestion that if the inquiry is not stopped the department will be crippled by the loss of its best men. They are the ones who are inspiring newspaper stories that this inquiry will result in an injury to the health of little children. How preposterous. However, it is not beyond the pale of possibility that it will bring to some persons that injury of health which comes from confinement in our penal institutions. For if these charges are verified they will be forwarded at once to the District Attorney.

Talks of Graft Trail.

"No honest employe of the Health Department has anything to fear. No citizen need have the slightest fear that any proper activity of the Health Department will be interfered with in any way. When this investigation is over we will go on looking after our children and our sick just as we have in the past.

"On behalf of the commission I hold out this assurance to all the people of New York who may in some way have been disturbed by this inspired propaganda, and especially to the honest, conscientious employes of the Health Department. I offer no consolation, however, to the dollar-hungry fake reformers who have used or permitted their organizations to be used to cover up a graft trail.

"I am sure that no honest director of any bureau of the Health Department and no citizen deserving of the respect of his fellows can object to such an inquiry as we are carrying on."

At the meeting at the Bar Association Dr. Ira S. Wile, who had been appointed to see Health Commissioner Amster, reported that he had met the Commissioner, who expressed himself as glad to have the co-operation of the committee in his work. Dr. Wile, however, said he was unable to get from Dr. Amster the two previous decisions by former Corporation Counsels as to the legality of the establishment of the seven Health Department bureaus not specifically named in the Charter. Dr. Wile reported that the Health Commissioner advised him that these records had been turned over to the Civil Service Commission. No report was made by the committee appointed to see the Civil Service Commission regarding the matter. It was the sense of the conference that the Charter does not limit the formation of additional bureaus in the Health Department and reference in this connection was made to Section 1,181 of the City Charter, published yesterday in THE TIMES, which says that the Board of Health may establish such additional offices "as it shall deem necessary for the proper discharge of the duties and powers of the Health Department."

Members of the conference who expressed themselves on the subject said they were certain that the opinions handed down by Corporation Counsel on two occasions were favorable to the establishment of additional bureaus else they would not have been created.

On the opening of the meeting yesterday Lawson Purdy suggested that reporters be excluded until the report of the Executive Committee had been made. After the inconsistency in excluding reporters was pointed out when the purpose of the meeting was to attempt to have made public the Health Department investigation, the newspapermen were allowed to enter.

Opposes Legal Action.

Suggestion was then made that a taxpayer's suit be instituted to compel the production of all papers and records in connection with the hearings, and one speaker declared that the abolishing of the bureaus of the Health Department was a sure means of wrecking the health of the community, particularly in the grave hour of war. Other speakers advised more moderate methods.

"There is no need to discuss the necessity of maintaining the standards of the Health Department," said Dr. Frankel. "The fact that there are so many people at this meeting means that there will be a protest all along the line if any attempt is made to lower the efficient standards of the Health Department. That I am fully in accord with that idea goes without saying. We have the statement of the Mayor that there are violations of the Civil Service law. If that is correct it is for the Corporation Counsel to decide. We asked a committee to interview the Civil Service Commission on this matter, and we have no satisfactory report. The committee that interviewed the Health Commissioner reports that he is apparently cordial.

"I doubt that legal action ought to be taken now. Public sentiment in the final analysis will determine the issue. However, I am not desirous of imputing evil motives to any one. I can assume that the Mayor is mistaken—that he believes in economy. But it seems to me that with the splendid organization here we might accomplish more if we went directly to the Mayor. I see no reason why a committee should not be appointed which shall present to the Mayor the views of this body, giving the Health Department should be maintained, and to request him to have the Civil Service Commission hold open meetings.

"Until we have the refusal of the Chief Magistrate of the city we shall have no drastic action."

Dr. Frankel then made a motion that a committee be elected to go to Mayor Hylan, offer him its co-operation in maintaining the present standards of the Health Department, and request that the present investigation be held in public, that the proceedings hitherto be made available, and that the decisions of previous Corporation Counsel in the matter also be made accessible. The motion was carried unanimously.

Committee of Twenty-one.

The purpose and scope of the investigation as given out by Chairman MacBride about a week ago was read by Leonard Wallstein, temporary Chairman, and the meeting adjourned subject to the call of Dr. Frankel, after the following committee had been named:

Federated Union's Protest.

The letter to the Mayor from the Central Federated Union follows:

CENTRAL FEDERATED UNION OF GREATER NEW YORK AND VICINITY.
(Amalgamated Central Labor Union and Central Labor Federation.)
Affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.
Labor Temple,
243 East Eighty-fourth Street,
New York, April 13, 1918.

Hon. John F. Hylan, Mayor.
City Hall, N. Y. C.

Dear Sir: Much surprise was expressed at the meeting of the Central Federated Union of Greater New York and Vicinity, held on Friday, April 12, 1918, at the proposed investigation of the Board of Health. Surprise because it appeared that the investigation was aimed at the Hygiene Department, which, under the supervision of Dr. Louis I. Harris and others, has performed very creditable services for labor.

It might not be amiss to state that, owing to the activities of Dr. Harris and others for some years past, their research among the employment places of the workers, and the consequent discovery of the need of hygiene in the factories and shops, the labor movement became interested and organized the Labor Sanitation Conference, which, indorsed by this body, gave its entire co-operation to Dr. Harris and his colleagues in the endeavor to preserve the health of the worker and thereby that of the community. The plans of Dr. Harris and others proved very successful and went a great way in cleaning up unsanitary factories and workshops.

The organized labor movement, ready at all times to recognize and applaud such services, petitioned for and succeeded in receiving an appropriation of $65,000 for the purpose of enabling necessary improvement in this work.

Thus, then, after years of struggle, the result being satisfactory, an investigation is to be made primarily, as we understand, aimed at the Hygiene Department and Dr. Harris and his co-workers, presumably for their labor activity.

We ask, is it just or fair?

By direction of the Central Federated Union of Greater New York and Vicinity, I hereby enter a vigorous protest against any interference with the Hygiene Department, and the action of Dr. Harris and others in the interest of labor, and request that our representative be given an opportunity to be heard in the case.

Yours respectfully,
ERNEST BOHM, Secretary.

A protest against the abolishment of the bureaus of the Health Department as they now exist was made at the last meeting of the Eastern Medical Society, held at the Hotel Brevoort. The resolution which was adopted said:

Whereas, The Eastern Medical Society, comprising in its membership approximately 500 practicing physicians, who are vitally concerned in the protection of the health of the community; and

Whereas, The public press has given notice that the Mayor of the City of New York contemplates the elimination of the bureaus subsidiary to the Department of Health, and

Whereas, Especially those which are engaged more particularly in the prevention of disease have been regarded as the standard for Health Departments throughout this and other countries; be it therefore

Resolved, That the Eastern Medical Society join with the Public Health Committee of the Academy of Medicine in recording a most energetic protest against the elimination of any or all of the bureaus without distinction, and that a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the Mayor of New York, and that all possible publicity be secured in the daily press to make known the attitude of the Eastern Medical Society.

Splendid Work of Bureaus.

"I cannot speak too forcefully on this matter. Each of these bureaus has done splendid work in the last few years caring for the health of the public. Each bureau is modern and conducted along the latest scientific lines as recognized by the leaders of the medical profession. Particularly good work has been done by the Child Welfare Bureau in preventing diseases in children and in lowering the child mortality rate in this city.

"To do away with these bureaus would be a very grave error and its results might be far reaching. What reason there can be for the change I cannot imagine. But the press and the public should unite in making a strong protest to the Mayor against any such action on his part."

It was pointed out yesterday that if it is the object of the Mayor to place his own men in the seven bureaus whose legality has been questioned, it would be difficult to do so because the heads of the bureaus are under the civil service law. Reorganization of the bureaus as they stand would still necessitate keeping in the directorates the men who are at present at the head of the bureaus. But it was indicated that likely the move on the part of those interested in ousting the present incumbents would be to have the bureaus abolished. Then they might be "reorganized," by giving them other names and by adding and subtracting functions from one bureau to another, so that they would bear only a certain semblance to the original bureaus. Then heads acceptable to the Administration might be appointed in the exempt class with little possibility of their being removed.

The bureaus of the Health Department and their heads at present are:

The Bureau of Child Hygiene, Dr. S. Josephine Baker; the Bureau of Public Health Education, Dr. Charles Bolduan; the Bureau of Preventable Diseases, Dr. Louis Harris; the Bureau of General Investigation, Dr. Frank Monaghan; the Bureau of Records, Dr. William H. Guilfoy; the Bureau of Sanitation, Dr. B. F. Knause; the Bureau of Laboratories, Dr. William H. Park; the Bureau of Food and Drugs, Lucius P. Brown, and the Bureau of Hospitals, Dr. Robert J. Wilson.

All the bureau heads with the exception of Dr. Park and Dr. Knause receive $5,000 each annually, and the two mentioned receive $6,000 a year.

NEW CONSERVATION LIST.

War Trade Board Revives Articles of Restricted Exportation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The revised export conservation list prepared by the War Trade Board, which enumerates the commodities over the shipment of which the strictest supervision is considered imperative, was issued today, effective next Monday. No individual licenses may be issued by customs officials for articles on the list, except for a very few of the commodities for shipment to Canada and Newfoundland.

The list covers most of the important commodities essential to war, including coal, foodstuffs, cattle fodder, materials necessary for the construction of shipping, arms and ammunition. The power exerted places the War Trade Board in a position to further direct the use to which shipping shall be put, and thus meet the situation created by the heavy withdrawal of tonnage from various trades to meet the demand for transports and supply ships.

Individual export licenses will not be required on shipments to Canada and Newfoundland of the following commodities: Aluminium and all articles containing aluminium; brass, and all articles containing brass, excepting brass pipes, brass plates, brass sheets, and brass tubes; copper, and all articles containing copper, excepting copper pipes, copper plates, copper sheets, copper tubes, copper sulphate, and chemical compounds of copper; nickel, and all articles containing nickel, excepting chemical compounds thereof and nickel alloy; articles manufactured of rubber.

Commerce reports, as published by the Department of Commerce, and the Official Bulletin, as circulated by the Committee on Public Information, are today publishing this revised export conservation list in full. Copies of the Official Bulletin are on file in every Post Office and are thus available for the use of the general public.

100 IN WRECK ON LEHIGH.

Two Cars Roll Over Bank and Sixteen Are Slightly Hurt.

TYRONE, Penn., April 13.—Two cars of the Lehigh Valley express on the Pennsylvania Railroad were derailed at Dix Station, near here, today, slightly injuring sixteen persons. Except one woman, about 50 years old, who was taken to the Altoona Hospital, all were able to resume their journey.

The train was bound from Pittsburgh to Scranton. A broken rail, according to railroad officials, caused the accident. The cars which left the track, a parlor car and a passenger coach, carried nearly 100 passengers. Both of the cars rolled over an embankment.

W. H. STEAD ENDS HIS LIFE.

CHICAGO, April 13.—W. H. Stead, former Attorney General of Illinois and present Director of Trade and Commerce in the administration of Governor Lowden, committed suicide at a hotel here today.

Mr. Stead's home was at Ottawa. He was one of the most prominent Republican leaders in the State. He registered last Thursday at the hotel and the body was discovered shortly after noon today. There was a bullet hole in the head, and life apparently had been extinct for about four hours. From the position of the body, it was believed that Mr. Stead stood in front of a mirror when he fired.

Mr. Stead left a letter to a brother in which he said he felt depressed and had not slept for three nights. He spoke of going to his Summer home near Alexandria, Minn., and then again of "taking a long vacation."

"If anything should happen to me, I have made disposition of my property," he wrote. His estate was said to be comparatively small.

Mr. Stead's wife died eighteen months ago, and friends said he had been greatly depressed since. He was born in La Salle County in 1858, and was educated at the Normal College a Ladoga, Ind., and Depauw University. He served two terms as Attorney General.

PRUSSIAN HOPE OF REFORM.

Blocking of Election Bill Believed to be Only Temporary.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, April 13.—The rejection of ballot reform on its second reading in the Prussian Lower House Committee has been received with comparative calmness by the German public and the press. The Government will use all the means in its power to effect the reform.

Politicians of all parties, except the Conservatives, are enraged against the National Liberal members of the committee, whose vote made possible the defeat of the bill. Some politicians believe, however, that in the plenary meeting of the lower house ballot reform will get enough votes to win. New elections before Whitsuntide, for which some politicians clamor, are not likely, because it would interfere with the conduct of the war.

WIFE BACKS PROF. THOMAS.

Calls Him "Foolish Boy" and Takes Mrs. Granger in Charge.

CHICAGO, April 13.—Professor William Isaac Thomas of the department of sociology of the University of Chicago arrested with Mrs. Pearl Granger, the young wife of an army Lieutenant now serving in France, in a downtown hotel Thursday, spent ten minutes in jail late this afternoon.

Thomas, who is called "Daddy" by Mrs. Granger, was arrested on a warrant charging disorderly conduct and made returnable in the Morals Court Monday. He obtained his release on a $400 bond, and immediately returned to his home, where Mrs. Thomas, who was a member of the Ford Peace Mission, had given refuge to Mrs. Granger.

Professor Thomas, who is 55 years old, was called by his wife a "foolish boy who had committed an unutterably stupid act, not wrong, but indiscreet." Mrs. Granger, who is 24 years old and has a baby boy living now with his grandparents in Fort Smith, Ark., was referred to by Mrs. Thomas as an "immature child, dazzled by the distinguished professor."

Following the arrest of the professor and Mrs. Granger, Mrs. Thomas motored downtown to visit Mrs. Granger and her sister, Miss Delia Raines, a motion picture actress, 18 years old, and took both the sisters home with her to talk over the whole situation.

"When my husband comes home I will abide in happiness with him and him alone," declared Mrs. Granger when asked what the further consequences of the affair might be. "But there will be shooting when he comes back. And if he learns it now, he will immediately desert to come."

Professor Thomas declared that he wished to deny that the affair resulted from a malicious attack, and declared that he was willing to stand the consequences.

"I am going to stick by Mrs. Granger through thick and thin," he said. "She is a nervous wreck as a result of the questionings she has gone through."

There was a hastily assembled meeting of the University of Chicago Faculty, but it was understood that no action would be taken next week.

MAR SOLDIER'S ROMANCE.

Private John Reamer of the 104th Field Artillery at Camp Wadsworth was arrested yesterday by officers of the Army Intelligence Service on the technical charge of desertion for overstaying a leave. While he was at Police Headquarters waiting for officers to take him to Governors Island a young woman who said she was Mrs. Reamer asked permission to bid her husband goodbye. She wept when she told the officers that she thought she was the cause of the charge against Reamer.

She said that she was married to Reamer on March 10, a few days after he had arrived here on his furlough, and that they had lived at 447 West Fifty-seventh Street. She said that she had been a telephone girl in the Hotel Endicott, and that her maiden name was Helen Young. Reamer said he was the son of Abraham Reamer, President of Reamer, Turner & Co., coffee brokers, of 114 Water Street, and that his home was in Montclair, N. J.

SHIP PLATE OUTPUT UP TO EXPECTATIONS

Faulty Distribution Is Responsible for Erroneous Impression of Situation.

SUPPLIES RUSHED TO YARDS

Mills Putting Aside All Other Deliveries to Furnish Plants with Assorted Sizes.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, April 13.—Production of steel ingots in March was at the rate of about 42,000,000 gross tons a year, or more than 30 per cent. above the average rate during January and February. Production now is at a slightly greater rate, and may be estimated at fully 47,000,000 tons a year.

The restriction in steel output is due to shortage of scrap and pig iron, and the shortage of scrap is attributable to the fact that there is very little construction work, which often involves the tearing down of old structures. The railroads also are wrecking very little rolling stock. The shortage of pig iron is due to insufficient movement of beehive coke, there being now substantially full production of by-product coke.

Shipments from the Connellsville region showed a slight decrease last week, but they are heavier this week, and may prove to be the heaviest for any week thus far this year. Difficulties as to coke probably will be ended in the near future, as there is practically full production by the by-product ovens, and shipments by the beehive ovens are increasing.

There is a further measure of safety for the future in that by-product ovens in the Central West with a capacity of about 100,000 tons a week will be completed within the next few months. The most important of the new plants is the Carnegie works at Clairton, containing 660 ovens, to produce more than 640,000 tons of coke weekly. It will be the second largest by-product coking plant in the world, but eventually will be doubled, which will make it the largest in the world. It will receive coal entirely by water and will distribute coke to furnaces over the Carnegie Steel Company's inter-plant road as well as by water, so that its operation will be entirely independent of the railroads.

The United States Steel Corporation's unfilled obligations decreased by 232,049 tons in March, against a decrease of 199,600 tons in February and an increase of 96,135 tons in January. The decrease was equal to 18 per cent. of the capacity for the month, and estimating shipments at 90 per cent. of capacity, the bookings appear to have represented about 72 per cent. of capacity, against 50 per cent. in February and 67 per cent. in January. The March bookings may be estimated at fully two-thirds war steel and not over one-third purely commercial steel. Very light bookings of commercial steel cannot fail to be expected, in view of the fact that practically all the mills have very large tonnages of such material already on books, much of it entered many months ago.

Steel Plate Situation.

A somewhat erroneous impression as to the situation in plates for shipbuilding is likely to be created by the Washington dispatches referring to shortages. The situation is thoroughly understood by the Washington authorities. There is no shortage in plate production, but the plates that have been shipped in the last few months have not been distributed uniformly among the shipyards, nor have they in all cases been properly assorted as to sizes. The condition, which is being righted, appears to be due in part to incorrect distribution of specifications, and in part to the mills not realizing that the shipyards desire and require large stocks of plates to draw from.

The plate mills are now engaged in the definite operation of stocking all shipyards with a supply for thirty to sixty days in all sizes used. This involves heavier shipments temporarily, and when the program has been carried out there will be more plates available for other purposes. Possibly the orders for 100,000 freight cars, which were expected to be placed two weeks ago, are being held back in this connection.

Traffic conditions are improving steadily, and almost every week there is an increase in the production of both pig iron and steel. For six weeks past the shipments of finished steel have exceeded the production, the mills having worked off large parts of the stocks they accumulated earlier in the year. The stocks of tinplate at the mills were particularly uncomfortable, as box cars had been especially scarce, and in a number of cases mills had to close because their warehouses were full. Through the efforts of the Food Administration car supplies to tinplate mills have been greatly increased.

Officials of the McKeesport Tinplate Company announced yesterday the purchase of seven acres of Youghiogheny River frontage adjacent to its plant, at McKeesport, on which there are some stores and dwelling houses. The ground soon will be broken for new mills to add to the already large plant of forty-four mills, covering twenty acres, adding 25 per cent. to capacity. The tinplate mills of this district do not seem to be near the point of opening their books for second-half business, and this may not be done until early in May, as the $7.75 price is to continue until June 30, the second-half price will be the same. A conservative estimate of production for the year is 36,000,000 boxes, or over 1,000,000 gross tons. The matter of steel supply is growing less fearful, and there is no prospect of any shortage of tinplate.

Heavy Shipments of Plates.

Heavy shipments of fabricated plates and shapes are being made to the shipyards of the Merchant Shipbuilding Company at Bristol, Penn., and the Chester Shipbuilding Company at Chester, Penn., by the American Bridge Company for Government contracts. A few shipments have been made to Newburg, N. Y., where cargo boats of the Emergency Fleet Corporation are being built. Other Government contracts for warehouses, power plants, cantonments, and hangars are still pending, shutting out any thought of commercial business, which is neither being offered or asked for. The Pittsburgh mills are shipping special sizes of plates to the Dominion Bridge Company, which also is working on Government contracts, at the suggestion of the War Industries Board. The American Bridge Company is turning out two steel barges a week for the Carnegie Steel Company, to be used in fuel transportation, and is giving some attention to the completion of an order for 140 such barges and six steamers, all for the purpose of supplying the war mills with coal and coke.

With scarcely any offerings of billets and sheet bars there is pressure in the market to buy, but the situation in soft steel is as tight as it has been at any time, there being no loosening up in unfinished steel, as there has been in most descriptions of finished steel. The demand for billets comes not only from regular customers, but also from a number of interests whose normal operations does not involve the use of outside steel, as they produce enough for their own consumption. One large interest has been in the billet market for several weeks, with only partial success, having picked up a small tonnage here and there. It has even bought ingots where billets was the most preferable. It appears that ingots are available only when a mill has had an accumulation through being able to operate its steel-making departments while finishing operations were curtailed through lack of storage space and inability to ship. With normal shipping facilities there is scarcely a mill so proportioned that it would accumulate ingots.

Coke Supplies for Mills.

Fresh coke supplies having arrived at Valley furnace early this week, several of them resumed in the middle of the week. Coke is making the trip from oven to furnace in four days, and as the by-product ovens are well supplied with coal it insures a full operation of the blast furnaces associated with the ovens, and often helps out other furnaces, as the by-product operations shew considerable surplus of what is needed.

A recurrence of the coke troubles of the last Winter is not likely, as with new construction there are more by-product ovens, and the Government is counted upon to see that they are well supplied with coal on account of the by-products. For the first three days of the present week a record in car supply has been made in the Connellsville region, which has not been reached during the last two years or longer. The railroads serving the region, with the exception of the Baltimore & Ohio, which distributed 90 per cent., made a 100 per cent. distribution. Such an allotment, occurring on three successive days, is so exceptional, when the history of the many preceding weeks having 30 to 70 per cent. distribution is considered, that it is regarded as little short of phenomenal.

There is a strong undercurrent of feeling that the situation has permanently changed for the better, and that gradually the car supply will assume, and retain, such proportions as will make possible the shipment of 400,000 tons of coke weekly. In such event the coke needs of consumers of all classes will be fully provided. The rail shipments for the week ending last Saturday aggregated 8,535 cars, carrying 707,888 tons. The river shipments of 14,500 tons increased Pittsburgh consignments to 130,755 tons, Western shipments to 140,761 tons, and the aggregate to 322,398 tons.

Notwithstanding the fact that supplies of pig iron are at least 60 per cent. greater than those of three months ago, the pressure to obtain pig iron is greater than ever. Even the increased shipments have made no visible impression upon the situation or reduced the volume of demand. Yet the iron industry is not working full by any means. A few foundries are operating at a greater rate than ever, but many have reduced their scope of operation.

To sum up the situation, it seems that the steel works are suffering from the supply of scrap being much less than normal. While a great deal of this commodity is produced in the mill itself where it is consumed, yet a great deal is from the outside, partly industrial scrap produced in plants that fabricate or otherwise work it into steel into commercial forms, and partly old material. While many arguments have been advanced for the amelioration of this condition in scrap, the problem hasn't been solved, and it is believed diligent search was made it would be found that much of it is accumulated somewhere and kept from being moved. The dealer who can produce any large quantities of scrap at this time will be the popular man of the market.

LESS COTTON CONSUMED.

Falling Off in Exports and Imports Also Reported for March.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Cotton consumed during March amounted to 571,202 running bales, exclusive of linters, the Census Bureau today announced. For the eight-month period it was 4,400,233 bales. Last year March consumption was 603,919 bales, and for the eight-month period, 4,508,916 bales.

Cotton spindles active numbered 33,789,656, compared with 33,270,348 a year ago.

Imports for March was 13,565 bales, compared with 47,679 a year ago. Exports were 311,681 bales, compared with 355,295 a year ago, and for the eight months, 3,473,313 bales, compared with 4,247,128 a year ago.

AUTOISTS INVITE DANGER.

109 Long Island Crossing Gates Smashed by Reckless Drivers.

In announcing yesterday the beginning of the Summer campaign to protect automobilists from grade crossing accidents, Ralph Peters, President of the Long Island Railroad, said that notwithstanding all precautions taken by the railroad company 109 gates, which had been lowered because of approaching trains, had been smashed by reckless automobile drivers in efforts to "beat trains" over the crossing. As a step toward preventing grade crossing accidents every engineer, motorman, crossing watchman, and track worker has received a special notice calling attention to the constant need for watchfulness.

"Notwithstanding all the precautions we have taken to protect automobilists against accidents at grade crossings, it is indeed appalling to discover that there still lurks on the highways of Long Island a certain class of drivers to whom warning signs, danger signals, and lowered crossing gates have no meaning whatever," said Mr. Peters. "These persons may be classified as thoughtless and inexperienced drivers.

"Although every grade crossing along our lines is protected either by sign post, automatic bell, watchman or crossing gate, yet hardly a day passes during which some careless, speed-mad or irresponsible automobile driver doesn't jeopardize his own life, those riding with him, and at the same time endangers the lives of thousands of troops on trains, the regular traveling public, and trainmen. Surely, with hundreds of trains to run daily we could not be expected to halt trains so that automobiles might pass safely over grade crossings. Yet there are scores of drivers who would either have us make stops at crossings, or else stop running trains altogether. At least their continued apparent disregard of the common sense rules for safety creates that impression.

"According to our records, no less than 109 gates, which had been lowered because of approaching trains, were broken off last year by automobile drivers on Long Island. Fortunately, only seven lives were lost as the result of collisions between automobiles and trains on grade crossings."

Columbia Closes Ordnance School.

Seventy-five men who have been taking the six weeks' course of training offered at the United States Ordnance School at Columbia University yesterday completed their training and will leave today for posts of duty in various parts of the East, where they will get practical work before being commissioned. Columbia was one of the ten colleges at which the Government established an ordnance course, but because accommodations cannot be furnished, the school is to be discontinued and men who had enrolled for the second six weeks at Columbia will be sent to Dartmouth and the University of Pennsylvania.

Metric System in Uruguay.

The use of metric units in all trade transactions in Uruguay has been made obligatory by measures recently adopted by the Government, at the instance of the National Subsistence Board, according to Consul Sidney Smith, who is stationed in Lower California, Mexico. It is forbidden to sell articles by piece or package if they may be sold by weight, and in such cases the metric system must be adhered to. In the case of merchandise which is sold in sealed wrappings, cans, boxes, packages, bottles, or any sort of containers, the net contents or weight must be plainly indicated on the wrapper. In books of account and in invoices the weight or measure of goods sold must be recorded.

Camphor for This Country.

The camphor in Formosa which has been apportioned for export to this country amounts to 198,416 pounds each month for April, May, and June, according to Consul M. D. Kirjassoff, who is stationed in Taiwan. Apportionment for every three months thereafter will be made according to production.

OIL SHAREHOLDERS TO QUIZ PROMOTER

CALL MEETING FOR APRIL 23

Different Interests Seek Proxies So as to be Prepared for Whatever May Develop.

The call issued by the Metropolitan Petroleum Corporation for a special meeting of stockholders on April 23 has as its basis as unusual a purpose probably as any gathering of shareowners ever held in this city. For the reason that the meeting was scheduled unexpectedly to numerous owners of the shares, without a conventional motive, there has been considerable mystification among them, with the several calls for proxies by different interests who want to be prepared for whatever may develop.

The meeting will have as its primary object, according to Henry M. Earle, attorney for Richmond Levering, the promoter of the company, the quizzing of Mr. Levering about the present status of the organization, the extent of its oil land holdings in Mexico, and the reasons for the transfer of some of its proved property to the Island Oil and Transport Company. Mr. Levering was instrumental in having the meeting called, said Mr. Earle, in order to reply to criticisms directed at him.

The company's stock has declined from around $25 to 75 cents a share. There are shareowners who paid stiff prices for their stock and have been much in the dark about the factors surrounding the decline. They will have opportunity for demanding information, and the indications supplied by the activity of the different interests last week were that they would have plenty of questions for Mr. Levering to answer.

Has Unusual History.

The history of the Metropolitan Petroleum Corporation has been one of the most unusual of the many promotions made during the war period. The harsh things said about it, with particular reference to the course of the stock, would fill several volumes. Inquiries made recently among some substantial shareholders show that they have not solved all the ins and outs of the corporation's affairs, even after close study of available data. The dominant facts which have come to light are the formation of the company with $12,000,000 capital stock in November, 1915; the transfer of several Levering Mexican land options to it, the sale later of certain of these options to the Island Oil and Transport Company, the development of a huge well on land obtained by the Island from the Metropolitan, and two lawsuits, ono of which was dropped and the other settled.

The centre of bitterness over the Metropolitan's physical status lies in the oil well, which is on the Island Oil holdings in the Tampico district. Some of the stockholders have asserted that when this land was sold to the Island for 240,000 shares of the latter's stock and a cash payment Mr. Levering and his associates were instrumental in removing from the corporation its most valuable asset. The Levering group have maintained that when the transfer was made the well did not exist, and there was equal chance of discovering oil in property controlled by the Metropolitan. This is ono of the problems which promises some lively discussion at the special meeting.

Attorney Tells of Corporation.

The story of the Metropolitan and Island Oil Companies was related yesterday by an attorney who had investigated the situation for two prominent banking houses in this way: In 1915 Mr. Levering had options on several parcels of Mexican oil land. He needed funds to develop them and formed the Metropolitan. This company was transferred the options to acquire leases on 360,000 acres of land and a pipe line concession, which was held by the Metropolitan Petroleum Corporation of Delaware, also a Levering Company. All the stocks of the companies were owned by the Levering interests, and a $1,000,000 6 per cent. debenture bond issue of the Delaware corporation was also unstood to be held by this group.

When money was needed to develop the oil lands and construct the pipeline to seaboard, the attorney said, a Stock Exchange house was asked to market part of the stock. The result of this operation supplied a distinct chapter of stock market history during the war boom in 1915 and 1916. Extravagant stories of the Metropolitan's possibilities were heard aplenty on the Curb and vicinity. Speculators took hold in vigorous fashion and the sharp rise followed, which has since been regretted by those who bought toward the top.

The needed money did not come into the company's treasury in sufficient quantity to keep the drills going. The engineers were putting down two wells, both in the neighborhood of rich property held by the Mexican Petroleum Corporation, and, in order to keep up operations as long as possible, the Levering interests put up considerable of their own funds, but the end came finally to this temporary financing. Metropolitan stock began to tumble and kept right on to $1 a share.

Trouble Began in 1916.

About this time in 1916, the Island Oil and Transport Company, which had previously been formed by Mr. Levering to exploit oil lands in Cuba, took over the options referred to, and the trouble began. A stockholder named Prentiss obtained an injunction in the Virginia courts, which sewed the Island Oil Company up so tight that its engineers hardly dared walk on the lands where the wells were being put down. After a preparation of some weeks, the parties to the suit, which was aimed to annul the transfer to the Island Oil Company, appeared in the Virginia court and, after a hearing, the case was discontinued, as the plaintiff dropped out. The stockholders later, the attorney said, held a meeting and ratified the sale, a proceeding which did not appease the minority holders, as the majority of the shares were owned and voted by the Levering group.

Mr. Levering, in the meantime, had sought to interest the banking house of Hayden, Stone & Co. in the property taken by the Island Oil and Transport Company from the Metropolitan. Charles Hayden went into the situation thoroughly, and the Levering interests had reason to believe that the arrangement would go through, when a second suit was brought, and the deal hung fire. This action was settled without much fuss, the stockholders interested, according to report, receiving from Mr. Levering the long idle $20 a share for their Metropolitan stock, a price approximating what they had paid for it. Hayden, Stone & Co. asked for more time to go over the proposition, but they did not follow it up, and later A. B. Leach & Co. became interested and assisted in putting $1,000,000 three-year 7 per cent. gold notes of the Island Oil and Transport Company.

Great Oil Well Brought In.

Sometime in the course of these various negotiations the great well was brought in. Early reports had it that the daily production was 80,000 barrels. A curious commentary on the uncertainties of oil land development came out through the drilling of the two wells. The one which the Levering group were certain would be the more valuable, according to the attorney, brought in a fine quality of salt water, and was worthless as an oil well. The other proved to be one of the biggest producers in Mexico.

The note issue marketed by A. B. Leach & Co. was for the direct purpose of financing the building of the pipe line and further development of the field. It is stated that the well is now producing 72,000 barrels of oil daily, much of which cannot be marketed readily because of the absence of proper pipe line facilities.

A Stockholders Protective Committee was formed last year, consisting of Charles C. Matchett of the Stock Exchange firm of Markoe, Morgan & Co., Dwight E. Potter, and John M. Cates of Wilson, Cates & Co., in behalf of Metropolitan Petroleum shareowners. On April 4 the committee notified the stockowners that one-third of the outstanding sharcs had been deposited with the Mercantile Trust and Deposit Company, and since then, it is said, the amount has been increased.

The committee, according to their letters, will endeavor to adjust the relative interests of the debenture bondholders and stockholders in such a manner that a substantial portion of the 240,000 shares of Island Oil stock in the Metropolitan treasury may be rendered available for the advantage of the Metropolitan stockholders. The committee also purposes, if possible, "to ascertain and disclose other property for the benefit of the stockholders." Another committee, headed by Howard C. Wilson, is also soliciting proxies for the meeting.

$13,471,000 IN FARM LOANS.

5,358 Individual Advances Made by Federal Board in March.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—About one-fifth of the farm loan business of the United States now is being done by the Federal farm loan system. This was indicated today by the Federal Board's report that in March 5,358 loans, amounting to $13,471,000, were closed by the twelve banks, making the average size of a loan $2,500. The total Federal loans now outstanding are $78,000,000. It is estimated that the monthly farm loan business, Federal and private, is $66,000,000, and the total outstanding farm mortgage loans about $4,000,000,000.

Business of the St. Paul Federal Bank in March fell to $615,000, loaned to 291 persons because of the temporary suspension of operations in North Dakota, where a conflict developed between State and Federal loan laws. Other banks reported the number of loans and totals closed as follows:

Springfield, Mass., 160, $428,000; Baltimore, 167, $379,000; Columbia, S. C., 273, $539,000; Louisville, 888, $905,000; New Orleans, 808, $1,074,000; St. Louis, 497, $1,024,000; Omaha, 639, $3,248,000; Wichita, 391, $950,000; Houston, 693, $1,711,000; Berkeley, 215, $673,000; Spokane, 836, $1,923,000.

COTTON DECLINES $10 A BALE IN FORTNIGHT

Old Ring Has Not Seen Such a Sensational Two Weeks Since Daniel J. Sully's Day.

PRICE REACHED 36 CENTS

New High Records Reached on Four Successive Days Before Slump Began Week Before Last.

At the close of business on the New York Cotton Exchange on Thursday, March 28, the last session during the month of March, cotton on the spot was quoted in New York at 34.25 cents a pound. At the close of business on Saturday, April 13, it was quoted at 32.20 cents a pound. May futures, at the close of the first date, were priced at 32.74 cents, and July futures at 32.12 cents; on the second date they had fallen to 30.65 cents and 30.38 cents, respectively.

A drop of $10.25 a bale in spot cotton prices, and of $10.45 n bale in the price of the leading future contract, within the short space of two weeks, would have been a sensational enough event in the American cotton trade at any time. But this is wartime, and that only forms half the sensation—a sensation which has all the active members of the New York Cotton Exchange figuratively, at least, gasping for breath and wondering if they are still "all there," while they all agree that even in the times of Dan Sully no such sensational two weeks has ever been experienced nround the old ring—the most sensational climax of the most sensational season the cotton market can remember.

The war cry of Daniel J. Sully and his companion crowd of bull operators ten years or more ago was "twenty-cent cotton." But a wock ago there was a group of men on the floor of the Cotton Exchange who were openly and loudly predicting forty-cent cotton, adducing arguments to prove it, and staking their money on it besides. And they came within four cents of their goal. At the close of business Thursday, April 4, which saw the crest of the wave, cotton on the spot in New York was worth 36 cents, and at the high level of prices that day, reached practically at the close, with the market looking as strong as at any time all season, May futures sold at 34.50 and July at 33.80.

Advance Starts April 1.

The sensational two weeks began promptly on Monday, April 1. There had been no market on Good Friday or the following Saturday, and previously business had been rather dull and listless, without any particular indications of startling developments in either direction. Most of the talk around the ring, indeed, had been war news rather than trade news. But that Monday morning it suddenly appeared as though everybody wanted cotton, and ne one had any to sell. Prices went up and up, all day long, and at the close were from $2.50 to $4 a bale higher than on Thursday—an advance that would have been big at any time.

Even more was to come, however. Tuesday morning the advance continued, rapidly carrying prices, for the second successive day, into new high ground for the history of the Cotton Exchange. The bulls momentarily overstepped themselves, however, and that afternoon there was a setback, so that the day showed practically no permanent gain. But Wednesday there was another rally—all the news was bullish, for government orders, no white cotton to be had, Liverpool buying for much grenter exports than had been expected—and prices pushed forward, to the third successive day of new high records, and advances for the day of over $1 a bale.

Bull Movement Arrested.

Thursday was the biggest day, and also, as it turned out, the final day of the big bull movement, which had been going on, with no more than temporary setbacks, all through the remarknble season. The market never looked stronger. It seemed impossible to persuade anybody, whether he had cottun or not, to sell, and short coverers and trade buyers were bidding desperately nnd excitedly. At the close, with the fourth successive day which had seen the making of new high records for prices in the history of the Cotton Exchange, gains for the day had amounted to about $4 a bale, and in the four days' trading to nearly $10 a bale.

The turn came overnight, as suddenly as any market ever reversed itself. The immediate cause seemed to be the announcement of a meeting in Washington for spinners to confer with the War Industries Bonrd, which was believed to be possibly the precursor of Government price-fixing—an eventuality dreaded by speculators and bona-fide dealers alike, for very different reasons. But back of this was a long accumulation of substantial, commercial facts.

The price broke on that first day of the decline upward of $4 a bale, rallied in the short session on Saturday, and regained a little of the loss; and then, on Monday of the second week, broke again as heavily as a week earlier it had risen buoyantly. The whole tone and trend of the market had reversed itself, and where before there had seemed to be no sellers, now there were no buyers. Nobody wanted cotton at prices which didn't any longer seem reasonable, and cotton had to be offered down.

The big break, however, was concentrated in the last three days of the week. The market held up fairly well on Tuesday and Wednesday, but on Thursday, Friday, and yesterday prices fell with accelerated spoed, from $4 to $5 a bale on each day.

The following table gives a summnry of the advance and decline, sketched in the seven active months, and the spot market:

	March 28.	April 4.	April 13.
Spots	34.25	36.00	32.20
May	32.74	34.50	30.65
July	32.12	33.80	30.38
August	31.82	33.41	30.02
September	31.28	32.93	29.52
October	30.98	32.47	28.82
December	30.76	32.16	28.47
January	30.65	32.00	28.35

The figures of March 28 and April 13 are for the close of business on those days, and for April 4 represent the high mark of the movement.

BOSTON COPPER GOSSIP.

Labor Situation in the Lake Superior District Is Acute.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., April 13.—The annual report of the Massachusetts Consolidated Mining Company for the year ending Dec. 31 last is issued. The profits for the year were equivalent to $1.64 on the outstanding 100,000 shares, as against $4.80 in 1916 and $1.67 in 1915.

The company last year sold 3,984,616 pounds of copper at 26 cents a pound, which contrasts with 4,752,588 pounds sold in 1916. After the payment of dividends amounting to $291,951 there was a net deficit for the year of $127,900.

Tonnage at the Colorado mine of the Davis-Daly is at the highest point, 250 tons being hoisted daily, about 50 per cent. of a grade ranging from 11 to 14.5 per cent. copper, with as high as thirteen ounces of silver. The second-class ore carried 4 per cent. copper, with six ounces of silver.

The labor shortage situation in the Lake Superior camp is rapidly becoming more acute. It is felt that the companies will have to take some remedial measures immediately if they are to maintain production at anything like normal and keep up with their contracts for the delivery of refined metal. The situation has not been good for months, but the last two weeks have seen it become much worse.

ROADS' EARNINGS PICK UP.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Railroads in February recovered somewhat from the record deficit of earnings in January, but net income was only about one-quarter of that in February last year. Interstate Commerce Commission tabulations today for 117 of the 196 leading reads shewed operating income of $6,242,000, as compared with $24,095,000 for the same roads in February, 1917. Eastern reads had a deficit, however, of $4,863,000, as compared with positive earnings of $6,043,000 last year.

Revenues for the 117 roads were $166,034,000, and expenses $151,520,000, making net revenue $14,514,000. From this was deducted $8,244,000 ordinary taxes.

Western roads earned $4,020,000 net, as compared with $10,231,000 last year. Southern roads showed $7,090,000 net earnings, only slightly under the $7,820,000 of the same month last year.

In January American railroads lost more than $2,000,000.

New Tax Certificate Issue.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—New tax certificates, dated April 15, to be sold instead of the current issue dated March 15, have been announced by the Treasury. They are identical with other tax certificates, and are intended to eliminate so much accrued interest. About $1,300,000,000 of tax certificates, due June 25, have been sold.

GOODRICH TESTED TIRES

HAIL The Conquerors of the Road. Hail the tires that triumphed in the bitterest struggle ever staged between roads and tires, a conflict of 4,178,744 tire miles. Hail Goodrich Tested Tires.

Hear the story of a good fight well won. A year ago Goodrich, with limitless faith in its tires, challenged the roads of America to a test of strength, the teeth of the road against the strength and toughness of Goodrich tires. Enlarging Goodrich Test Car work, long waged around Akron, Ohio, Goodrich sent forth six Test Car Fleets to battle roads in every region of the country.

* * *

The roads did their worst. East, west, north, south, sand, gravel and rock battered Goodrich tires, as the Test Car Fleets whirled them from state to state, over desert paths, up mountain trails.

But the tires won with a durability and mileage that doubled Goodrich's pride, and came back with a new tire standard—the TESTED of Goodrich Tested Tires.

Tested means certainty of service, proved service, and that means a lot to a tire user. It means long life in a tire, and dependability on the road. For a hidden weakness could not conceal itself from the Test Car Fleets in those millions of miles of roughing it.

* * *

The spiral-wrapped, cable-cord tire body and the tough, close-clutch, cross-barred black safety tread defied the rough going, and under light and heavy cars rolled up phenomenal mileage.

They proved themselves tires not for one car, but all cars; not for one driver, but all drivers; and not on one type of road, but all types.

* * *

GAIN $17,600,000 IN CASH RESERVES

Increase of $138,900,000 in Discounted Bills Also Reported by Reserve Banks

MORE NOTES CIRCULATED

Total Increase for the Week Is $19,500,000—Loss in Federal Deposits.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The Federal Reserve Board's weekly statement shows aggregate gains of $17,600,000 in cash reserves, coupled with a moderate increase in investments and in net deposits, for the week ending with the close of business on April 12. Substantial gains in reserves are reported by the New York, Boston, and Minneapolis banks, largely the result of increase of net deposits and issues of Federal Reserve notes.

Discounted bills on hand show an increase of $138,900,000, as against a decrease of $118,300,000 in Government short-term securities and $6,200,000 in United States bonds. Discounts secured by United States war obligations increased from $304,100,000 to $465,600,000, while holdings of United States securities purchased for the temporary accommodation of member banks fell off from $231,000,000 to $118,100,000. These changes are largely caused by the new provision of the War Finance Corporation act, approved April 5, whereby promissory notes secured by United States war obligations are freed from the stamp tax.

Payment for Federal Reserve Bank stock by newly admitted members, chiefly in the Boston and Cleveland districts, accounts largely for the increase of $254,000 in the amount of paid-in capital.

Government deposits decreased $4,300,000, while members' reserve deposits show a gain of $21,200,000, the New York bank reporting a larger increase of $36,600,000.

Federal Reserve agents report net issues for the week of $18,100,000 of notes. The banks show a total circulation of $1,499,400,000, an increase of $19,500,000 for the week.

HOLD FEWER CERTIFICATES.

Member Banks Report Further Reductions in These Holdings.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Further reductions in holdings of certificates of indebtedness and substantial withdrawals during the week of Government deposits largely from New York banks are indicated by the statement of principal assets and liabilities of 679 member banks in leading cities. Totals for the New York banks for the first time include data for nine Brooklyn banks, which heretofore were grouped with Reserve city banks.

Little change is shown in the totals of United States circulation bonds and other Government bonds held. Certificates of indebtedness on hand show a decrease for the week of $76,400,000, all classes of banks reporting smaller holdings than the week before. Loans secured by Government obligations show but a moderate increase. All other loans and investments decreased about $70,300,000, decreases being practically uniform for the three groups of banks.

Reserves, all with the Federal Reserve Banks, fell off about $18,800,000, the larger decrease shown for the Central Reserve city banks being partly offset by aggregate gains of the banks in other reserve cities.

Cash in vault shows a slight increase. Net demand deposits declined $26,400,000, largely outside the Central Reserve cities, time deposits decreased less than $1,000,000, while Government deposits fell off $130,400,000, the New York and Brooklyn banks alone reporting net withdrawals of $72,100,000 for the week.

For all reporting banks the ratio of loans and investments to total deposits is shown as 108 per cent., as against 107.9 per cent. the week before. For the banks in the Central Reserve cities this ratio works out at 103.5 per cent., compared with 103.3 per cent. on March 29.

The ratio of combined reserve and cash in vault to total deposits of all reporting banks remains unchanged at 13.9 per cent. For the banks in the Central Reserve cities this ratio shows a decline for the week from 15.3 to 15.2 per cent. Total excess reserves in the calculation in which no account is taken of Government deposits declined from $96,100,000 to $79,800,000. For the Central Reserve city banks these reserves show a decrease from $60,100,000 to $42,200,000.

THE COTTON MARKET

Yesterday's short session of the cotton market was characterized by a continuance of the rapid decline in prices which set in during the middle of the week. Amid heavy and general liquidation, in which firms which had hitherto held on to all their cotton joined, quotations were forced down even further in the two-hour session than had been the case in either of the full days which had preceded it. July contracts broke 98 points, virtually $5 a bale, and other deliveries proportionately. The close was barely steady, with a net decline for the day of 77 to 113 points, and more that 350 points from recent high levels.

The Census Bureau report of consumption for March appeared in the morning, but attracted remarkably little attention. Such opinion regarding it as was heard seemed to be divided. The drop in prices seemed to be due simply to the same factors which had governed since last Monday— a topheavy market and the announcement of spot liquidation. The volume of Southern selling was especially remarkable, some long lines which had been accumulated gradually for months being thrown on the market in huge blocks. The opening was weak, off from 3 to 79 points, and barring one brief rally of 20-odd points on covering, the tendency was steadily downward all day. The close was almost at the bottom.

The unseasonable weather does not, from such reports as have been received, as yet seem to have affected the new crop unfavorably. The spot situation in the South is being followed with keen interest, but though quotations are lower, sales are very small, and there are reports of cotton being withdrawn from the markets because of the lower prices.

SCHAEFER CONQUERS COCHRAN WITH CUE

EXPERT BALKLINE PLAYED

Both Youngsters Give Exemplary Exhibition of Close Nurse—Loser Has High Run of 175.

Starting the last block of his 1,800-point match at 18.2 balkline billiards with Welker Cochran 116 points behind, Jake Schaefer, the young Chicago expert, overcame the disadvantage and defeated his equally youthful rival 1,800 to 1,744. Cochran's defeat came only after an exceptional display of close nurse and gather shots by Schaefer, and followed a lost opportunity by Cochran, who had the ivories in position to run out his needed points only to miss on a comparatively easy shot.

Cochran began the last block of the match with a run of 106, but thereafter failed to produce the points with the rapidity he displayed on the other nights. Schaefer, on the other hand, seemed to improve the further he went. He opened with a run of 72, missed twice, then in four innings collected 304 points, getting 157 in one inning. Schaefer averaged 41 6-10 in his final block, while Cochran averaged just above 27.

In the afternoon game Cochran made the highest run of the match when, in his eighth inning, he gathered together 185 points before missing on a difficult draw shot for position. In this cluster the youngster gave ample proof of his excellent conception of the game. Almost every shot was cleanly, finely, and truly made, and all came, from a remarkable display of close nursing. Only one shot of the lot could have been called fortunate, and this was a kiss shot.

Schaefer had made the best run of the match during the play of the first afternoon when he collected 167 points. Each went over 100 several times, and double figures were the rule rather than the exception. Cochran averaged a flat 25 in taking the afternoon block, against an average of 21 7-11 for his opponent, and when the evening contest started Cochran led in the match 1,500 to 1,384.

There was such interest displayed by the lovers of billiards in the match that Maurice Daly decided to arrange another contest immediately. This time Cochran, Yamada, and Schaefer will play a three-handed affair tomorrow, Tuesday, and Wednesday. Tomorrow afternoon Schaefer and Yamada will play 300 points, and in the evening Cochran will meet the loser of the afternoon session.

The summaries:

Afternoon Score.

Cochran—12 2 1 8 19 0 40 185 8 0 2 14. Total, 300. Average, 25. High run, 185.

CREW SITUATION PUZZLING.

There has never been a college rowing season when the relative strength of the crews has been so much in doubt as at the present time. Every college which has an eight on the water has lost all of its veteran oarsmen, and every crew is an unknown quantity. This gives an element of chance to the season which is arousing much interest among the followers of college aquatics.

In former years it has always been possible to size up the value of one or two crews on the basis of their strength of the previous season, but no one knows what the crews being developed this year will be able to do. The uncertainty of the rowing situation this year is pointed out by Bill Haines, coach of the Harvard crews. He says that the consequences of men leaving for Government service have been felt to a greater extent than was expectd by the coaching staff and crew management.

"As was expected," says Coach Haines, "the crew has been hit hard by the war; but I had no idea that there would be so few men of experience back. Of course, the Harvard 'Varsity eight this year will not be as formidable as in the days before the war, but the same state of affairs prevails at Yale and Princeton. We have a lot of green material, and this, added to the fact that the shells have been on the river for such a short time, makes it rather hard to tell how strong the first boat will be. There is not a senior on the first crew, and there are only three juniors who rowed on their freshman eight. On the other hand, the number of freshman candidates this year doesn't seem to have been affected by war conditions, and, so far as I can tell now, we are going to have as good a first-year eight as we have ever had."

LEONARD HAS EASY TIME.

Middies Win at Lacrosse.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 13.—The Midshipmen gave Johns Hopkins a severe drubbing at lacrosse this afternoon, winning by 12 to 0. Hopkins was weak at the goal, and its attack men lacked the dash to bore in and try shots for goal. The Midshipment never exhibited better team work and were faster than the visitors.

PELKINGTON WINS IN RING.

Amateur Boxing Champion Defeats Crozier at N. Y. A. C.

Charles Pilkington, Union Settlement A. C., holder of the New York State 125-pound amateur boxing title, last night won a spectacular bout from E. R. Crozier, unattached, in gaining the 130-pound prize in the finals of the New York A. C.'s tournament. Crozier, showing unexpected ability, furnished the champion a surprise, and carried Pilkington along through the three rounds at a merry pace. The clever jabbing and snappy hitting of Pilkington, however, earned him the judges' award.

Max Kaufman, Rutgers Place Gymnasium, gained the prize in the 110-pound class, scoring two victories. In his first bout Kaufman defeated P. Stein, Union Settlement A. C., and in his second trial the Rutgers Place Gymnasium boxer trounced H. A. Handebode, Morningside A. C. Kaufman won the final bout by default from J. Alter, a clubmate.

In the battle for the 140-pound prize J. Blau, Clark House A. A., defeated D. Rosenberg, unattached, three rounds, judges' decision, and in the 150-pound class B. Lichtman, Pastime A. C., defeated R. Quann, Jr., St. Monica's Lyceum, in two rounds, Referee George Schwegler stopping the contest. The 120-pound prize went to W. Pomerantz, Rutgers Gymnasium, who defeated L. Dodd in three rounds, judges' decision.

WOODSTONE VICTOR IN BOWIE HANDICAP

Capably Ridden by Rodriguez, M. Shea's Horse Takes Closing Feature of Race Meet.

BOWIE, Md., April 13.—The final day's racing of the Spring meeting ended the first Eastern event of the season with seven well-run contests here today. It also brought out M. Shea's Woodstone as the winner of the Liberty Bond Handicap in a driving finish, in which the riding of Rodriguez was the outstanding factor in the victory.

Rodriguez, who made a remarkable showing in this meeting, handled Woodstone with unerring judgment. Coming into the stretch Woodstone seemed pinched off by All Smiles and Cobalt Lass, but Rodriguez rated his mount along, found an opening on the rail, sent Woodstone through the opening, and hand-rode the Rock Sand horse over the line a winner by more than a length over All Smiles. Rodriguez got everything there was out of his mount.

C. F. Brant's Fairly sprung a surprise on the talent in the fifth race when the gelding came up from fifth position with a rush at the turn into the stretch, and then ran over the rest of the field to win with comparative ease. Rodriguez was riding Progressive in this race and saved ground all the way, but his mount did not have the speed to hold Fairly in the final drive.

SCHOOLBOY MEET ARRANGED

A patriotic tone will attend the fifteenth annual indoor athletic meet of the Roosevelt Athletic League, which will be held in the Seventy-first Regiment Armory April 27. Schoolboy athletes of the districts scattered through the five boroughs comprising the league will participate in an Olympic parade and a service flag salute. In addition, there will be a flag drill by the color guard of Public School 40 and a physical training drill, in which 400 pupils will exercise, under the supervision of Dr. C. Ward Crampton of the P. S. A. L.

The athletic competitions will be the same as in previous years, and it is expected that more than 1,000 schoolboys will participate in the various events. An added feature this year will be a one-mile army and navy relay race, in which the officials have invited all the local camps and stations to compete. The school scoring the greatest number of points in the meet will receive the Winthrop Trophy. The proceeds from the meet will be devoted to war relief funds.

ALEX THE GREAT TO DON UNIFORM

Chairman of Cub Twirler's Exemption Board Says Baseball Star Will Be Taken in Draft.

The latest report from Lincoln, Neb., on the Grover Cleveland Alexander case says that the Chicago pitcher has been called to go in the next draft quota to Camp Funston. This information was sent to Lincoln by the Chairman of the County Exemption Board at St. Paul, Neb., Alexander's home town.

Early in the day it was denied by the officials that Alexander had been called. The question as to whether or not the star pitcher is to go into the army at once has caused country-wide comment as the case is all important to the Chicago Cubs, for if Alexander is lost to the club in the draft the team will be greatly weakened. It will also mean a loss of $50,000 to the Chicago club as a result of the big deal for the pitcher which was made with the Philadelphia club last Winter.

A telegram to The Associated Press from the local board at St. Paul is as follows:

"Grover Cleveland Alexander is called to go in the next quota, but he is not officially notified, as we are not yet informed by the Provost Marshal just when they will entrain for Camp Funston.

"W. H. ATWOOD,
"Chairman of Local Board."

The State officials of Nebraska gave out the information that the question as to whether Alexander will go to camp this month depends on the number of men the board exempts for agricultural reasons. Some of the claims for exemption by farmers are still pending, but will be decided by the board within a few days. Alexander is now the thirteenth man in the list of the month's quota and there are twelve to be selected.

SAYS ARGENTINA SUPPORTS OUR AIMS

ADMIRES WILSON'S POLICY

"One of the World's Great Benign Figures"—Reparation by Germany Alone Kept Argentina Neutral.

By ROY W. HOWARD.
President of The United Press.

Copyright, 1918, by The United Press.

BUENOS AIRES, April 13.—"Argentina is not indifferent toward the international conflagration now raging, nor is her course or her attitude to be construed as unsympathetic or cold toward the United States. The difficulties of her position possibly are not fully understood in the United States. What our past actions have been is known, even if they have sometimes been misinterpreted. Only future international developments will shape our future international policy, but no misunderstanding of past developments should cause a prejudgment of Argentina's future policy to her disadvantage."

With a sincerity and straightforwardness carrying even greater import than his words, Hipolyto Irigoyen, President of Argentina, in an exclusive interview granted to The United Press Friday afternoon in the Rose House—Argentina's White House—belied the insinuations of his enemies that he is unsympathetic toward the Allies and cold, even unfriendly, to North America.

Prefacing his remarks with an appreciation of North American journalistic efforts to develop the acquaintance between the United States and Argentina, efforts in which The United Press is the pioneer, and voicing his pleasure that the Argentinians are recognizing, tardily perhaps, the tremendous importance of such an acquaintance, he discussed for nearly an hour the international complications which have focused the attention of the world on Argentina.

His talk was devoid of mincing of words, of hair-splitting and fine shades of meaning. On the contrary, he spoke with the directness and conviction of a statesman sure of himself and of the defensibility of his position, and palpably made no attempt to "carry water on both shoulders."

When interrogated regarding Argentina's not breaking with Germany in the face of great popular demands for a declaration of war after Germany had affronted the republic, he said:

"The position of a neutral is very difficult. It is not always understood by belligerents, as the United States will appreciate.

"The misunderstanding of Argentina's position is quite evident to us, but it would not be well for the world to prejudge Argentina's future course, except upon a full understanding of her past course and her present position.

Reparation Disarmed Argentina.

"When she was affronted by Germany, Argentina, acting in accordance with international procedure, demanded an apology and reparation. When both were granted, Argentina, under the law, was unable to proceed further, regardless of individual opinions and national sentiments. When Germany made reparation upon our demands, our course was dictated as certainly as was that of the United States throughout the period of her long neutrality.

"It is no time now to discuss our course in the event of future affronts, but there is no justification for doubting us meanwhile."

When asked if he considered that Argentina's position parallels that of the United States after the Sussex sinking, he replied in the affirmative, adding:

"As the United States was estopped from action against Germany while Germany's pledges regarding use of submarines had not been violated, so Argentina is estopped now.

"Although herself rushed with war preparations, the United States certainly does not mistake and is not blind to Argentina's sympathy and warm feeling, which we have expressed on every occasion since the United States entered the war. I am certain that Americans generally recognize that, by inviting the American fleet to visit Buenos Aires and in many other ways where our bond of sympathy dictated, we give proof of the genuineness and depth of our friendship for America. Argentina has never hesitated. We have cheerfully placed ourselves on record, at times under conditions which risked bringing upon ourselves reprisals and serious difficulties.

"Argentina's sympathetic approval has followed the United States step by step. We have indorsed your course and voiced our approval of the loftiness of your objectives on every important occasion. I have personally followed every move of President Wilson and have read every public utterance by him regarding the aims and purposes of the United States, with a feeling of the greatest admiration and respect. By his words and deeds we in Argentina have come to recognize and accept him as one of the world's great benign figures."

Asked if he believed the unselfishness and humanitarianism of the United States was understood and accepted in Argentina, President Irigoyen replied:

"There is no longer the slightest doubt. Whatever skepticism existed as a result of lack of understanding has been eliminated by the consistency of subsequent utterances and the manner in which actions have squared with words."

Irigoyen's Popularity Growing.

The entire effect and impression left by the interview, which is practically unprecedented in Argentina, was that there is not the slightest doubt of the genuineness and sincerity of President Irigoyen's personal feelings toward the United States. Like President Wilson, however, he regards his position as President as detached and impersonal. The feeling with which he referred to the various actions and statements of our President indicated a belief that his position would be better understood by President Wilson than any one else.

The conversation made evident President Irigoyen's belief that he and President Wilson were in attunement on vital principles, regardless of possible divergencies of viewpoint on minor matters.

Throughout Argentina the admission is frankly made by President Irigoyen's political opponents that he is becoming better understood and more appreciated by his countrymen. Even the strongest pro-Ally sympathizers admit the probability of Irigoyen understanding the temperament of the Argentinians best and that, appreciating the volatile nature of the people and the deadly seriousness of participating in the war, he has awaited the development of an issue upon which he would be certain to have nation-wide support in the event of a break with Germany.

LAST WEEK OF THE CIRCUS.

Big Troupe Goes to Brooklyn Next Sunday, Then Starts West.

The Barnum & Bailey Circus begins the last week of its 1918 season in Madison Square Garden tomorrow. Despite the war the circus has had, to date, one of its best seasons in New York and ended its first three weeks by playing to capacity crowds yesterday. It was said that the Government revenue which will be derived from the stay of the circus in New York will amount to at least $50,000.

The circus performers had a chance yesterday to subscribe to the Liberty Loan when a Sergeant of the regular army, formerly a rider with the show, went behind the scenes as the representative of the Liberty Loan Committee. Within an hour he sold more than $20,000 worth of bonds, ranging in value from $50 to $1,000. The soldier still has about two-thirds of the performers to see and expects to sell a total of at least $50,000 bonds.

The circus this year is an allied organization, every nation now at war with Germany, with the exception of Cuba, Brazil and Panama, being represented in the big family of performers. The United States, as a matter of course, leads, among the Americans being the Davenport troupe of equestrians, Miss Bird Millman, the wire rope dancer; Cy Compton and his big company of rough riders, the Seigrist family representatives in the Seigrist-Silbon troupe of aerialists, the Flying Cromwells, and about forty of the fifty clowns.

Great Britain is represented by the Hannaford troupe of riders, which is the ring feature of the show; the Silbons of the Seigrist-Silbon troupe, Fred Derrick, the equestrian, the Belford troupe of aerialists, and Harry Mooney, the elephant trainer, while France, the other great ally, gave to the circus the Millets, who are equilibrists; Marceline the clown, and twelve musicians.

Italy stands high in circusdom, a fact which is evident when it is stated that among the Italian subjects who star on the ground and in the air are the Neapolitans, one of the aerial features; the contortionist aggregation of Millilo sisters, Bagonghi, the midget horseman, and a dozen others not quite so well known. The Dikos, who perform in the air, are among those who represent Belgium, while the Tamaki troupe of jiu-jitsu experts are the Japanese members of the big tent family.

The boomerang throwers are from Australia, and there are three troupes of Chinese acrobats. The neutral performers represent Denmark, Sweden, Holland, the Argentine and Spain, the best known among them being Lupeta Perea, the little Spanish woman aerialist.

When the circus ends its season next Saturday night it will cross the bridge to play one week under canvas in Brooklyn. It then makes Philadelphia, Washington and Baltimore, and a few other Eastern cities, after which it starts on a cross-country tour that will take it to the Pacific Coast.

LIKELY TO SUCCEED MUCK.

Understood That Ossip Gabrilowitsch Is to Lead Boston Symphony.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., April 13.—Although it has been well understood in Boston musical circles that Ossip Gabrilowitsch is to be the successor to Dr. Karl Muck as leader of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, those in control at the Back Bay concert headquarters still refuse to make definite announcement.

Charles E. Ellis, manager of the orchestra, said tonight that Mr. Schmidt, who has been conducting the concerts since Dr. Muck's arrest, would continue to do so for the rest of the season, now drawing to a close. He added that Mr. Gabrilowitsch will play in two concerts in Boston next week, but that his future plans could not be discussed at this time.

Ossip Gabrilowitsch, son-in-law of the late Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain) and distinguished as both a pianist and conductor, in which latter capacity he will reappear in New York next week, has for some time been mentioned as a likely successor to Dr. Muck in Boston. Another candidate for the place, according to report, was Leopold Stokowski, leader of the Philadelphia Orchestra.

Mr. Gabrilowitsch is a Russian, born Jan. 26, 1878, in Petrograd, where he was a pupil of Anton Rubinstein, taking the Rubinstein prize at the Imperial Conservatory when he was 16 years old. He later studied at Vienna with Leschetizky. In 1900 he made his first American tour as pianist, and since his marriage to Clara Clemens he has spent most of his time in this country.

During the last season he was among the guest conductors of symphony organizations at Cincinnati and Detroit. In 1912 he first conducted an orchestra with the Konzertverein of Munich, Germany, and for some years he made his Summer home in the Austrian Tyrol.

MISS GARRISON IN 'COQ D'OR'

Her First Appearance as the Princess—"Cavalleria" and "Thais."

Two sold-out houses at the Metropolitan yesterday marked the rush to opera within a week of the season's close. Mabel Garrison at the matinée sang for the first time here the soprano role in "Coq d'Or," as she is announced to do at the final performance next Saturday night. Miss Garrison's voice was of beautiful freshness and ample power in the Queen of Shemakha's difficult airs, to which Rosina Galli danced for the first time since a recent illness. Florence Easton and a familiar cast in "Cavalleria" preceded the Russian opera-pantomime.

In the evening, Farrar, Diaz, and Amato appeared in the last performance of "Thais" this season. Tonight the Italian Hospital holds a war benefit concert with Caruso.

MRS. PICKFORD COMPLAINS.

Actress's Mother Has Man Arrested for Alleged Insult to Daughter.

While Mary Pickford was appealing to thousands of persons in the Bronx in support of the Liberty Loan campaign yesterday afternoon, a young man in the audience is alleged to have made a remark about her which caused her mother, Mrs. Charlotte Pickford, to have him arrested.

Mrs. Pickford was mingling in the throng listening to her daughter. She seized the young man, and, calling Patrolman Flannagan, ordered his arrest and declared that he had made an insulting remark to her daughter, which he denied. Mrs. Pickford was sustained in her accusation by two men, who said they were newspaper reporters.

At the police station the prisoner gave his name as Dennie Joseph, 19 years old, a typist, of 1,390 Clinton Avenue, the Bronx. He was born in Hungary and has been in the United States for twelve years. Mrs. Pickford pressed the complaint, and in declining to be specific as to the alleged insulting remark, she said it was too degrading to be repeated, but that she would tell it in court.

The reporters who were with her likewise declined to repeat the alleged insulting remark, but said that they would corroborate Mrs. Pickford.

The prisoner denied to Police Captain John Lantry that he made any insulting remark about the actress.

MUSIC NOTES.

Carolina Lazzari, Rudolph Ganz, and Andre Polah will appear on April 22 in a benefit concert for Red Cross Auxiliary 190 at the Church of the Messiah, Thirty-fourth Street and Park Avenue.

The Metropolitan Opera ushers will hold their annual dinner Tuesday evening at the Roma Restaurant. Twenty-three ushers are employed in the Opera House, of whom thirteen are now serving in the war.

BROOKLYN'S GAIN IN TRANSIT MILES

Nearly Twice as Many as in 1913, with Many More to Come in the Next Two Years.

CHANCE FOR REAL GROWTH.

How the New Lines Will Change the Tides of Travel and Relieve the Present Congestion.

The report of the financial status of the city and the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company under the dual contract recently made public by Public Service Commissioner Travis H. Whitney contains the suggestion that much of the criticism leveled at the commission for alleged dilatory methods is due to the fact that the people have forgotten or never knew the great progress made under the contract.

In Brooklyn, where about 90 per cent. of the criticism comes from, the new track miles placed in operation since 1913 have almost doubled the track miles in service at that time, when the total number was 115. The new tracks measure more than ninety-nine miles. On the Centre Street loop, Fourth Avenue and Broadway subways, and the New Utrecht Avenue route, the new track miles number 60.28. More than twenty-two new track miles have been laid on the Myrtle Avenue and Broadway connection, the Sea Beach route and the Coney Island Terminal, and nearly seventeen new track miles have been laid on Fulton Street and on the Liberty Avenue and Jamaica Avenue extensions.

In reference to these new tracks the report says:

"The new lines of both systems together with these portions of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit system in Manhattan (which are primarily for Brooklyn passengers) mean that approximately half the cost of the dual system is being expended for the benefit of Brooklyn, a fact that should mean tremendous benefits to Brooklyn."

The report states that, while the population grows faster than rapid transit lines can be built, this should be a source of pride and not a reason for discouragement. Speaking of the changing tides of travel, it says that there has been a great shift in travel to take advantage of the 5-cent fare to Manhattan from Times Square to Rector Street, with the result of saving thousands of dollars a day to Brooklyn passengers. Then the report says:

"There results also an enormous increase in the value of Brooklyn property. This shift of travel has been, first, on to the Brooklyn elevated, and, second, into the Fourth Avenue subway. With respect to the first the extension of train operation in the Centre Street loop from Essex Street to Chambers Street in 1913 caused some increase, but the extension of operation across Manhattan Bridge through Canal Street and up Broadway to Fourteenth Street caused an enormous increase over the Williamsburg Bridge, for the reason that thereby passengers could transfer at Canal Street without extra fare. Likewise the Fourth Avenue subway attracted passengers from the Fifth Avenue elevated and from surface lines. The opening of operation to Broadway and Fourteenth Street in September, 1917, and to Forty-second Street and Rector Street in January, 1918, was, however, the great cause of overcrowding on the Williamsburg Bridge.

"A comparison of the travel in 1917 with that of 1913 showed a decrease of 95,000 passengers per day over the Brooklyn Bridge and an increase of 150,000 over the Williamsburg Bridge. From the operation of the first part of the Centre Street loop in 1913 improvements have been necessary. Experience showed that conditions would be improved by the removal of stairways from the mezzanine floor to the train platforms. Accordingly, two of them have been taken out. Guard rails have been installed in places. Platform guards have been required. The trains entering the loop were increased from six to seven cars, though the increase in seats thereby gained was shortly lost by the increase of travel."

Attention is called to the relief in the congestion that will come as soon as the Fourteenth Street-Eastern line is in operation, and regret is expressed that it will not be possible to place this line in service within about two years.

"When this line is completed," the report says, "a substantial part of the travel from Manhattan Junction desirous of reaching the central part of Manhattan will travel via the Fourteenth Street route and thus relieve the Centre Street loop.

"The situation illustrates one of the difficulties when a great comprehensive system is under construction, various parts of which get placed in operation as soon as it is possible to complete them. Synchronization of contracts was attempted in the beginning in order that essential parts of the dual system might be completed first, but contract and construction difficulties have been met with to such an extent that the program of progress has broken down. The result has been that outlying lines, such as the Fourth Avenue, Sea Beach, West End, Liberty Avenue, Jamaica Avenue, the Fresh Pond Road extension, have been completed and placed in operation before the tunnels and terminal facilities in Manhattan were ready.

"The public has, therefore, seen opportunity for greatly increased service on the lines in Brooklyn without fully realizing that the facilities in the Centre Street loop and of the Manhattan Broadway subway were so limited in capacity as to produce extreme congestion of trains during rush hour periods. For example, the crossover north of the Canal Street station had to be put in service with hand operation, although the automatic signals and switching facilities will shortly be available. Likewise the express tracks up above Fourteenth Street have not been available, due to the fact that construction work at Forty-second Street and northward has not reached the stage where trains can reach the crossover north of the Forty-second Street station. When this becomes possible, together with the completion of the Montague-Whitehall Street tunnels, the capacity of the Broadway subway to receive trains from the Fourth Avenue system in Brooklyn will be practically doubled."

In commenting on the report Public Service Commissioner Whitney said that the physical expansion of lines in Brooklyn having been indicated, the advantage to passengers in fare saving and in the increase of values in realty, and the availability of developing new sections, were parts of the objects sought when the dual contract was made. Then he added:

"The commission and the city determined upon a comprehensive dual transit system with a universal fare as a fixed principle, evidently on the theory that the spreading out of population and of industries throughout the territory of the city was so important as to require a fixation of fare for a long period. Yet the costs of transportation must be met. This problem is of special importance if long distances and undeveloped areas are involved. As transportation here is municipalized, development is both a business and a social problem of the companies and the city. The city secured by the dual contracts a great expansion of facilities by assuming the possibility of deficits from operation. As a substantial portion of the entire system is now completed and portions are in operation, it becomes pertinent to inquire as to the financial status of the city in respect to the responsibilities and guarantees which it assumed.

"It will be recalled that by the terms of Contract No. 4, with the Brooklyn Rapid Transit, the city undertook to construct various subway and elevated lines, (toward which the company contributed $13,500,000,) and the company undertook to operate these lines and to operate in conjunction with them their own elevated lines. In addition, the company undertook the obligation to furnish equipment and to construct the Sea Beach Line, Liberty Avenue, Jamaica Avenue, and Fresh Pond Road extensions. Such expenditures by the company were then estimated at $60,000,000, but they will be increased beyond this figure. In other words, the company was to contribute toward the joint enterprise a certain amount of cash, certain existing elevated structures belonging to the company, and certain new elevated structures to be built by the company.

"Under the financial program of the contract all the revenues from the old and new company lines and from the municipal lines leased to the company are devoted to the payment of various operation expenses and fixed charges in the order as set forth in the tables hereinafter."

HAS FLAG WASHINGTON GAVE

One of the oldest flags in this city and which is interesting from the fact that it was presented by George Washington to the Second Company of Washington Volunteers is owned by Mrs. Margaret D. Early of the Hotel Walton. It has been in possession of her family nearly forty years, having been won by her father, Thomas Dooley, an old New Yorker, in a raffle at a fair held in 1879 to raise funds for the Paulist Church at Columbus Avenue and Sixtieth Street, then in course of erection. The flag was given to the managers of the fair to be sold for the benefit of the church.

A written statement accompanying the flag says that it was given to the regimental company by "General Washington at his headquarters, 1 Broadway," but no date is affixed.

The flag is a blue silk banner, about three feet square, adorned in the centre with a painting of the Gilbert Stuart portrait of Washington surrounded with a laurel wreath of gold surmounted by a scroll bearing the name of the Washington Volunteers. A border of gold fringe surrounds the flag. It is considerably faded but in excellent condition considering its age.

The Stuart portrait indicates that the flag was presented to the Washington Volunteers after 1794, as Gilbert Stuart painted his first portrait of Washington in that year. Washington had his headquarters at 1 Broadway before the battle of Long Island in 1776. The old building was known by that name for many years, and it was probably on one of his visits to New York City while President that the presentation was made.

INDEPENDENT ARTISTS.

There will be 1,800 pictures in the exhibition of the Society of Independent Artists to open next Saturday. The society had its first exhibition in the Grand Central Palace last year. The Independent Artists, it will be remembered, allows its members to be the judges of their own pictures or exhibits. Each member paying dues is entitled to exhibit a certain number of art works, kind not specified. The result was unique last year, and with all the liberty of action allowed its members, the independent society had a little of the true artists' trials, and at least one number was withdrawn, it not being believed that even a broadminded public would stand for it as representing true art for art's sake.

There were other numbers that might have been questioned from that viewpoint, but they passed muster, and the exhibition as a whole was sufficiently catholic to interest many curious people not at all interested in art. This year the members decided to economize in the placement of their work, and they have finally decided upon a location on the ground floor of 110 to 114 West Forty-second Street. The 900 exhibitors are from all quarters of the globe. There will be a decorated entrance, with panels of William Zorach. Admission will be 25 cents.

The independents had decided to show their works in a tent, but after pursuing army tentmakers and circus men they were finally reduced to an ordinary interior.

In the dead physician's pockets was found a letter addressed to Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, in which Dr. Stedman said he had invented a device which would prevent injury to ships by torpedoes. Dr. Stedman was willing that the Navy Department experiment with the device at his expense, the letter stated. Dr. Thomas L. Stedman of 1,425 Broadway, this city, a relative, took charge of Dr. Stedman's body. Death was said to have been due to heart disease.
